The Anti-Saloon League, of New Brunswick, has scored a big victory in that liquor-ridden city. The Common Council has blotted out twenty licensed places, and there is prospect that it will go still further and put six other saloon-keepers out of business. This action is all the more commendable on the part of the New Brunswick fathers when it is considered that by taking such action the city will lose $7,000 in fees. Altogether seventy-nine applications have been granted. Plainfield has thirteen licensed places and is nearly as large as that city, and the friends of good government will no doubt agree that the people of Middlesex's county seat will do well by considerably decreasing the number of licensed places when an opportunity is again afforded.

Alexander Gilbert and Joseph W. Reinhart have sent their checks for ten dollars to The Daily Press to be added to the band concert fund, and we take pleasure in acknowledging their generosity. Others whose checks have already been acknowledged include William Palmer Smith, Charles W. McCutchen, Paul Taylor Brown, J. W. Jackson and "a friend." These men are among a large number who have always been heart and soul for anything that would be a benefit to the community. We hope that others noted for their civic pride will come forward and help the cause along. The aim is to give free open-air band concerts once a week during the heated season. They are intended for the enjoyment of the masses and have been agreed upon as the best form of public entertainment that can be arranged.

BAND CONCERT FUND.

The Daily Press acknowledges the following donations for the free open-air band concert fund received to date:

William Palmer Smith	$ 5
Charles W. McCutchen	10

Stole Fruit.

James Ennis, a small boy, was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning, charged with stealing fruit from the yard of Mrs. Hardy ,of West Eighth street. Sentence was suspended after the magistrate had administered a sharp rebuke.

—A still alarm at fire headquarters at 11:30 this morning called No. 2 hose wagon to 203 Liberty street for a chimney fire. It was put out with no damage resulting.

MRS. LENA SKELLY WON'T PREFER CHARGES

INFORMED HER BROTHER, THEO. ANTONIO, SHE WILL NOT PROCEED.

Mrs. Lena Skelly, nee Antonio, a sister of Theodore Antonio, the porter at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot in New Brunswick, will not bring charges against her husband, Lewis Skelly, of North avenue, this city, because of his marriage to Louise Cinquegrini, here a few days ago. She telephoned to her brother at New Brunswick Saturday that she would take no proceedings against her former husband on the bigamy or any other charge.

At the present time she is supporting herself and child on Staten Island. She says that Skelly had never divorced her.

It will be remembered that Louise Cinquegrini, Skelly's latest wife, was in court at New Brunswick Tuesday as complainant against Philbertti Carria, on an abduction charge. She claimed he compelled her to go to Philadelphia with him. The hearing brought out the fact that the girl had misstated the circumstances and Judge Strong discharged the man in the custody of his counsel, Lawyer Cook, directing Carrio to marry the girl. Louise Cinquegrini's father, who keeps a fruit stand on Somerset street, New Brunswick, decided he did not want his daughter to marry Carrio, and so hustled her off to this city, Wednesday, and married her to Lewis Skelly, thereby making Skelly open to a charge of bigamy. Justice Mosher performed the ceremony and he was greatly surprised when told that Skelly is alleged to have another wife.

TWENTY SALOONS LESS.

New Brunswick's Council Takes Radical Action.

New Brunswick's Common Council wiped twenty saloons off the face of that city's map Monday evening without much ado. They granted seventy-nine licenses and held six applications over until the next meeting, next Monday night.

The action Monday night was a fulfillment of the promise of the present administration to give the city a cleaner government. The aldermen early in the year made a promise to handle the saloon question in a manner that would please all broad-minded public spirited citizens and it seems to have fulfilled that promise. In spite of its promise it has been prejudged and precondemned and a political attempt has been made to attribute all sorts of mean motives to the aldermen.

The aldermen have simply said nothing, knowing that their friends had faith in their first promise no matter what stories their political enemies manufactured. And their friends and the friends of good government were not disappointed Monday evening.

The refusal of twenty applications Monday evening meant the return of $7,000 in license fees, but the aldermen felt that the city could get along without some of the places and would be a great deal better off.

Trolley Turnout.

It is the intention of the Public Service Corporation to install a turnout on the Arlington avenue line near Randolph road, in the near future, thus making it possible for the cars to maintain a fifteen-minute schedule that is satisfactory. The company wanted to place a turnout on Randolph road, near Park avenue, but the city objected owing to the width of the road. No doubt the request of the company would have been granted had it offered to widen the street a few feet, but this did not appeal to the company. The next best thing is to place the turnout on Arlington avenue, and this will probably be done.

Charles Arthur King, of Watchung avenue, is among those who will be graduated from Columbia University today.

ARCANUMITES KICK.

Fanwood Council Protests Against Higher Rate Schedule.

Following in the footsteps of many other councils, Fanwood Council, R. A., of Fanwood, at its semi-monthly meeting last night, registered a vigorous protest against the plan of the Supreme Council of the order to raise the assessments to a higher figure. Fanwood Council numbers nearly 140 members, and last year was one of the banner councils of the State in point of increased membership, having by hard work swelled the list over 33 per cent. over that of the year previous. This year promised to be another record breaker, but from present indications many of the new members are likely to fall away unless the Supreme Council is induced to reconsider its action by the protests that are reaching it from councils all over the country.

SOMERSET SPENT $37.50 ON KILLING FOXES

PRICE PAID FOR PUTTING 11 FOXES OUT OF THE WAY.

It cost Somerset county last year $37.50 for the killing of eleven foxes in the county, according to the annual report of County Collector E. B. Allen, which has just been issued. The county pays $3 per fox for every one killed. It considers that it is worth that much to the peace of mind of the farmers to know that they are dead.

The county must have proof that the fox has really been caught in the county and that he has been put to death. In order to furnish this proof the hunter must take the fox before a justice of the peace and secure a certificate that the justice is satisfied that the fox is dead. The justice is a sort of county executioner of foxes, and he gets 50 cents from the county for such service. During the last year the county escaped paying two of these certificate fees in some manner, and so the total cost was reduced a dollar. The men who caught the foxes are James A Smith, 3; David Card, Jacob Schneider, Jediah Higgins, E. Woods Hendershot, Wilmer Whited, 1 each.

Boyd, General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, Pa.

Angel Dancer's Troubles.

Hackensack, June 14.—William Robert Johnson, the "angel dancer," committed to the Hackensack jail for ten days for disorderly conduct, created some excitement in jail today. He was determined to preach to the prisoners during and after the religious services. In the middle of the sermon Johnson yelled: "I have been searching for God thirty-seven years!" which outburst stopped the service for some time.

RIGHTS OF RAILROADS.

Supreme Court Passes on Point as to Land Condemnation.

Trenton, June 13.—The Supreme Court, in an opinion by Justice Dixon, decided yesterday an important point in connection with the rights of railroad companies to condemn for tunnel purposes.

The decision was in the suit of Thomas McEwan, Jr., against the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York Railroad Company. It was contended on behalf of McEwan that the company could not condemn an easement for tunnel purposes, but would have to take the whole land in fee. On this point the court said:

"We think that when the purpose of the company can be accomplished by acquiring rights and easements less than by the fee of the land, the extent to which it may condemn the title of the owner is correspondingly limited."

In Woman's Sphere

Why Does She Attempt Man's Work?—The Appropriate Girl

"Ah, ha!" remarked the bachelor. "I see that women are complaining of the scarcity of situations! Here is a stenographer who writes on behalf of her sister key tappers that after they have spent all their money in getting educated they can't get positions that will bring them a decent salary."

"Um—very sad!" remarked the bachelor woman dryly.

"Good heavens!" he snapped. "Why can't you have a little sympathy for your own sex? I don't expect you, a working woman, to slush over the sweet home creature, but at least have some pity for the poor, hard worked woman who, like yourself, has to earn her living and who can't get a situation!"

"What do I do for a living?" asked the bachelor woman calmly.

"Why, you make women's dresses—you are a dressmaker," he answered, puzzled.

"Yes, and I make a good living at it, don't I?"

"You do, indeed, considering the unholy prices you charge."

"I don't try to do man's work, do I? I don't try to be a doctor or a lawyer or even indulge in office work. No; I do woman's work, and if more of these people who are starving were to indulge in woman's work instead of having office work on the brain there would be less weeping and wailing about low salaries.

Woman's False Pride.

"Women are full of false pride. A woman will do anything but be an efficient servant, and those who are servants do not put their hearts into it. Take the cooks, for instance. How many of them try to learn how to improve themselves and to be more valuable to their employers? And yet, look at the men cooks—how they make a fine art of their trade and get salaries accordingly! There are a few women who are high priced chefs to millionaires and restaurants, but what is the percentage compared to that of men? You can't deny that the average woman has a much better head for cooking than she has for figures. Then why be a poor accountant or stenographer or private secretary and earn a weekly pittance instead of being a first class cook and working up ultimately to some household where one's salary is estimated by the year?

"Then take my trade. It takes a pretty poor dressmaker not to have customers. Unless she cuts out two sleeves alike and makes her skirts pull up in front she is going to have all the work she wants. And, as for the artists in the profession—well, they charge their own prices, and people are glad to pay them. It is the same with millinery, laundry work or keeping boarders. You see women who would do well at something they could practice in their own home going out into offices, losing their health and making poor wages, while some man steps in and succeeds at their work."

The Appropriate Girl.

"Others may admire the beautiful girl, but give me the appropriate one," remarked a man in my hearing recently.

"But what do you mean?" we all asked.

"The girl who always looks right and does the right thing at the right time. When you invite her out into the country, for instance, she doesn't lace herself within an inch of her life and wear tight boots so she can't walk; neither is she that aggravating specimen who never has anything to wear (which means that she has everything but the right thing). When she goes traveling she dresses plainly and sensibly in a neat gray or blue costume. She looks like a lady, and I can assure you that under those circumstances every one admires the tailor made girl infinitely more than the fancy one."

CHAPTER V.

There had been a morning of jubilee in the camp of the Fifth Separate brigade, and a row in the tents of the regulars. Up to within a fortnight such a state of affairs would have been considered abnormal, for the papers would have it that the former were on the verge of dissolution through plague, pestilence and famine due to the neglect of officials vaguely referred to as "the military authorities," or "the staff," while up to the coming of Canker to command sweet accord had reigned in the regular brigade, and the volunteers looked on with envy. But now a great martial magnate had praised the stalwart citizen soldiery whom he had passed in review early in the day, and set them to shouting by the announcement that, as reward for their hard work and assiduous drill, they should have their heart's desire and be shipped across the seas to far Manila. It had all been settled beforehand at headquarters. The "chief" had known for four days that that particular command would be selected for the next expedition, but it tickled "the boys" to have it put that way, and the home papers would make so much of it. So there was singing and triumph and rejoicing all along the eastern verge of a rocky, roughly paved cross street, and rank blasphemy across the way. To the scandal and sorrow of the ——teenth infantry some of the recent robberies had been traced to their very doors. A commissary sergeant had "weakened," a cartman had squealed, and one of the most popular and attractive young soldiers in the whole command was now a prisoner in the guardhouse charged with criminal knowledge of the whole affair, and of being a large recipient of the ill-gotten money—Morton, of the adjutant's office, a private in company K.

What made it worse was the allegation that several others, non-commissioned officers and "special duty men," were mixed up in the matter, and Canker had rasped the whole commissioned force present for duty in his lecture upon the subject and had almost intimated that officers were conniving at the concealment of the guilt of their sergeants rather than have it leak out that the felony was committed in a company of their commanding.

He and Gordon had had what was described as a "red-hot" row, all because Gordon flatly declared that while something was queer about the case of the young clerk, he'd bet his bottom dollar he wasn't a thief. Canker said such language was a reflection on himself, as he had personally investigated the case, was convinced Morton's guilt could be established, and had so reported to the brigade commander in recommending trial by general court-martial. Indeed he had made out a case against the lad even before he was arrested and returned to camp. Gordon asked if he had seen the boy and heard his story. Canker reddened and said he hadn't, and he didn't mean to and didn't have to. Gordon said he had—he had talked with the lad fully and freely on his being brought to camp toward nine o'clock, and was greatly impressed with his story—as would anyone else be who heard it. Canker reddened still more and said he wouldn't allow officers to interview prisoners without his authority. "I'll prefer charges against the next that does it," said he.

And not three hours later, Mr. Billy Gray, sprawling on his camp cot, striving to forget the sorrow of the earlier morning, and to memorize a page of paragraphs of army regulations, was suddenly accosted by an orderly who stood at the front of the tent, scratching at the tent flap—the camp substitute for a ring at the bell.

"A note for the lieutenant," said he, darting in and then darting out, possibly fearful of question. It was a queer note:

"I am a total stranger to you, but I wore in brighter days the badge of the same society that was yours at the university. Three of the fraternity are in my company—one is on guard and he urged me to write at once to you. They know me to be a brother Delt, even though I dare not tell my real name. What I have to say is that the charge against me is utterly false, as I can convince you, but could not convince a court. I am confined at the moment of all others in my life when it is most vitally important that I should be free. Grant me ten minutes' interview this afternoon and if I do not prove myself guiltless I will ask no favor—but when I do convince you, do as you would be done by.

"Yours in Δ Σ X,
"GEORGE MORTON."

"Well, I'll be blessed!" said Mr. Gray, as he rolled out of his gray blanket. "Here's a state of things! Listen to this, captain," he called to his company commander in the adjoining tent. "Here's Morton, back from 48 hours' absence without leave, brought back by armed guard after sharp resistance, charged with Lord knows what all, wants to tell me his story and prove his innocence."

"You let him alone," growled his senior. "Remember what Canker said, or you'll go in arrest. What call has Morton on you, I'd like to know?"

The lad flushed. Fraternity was a very sacred thing in the Δ Σ X. It was "the most exclusive crowd at the 'varsity." Its membership was pledged to one another by unusual ties. It was the hardest society for a fellow to get into in any one of the seven colleges whereat it flourished, and its mystic bonds were not shaken off with the silken gown and "mortar board" of undergraduate days, but followed its membership through many a maturer year. It was a society most college men might ask to join in vain. Money, social station, influence were powerless. Not until a student had been under observation two whole years and was thoroughly known could he hope for a "bid" to become a "Delta Sig." Not until another six months of probation could he sport its colors, and not until he formally withdrew from its fold, in post graduation years, could he consider himself absolved from its mild obligations. But the boast of the "Delta Sig" had ever been that no one of its membership had ever turned a deaf ear to a fellow in need of aid. Who of its originators ever dreamed of such a thing as its drifting into and becoming a factor in the affairs of the regular army?

No wonder Gray stood for a moment, the paper still in his hands, irresolute, even disturbed. Not to answer the appeal meant to run counter to all the tenets of his fraternity. To answer might mean arrest and court-martial for deliberate disobedience of orders. Canker has no more mercy than an Indian. It was barely 48 hours since he had been publicly warned by an experienced old captain that he would find no "guardian angel" in Squeers. It would seriously mar his prospects to start now with Squeers "down on him," and as that lynx-eyed commander was ever on watch for infractions of orders, Billy well knew that he could not hope to see and talk with the prisoner and Canker not hear of it. To ask permission of Canker would only make matters worse—he was sure to refuse and then re-emphasize his orders and redouble his vigilance. To ask the consent of the officer of the day or the connivance of the officer of the guard was to invite them to court arrest and trial on their own account. He couldn't do that even to oblige a brother Delt. If only Ned Craven were officer of the guard something might be done—he was a college man, too, and though not a "Delt," but rather of a rival set, he "would understand" and possibly help. Guard mount was held toward dusk, and that was four hours away, at least. The prisoner's note and tone were urgent. An idea occurred to Billy: What if he could get Gordon to let him "go on" this very evening? It wasn't his tour. He had "marched off" only two days before, as he well remembered, for Canker "had roughed" him up and down about that little error in copying the list of prisoners from the report of the previous day. Moreover, he had counted on going to town right after "retreat," dining at the Palace, an extravagance not to be thought of at other times, so as to be on hand when the Primes and Amy Lawrence came down to dinner. He had planned it all—even to the amount of surprise he was to exhibit when he should discover about when he had finished his own dinner that they were just beginning theirs, and the extent and degree of pleasurable emotion he might venture on showing as he hastened over to greet them, and accepted their offer to be seated with them, even if he had been so unkind as to dine beforehand, instead of with them. He had set his heart on having a chat with Miss Lawrence as part recompense for all he had lost that morning, and all this he was thinking of while still fumbling over that disturbing note. Time was getting short, too; there was no telling how much longer they might stay. Mr. Prime had brought his only daughter all that long journey across the continent on the assurance that the boy he loved, with whom he had quarreled, and whom, in his anger, he had sorely rebuked, had enlisted there in San Francisco and was serving in a regiment at the great camp west of the city. He had come full of hope and confidence; he had found the young soldier described, and, in his bitter disappointment, he declared there was no resemblance to justify the report sent him by the boy's own uncle, who vowed he had met him with comrades on the main street of the city, that the recognition was mutual, for the boy had darted around the first corner and escaped. His companions were scattered by the time Mr. Lawrence turned to the spot, after a brief, fruitless search, but private detectives had taken it up and "located" young Prime and telegraphed the father in the distant east.

OLD NASSAU'S GROWTH UNDER WOODROW WILSON

MANY ADDITIONS TO ITS MATERIAL EQUIPMENT.

The expansion of Princeton, which is now rapidly placing the New Jersey institution in the front rank of American universities, is illustrated by the many additions to its material equipment under way or about to be begun, as well as by the establishing of the new preceptorial system. In the immediate future the campus will be enlarged and beautified; the Carnegie Lake will be pushed forward to completion; a small separate campus, with its own buildings, has been secured for the graduate students; new and elegant club houses will be erected, and also a football stadium, while better railroad facilities will be provided to handle the crowds on big game days.

The man who, above all others, is responsible for the growth of Princeton, is President Woodrow Wilson. Since his inauguration, two years ago, he has been tirelessly traveling about the country, telling of his high ideals for Princeton and urging the alumni to support him. In the college itself he has encouraged all sorts of student activities, but has insisted always that scholarship should be the first consideration.

The Preceptorial System.

Next fall the preceptorial system will go into operation, with the addition to the teaching force of the college of fifty preceptors, with the rank of assistant professors. When this scheme was broached it was realized that the graduate school must be enlarged in order to keep up the supply of preceptors, and so the trustees bought "Merwick," the estate of the lat Grenfill Blake, as a home for the graduate students, who heretofore have been scattered about the town and campus.

Changes on Campus to Be Made.

Several minor changes in the campus are also about to be undertaken. The lecture room of the old Presbyterian church, on Nassau street, and the residence of Professor Cornwall adjoining will be removed, thus adding eighty feet frontage to the campus. These removals will also afford an access to Alexander Hall from Nassau street, which has been long needed.

Further down Nassau street, in front of Nassau Hall, the Fitz-Randolph gateway and fence is nearing completion. This is a memorial to the donor of the original Princeton campus, and is the gift of the late Augustus S. Van Wickle, of Hazleton, Pa. The gateway, which will be opposite Witherspoon street, is designed by McKim, Mead & White, of New York, to be built of white limestone and wrought iron. The central gate posts will be twenty-four feet hig hand surrounded by eagles carved in stone.

Several changes have recently been made in Nassau Hall itself, in an attempt to restore it to the original design. This historic building, built in 1756, was gutted by fire in 1855, and in the rebuilding was considerably changed. Two towers, called the "pepper boxes," were added at the extremities. These have been removed.

Class Club Houses.

More in the line of the undergraduate effort is the erection of new upper class club houses on Prospect avenue. These clubs, however, have become such an important part of Princeton that their buildings are as much university matters as are now dormitories. The University Cottage Club has just completed its new house and opened it with its annual dinner. The house, with the furnishings, cost nearly $200,000. The building is in the shape of an open rectangle. Between the two wings is a paved court with a fountain, imported from an old Italian villa, in the centre. Besides dining hall and kitchens, the house contains a library, billiard room, several bedrooms and lockers and showers for those who use the squash and tennis courts connected with the club.

Colonial Club to Build.

The Colonial Club has also decided to build on a similar elaborate scale. Their present building will be moved during the summer, so that the new structure can be erected without inconvenience to the club members. The new house will be colonial in style, either red brick with white pillars, in the Southern fashion, or all of wood, like New England colonial buildings.

The Cap and Gown Club will add a wing to its building which about doubles its capacity.

Assurance of the Stadium.

With the announcement of the Army-Navy football game at Princeton comes the practical assurance that the much discussed football stadium will be built. As there will be at least one big game here a year, it will be necessary, under present conditions, to put up the temporary stands every fall. The saving of this expense would pay for the new stadium in a few years. To handle the large football crowds, the Pennsylvania Railroad will build a new double track line to Princeton Junction.

Mrs. W. H. Holliday, of Brooklyn, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Lancaster, of South Second street.

Mais Sanders and her brother, George Sanders, of Orchard place, were guests yesterday of friends in Jersey City.

"Thrift," says Russell Sage, "is so essential to happiness, that the failure so practice it, is to me, incomprehensible. It is such an easy, simple thing, and it means so much; it is the foundation of success in business, of contentment in the home, of standing in the community. It stimulates industry. It begets independence and self-confidence."

PIERRE LA MAR SIGNS WITH NEW YORK CEDARS

PLAINFIELD LOSES ITS STAR CATCHER —O'NEIL ENGAGED.

To the surprise of the local fans, announcement was made today that Pierre LaMar.

Pierre LaMar, who has been a member of the local team as a catcher, has signed to play for the rest of the season with the Cedars, the crack semi-professional team of New York, and he will play his first game with them this week. As much as many will regret to learn this, Manager Daab is to be congratulated upon securing "Jack" O'Neil, formerly of the Orange A. C., to fill the position.

As to the relative merits of the two catchers, there is scarcely any difference, both being exceptionally strong men. If anything, O'Neil has the advantage in batting. He will officiate on Saturday in the contest against the Philadelphia Giants.

For several years O'Neil caught "Willie" Deegan, and the battery made a great reputation. Last summer, while Vandergift, of the Jersey City team, was laid up, O'Neil filled the position perfectly.

LaMar has also signed to catch on Wednesdays and Saturdays for Dover.

MATTY'S TRIUMPH.

Chicago Fails to Make a Hit Off His Delivery.

"Christy" Mathewson, of this city, the star twirler for the New York Nationals, showed yesterday that he has lost none of his ability, when he shut out the Chicago Nationals without a run or a hit. It was the triumph of his career. He did not give a base on balls and hit nobody. Twenty-eight men batted for Chicago, two reaching first on infield fumbles, one of these being subsequently captured.

"Christy's" record will probably remain untarnished this season, and ranks next to the wonderful game pitched by "Cy" Young, of Boston, last year.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Red" Alberts, who played on the Plainfield team last season, is now out of the game for a few weeks, owing to an injury to his right hand.

"Tom" Daab, youngest son of Manager Daab, of the local team, witnessed the game on the oval Saturday. This was his first visit to Plainfield.

The East End Juniors defeated the Cedarbrook Seconds Saturday by a score of 2 to 1. The battery of the winning team was John Schoneld and Fred Houghberg.

The Philadelphia Giants will visit Crescent Oval on Saturday for the third time this season and Manager Schlicter says that the Plainfield fans want to look out for a surprise party.

Walter Cosgrave, center fielder on the local team, could not resist the temptation to see his college team play Yale at Princeton on Saturday. His position was taken by Livingston, formerly of Coatesville, Pa., team.

The All-Plainfield team defeated the Rahway Field Club at Little Buffalo, on Sunday, by a score of 10 to 3. The hits were 10 to 5 in favor of the Plainfielders, while they made four errors to five for their opponents.

GOLF.

There were several dinner parties at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday and the dancing in the evening was an enjoyable feature.

The weekly play for the Gaston cup, women's competition, at the Plainfield Country Club, is held every Thursday, and women can contest either morning or afternoon.

Martin O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, has been doing some fine work this year. Last week he made three of the longest drives of which there are any records for the course. He holds a record of 71 for this course.

Arrangements are being made for a golf tournament for professionals to be held at VanCortland Park, New York, July 15. Professionals from all parts of New Jersey, Brooklyn and New York will compete, and among them will be Martin O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club. After the tournament a dinner will be given.

On Memorial Day, golfers at the Plainfield Country Club who wished to qualify for the special cup offered on that date by Leighton Calkins were put through an examination test. The winner was W. Lester Glenney, whose percentage by strict marking was 91. The questions asked were as follows:

1. According to definition, (a) what is the "putting green?" (b) What is "casual water?" (c) When is a ball lost?"

2. State under what circumstances loose impediments may be removed, when playing through the green. What are the penalties for violating the rule, (a) in match play, (b) in medal play?

3. Suppose a player drives a ball into casual water on the fair green two hundred yards away, how should he play next? Suppose the ball seems to fall into casual water, but no one is sure about it, and the ball, through a floater, cannot be found, how should he play next?

4. What should a player do if his ball lies in casual water on the putting green, in casual water in a hazard?

5. When must the flag stick be removed from the hole (a) in match play, (b) medal play?

6. What is the medal play penalty if a player's ball strikes an opponent's caddie? Is there any match play penalty if a player drives a long ball from the tee, and his own caddie inadvertently gets in its way, stopping it?

7. What should a player do in medal play, if he loses his ball within bounds? Out of bounds?

8. What should be done when a ball is played out of bounds when playing from the tee? When playing through the green with a brassy? What should be done if the player is not sure whether the ball went out of bounds?

9. When, and how, may loose impediments be removed from the putting green?

10. In medal play, one player plays outside the limits of the teeing ground. The other player makes no objection and then does the same thing himself. Does either player incur a penalty?

BATTLE OPENING IN FAR MANCHURIA

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, June 14.—The Evening Sun's latest dispatch on the Far Eastern war, from London, says that reports from Gen. Linievitch and Russian correspondents specify movements and skirmishes which are apparently unimportant individually, but which are regarded by observers in Europe as showing that the Japanese are advancing in a vast semi-circle with the intention of surrounding the Russians. Gen. Linievitch's reports seem to indicate that the left point of the semi-circle is near Fenghwa, ninety miles north of Tieling, and the rigth pointat Yingcheng, sixty miles east of Fenghwa.

Gen. Linievitch, who reports the advance of two Japanese columns and their occupation of new positions, had, according to the Telegraph's Tokio correspondent, his main force at Kirin.

MISS WARING BRIDE AT MILITARY WEDDING

Society Throngs Grace Church to Witness Nuptial Ceremony.

BRILLIANT SCENE.

Captain Chauncey Benton Humphrey, U. S. A., the Groom, and Attendants in Full Uniform of the Regular Army.

One of the most charming of June's brides, at one of the prettiest weddings of the season, Miss Florence Amelia Waring ,daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, was married yesterday afternoon to Capt. Chauncey Benton Humphrey, U. S. A., at Grace P. E. church. Over 1,400 invitations were issued for the event, and the church was crowded to the doors with guests. The wedding was a military one, and brilliant features marked it.

Practically all Plainfield society was in the gathering, and many out of town people, principally from New York and Philadelphia, were among those present. Special cars attached to the 3 o'clock train from New York brought the latter here, and carried them back on the 5:30 o'clock train.

It was a green-and-white affair. The church was decorated with peonies, syringas, smilax and oak boughs. The flowers were banked about the chancel and the chancel steps, and the greens hung about the columns and side aisles. A large silk American flag draped the lectern, and broad white ribbons ran from pew to pew, the full length of the centre aisle.

Down this aisle, at 4 o'clock, the bridal party marched. Four of the five ushers, brother officers of the groom, led, clad in the full dress uniform of the United States Army. They were Capt. Charles Exton, 20th Infantry; Lieut. Robert Foy, 1st Cavalry; Lieut. Joseph Baer, 6th Cavalry; and Lieut. H. E. Yates, 5th Infantry. The fifth usher, W. S. Wheeler, of Philadelphia, a civilian, did not join in the procession. After the ushers, came the flower girls, Ruth Timpson, niece of the bride, and Katherine Drayton, bearing white leghorn hats filled with sweet peas; then the bridesmaids, Miss Gertrude Hall, of Morristown; and Miss Charlotte Lowe, of this city; the maid-of-honor, Miss May Waring, sister of the bride, and, finally, the bride herself, on the arm of her father, who gave her away. As the bridal party neared the chancel steps, Capt. Humphrey and his best man, Capt. A. J. Bowley, of the Artillery Corps, both clad in dress uniform, stepped out from the door of the vestry room and the parties met before the altar.

Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace, performed the ceremony. As the bridal party came down the aisle, Mrs. W. A. Freeman, the organist, played the Lohengrin march. When Rev. Mr. Rodman began the nuptial service the organist sounded soft improvisations, and the Mendelssohn march thundered as the ceremony ended.

The bride was dressed in white lace over white satin, with a straight veil crowned by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an ivory prayer book, from which a bookmark bouquet of sweet peas trailed. The maid-of-honor wore white chiffon, with a white hat. She carried white sweet peas, tied with white ribbon. The bridesmaids were gowned in green chiffon radium, with white hats with green feathers, and carried white sweet peas tied with green ribbons. The flower girls wore white mull, trimmed with lace, and wore white hats.

The ceremony was followed by a large reception at the house, which was attended by practically all those at the chuch. The decorations at the house, like those in the chuch, were green and white.

The wedding supper was served from a large marquee tent on the lawn. Music for the reception was furnished by T. G. Austin, of New York.

Eearly last night Capt. and Mrs. Humphrey left for New York, to begin a four-months' honeymoon trip. They will travel to various points in this country until late in the fall, when Capt. Humphrey will be stationed at San Francisco.

Those gifts included a gold bowl from John D. Rockefeller, a loving cup from William Rockefeller, silver dishes from H. M. Flagler, Dresden plate from Wade Hampton, and other things of like nature from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Horace A. Hutchins, and General Charles A. Miller.

GROWTH OF REFORMED CHURCH

Synod Decides Adversely in Case of Horse Trading Clergyman.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, June 15.—The report of the committee on the state of religion to the General Synod yesterday afternoon shows that the Reformed Church of America has made great strides in twenty-five years. In 1880 the denomination had 525 churches, 40,000 families and 1,000 communicants. It now has 35 classes, 649 churches, 62,000 families and 116,700 communicants. Congratulatory resolutions were adopted in commemoration of the long service of the stated clerk, the Rev. Dr. William H. Ten Eyck, of New York, who recently celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday, and who has been the stated clerk of the General Synod for thirty-five years.

Nearly the entire day was consumed in discussing the appeal to the General Synod brought by the Rev. S. Koster, pastor of the First Reformed church, Hull, Iowa, whose pastoral relations were recently dissolved by the Particular Synod of Chicago, because of an alleged Yankee fondness for "swapping" horses. The Rev. Mr. Koster was present yesterday, with the vice-president of the General Synod, the Rev. Dr. Gowen, his counsel. The adverse action of the Particular Synod of Chicago was sustained. The president was authorized to appoint a committee to arrange for the centennial anniversary next year, which will probably be held in the Collegiate Reformed church, New York city.

At the home of the bride's parents, on Harrison avenue, last night, Miss Anna Feiring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Feiring, was made the wife of Harry Kesselring, of Chatham street. Rev. W. Montgomery Downey ,former rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, performed the ceremony at 7:30 in the presence of 150 guests.

Miss Feiring was attended by Miss Nellie Mosher, of Brooklyn, as bridesmaid, and Augustus Feiring, Jr., acted as best man. There were two ushers, William Feiring and William Dean. The bride wore white silk with lace trimmings and carried roses. She was given away by her father.

Following the wedding, a reception was held, during which the young couple received and were tendered numerous congratulations. Mr. Kesselring is widely known in the city and borough and is an exceedingly popular young man. He is employed in the carpet department at Woodhull & Martin's, and is also a call man in the city fire department.

The decorations at the house were very pretty, consisting of palms, plants and cut flowers.

DAN GALBRAITH ON TRIAL

For Selling Liquor on Sunday and Running a Gambling Joint.

FOURTEEN WITNESSES.

Damaging Testimony Offered Against the Defendant—May Plead Ignorance of Offense.

Daniel Galbraith, of this city, indicted by the Grand Jury, with keeping a disorderly house in Fanwood township, near Garwood, is on trial in the Union County Court at Elizabeth today. There are fourteen witnesses for the State and the case will probably occupy the entire day. The defendant is represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Sr. The charge against Galbraith is that of selling liquor on Sunday and alowing crap and card playing.

Among the first witnesses called today was Hanford J. Moffett, Jr., nineteen years old, of Westfield. He stated that he had been a frequenter of Galbraith's place, had seen liquor sold there, had played cards and had lost as high as $25 in gambling.

Job Woodruff, of Westfield, was another witness. He testified that he had obtained drink in Galbraith's place, but had never played cards or crap there. Robert L. Clintonberg, also of Westfield, testified to having secured liquor in the house in question and had played cards there, adding that he was one of those hurt in a fight which started over a game of cards.

S. W. Knapp, of Westfield, when called as a witness, refused to take the oath on the Bible. When the court asked him why he refused, he said that he did not believe the Bible. The court then asked whether he believed in the hereafter, and he replied in the affirmative, whereupon the court ordered that he be sworn in the usual way. He made a very fair witness for the State.

It is understood that Galbraith's defense will be that owing to protracted illness he has not been able to attend to business at the roadhouse and that the matters complained of were permitted without his consent or knowledge. The general opinion, however, is that this will not have much weight with the court.

SALVATION ARMY LAYS CORNER-STONE

Mayor Buckle Presides at the Exercises Conducted by Army's Officers.

STAFF BAND PRESENT.

Col. Gifford Makes an Address—A Consul Booth Tucker Memorial—Ensign Magee's Work.

With Mayor James F. Buckle presiding at the ceremony, the local Salvation Army Corps laid the corner-stone of its new building on East Second street, directly next Fire Headquarters, last evening. The exercises were decidedly interesting and were viewed by a large gathering of citizens, while many officers of the army from other places were present. The latter included Colonel Gifford, of New York, with his full staff, numbering twenty-eight.

Before the stone laying Colonel Gifford conducted on officers' council or conference in the Army hall on Park avenue, and two hours were spent in mutual advice and discussion of the work in Plainfield.

Directly after the council the party was invited to have their photos taken ,just outside of the new hall, after which lunch was served by the local corps in the Army hall.

Promptly at 7 o'clock Mayor Buckle arrived at the new building site and was escorted to the temporary platform. With music and singing and banners flying, Colonel Gifford and his staff marched up and was introduced to Mayor Buckle by Ensign Magee of the local corps.

The Mayor at once took charge of the proceedings, giving out a hymn, called up Major Stangon to play, then called upon Bandsman Allen for a cornet solo and proceeded to introduce Colonel Gifford to the Plainfield people.

He said it gave him pleasure to be present, that he recognized the fact that the Salvation Army reached a class of people that were not generally reached by other organizations and that he would gladly do anything in his power to assist the work.

Colonel Gifford thanked the Mayor for his presence and for his kind remarks.

On behalf of the local corps he thanked the people of Plainfield for their generous cooperation. He called up several to speak and sing and proceeded to lay the corner stone, a beautifully polished affair, presented by L. L. Manning, bearing the inscription, "Consul Booth Tucker Memorial, June, 1905." The contractor and a workman put the stone in position, Colonel Gifford, trowel in hand, tapped gently upon it, called up Major Shepperd to pray and then solemnly pronounced the words "In the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost I pronounce this stone well and securely laid," adding other suitable words of prayer.

Brigadier Atkinson, of New York, then moved a vote of thanks to his honor the Mayor. Colonel Gifford seconded the motion. It was put to the meeting, and unanimously applauded. A collection was taken afterwards, Mayor Buckle starting it off with a five dollar bill. Colonel Gifford gave fifty dollars, Major Shepherd a check for five visiting officers, and friends made it up to one hundred dollars.

An after meeting was held in the Army hall, where addresses of congratulation were given to Ensign and Mrs. Magee, Sergeant Major Boulter, Miss A. E. Mair and members of the local corps as to the success of the enterprise so far.

Judgment for William Dunham and Alida Dunham, administrators, against Joseph White, for rent due on a house in the borough, was rendered by a jury in Justice Smalley's court, North Plainfield, yesterday. The defendant claimed that there was no lease with the parties to the suit, and that moreover the house was unhabitable and led to illness. The case will be appealed.

Hardly a person he interviewed but what responded to the appeal. The fellow had made a numbe rof calls before Recorder Sheelen heard of the affair and started out to round the fellow up. SINGLE-END CARS.

P. S. C. to Introduce Them on All Lines.

The Public Service Corporation is planning to operate the single-end car system on the Boynton Beach line. Such a system is used in the West to a large extent, and it is considered a modern method by railroad men. This system is used at Newark and it is the intention of the company to operate such a system wherever possible. The single-end car system means a car with the controller and brake on the forward head end.

The rear platform is clear of these appliances and the platform is built larger. The removal of the controller and brake from the rear end of the car makes conditions more comfortable and less dangerous for passengers. In order to operate this system cars must be turned or run over a Y. On these single-end cars a heavier fender is used and the headlight and rear lamp are in permanent position.

The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. On June 18, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and poular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment.

ELIZABETH SITE OF ANCIENT PAPER MILL

AND WAS OWNED BY BRADFORD, FIRST GREAT AMERICAN PRINTER.

William Bradford, America's first great printer, whose monument stands in Trinity churchyard, New York, and who published the first newspaper in New York, lived in Elizabeth in the year 1730-31. His reason for living there was because he had bought the old paper mill, one of the first in America, which stood about where the South Broad street bridge crosses the Elizabeth river. Bradford's first paper was the New York Gazette ,which was first issued on October 16, 1725, being the first weekly paper established in the city of New York.

In the first issue was an advertisement of a slave that had run away from Elizabeth Town. The negro man was called Clause. He was about 27 years years of age, and could play upon the fiddle and speak English and Dutch. This valuable servant was the property of Solomon Bates.

The paper mill, said to be the oldest in America, but more likely the second, was sold at auction with about ninety acres adjoining. Bradford bought it in 1728 because he wanted to make his own paper and be independent of the foreign manufacturers. The Bradfords, father and son, had a monopoly of government printing.

STATE REVIVAL.

Preliminary Plans Are Indorsed by Presbyterian Committee.

Definite plans for the proposed evangelistic compaign to be carried on in New Jersey with the aid of the general assembly's evangelistic committee were made at a conference held by the evangelistic committee of the synod of New Jersey, with Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, of New York, secretary of the assembly's committee, in the Presbyterian building, New York, Monday afternoon.

There were 150 present, most of them clergymen. They came from all parts of this State, although the greater majority lived within fifty miles of New York.

Students Mix It Up.

Because it is alleged that a Rutgers student, of New Brunswick, made a remark reflecting on a neighboring First Warder of that city, during the performance at the Tivoli Theatre, a bunch of his friends who were with him tried to even matters up, and when the college boys left the theatre later in the evening on their way up to the college, the First Warders pitched into them.

There were six in the First Ward crowd in the music hall, who ,it is said, were making so much noise that the performance was spoiled for the boys from the hill. One complained to the proprietor and one of the First Warders thereupon said that things would be squared after the show. When the show was getting out the First Warders set upon the college boys and followed them all the way up Albany street. At Neilson and Albany streets one of the students showed fight, but he could do nothing as he received no aid from his comrades, who seemed unwilling to defend themselves. On reaching George street a cop appeared on the horizon and further hostile demonstrations were discontinued. There were no arrests made.

Deserted Dying Wife.

Jersey City, June 15.—Charles Powell, of No. 20 Central avenue, Jersey City, who, it is said, deserted his wife as she was dying with consumption, was arraigned before Judge Higgins in Jersey City yesterday. The Overseer of the Poor, Mr. Hewitt, was the complainant, as the neglected wife is too ill to appear. Mr. Hewitt said that Powell had neglected him wife for three months. Judge Higgins administered a scathing rebuke to Powell and ordered him held until he furnishes a bond for $250 to insure the weekly payment of $5 for the support of his wife.

Mrs. J. B. Tiger, of West Fifth street, is sojourning in western New York for a time.

James Montross, who has typhoid fever, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital on Tuesday night.

DOWN THE LINE.

Editor Wants Sympathy.

Brother Cooper knows, too, that in our editorial labors of incessant work and anxiety, twelve months in a year, we could not in this county, get more than the average male teacher, if as much per week or month. This is the humble confession of unappreciated labor for others, and while so much sympathy is running over measure on one class let it be spread out so that it will touch us all, with a little of its kindly solace.—Cap May Wave.

"Pa" Gets His Name in Paper.

The other night Mrs. Porter invited her father, T. J. Ware, down to a strawberry shortcake supper. The expressman accepted, and notified the folks at home that he would be out to supper. By and by the 'phone rang and Mrs. Porter wanted to know where "Pa" was. They said he had started for her house. Alarm was felt and thoughts began to arise that perhaps he had fallen with sickness. One after another of the family turned out until all were looking in every conceivable place for "dear Pa." Finally it was decided that he had gone to Maurice River and jumped in, when some one discovered him back of the barn, hoeing the garden. He had seen some work that was necessary and had stopped to do it, forgetting all about hsortcake. Supper had been cleared away at both houses and the hoer went hungry. They say it was a bluff to get his name in the paper as a great worker.—Vineland Journal.

LITERARY.

Homer Davenport, the cartoonist, has an interesting story in the June Recreation, entitled "John Davenport, Colfax." The story is illustrated liberally by the cartoonist and is a brief sketc hof actual incidents which occurred in the life of his uncle during the early days in the far West. The story sheds an interesting side light on the ancestry of Mr. Davenport, whose kindness of heart and sincerity of purpose is known to thousands who have visited his stock farms in New Jersey or have met him in social or business life.

The renaisance of the Panama Canal is one of the topics of the day. But Panama is the biggest thing in canals, and will not suffer from any form of profitable competition. Not so with the little old Morris Canal of New Jersey. It has had its day and exists only as a picturesque ruin. As such Frederick Gould describes it in the June number of The Booklovers Magazine. And very attractive are the pictures which Arthur Hewitt took on a recent trip on an ancient canal boat through its long, tortuous, and deserted reaches and locks and lifts. The reader can conjure up visions of an ideal journey through the old canal in a house boat.

The career and experience of Mr. Togoro Takahira embraces most of the varied changes in modern Japanese history. In his early youth he felt keenly and deeply the ancient feudal life of Samurai and Shogun, and when Japan abandoned the old order and set her face toward the new he swung into and developed with the new national life. Mr. Takahira is a fine example of the diplomat and gentleman of the Far East. His culture and training are many sided—he is learned in Chinese philosophy and literature, he is a thorough scholar in the intricate literature of his own country, and he speaks and writes fluently in several European languages.—American Monthly Review of Reviews.

The contents of The Era Magazine this month are remarkably attractive and entertaining. There are no less than ten original stories. "The Queen of Italy in Private Life," illustrated with numerous photographs, gives interesting information concerning the Italian monarchy. A full account is given of Booker Washington's great work at the Tuskagee Institute. G. P. Blackiston contributes an interesting illustrated article on "The Real Gibraltar," The seventh article of this magazine's important series on "The Despotism of Combined Millions" gives amazing revelations concerning the misuse of the funds of life insurance policyholders. Besides these features, there is an impressvie article by James M. Mason, throwing light on the all-important question, "Should the Government Control the Railroads?"

AMUSEMENTS.

The Casino and the Princess are closed for the season. The Lyric, where "Fantana" is nearing its two hundreth performance on Broadway, continues to house exceptionally large audiences. Jefferson De Angelis, Katie Barry, Julia Sanderson and George Beban remain in the cast. Matinees Wednesdays (at popular prices), Saturdays and July 4. Katie Barry, the surprisingly clever little Cockney girl, who is appearing in "Fantana," has been protesting, through the New York. Evening Telegram, at our idea of the Londoner's inability to appreciate a witticism. There is a great deal of good, hard sense in her remarks, especially when she speaks of "the ungraciousness of making fun of a whole nation because its view point is not precisely yours."

LINCOLN IS PROSPERING

Founder Silas Dewey Drake Tells What He Has Accomplished

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

Gas to be Introduced and Now Electric Light is Promised for the Village.

A Daily Press reporter paid a visit to Lincoln last week and called on Postmaster S. D. Drake. The latter was looking over some plans and specifications for a number of houses that are being built at Beechwood Heights, which lies between Beechand Bound Brook. Mr. Drake is "operating" Beechwood Heights.

"Good morning, young man," greeted the genial postmaster; "aren't you lost so far from Plainfield?"

"No," answered the reporter. "I "Have a cigar," observed Mr. Drake, thoughtfully.

"Well," began Mr. Drake, "there are many things going on of great importance in this section, and I am at present bubbling over with suppressed exuberancy on operations that have lately been closed, and others that are being perfected and will soon be consummated."

"My good man," said Mr. Drake, "sometimes I talk and sometimes I only saw wood, and it works just the same both ways When I purchased, eight years ago, the corn and buckwheat fields where you now see these large factories in operation, I did some tall talking, and it made other people talk all kinds of ways. At that day I talked of what Lincoln would be with its depots, trolley lines, sewers, electric lights, factories, etc. Some believed, some doubted. But as time passed by I was handicapped in my plans and operations by certain parties who tried to check me in my plans, and it was necessary for me to overcome their influence; and I guess I have done it pretty effectually. So much so that I will give you some recent doings as evidence that the voters, property owners and citizens of Lincoln and vicinity approve my policy and operations.

"Recently the P .S. C. sought a franchise to lay gas mains on the country road between Dunellen and Bound Brook, permission was granted them by the Freeholders of Middlesex county, and the pipes were laid along the roadside. I immediately got up a petition, which was signed by the owners of the factories of Lincoln and by a large number of property owners, asking the township committee to give the franchise free, as this great public utility, gas, would be a great benefit to this outlying property. The franchise was granted, and pipes will be laid by July 4.

"These days, very much is being said," continued Mr. Drake, "pro and con, on the subject of municipal ownership, taxing franchises, etc. I will not discuss them at this time, but will refer to my incident, which may be an incentive to any section, town, or borough. About four weeks ago, Mr. Abram Giddes, who lives near Greenbrook, called at my office and showed me a petition that was signed by nearly every voter or property owner on the road from Dunellen to Beechwood Heights, asking the townsnip committee to extend the Lincoln lighting district so as to give their section the benefit of electric light. The township committee granted the request of the petitioners.

"So, at a meeting of the voters of Lincoln lighting district number 4, held at my office last Tuesday, twenty-five legal voters, property owners and others, voted an appropriation of $900 for furnishing fifty-five lights. Conrad Egel, Abram Giddes and S. D. Drake were elected commissioners, and the commissioners will have the lights distributed on the main road from Dunellen to Beechwood Heights, and from some road to Greenbrook at both points. There is an immense amount of valuable property in this district to be assessed to pay for this improvement, and as this is a leading avenue running esat and west between Plainfield and Bound Brook, it certainly will be greatly appreciated by the property owners and traveling public. And, Mr. Reporter, do not forget when this lighting system is in operation I shall attribute the Greater Lincoln district number 4 to the good women who conceived it and helped make it possible. So, dear boy, do you like the story?"

"Well, that is all you get today. Have another cigar. I have a few more good things up my sleeve that mean much to Lincoln and vicinity. Good day."

The reporter went away smoking the second cigar. The doctors say his great vitality may enable him to pull through.

Guests as Firemen.

Montclair, June 15.—Guests at The Hemlocks, a summer hotel at Essex Fells, had a lively time in helping to extinguish a fire which threatened to destroy the house late Tuesday night. The blaze was discovered in the cellar and worked itself to the roof in a short time. The firemen of Caldwell and Essex Fells worked until 2 o'clock in the morning before the fire was brought under control. The damage is estimated at $10,000.

Rattle-brained Autoists.

If the Farmers' Club wants to protect county roads from invasion on the part of the fe wrattle-brained fools who drive big touring cars at express speed through the heart of defenseless villages, why do not the club members aid right-thinking motor vehicle owners in bringing violators of the law to speedy justice? If, instead of creating class distinctions upon a political basis, there should be unified action, the central part of New Jersey would not longer be a racing track, often "tried out" by agents of manufacturers, and not by legitimate purchasers of automobiles.—Trenton True American.

KAISER MAKING TROUBLE

A dispatch to the New York Evening Sun from Paris declares that "the Eclair says that Germany, while demanding an international conference upon the affairs of Morocco, refuses to abate any of her pretensions concerning that country, and requires guarantees as regards the pacific nature of the Anglo-French agreement. The question of peace negotiations is complicated with certain features of what is easiest described as the European situation which almost overshadows it in general importance. Peace may come, but it will be negotiated with considerable unwillingness on the part of both belligerents, who are influenced in accepting President Roosevelt's invitation at the present moment by considerations quite extraneous to the Far Eastern situation."

NEW FERRY ON JUNE 25

Jersey Central's Handsome Ferry House at Foot of Twenty-Third St.

A FINE STRUCTURE

Description of the Building—Great Convenience to Suburban Shoppers.

The June number of the Suburbanite, published by the Jersey Central Railroad Company, tells of the new uptown ferry to be opened in New York on Sunday, June 25. It says:

"Among the most far-reaching of the various improvements which have been steadily made along the line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, is the new uptown ferry, at the foot of West Twenty-third street, New York. June 25 is the date when this additional route will be thrown open to the public.

"The boats which will be placed on the new ferry service are the "Wilkesbarre" and the "Elizabeth." These are twin-screw boats, recently built, of the latest and most approved model. They are "double-deckers," for the Twenty-third street ferry passengers will be landed from both the lower and upper decks. Owing to the speed which it has been possible to develop in boats of this type, the trip from Jersey City will be accomplished in about twenty minutes ,thus giving commuters and other passengers a most delightful and refreshing sail, with a glimpse of the interesting activities of the North River and a panoramic view of New York's water front and skyscrapers. These boats are of that commodious, well ventilated type, and neat, clean appearance, which has given distinction to the New Jersey Central ferry service.

"The Twenty-third street terminal is a modern structure ,beautiful as well as utilitarian, with every provision that can conduce to the comfort and satisfaction of patrons as well as their quick handling. Both the river and street fronts are faced with heavy copper, surmounted by four-foot raised letter, "C. R. R. of N. J.," which will be illuminated in electric light at night.

"A cab service at low rates has been provided, and the cabs will meet the passengers at the water front, instead of on the street. The Metropolitan Street Railway Company has cooperated by putting in loops at the foot of West Twenty-third street for the following lines: Fourteenth street cars Twenty-third street cars, and the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth street line. A handsome glass roofed canopy, or marquise, fifty feet wide, extends along the street front of the ferry house, so that passengers can step directly into the cars, without having to raise an umbrella in inclement weather, or running the gauntlet of the street traffic.

"The various railroads that will use the combined terminals are the Pennsylvania, Erie, Lackawanna, and New Jersey Central, the latter having the slip furthest downtown. Instead of each road having a ferry house of distinctive design, one architect was employed by all, with the result that the entire structure is harmonious in its exterior lines, and presents to the eye the appearance of a unit. Different contractors, however, carried out the details of the work, the one engaged by the New Jersey Central being C. T. Wills, whose reputation for this class of work is of the highest, and who is well known as the builder of the New York Stock Exchange and many other important buildings. A landmark which will be seen far up and down the river is a clock tower 150 feet high, the face of the clock being illuminated at night by electric light. The architect of the whole was Kenneth M. Murchison, Jr.

"The New Jersey Central's ferry house is double decked, with two waiting rooms, the one on the main floor being 50x80 feet, and the one on the upper floor 50x60 feet. The lobby is 34x60 feet. On the street side is a large glass arch; made up of pivoted panes, which gives a handsome exterior. The finish throughout is in quartered oak, while for the main floors the best grade of asphalt has been used.

"Every convenience has been provided for patrons. Opening off the lobby are three ticket offices, an information office, United States Express office, telegraph office, telephone booths and commodious baggage and parcel rooms. Adjacent to the main waiting room are a smoking room, ladies' retiring room and toilets. On the upper floor are also offices for some of the company's employes. The frontage on the river is 100 feet.

Thus, four of the railroads traversing New Jersey, the Pennsylvania, Erie, Lackawanna and New Jersey Central, united some time ago to secure adequate space on the water front at the foot of West Twenty-third street. This is, in a way, one of the strategic points of the city. Twenty-third street has long been noted as a great shopping center. The crosstown lines intersect with the various branches of the elevated, which all have stations on this street, while New York's new Subway presents still another means of transportation up and down the island. This is, furthermore, the heart of the hotel and theatre section, while the Grand Central depot is in the neighborhood of a mile distant.

THEY WANT A BOARD OF EXAMINERS NOW

TRAINED NURSES WILL GET INFORMATION BEFORE SEEKING LEGISLATION.

A special meeting of the New Jersey State Nurses' Association was held at the City Hospital, Newark, Wednesday, at which proposed amendments to a bill passed by the Legislature two years ago, making it necessary for all graduated nurses to be registered, were discussed. Miss Bertha J. Garner, of Newark, president of the association, called the meeting to order. About thirty nurses, some of them from Camden, and other South Jersey towns, were present.

The main object of the session was to bring to the attention of the members the necessity of having a board of examiners, composed of women, whose duties it would be to travel over the State and keep in close touch with the affairs of all training schools and to pass upon the merits of all would-be nurses. In proposing this the nurses wanted it understood that there would be no money taken from the State's treasury, as the examiners would be required to pay their own expenses from fees to be exacted.

The association is only four years old, but it has made rapid strides during that time toward effecting plans whereby unscrupulous persons would be prevented from posing as regularly registered graduate nurses.

HOW KANE GOT CHURCH

Counsel Review the Story of Battle for Possession.

CITE COURT OPINION.

Fillmore Baptist Congregation Defaulted in Mortgage Payments and Trouble Began—Legal Proceedings.

The story of Alexander Kane's fight to obtain possession of the Fillmore Baptist church property is not generally known although the legal battle caused much discussion. The Court in its opinion just handed down, sustained Mr. Kane in his counsel's contentions.

Coddington & Swackhamer, counsel for Mr. Kane, said this morning:

"The contest between Alexander Kane and the Trustees of the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church of Fillmore avenue, has at last been decided by the Supreme Court. This matter dates back to February, 1903, when the trustees of said church entered into an agreement with Salome Scheidecker, who was then the owner of the property, to purchase the same and pay for the same in installments. Some time thereafter, Mrs. Scheidecker died, and her heirs then sold the property to Alexander Kane, representing that the trustees of the church had made default in their payments, and that he would be entitled to possession. Kane purchased the property and paid the cash therefor, but the trustees refused to vacate and deliver possession. Kane then, through his attorneys, Codington & Swackhamer, brought a suit in ejectment in the Supreme Court of this State, against the trustees, and judgment was entered against the trustees on November 12, 1904. On November 34rd of the same year, the trustees, through their attorney, W. S. Angleman, Esq., filed a plea to said action, but Kane's attorneys advised him that the plea was too late and that it should be ignored; and execution was issued and delivered to the sheriff, who, with his assistants, went to the church ,removed therefrom the furniture, and delivered possession of the premises to Kane.

"The trustees then obtained a rule to show cause why the judgment should not be set aside. The case was argued last February before Justices Dixon, Garrison and Swayze, and on June 12th, 1905, they handed down their opinion, in which they hold that the judgment has been regularly entered, and that the rule to show cause, obtained by the trustees of the church, should be discharged with costs.

"By reason of the peculiarity of the case, it being an ejectment suit, and the defendant being a corporation, it was necessary to obtain an order of the court, directing the manner of the service of the summons, and it was urged by counsel for the defendant church, that judgment could not be entered at the expiration of twenty days from the service of the declaration, but the court in its opinion, says:

" 'Nor do we think there is any force in the suggestion that the summons in this case was served in a special manner by virtue of a judge's order under section 6 of the ejectment act. It seems to have been served legally, and the fact that the judge's order did not direct the manner in which the declaration should be served, does not deprive the plaintiff of the right given by section 95 of the Practice Act to annex the declaration to the summons and have it served therewith; nor does it change the effect of such service in shortening the defendant's time to plead.'

"Mr. Kane over a year ago, paid cash for the property, and until the present time has had no use whatever of the same, said property having been in litigation; nor has he ever received any money from the trustees."

HOW TO PURCHASE THAT AUTOMOBILE

SOME SAGELY ADVICE FOR THOSE ABOUT TO BUY.

A prominent local automobilist was asked the question: "Which is the best automobile? Which is the best motor car made?" He said:

"This all depends upon the color of the glasses you happen to be looking through. In the first place, if you are a patriotic American, only American made machines need be considered. A preference for a certain motor car is a great deal like the same sentiment toward women. Your wife may have a pug nose and a wart upon her chin, but you prefer her above all others because she suits you better than any other. It is the same way with motor cars. Tastes differ. I would advise anyone to buy:

"First—a machine that has been on the market at least one season and proven satisfactory.

"Second—Buy of a reputable firm that has a business standing in the trade. Don't buy a freak or any experimental machine or be led astray by new ideas or wonderful things.

"Third—Buy the machine that suits your fancy best and with capacity and strength to fill your requirements.

"The following points must also be considered:

"Touring on country roads requires more power and heavier running gear than city boulevards.

"If you have never owned a motor car, and object to hiring a chauffeur, select a single cylinder or two-cylinder, as a four-cylinder one would be too complicated to begin with.

"Most any good machine will last three to five years with ordinary care; but in these days of evolution only the exceptional buyer will retain a machine longer than the second year.

"If you have a mechanical turn and are so inclined, then calculate to operate your machine all the time, and take care of all adjustments and some of the light repairs. This will be extremely interesting, the machine will last longer and do better work, and at far less expense than if operated by th eaverage high-priced chauffeur. Of course, it is very desirable to hire the tank filled, lamps cleaned and coach work washed and polished.

"If you have owned a machine heretofore, then get one with four cylinders, and with plenty of power, although it should be light, and be careful with it. You will have less mechanical troubles than with a light machine. Remember, the manufacturers must make their machines very heavy to withstand the treatment of the ordinary man without experience, who is, I must say, for the most part, an ignoramus. If you have had experience and are careful, you can afford to take the chance of damaging a light car by misuse."

FISHING IN BARNEGAT BAY.

Barnegat Bay is the largest inland body of water of the State of New Jersey, covering upwards of 300 square miles of surface. As a perfectly safe sailing, rowing, fishing and shooting water area, it has no equal in the North and no superior anywhere. The nerve center of operations in the fishing season is at Forked River, Watertown and Barnegat, and of the shooting season at Harvey Cedars, both on the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Forked River has the largest number of catboats, both with sails alone and with sails and motors, for rental with operators, at from $2 to $5 per day, directly on the edge of the best fishing ground. Harvey Cedars has the largest number of sneak boxes, decoys and stands for duck and geese shooting, at similar rates per day. There are plenty of all-the-year-around hotels at rates of $2 and $2.50 per day. All northern sea fishes and all water fowl are plentiful in their respective seasons. There are no licenses to be paid by non-residents. Naturally, weakfish are most sought for by the general fishing public, because they are more plentiful and easier caught than other species. For bait, shrimps and shedder crabs are best and may be had from baitmen at the various resorts. No special tackle is required and any pole with ten yards of line is sufficient. To catch weakfish, select a spot near where others are fishing, in channels at the edge of saltgrass areas.

Examination for Annapolis.

Arthur Whitney, of West Fourth street, who was selected as first alternate for appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, following the preliminary examination held at Elizabeth a month ago, will take the final competition examination at Annapolis on Tuesday. Whitney now stands among the best in the junior class at the Plainfield High School and is considered well able physically and otherwise to meet the rigir requirements at the naval academy, should the young man receiving the appointment fail and he pass the examination.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. St. John, of Watchung avenue, left yesterday afternoon for a week's outing at Atlantic City. They are stopping at the Chalfonte.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

May 21: "Growing Up For God"—Eph. iv, 11-16—Union Meeting For Juniors.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

Is there any more delightful sight in this world than a healthy, happy child—one to whom life seems a pleasure, who is bubbling full of life and spirits and good nature, bright of face and strong of body, alert of mind and kind of heart?

No wonder that Jesus took such a one as the model of the life His followers are to live.

How teachable and ready for any good thing they are! You can mold them so easily and so quickly that it is astonishing the skill and adaptability they display.

There is one thing better even than this. It is the man or woman that is developed from that kind of boy or girl. We like boys because they make such men. Girls are good because they can grow into women. It is the full grown that is needed in God's world.

We are glad for the Juniors because they grow so quickly into seniors and from the work they have done as Juniors are all the better prepared to do the best kind of service in the ranks of the seniors.

Much ought to be made of this day. The different branches of work that the Juniors are doing ought to be explained in the public congregation, so that the fathers and mothers can get an intelligent conception of the need of the different departments of the league and be better able to co-operate in the work in time to come. Too often the church members have but faint ideas of what all this league business means and altogether too little sympathy with it.

There should be a public graduation of those members of the Junior league who are fitted to pass up into the ranks of the seniors. It need not be made too spectacular, but it is a mistake scarcely less serious to fail to make it sufficiently impressive on all ages and minds.

The missionary feature of Junior work should receive special emphasis. Our future missionaries and preachers not only are to come from these ranks, but it is a fact that needs wider recognition that many of our most efficient workers have received their life direction in early childhood.

If we will impress strongly and clearly on these young minds the claims of Christ and the beauty of holiness and of the devoted life we shall be able to save them many years of wild oat sowing and whirlwind reaping and secure a more devoted band of workers for the Lord.

The signs of the times are auspicious and show that the church is acquiring a more rational view of child nature and the relations of childhood to God and His church. But much more needs yet to be done. We are still giving incalculably more care and cash to training minds and bodies for the bread and butter struggle of life than we are to training the moral and spiritual powers for their life task. In worldly matters we are deadly in earnest, for we have to be or go under in the struggle. Why should we be less earnest and vigorous in the conflict that has eternal interests at stake?

Family training in religious matters is said to be almost a thing of the past. However that may be, it is clear that it is not a thing of the present, and we can scarcely count on it in our calculations of how to train the young people for Christ. The church must increasingly devote her thought to this matter.

The study of child nature is receiving attention as never before. We must make a special study of the child's religious capabilities and necessities. It is likely that such a study will reveal many startling things to us that may well overturn ideas now held and necessitate changes in our mode of doing things. It is not impossible that we may modify our views of the teaching of the Scriptures somewhat and find that the child occupies a more prominent place in God's economy of grace than we have been wont to suppose. All this may modify our treatment of children and lead to sober and far better methods.

It is a serious thing that so many children from professedly Christian homes wander away from God and before they reach twenty years of age have forsaken the church and Sunday school forever. We must search out the error and find the remedy. It is worse than a disgrace; it is a serious damage that in so many cases the best years of the young life are given up to indulgence in frivolity, not to say vicious pleasures, by large numbers of our young people.

The place to correct this is with the younger children. It is possible to manage our boys and girls so that they never stray away from the church and never lose their innocence, but grow steadily in grace until they change their childhood faith for the faith and practice of maturing manhood and womanhood.

The Junior league is at the present time our best and most available means for the accomplishment of this work. Its course must be progressive to fit the growth in years and development of the child nature.

One of the irreparable mistakes is to treat the child who has made considerable advancement as if he was still a little fellow. Juniors grow fast, and when they are ready to become seniors we must be alert to the situation or we lose our hold on them. There is a time when milk diet must be changed for meat. If we are to make men out of our boys there must be manhood in the teachers who lead them up and out.

Whatever else you neglect do not neglect the Juniors? If you do, you will awake when too late to the price you have paid for your indolence and neglect.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 16.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Glorifying God in our recreations.—I Cor. x, 31; Ps. xvi, 5-11.

True religion is never opposed to legitimate pleasure and recreation. God made the world. He made it with a beauty that charms the human eye and created man with the power of enjoyment. It would be folly, therefore, to suppose that it would be distasteful to him for man to enjoy the pleasures of the world in which He has thus placed him. But many so called recreations of life are ruinous instead of helpful, and it is just as evident that true religion is opposed to indulgence in them. Whatever is harmful to man is inconsistent with religion, for religion stands only for that which is helpful to body, mind or soul.

The line of demarkation between lawful and unlawful recreations is sometimes hard to draw. Should a Christian do this? is a question frequently asked. And how can it better be answere than by asking, Will it be for the glory of God? If we can conscientiously do it for the glory of God, we need not hesitate; if we cannot or are doubtful, we had best deny ourselves of what may seem to us desirable, for in recreations we are to glorify God.

Social life is the chief center of human pleasures. Recreations are seldom individual. Man is a social animal, and his enjoyments are usually inseparably associated in some way with his fellows. That such should be the case is natural and also in accordance with Scriptural teaching and the example of Christ. The Master had His special friends; some homes were the special objects of His favor, and He graced the important social occasion of a wedding by His presence and performed His first miracle to relieve the anxiety and embarrassment of His mother's friends. But social life should be for the glory of God. In no other sphere can we so easily divorce pleasure and religion, and yet in no other can we so magnify our God. Sanctified society can be made a strong power for good, while an unsanctified, godless social life will sap the very heart out of all religious inclination and endeavor. The forms of service may be gone through, but the power is soon lost in the whirl of a worldly, godless social life. "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink [in all social life], or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

Many Christians make the mistake of seeking their pleasures outside of religion rather than in it. They act as if the problem of their lives was how to be happy, though religious. This is a serious and grievous error. Our greatest joys should be found in our religion. The soul is superior to mind and body, and its possibilities of enjoyment are also superior to those of the mind or of the physical senses. Many Christians never learn this lesson because they will not abandon themselves with whole hearted service to God. The joy of intimate association with God should surpass that of social relations with our fellow men. The joy of winning a soul for Christ should be infinitely above that of winning success or fame in life and especially above that of success at any form of social gambling. Peace of conscience is one of the most desirable of human possessions, and the contemplated pleasures of heaven should bring greater rapture than all hoped for future human enjoyments, which are so seldom realized.

Let us find our pleasures in God and our recreations in the exercises of godliness. Then we can truly say: "Therefore my heart is glad and my glory rejoiceth * * * Thou wilt show me the path of life; in Thy presence is fullness of joy; at Thy right hand there are pleasures forever more."

Five Things to Do.

The Christian Endeavor World recently conducted a contest on "Five Things I Want Christian Endeavor to Do." Rev. William Colton Clark of Lyndon, Vt., carried off the prize with the following:

First.—Abolish sectarian bigotry and unite all the young people of Protestant churches into one organic fellowship.

Second.—Abolish race prejudice within the church and cause the nations to realize the brotherhood of man.

Third.—Teach effectually the stewardship of money and enlist the wealth of Christendom in the salvation of the world.

Fourth.—Array the Christian church uncompromisingly against the licensed liquor traffic.

Fifth.—Evolve a social religious meeting in which participation will be so enthusiastic and spontaneous that no prayer meeting pledge will be necessary.

Christian Endeavorers In Cuba.

The Rev. Alfred de Barritt, who has spent his vacation in Massachusetts, pays high tribute to the efforts of his Christian Endeavorers in Cienfuegos, Cuba. They have collected and distributed $50 among the poor of the hospital, and they also raised at the last Christmas entertainment a nice sum for a family of the church who had lost their all by fire. On Sunday afternoons they sing to the inmates of the hospital and prison and distribute Bibles, Testaments and tracts in Spanish, although this branch of the work has been greatly retarded through the inability of the young people to bring sufficient literature in Spanish for the large number of persons. Quite recently the young people rode out fifteen miles along bad roads to take the gospel message to a locality where there is neither a Protestant nor a Roman Catholic church.

FAKE SETTLEMENT WORKERS

Where Sweet Charity Is Made to Serve Personal Ends.

"You wish to help this settlement? Have you any experience in settlement work?"

The young and blooming applicant fidgeted nervously. "Well, no," she admitted. "But, do you know, I have always been dying to do something useful, and I would just love to go among the poor."

The matron in charge of the settlement, strange to say, did not jump at this sweet offer of a helping hand. Instead she smiled dryly. "Well, leave me your name and address, and I will think about it."

The next day the fair creature was notified that they were very sorry, but they could not accept her kind offer.

"Society climber!" was the reason given to me by the matron, who is a friend. "You see, Mrs. Four Hundred is at the head of this particular branch. She is as good as gold and has given her whole life to the poor, but she is perfectly tired to death of fake charity workers, who try to worm themselves into her private life by using their acquaintance with her at the settlement. They come here and they gush over the poor, and then they gush over her and write her notes about the work. Good gracious! Why, there's no end to their pushing! You'd simply be horrified if you could see what is done in charity's name.

BEATRICE MILLER.

THE DEMONSTRATIVE GIRL.

She Makes Herself a Nuisance In Public and In Private.

"Well, goodby."

"Come to see me soon."

Smack, smack!

"Perhaps I'll come tomorrow."

"All right, darling; only be sure to telephone."

Smack, smack!

"Oh, git on wid yez. Does yez t'ink the car kin wait till yer through slushin'?"

This last is from the rude conductor, who has been waiting, bell rope in hand, for the two friends to get through their goodbys and kisses.

You would think they were not going to see each other for a week. As a matter of fact they live ten streets apart.

Heaven defend us from the demonstrative woman! She screams when she is frightened, she laughs boisterously when anything happens, she weeps tempestuously when she has the blues.

She certainly is a nuisance and makes too much racket for her size. What makes it worse is that she is many times not sincere—in fact, nine cases out of ten it is all on the surface. Don't trust the woman who squeezes you around the waist all the time and cooes "Duckie" and "Girlie" into your ear. She is not your best woman friend. It is oftener than not that cold, unsympathetic one who feels way down deep in her heart, who hasn't much to say, but who rises to the occasion when you need her and who does things.

KISSES ON THE STREET.

The woman who "mushes" over you, calls you pet names and tells you how much nicer you are than any one else does the same thing to the next one and perhaps discusses your affairs in the bargain.

MARY JOHNSON.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

Now, Mr. Lawrence was away on business of his own. Written assurances that he couldn't be mistaken lost weight, and Mr. Prime, disheartened, was merely waiting the report of an agent who thought he had traced the boy to Tampa. In 24 hours he might spirit his daughter away on another chase, and then there would be no further warrant for Miss Lawrence's remaining in the city. She would return to her lovely home in one of the loveliest of California valleys, miles away from the raw fogs and chills of the Golden Gate, and would be no more seen among the camps. That, said Billy Gray to himself, would take every bit of sunshine from his life.

All this detail, or much of it, he had learned from the fair lips of Miss Lawrence herself, for Mr. Prime and his daughter seemed to shrink from speaking of the matter. From the first Miss Amy had had to take the young gentleman under her personal wing, as it were. In her desire to aid her uncle and cousins in every way, and knowing them to be strangers to the entire camp, she had eagerly sent for him as the first familiar or friendly object she saw. Then when he came and was presented, and proved to possess little interest to the careworn man and his anxious and devoted child, it devolved upon Miss Lawrence to make much of Billy in proportion as they made little of him, and for three days or so the blithe young fellow seemed fairly to walk on air. Moreover, she had taken him into family confidences in telling him of the missing son and brother, for both her uncle and cousin, she said, were so sensitive about it they could not talk to anyone except when actually necessary. They had leaned, as it were, on the general and on Col. Armstrong for a day, and then seemed to draw away from both. They even seemed to take it much amiss that her father had to be absent when they came, though they had sent no word, until late, of their coming. He was on his return, might arrive any hour, but so might they go. Now if Billy could only discover that missing son—

Then came an inspiration! Penciling a brief note he gave it to a soldier of his company and bade him take it to the guard tents. It told Morton of the colonel's orders, issued that very day, and bade him be patient—he hoped and believed opportunity would be afforded for an interview that evening. Then he hunted up a subaltern of his own grade whom he knew would probably be the detail for officer-of-the-guard that evening. "Brooke," he said, "will you swap tours with me if Gordon's willing? I have—I'd like mightily to exchange if it's all the same to you."

Brooke hesitated. He had social hopes and aspirations of his own. By "swapping" with Gray he might find himself doomed to a night in camp when he had accepted for some pleasant function in town.

"Thought you were keen to go in tonight—right after retreat," he hazarded.

"Well, I was," said Gray, pulling his drab campaign hat down over his eyes to shut out the glare of the westering sun. "But I've got—a new wrinkle."

"Some bid for Friday? That's your tour, isn't it?" And Brooke began counting on his fingers. "Wait till I look at my notebook. Friday? Why, that's the night of the Burton's card party—thought you didn't know them."

"I don't," said Gray, glad enough to escape the other question. "And you hate card parties, you know you do. It's a go, is it? I'll see Gordon at once."

And off he went, leaving Brooke to wonder why he should be so bent on the arrangement.

But Gordon proved an unexpected foe to the plan. "Can't be done, Billy," said he, sententiously. "Canker watches those details like a hawk. He hasn't forgotten you only came off two days ago, and if I were to mount you tonight he'd mount me—with both feet."

"Think there's any use in asking him?" queried the boy, tossing a backward glance toward Canker's tent.

"Not unless you're suffering for another snub. That man loves to say no as much as any girl I ever asked, and he doesn't do it to be coaxed, either. Best leave it alone, Billy."

And then the unexpected happened. Into the tent, with a quick, impetuous step, came the commanding officer himself, and something had occurred to stir that gentleman to the core. His eyes were snapping and his head was high.

"Mr. Gordon," said he, "here's more of this pilfering business, and now

"Will you swap tours with me if Gordon's willing?"

they're beginning to find out it isn't all in my camp by a damned sight. I want that letter copied at once," Then with a glance at Gray, who had whipped off his cap and was standing in respectful attitude, he changed his tone from the querulous, half treble of complaint. "What's this you'd best leave alone?" he suddenly demanded. "There are a dozen things you'd best leave alone and a dozen you would do well to cultivate and study. When I was—however, I never was a lieutenant except in war time, when they amounted to something. I got my professional knowledge in front of the enemy—not at any damned charity school. You're here to ask some new indulgence, I suppose. Want to stay in town over night and fritter away your money and the time the government pays for. No, sir; you can't have my consent. You will be back in camp at 12 o'clock, and stop and report your return to the officer of the guard, so that I may know the hour you come in. Who's officer of the guard to-night, Mr. Gordon?"

"Mr. Brooke, sir."

"Mr. Brooke! Why, I thought I told you he was to take those prisoners in town to-morrow. He has to testify before that court in the case of Sergt. Kelly and it saves my sending another officer and having two of our lieutenants away from drill and hanging around the Bohemian club. Detail somebody else!"

"All right, sir," answered Gordon, imperturbably. "Make any odds, sir, who is detailed?"

Canker had turned to his desk and was tossing over the papers with nervous hand. Gray impulsively stepped forward, his eyes kindling with hope. It was on the tip of his tongue to launch into a proffer of his own services for the detail, but Gordon hastily warned him back with a sweep of the hand and a portentous scowl.

"No. One's as bad as the other. Next thing I know some of 'em will be letting prisoners escape right under my nose, making us the laughing stock of these damned militia volunteers." (Canker entered service in '61 as a private in a city company that was militia to the tip of its spike-tailed coats, but he had forgotten it.) "I want these young idlers to understand distinctly, by George, that the first prisoner that gets away from this post takes somebody's commisison with him. D'you hear that, Mr. Gray?" And Canker turned and glared at the bright blue eyes as though he would like to blast their clear fires with the breath of his disapprobation. "Has that young fellow, Morton, been put in irons yet?" he suddenly asked, whirling on Gordon again.

MOVE NOW TO SAVE THE STATE WATER

ATTORNEY-GENERAL FILES BILL IN CHANCERY TO PREVENT ITS DIVERSION

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, June 15.—Attorney General Robert H. McCarter has filed in the Court of Chancery a bill which is intended to bring about a test of the constitutionality of the Bachelier law, passed by the last Legislature, to prevent the diversion of potable water from this State.

The bill is in th enature of an information, filed on behalf of the State at the relation of Henry B. Kummel, State geologist, as provided in the law. It prays that the chancellor grant an injunction restraining the Hudson County Water Company from carrying or transporting into the State of New York the waters of the Passaic River by pipes, conduits, ditches or canals.

The attorney general and William H. Corbin, counsel for the Hudson County Water Company, have reached an understanding whereby Mr. Corbin will admit that the company proposes to take the water out of the State contrary to the law, but will claim that the law is unconstitutional. This will permit of bringing the case before the court at once in order that a decision may be had and the matter taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals for final decision at the earliest possible day.

CYCLONES ARE DUE JUNE 19 AND JULY 3

PROPHET DEVOE ALSO PREDICTS SOME SIZZLING WEATHER.

Weather Prophet DeVoe, of Hackensack, has just made the following predictions:

"In my last published interview I promised a cold, wet June, and thus far my statement has been correct. On the eighth my thermometer stood 60 degrees at noon. That is the lowest I have ever seen it in June. A great many have tried to explain why it was so cold that day. There is only one correct theory, and that I gave to the Farmers' Club in Cooper Union twenty-four years ago. That is this: When the temperature falls suddenly there is a heavy storm south and southeast of you. If the scientific men who try to explain these great changes understood the law which produces these changes, then they would be able to notify the public when they are coming. The fact that they fail to say anything until it has passed renders their opinion of little value.

"People will do well to keep their overcoats handy for three weeks yet. The greatest fluctuations in the temperature always occur under the center of a great stor mbelt. We will be directly under the center of the great storm belt from June 17 to July 10. During that period storms will form suddenly, and the Passaic River flood commission will have an opportunity to study flood conditions, beginning with the nineteenth of this month.

"One noticeable feature about this storm period is that each great storm begins on a Sunday and ends on Wednesday, the seventeenth to twentieth, twenty-fourth to twenty-seventh, July 2 to 5, and 9 to 11. And we are likely to get local thunder storms between those dates.

"On June 19 and on July 3 cyclones are likely to occur. Notwithstanding these heavy storms, we are likely to have wonderfully fine crops over the eastern part of the United States. But Southern farmers should plant winter corn, for the season will be too short over the corn belt.

"After July 12 we will have just scorching hot weather for six weeks."

Trenton, June 15.—The building commission of the new State prison wing met yesterday at the prison and adopted the plans drawn by Assistant Commissioner of Charities and Corrections George Poole for the wing. The new wing will be of brick and will contain 300 cells, instead of 120, as in the old wing. The old wing will be entirely torn down, save a small portion of the foundation. A new locking system is to be placed on the cells.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Linderman, who formely pitched for Hoboken, is not quite as invincible this year, as last. He has been getting bumped frequent and hard.

"Jack" O'Neil, the new catcher for the Plainfield team, is sure to make good here. He is a fine thrower to bases, a clever catcher and an almost sure hitter.

As soon as it can be conveniently arranged, Manager Daab, of the Plainfield team, hopes to have some of the National or Eastern League teams appear here.

Piere LaMar, former catcher on the local team, will now play three games a week, instead of two. He will be with Dover on Wednsedays and Saturdays and in New York on Sundays.

Every member of the local team plays a fast game, and Manager Daab has made good by giving the fans the same local team from week to week, something that was unknown last year, and such work deserves loyal support.

The first of a series of five games between Westfield and Cranford will b eplayed at Recreation Park on Saturday, for the county championship.

"Jim" Robertson, of Fordham College, will play first base for Westfield this Saturday and next.

GOLF.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers is still holding a good position for the women's metropolitan golf championship being played at Baltusrol. Yesterday she beat Mrs. H. B. Clark, Apawamis, by 3 up and 2 to play, in the first match play round.

For the consolation cup, Miss Maud VanBoskerck beat Miss Ellen Reid, Montclair, by 2 up.

Fourteen pairs finished in the mixed foursomes handicap, and among them were Miss Maud VanBoskerck and C. B. Morgan, who returned a score of 100, 12—88,and Mrs. Walter Gaston and Eeal Stockton, who returned a score of 122, 13—109.

Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nickerson, of Carlton avenue, will soon leave for their summer home in New Hampshire.

An ice cream and strawberry festival will be held in the German Reformed church this afternoon and evening.

Rev. Mr. Klonka, a former pastor of the German Lutheran church, of the borough, has gone to Minnesota, where he has accepted a pastorate.

The Sunday-school of the Unitarian church on Park avenue, closed last Sunday for the summer months and within a short time the church will be closed until fall.

Rev. George Hauser, formerly pastor of the German Reformed church, but now of Grahamsville, N. Y., has been visiting among former friends here. He is now pastor of an English-speaking church.

James T. Hunt, of New York city, will be the vocal soloists at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. He is strongly endorsed by Rev. Theodore S. Henderson, F. H. Jacobs, Dr. Donald Sage Mackay and others. Martin A. Korff will be the violin soloist and F. A. Henckel, physical director of the Y. M .C. A., will be the speaker.

The Official Board of the First M. E. church, at a regular meeting held last night after the prayer meeting, voted to give the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, a month's vacation in August, and the pulpit will be cupplied Sunday mornings during the month by other divines. The evening services will be in charge of the Epworth League, and it will be held from 7 to 8 o'clock Sunday night. It will be a vesper service.

The question of adopting the processional and recessional form of music for the church services was left to the music committee, and it will be decided by that committee within a short time. Other matters taken up at the meeting were of a routine nature and the reports showed the church to be in a healthy and very satisfactory condition in all departments.

CLOSED PORTALS.

A special meeting of the Women's Relief Corps will be held in Winfield Scott Post rooms tomorrow night.

The annual convention of the National Funeral Benefit Association of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, was held at Greensboro, N. C., yesterday, and the following officers elected: President, George W. Harris, Pennsylvania; vice-president, Henry Powers, Ohio; treasurer, Gustave Bacharach, Philadelphia; directors, Dr. J. T. Sledge, Virginia; Marshal Farrar, New Jersey; Theodore Reese, Pennsylvania. The next session will be held at Seabright.

The rumpus in the ranks of the Royal Arcanum over the advance in rates called for by the new plan of insurance adopted at the national convention of the organization held in May, at Atlantic City, si becoming general, and from statements of local members seriously threatens the very existence of the order as a fraternal body. A meeting was held Monday night at the rooms of Corinthian Council, in Newark, when Past Grand Regent Washburn, of Jersey City, delivered a lecture on the new plan of insurance. His talk was educational in character and delivered in the hope of winning the support of those present. Several Elizabeth Arcanumites were present.

CAPT. HUBBARD VERY ILL

Anxiety Over His Condition Because of His Advanced Age.

A PROMINENT MAN.

None is Better Known in Union County—Held in High Esteem By Fellow Citizens.

J. Frank Hubbard, who has served thirty-seven successive years as a member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, is seriously ill at his home in West Seventh street. His ailment is jaundice, and owing to his age, seventy-eight years, serious results were anticipated. For almost twenty years Mr. Hubbard has been director of the Board of Freeholders, and he appoined in 1902 John Sparrow, of Rahway, and Jacob Brucklacher, of Elizabeth, to serve with himself as a commission to supervise the erecion of the new Union County court house in Elizabeth.

Capt. Hubbard is well known throughout Union County and the State as president of the National Bank, and a director of the Plainfield Savings Bank. He is also treasurer of the Union Water Company and a director in the Plainfield Water Company.

He is a man of sterling qualities and none has a better reputation in this city than the man who has done so much to advance the interests of Union County.

He was born in Berlin, N. Y., and has one daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Van Syckel. As captain of Company H, 30th New Jersey Volunteers, he served all through the War of the Rebellion. He was a member of the Board of Freeholders. In 1862 the members of the Board of Freeholders subscribed for and purchased a sword, sash and belt to be presented to Captain Hubbard on his departure for the scene of war. After the meeting of the board on October 29, of that year, all the members accompanied his to the railroad station. Job S. Williams had been delegated to present the sword to Captain Hubbard.

The following communication, expressing his appreciation of the gift and the kindly feelings that prompted the presentation, which shows the characteristics of the man, was later received by the board from the front:

"Camp Somerset, near Washington,
October 4, 1862.

"Mr. Director and fellow members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

"Your elegant and appropriate gift has been received, and the sight of it awakens in my breast feelings at once both pleasant and strange. Strange when I think I, of all others among you, should be the one to draw the sword, and mantle for the fight, having been a man of peace; but strange things take place in this world and we are not masters of our own destinies, which are changed frequently as the wind changes the direction of a straw. Pleasant when I think that the gift is a token of your satisfaction of the manner in which my errand to camp was performed, as well as an evidence that the good feeling that has ever characterized our mutual relations still exists. All I can say more in this connection is, that you may, none of you, ever regret that the part or share you have borne, but may feet that wherever duty calls, there your representative (which you have selected me to carry) will be striking for freedom and constitutional liberty, never to be sheathed until unity and prosperity be restored to out now distracted land.

"Allow me, gentlemen, to tender you my thanks for the high consideration you have shown me, and believe me, as ever, yours very respectfully,

"J. FRANK HUBBARD,
"Captain Co. H, Thirtieth N. J. V."

STOKES ON EDUCATION AND RIGHTEOUSNESS

Governor Says it is Development of Individual That Uplifts Society.

AN ABLE SPEAKER.

Chief Executive of State Talks to Pennington Graduates on the Value of an Education.

A number of Plainfielders listened to the address of Governor E. C. Stokes at the commencement exercises yesterday at Pennington Seminary at Pennington. Governor Stokes was greeted with prolonged applause and his speech was masterly. He said in part:

"Knowledge is democratic. She has no favors. Her fruits may be gathered by all, but in her vineyard every one must strive and toil for himself. Graduating diplomas are not hereditary. They are not handed down like entailed property, from father to son. They are given to those who earn them by actual merit. You may send a substitute to war, but you cannot send one to school. The wealth of Croesus would not buy a single acquisition for the mind, or employ a single laborer for the brain. Every aspirant for educational development must depend upon his own efforts. This is the Pennington spirit. It teaches the nobility of effort and self-help.

"Education is an internal process. It is possible to enrich material things from the outside. Common wood may be veneered with mahogany; common metals may be covered with silver and burnished with gold, but living beings must be developed from the inside. You cannot make a man grow by law. He must absorb the nourishing food that gives strength to his bones and muscle, and flush to his cheek. Men cannot be made wise by external application. You can build a man a house and place him therein, but he may lose it through extravagance and wastefulness. On the other hand, you can instill in him the ideas of economy, industry and thrift, and he will build his own house. Inspire and stimulate the reason and man will fill his own library with books. Cultivate the taste and the imagination and men and women will fill galleries with pictures. Stimulate the inventive faculties and men will create tools and machinery. Appeal to the springs of justice and men will go forth to cleanse iniquity and wrong.

"It is the development of the individual that uplifts society and makes for good. True men and women are needed in this life. Evil comes from men and not from systems. An autocracy is a good government provided the autocrat is a good man. A democracy is a good government provided the officials are good officials. The weakness of many of our refrom movements lies in the fact that they merely involve a change. They substitute one set of agents for another. They displace one machine with another equally unscrupulous.

"Far be it from me to excuse the spirit of fraud or duplicity, or to lessen the punishment of those who take advantage of their fellows, but I would go farther than this. I would not only punish the wrongdoer, I would deprive him of his occupation by teaching his followers to be honest, just as a minister of the gospel restricts the operations of his satanic majesty by lessening the number of his possible supporters.

"Christ has not by fiat crushed ou the power of evil, but He gives us a gospel of hope and salvation by which we learn to resist evil. So long as we permit ignorance, cupidity, avarice, covetousness, false ideas of right and wrong to grow in men's hearts, so long do we furnish a rich field for the adventurers and a constant invitation to ply their schemes.

"You would better build a fence along the precipice than provide an ambulance at the bottom of the abyss.

"If one-half the energy today devoted to reforming criminals was given to preventing crime; if one-half the energy devoted to the relief of poverty was devoted to instilling the principles of thrift and economy, there would be more genuine prosperity and reform. Education is a preventive rather than a reformer. It does not wait till ignorance has grown intolerable before it acts. It begins with the youth, awakens his desire for knowledge, stirs his ambition until ignorance has no power to allure him.

"The good that this institution has done in spreading truth, in teaching men and women to know and love the right, has been in the nature of prevention by developing high ideas and high standards in its graduates."

PLAN FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Interacademic League Arranges for Fall Games.

ELECT OFFICERS.

Institutions Represented Are Leal's, Pingry, Newark Academy, Carteret and Montclair Military.

After a successful year, the interacademic league of Northern New Jersey held its first annual business meeting recently and elected officers for the coming year. The league is a year old, and has proved one of the most successful ever conducted in this State. The institutions represented are Pingry, of Elizabeth; Newark Academy, of Newark; Carteret Academy, of Orange; Montclair Military Academy and Leal's School, of this city. Newark Academy has pulled out first in all events this year, with the Pingry School a good second.

The league contests commenced last fall, when the five schools contended in football. There was no basketball or hockey league, though both will be conducted next season. Baseball and track games were the main features of the league since the opening of the outdoor athletic season.

On the track, Pingry made the best showing, three records having been made by the local sprinters. In baseball the schools were all weak, Newark Academy winning the pennant with a team inferior to many of the High School teams in the State. Pingry was second.

Routine business in closing the year's accounts was transacted at the annual meeting. The treasurer's report showed a balance in the treasury. An executive committee, composed of a representative and an athletic director from each school, has the business of the league in charge. The honor of president of the league for next year was accorded to the Pingry representative. Orel P. Keeney was elected to that position. H. F. McGlphin, of Newark Academy, was appointed vice-president, and C. A. Smith, of Montclair Military Academy, an instructor, was made secretary and treasurer.

The football schedule for next year was made out as follows:

Pingry Games—October 14, Newark Academy at Elizabeth; October 28, Leal's School at Plainfield; November 4, Carteret Academy at Orange; November 18, Montclair Military Academy at Elizabeth.

Carteret Academy Games—October 21, Leal's School at Plainfield; October 28, Montclair; November 4, Pingry School at Orange; November 18, Newark Academy at Newark.

Leal's School Games—October 14, Montclair Military Academy at Montclair; October 21, Carteret at Plainfield; October 28, Pingry at Plainfield; November 4, Newark Academy at Newark.

Montclair Military Academy Games—October 14, Leal's School at Montclair; October 21, Newark Academy at Newark; October 28, Carteret at Montclair; November 18, Pingry at Elizabeth.

Newark Academy Games—October 14, Pingry at Elizabeth; October 21, Montclair Military Academy at Newark; November 4, Leal's School at Newark; November 18, Carteret at Newark.

In addition to the above games, Pingry will have an independent football schedule. E. M. Van Vechten will manage the team. He has already outlined a part of the school schedule, which will include several of the best teams in the State. As for material, the school will be well classed with other State teams, and a good showing is anticipated.

GALBRAITH GUILTY; JURY ASKS MERCY

AFTER STUBBORN FIGHT HE IS CONVICTED ON TWO CHARGES.

After deliberating for one hour over the evidence, the jury returned a verdict of guilty with recommendation for mercy in the case of Daniel Galbraith, who was tried yesterday in the Union County Court on an indictment charging him with keeping a disorderly house and allowing gambling at his roadhouse in Fanwood township, near Garwood.

As stated yesterday, there were fourteen witnesses for the State and the evidence was so conclusive that the defendant did not have much show for escaping a conviction. By the testimony of the witnesses it was shown that liquor was sold on Sunday and that crap and other gambling games were played at the roadhouse. The plea of the defendan was that these things were allowed without his knowledge, for owing to illness he was not able to be at the place very much. This appeared to have little weight with the jury. Galbraith will be sentenced later. He was represented by W. L. Hetfield, Sr.

BOY IN TOILS AGAIN FOR SAME OFFENSE

YOUNG JOHNSON IS CHARGED WITH STEALING $12.

Released from the Rahway Reformatory only a short time ago, after serving an eighteen months' term for embezzlement, Thomas Johnson, a nineteen-year-old colored boy, will be returned to the institution today. He was arrested by the local police yesterday after he had confessed to stealing $12 from Miss Selena Schackleton, a clerk in a West Front street store, where he was employed as porter. It was taken while the girl was at lunch, but was discovered in time to get back $10 of the amount before he could spend it.

Johnson was sent to the reformatory after he had been convicted of appropriating money from Charles Kronimus, who managed the Rogers sea food market on Second street, and Miss Stephenson, of North avenue, having been employed by both as driver.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK— NO FISH; WALK HOME

PLAINFIELDERS' HORSE WANDERS AWAY AND THEY WANDER TOO.

While Charles Stranzenbach, Dan Shea and Edward Newton were fishing near Weston yesterday afternoon, the horse that conveyed them to the spot from this city and which had been unharnessed, slipped its halter and wandered away. It was not missed until they went to get it for the return home, and despite a diligent search of the surrounding country it could not be found. The fishermen were forced to walk to Bound Brook to get a train.

The animal is described as a bay and is the property of Dr. Pocock. The authorities in the vicinity of Weston are still trying to locate it.

Woman Mysteriously Shot.

Mrs. William Hall, of Somerville, is suffering from a shot wound, which she received in a mysterious manner Wednesday. Mrs. Hall went out to a well near her home to draw some water. She felt a stinging sensation in the back, but did not know she was shot until some hours later, when the wound became so painful that she consulted a physician. He was unable to find the bullet, which was deeply embedded in the flesh below the shoulder. Two boys, who were seen with rifles along Peters Brook about the time Mrs. Hall was shot, are under suspicion, bu no arrests have been made.

Music, speeches and a luncheon will combine to formally open the new home of the Elizabeth Evening Times at Elizabeth tomorrow afternoon and to the ceremonies the Times has invited its entire family of readers and newspaper friends. Although the exercises will not commence before 3 o'clock the building will be open to the public from 2 o'clock and those who come between the hours of 12 o'clock and 3 will have an opportunity of seeing a modern newspaper plant in operation. The paper will go to press at 2 o'clock so as to allow as many as wish to, to see the Times being printed.

After the paper has left the press the exercises will take place. The speakers will be James C. Connolly, Rev. Dr. John R. Atkinson, Joseph McManus, John Moody and James E. Martine.

Stolen Goods Are Found.

Boxes containing papers stolen from the Hamilton Manufacturing Company's warehouse, at Rahway, Tuesday night, have been found by the police intact. In the box among the papers were envelopes containing money overlooked by the burglars. The boxes had been thrown into the hedges by the railroad bank leading toward Elizabeth. Several windows were broken in the factory, evidently by would-be burglars, that same night. The boxes and contents have been returned to the company.

Dr. Whitney's Address.

SPEAK-EASY MEN PLEAD NON VULT

THREE TO BE SENTENCED WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28.

Defendants in three Plainfield speak-easy cases were arraigned in the Union County Court yesterday afternoon, and each one retracted his former plea of not guilty to one of non vult, and Wednesday, June 28, was fixed as the time for sentence by the court.

The first case was that of Peter Traynor, of North Plainfield, indicted on a charge of illegal liquor selling in Plainfield. At first he had an opportunity to retract his plea, but preferred to stand trial. Patrolman Morris Higgins and Anthony Parsons, colored, were two principal witnesses against him, the latter testifying that he had bought liquor of Traynor, and he produced the liquor in court. After the case had proceded at some length, Traynor decided to enter a plea of non vult.

Thomas Brown and Dominick Parreti were the two other who were arraigned on a similar charge, and they changed their plea from not guilty to non vult before the cases were allowed to go to trial.

FOR CHAPEL FUND.

Young Men's Brotherhood of Warren Chapel Conducts an Entertainment.

The Young Men's Brotherhood, of Warren chapel, conducted an entertainment, last night, for the benefit of the furnishing fund of the new Warren chapel. The programme was pleasing and was enjoyed by a good sized gathering.

It consisted of piano selections by Allen Squier, cornet selections by Edmund Young, vocal duetts by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Young and feats of magic by H. Warren Rankin. His sleight-of-hand work is very clever and he kept the gathering mystified all the while he was performing.

The committee which had the affair in charge consisted of Charles Wheeler, chairman; William Welch and Samuel Taynor.

BABY CAMP'S OPENING

King's Daughters Institution Begins Season Next Week.

COMMITTEE NAMED.

A Telephone is Much Needed—Miss DeLany to be in Charge Again.

The officers and committees associated with the City Union, King's Daughters, are busily engaged in preparing the baby camp for its opening which is planned for the latter part of next week. All things considered, the camp is in very good condition and the improvements made this year, including the installation of a bath-room with all conveniences, will be a great help to the women in their work. Mrs. Charles A. Reed, the president of the Union, is directing affairs in her usual energetic manner and she hopes for a far more successful season than ever.

After the camp is opened, Miss Olive DeLany, the city nurse, will be in attendance and to assist her a young woman from this city has been secured at a nominal wage. She will spend the summer at the camp with her child. There is now one child in the city that is quite ill and if there is a change for the worse, she will be removed there without delay.

The camp is very much in need of a telephone, in fact, it is considered an absolute necessity. To meet the expense of such an improvement, the women will have to depend on private subscriptions. To install a 'phone at the camp, the telephone company would have to erect several poles for a considerable distance and run a direct line. This naturally increases the expense for the first year, but afterward the yearly rental would be cheaper. Any subscriptions for this improvement will be thankfully received by any of the officers or members of the Union or they can be left at The Daily Press office, where proper credit will be given. Any further information can be obtained from Mrs. Reed.

Mrs. Reed has appointed the camp committee for the year as follows: Mrs. A. E. Faber, Jr., chairman; Miss Maizie Day, Mrs. Frank Whitney French, Mrs. Joseph M. Shellabarger, Mrs. Edward J. Patterson, Mrs. C. C. Burke, Miss Alice Titus, Mrs. Charles Herman, Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg, Miss Lillian A. Force and Miss Olive DeLany. The nurse committee is composed of Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney, chairman; Mrs. Anna M. Most and Mrs. Frank W. Jones.

A FIVE MILLION CONCERN.

Henry A. McGee and Others in Big Corporation.

Several wealthy men, including one of the Havemeyers and Henry A. McGee, of North Plainfield, have incorporated the Standard Concrete Steel Company at White Plains, with a capital of $5,000,000, for the purpose of carrying on a general fireproofing construction, equipment and building business in all parts of the country.

The principal office of the new corporation will be in Yonkers. The directors are John F. Havemeyer, Henry A. McGee, William B. Nisbet, Samuel A. Simpson, Jesse Grant Roe and Leonard I. Roe.

Gaston Cup Contest.

In the weekly play for the Gaston cup at the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday, there were but two contestants, Miss Daisy Elsberg and Miss Goddard. The former won first honors with a score of 113, 29—93, while Miss Goddard returned a score of 108, 8—100. The fact that many women members were at Baltusrol accounted for the small attendance.

HEART TROUBLE FATAL WITHIN A FEW HOURS

CHARLES BENEDICT DIES AS DID BROTHER FIVE YEARS AGO.

Within a few hours after he had complained of distress from what he thought to be indigestion, Charles E. Benedict, of Summit avenue, died in Muhlenberg Hospital early yesterday afternoon. The attack came upon him suddenly and he called in his physician, Dr. O. L. Jenkins, who at once ordered him to the institution. He grew worse rapidly and died at 1 o'clock from heart trouble. His case parallels that of his brother who died five years ago after suffering four hours with apoplexy.

Mr. Benedict was fifty-eight years old and was the son of Lucy A. and the late George Benedict. He had lived in the borough twenty years, coming with his family from Cincinnati. He was a salesman by occupation and travelled to different parts of the country for a New York house. Though not connected locally, he was a member of the Masonic order. Two sisters survive him.

The funeral will be held from his late home Sunday afternoon and interment will be made at Hillside cemetery.

A STORAGE HOUSE TO COST $25,000

MONO COMPANY PLANS FOUR STORY STRUCTURE

The Mono Investment Company, which is composed of local capitalists, has plans in view for the erection in this city of a large storage warehouse to cost about $25,000. The details have been under consideration for several months, and final action as to what course to pursue will be taken at a meeting tonight, when several contracting firms will submit bids for the work. The company owns several large plots of ground in Plainfield and the site will be selected from these if it is determined to build.

As outlined in the plans, the structure is to be of brick, four stories in height and will be equipped with the improvements that mark similar buildings in the metropolis. These include electric elevators for the carrying of goods from one floor to another and other devices for moving them in and out.

'PLAINS COMMENCEMENT

Rev. T. Moore-Smith Addresses The Graduating Class.

YOUTH HIS TOPIC.

Dr. F. W. Westcott Presents the Diplomas—Several Essays Read—A Dance Follows.

The auditorium of the Scotch Plains Baptist church presented a happy scene last night, the occasion being the annual commencement exercises of the public school. It is the one annual union event of Scotch Plains and Fanwood. The decorations were simple but pretty, the pulpit being banked with a combination of flowers and greens, behind which sat the graduates and Principal Howard Dare White, Dr. F. W. Westcott, president of the Board of Education, and Rev. T. Moore-Smith, who made the address of the evening.

The evening's programme opened with an overture by the orchestra, under the direction of William E. McClymont, of this city, Rev. Moore-Smith asked a blessing upon the exercises and the school. "Some Common Wild Animals," an Essay by Joseph Carrono, was an interesting paper read by the writer. "The Daily Life of the Romans," by Harvey Goodwin, was a well arranged essay on the home life and surroundings as well as the architecture of the buildings of these ancient people. "The Leap of Roushan Beg," a recitation by Miss Marjorie Collins, was one of the best numbers of the evening's programme.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith was introduced by Principal White. After paying a tribute to Principal White the speaker announced his subject "Youth." Tne speaker declared that the advantages of youth are many, but one of the greatest is that of love, which is inspired in the boy or girl at this age of life. Stirred by love, with an ambition to succeed, he said, obstacles are overcome. "Youth," he said, "means love, hope, triumphs, gladness and joy. The class who are to receive their diplomas tonight are attaining that which they have hoped for, and tonight they are the joyful success which has crowned their efforts."

"In this time of youth," declared the speaker, "habits are formed and friendships made which go with us through life; character is built. Self-developement is one of the greatest opportunities of life.

"The greatest men of this and past ages are those who you can trace back to the days of their youth, and see they grasped the opportunities of youth and built their character upon them. The world today needs young men and women who are full of enthusiasm and energy. The possibilites of success were never better," he added.

Miss Josephine Lambert, valedictorian of the class, read a pleasing essay upon the life and work of Miss Louise Alcott.

Dr. F. W. Westcott, president of the Board of Education, in presenting the class its diplomas, said he hoped the graduates, in taking their place in the world, would still strive to attain success and be a shining example to the graduates of the future.

At the close of the programme at the church the graduates and their friends enjoyed a reception in the assembly room of the school building.

Borough Schools Closed Today.

Following appropriate exercises in the various departments, the North Plainfield schools closed for the summer vacation today. The annual Commencement exercises of the High School graduating class will be held in Y. M. C. A. hall this evening. The customary address will be made by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Children's Day will be observed Sunday in the Methodist church. There will be a sermon by the pastor in the morning and baptism of children. In the evening the Sabbath-school renders an original service called "Feast of the Flowers." The leaders in the service of "Day and Her Hours" is Edna Shively; "Night and Her Hours," Saida Matthews. The hours of the day are represented by twelvt girls from the intermediate department; of the night by twelve girls from the primary. "The Voice of the Roses" will be given by Myrtle Smith, Daisy Titus, Violet Titus, Edna Shively. The following will recite: Miss Flora Titus, Marion Wheeler, Lillian Archibold, Emil Vogel and Corwin Apgar, Lester Kratzel, Ben. Cole, Horace Williams, Asher Fleming, and others. The programme committee consists of Mrs. F. H. Gise, M. W. Apgar, Miss M. S. Apgar and Mrs. Doolittle. Mrs. Kinney has charge of the decorations.

Local fans are assured of a good baseball game tomorrow when the Dunellen team crosses bats with the Millstone A. C. The latter aggregation has twice administered defeat to the New Markets and is looked upon as a strong proposition. Phil Smith will be in the box for the home team.

The annual graduating exercises at the Presbyterian church last night were among the most interesting held in the borough in recent years. The programme had been prepared under the direction of Superintendent Meserole and was enjoyed by a gathering that filled the auditorium.

A Plainfielders who recently acquired an automobile has made it a practice of speeding through the borough at almost double the rate prescribed by law. He has been "spotted" by the authorities, and the chances are he will be captured on one of his periodical trips.

A party of young people from the borough have planned a trolley "excursion" to Plainfield tonight, with the band concert at Concert Park as the destination.

Joseph Penrose has purchased an Oldsmobile runabout and is now learning its intricacies under the tutelage of Frank Marsh.

Mrs. Charles Thornton was the guest of New Brunswick friends yesterday.

Mrs. Jacob Grieb is beginning to recover from her recent severe illness.

C. George Harrison is detained from work by illness.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The Bible class holds its weekly meeting for reading and study tonight in the class rooms of the Methodist church. John Wade will teach the lesson. Only two more meetings of this class are to be held, as it has been decided to discontinue the weekly gathering during July and August.

Borough Collector Charles Sheelen, who has been taking the census of the borough, has finished and will send his report in this week. No figures have been given out, but this census will show a decided increase in the population over the one taken several years ago.

Street sprinkling is one improvement the Plains needs badly. The coluds of dust left in the wake of flying automobiles and motor cycles make life unpleasant for the less fortunate who are obliged to walk.

A NOVEL MAP.

Issued by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, of Boston and New York, of which the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company is a part, has issued a valuable map, showing the lines of the Bell Telephone Companies in the United States and Canada. The map is a large one and in addition to indicating the vast territory covered by the telephone, is useful in other ways.

Accompanying the map are statistics showing the rapid increase in business during the past year, over the previous one. There are now 4,080 central offices against 3,740 on January 1, 1904; 1,799,633 subscribers, against 1,525,167 a year ago; 167,213 sub-licensed stations against 120,936, 3,549,810 miles of exchange wire against 2,983,189; 136,547 miles of toll pole line against 130,178; 1,121,228 miles of toll wire against 975,702, and 67,432 employes against 61,136.

The entire system now transmits upwards of 8,000 communications per minute, 472,00 per hour, 11,000,000 per day, 307,000,000 per month and 3,687,000,000 per year, while the toll sysetem connects over 30,000 cities, towns and villages in the United States and transmits upwards of 300,000 messages per day, 8,000,000 per month and 96,900,000 per year. With all this increase Plainfield is doing her share and the amount of business done here compares favorably with any other city of its size in the country. The comimprovements here to meet requirements.

GOLF TOMORROW.

Attraction on Park, Plainfield Country and Westfield Club's Links.

The events at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow will include the initial play for the Oshkosh Cup, a contest for boys under seventeen years of age, which will start in the morning. It is expected that there will be sixteen started. The contest will continue later at match play on the two last Saturdays in this month and the first Saturday in July.

At 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon there will be mixed foursomes, eighteen holes, medal play, and there will also be the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup. In the evening music will be furnished for dancing.

The scheduled events at the Park Golf Club tomorrow will be the competition for the President's and club trophies. The interest taken in this weekly contest is increasing and the entry list each week shows that the race will be a close one, judging by the excellent scores returned.

At the Westfield Golf Club there will be continuation of play in the June handicap. There will be social events at the clubhouse in the evening.

DR. GESSWEIN MARRIED.

Miss Bessie Morrow Is His Bride.

Miss Bessie Morrow, of Hamilton, Ohio, and Dr. Carl A. Gesswein, of East Fifth street, was married Wednesday night at the home of the bride, by Rev. C. E. Schenck, of the Westminster Presbyterian church. After the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. They will return to this city to live. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morrow, and has been quite prominent in society at her home. The groom is a native of Canton, Ohio, a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Chicago, Class '02. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Gesswein, of this city, and has practiced medicine since coming here.

Judge Schenck for Trustee.

There is considerable interest in the ranks of the alumni of Rutgers College, at New Brunswick, concerning the election of a trustee of the college from the alumni body. The election will take place on Wednesday, June 21, at the annual meeting of the Alumni Association.

There are two candidates, Judge Louis H. Schenck, of the class of 1874, and Philip M. Brett, of the class of 1892. Judge Schenck is the presiding judge of Somerset county, and presided over the Middlesex courts during the illness of Judge Strong. Mr. Brett is a New York lawyer, and a very enthusiastic alumnus.

N. P. H. S. Commencement.

The commencement exercises of the North Plainfield High School will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall tonight, and will be of unusual interest. The address of the evening will be delivered by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church. He will speak of educational conditions in the south, and being of southern birth he is especially well able to tell of these things. An Alumni Association reception will follow at the Park Club.

A July 4th Event.

The Plainfield Country Club announces that Independence Day will be observed at the club in an appropriate manner. There will be music at the clubhouse from 3 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon, and in the evening there will be dancing. Arrangements have been made for the running of sages between the trolley terminus and the clubhouse, both afternoon and evening. There will be special events in golf and tennis to interest the members and friends.

School Class Outing.

Thirty-two members of the graduating class of the Whittier School, enjoyed an outing at Washington Rock on Wednesday afternoon. The class arrived at the rock at 2:30 and left there at 10:30 at night. The time was spent in playing games and having a general good time. At 6 o'clock refreshments were served. Miss Day and Miss Ball, teachers in the Whittier School, chaperoned the pupils.

Plainfield, N. J., June 16, 1905.

The West End avenue philosopher says that "V. M. C." on the Royal Arcanum insignia means "very much changed."

Acknowledgment is made of a contribution of $5 received from John T. Baker, former president of the Common Council, for the free open-air concert fund. This donation brings the total up to $60.

"The mysterious Mr. Snuffles" will tell of his first day's experience in tomorrow's issue. He started out from The Daily Press office this afternoon and is wandering about the streets. See the news columns for particulars.

Advertising can be pitched too high, says Printer's Ink. In the attempt to be exclusive it is possible to exploit the ordinary convenience of life in such a light that the average reader will regard them as the peculiar luxuries of millionaires.

In addition to being somewhat of a statesman, those who have read his recent speeches are inclined to believe that the Governor is more or less a scholar. Oh, if we only had a United States Senator who could express himself as does Edward Casper Stokes.

This is not a want ad. column, but if any well-disposed resident desires to do a good act the City Union of King's Daughters will be glad to hear from him or her. A telephone is much needed at the baby camp on the mountainside, and the organization cannot afford to install it. Who will help?

For those who are unable to attend church services, by reason of old age or other physical infirmity, The Daily Press plans to publish weekly a sermon by a local minister. This series for the stay-at-homes starts tomorrow and on each succeeding Saturday one will appear. Many pastors have generously consented to help make the feature a success. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace Episcopal church and dean of the Plainfield clergy, kindly contributes the first sermon.

HIGH SCHOOL WITHOUT HEAD.

None May Be Hired by Elizabeth Board.

It is a matter of doubt now whether the Battin High School, of Elizabeth, will have a principal next year, in spite of the fact that the Board of Education voted to have one at its meeting in May. The committee on rules, pursuant to instructions, has presented a statement showing how the rules of the board should be reworded in certain paragraphs to allow for the employment of a principal at a salary of $2,000 a year. This report was laid on the table till the next meeting of the board.

"Will the Battin High School have a principal next year?" was the quesiton put to one of the commissioners on the committee.

"I don't know," he told the reporter. "I am just as much at sea on the question as you are."

So far over fifty applications have been received from persons desirous of becoming principal of the Battin High School.

Mayor Ten Broeck Wide-awake.

Mayor Ten Broeck, of Asbury Park, having read in the newpapers that many cities in the union were anxious to obtain the Russo-Japanese peace tribunal, sent out a series of telegrams to Count Cassini, president Roosevelt, Mr. Takahira and United States Senator John Kean, recounting the attractions of that place as a meeting place for the commissioners and asked that the negotiations be conducted there.

William A. Woodruff, of East Second street, accompanied by his granddaughter, Miss Helen Woodruff, has been visiting relatives for the past month. They will return Tuesday of next week.

MRS. ROGERS DEFEATED IN SECOND ROUND

BUT PUTS UP GREAT GAME AT BALTUSROL.

Much to the disappointment of her many friends, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of the Plainfield Country Club, was defeated in the second round for the Women's Metorpolitan Golf Association championship, at Baltusrol, yesterday, by Mrs. C. T. Stout, the present champion. Mrs. Rogers made a stubborn fight with Mrs. Stout, to the graet delight of her many admirers, including her two sons, who followed the match.

Mrs. Rogers had the lead at the turn and also at the twelfth. The thirteenth, which seems to have been especially made for Mrs. Stout and is a invariable 4 to her, squared the match, and Mrs. Stout won the next in 5. Mrs. Rogers lost a good opportunity on the fifteenth in putting, and they halved in 7. The sixteenth in a fine 5 made Mrs. Stout 2 up, and a half on the seventeenth won the match for her. Mrs. Stout returned a score of 88, while Mrs. Rogers' score was 91.

In the second round for the consolation cup, Miss Maud VanBoskerck, of the Plainfield Country Club, continued her success be defeating Miss Pauline Ramsdell, Powelton, by 4 up and 3 to play. In the four ball match Miss VanBoskerck and Mrs. A. H. Harris returned a score of 94, which was a tie with Mrs. E. F. Sanford and Mrs. S. F. Lefferts, for first place.

POLICE COMMISSION CASE OFF.

Action Not Likely in Elizabeth Contest Until Fall.

Although the Supreme Court has opened in Trenton for the June term, the hearing in the Elizabeth police commission certiorari and quo warranto proceedings have not yet been brought up. City Attorney James C. Connolly and Judge P. H. Gilhooly, the latter representing the prosecutors in the case, Peter Egenolf, Philip Mohr and others, are preparing their briefs, both lawyers agreeing to present their cases before the Supreme Court in briefs instead of giving an oral hearing.

Testimony will be taken possibly this month and a decision will probably be given next November. This means that the writs which have been issued against the commissioners will hold good until then, and in the meantime all their acts may be called up before the court on a question of its legality.

NEWSPAPERS' DEATH KNELL.

Collector's Report Will Go to the Lowest Bidder.

The Monmouth County Board of Chosen Freeholders has sounded the death knell for several of the small weekly publications, which depended largely on the revenue received from publishing the county collector's semi-annual report. A resolution has been adopted authorizing the director of the board to procure bids from the county newspapers for printing in pamphlet form 20,000 copies of the report for distribution among the taxpayers.

The printing of the collector's report has heretofore been awarded to a number of the county papers. Politics entered into the awarding of the contract and the number of papers to receive the work gradually increased, until last year every paper in the county received the contract. This entailed great expense to the county and, although $9,000 had been appropriated for printing and publishing, $12,000 was spent for this purpose last year. At the annual meeting this spring the printing appropriation was cut down to $4,000.

FALSE REPORT OF WRECK.

Car With Nurses and Doctors Sent to Scene of Slight Accident.

Trenton, N. J., June 16—An unlocked switch derailed yesterday afternoon the Philadelphia express to Buffalo at Stockton, N. J., on the Belvidere division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, twenty miles north of this city. One of the cars toppled over part way, and shatetred glass cut a number of passengers. Otherwise no one was hurt, although much excitement prevailed.

It was speedily reported in Lambertville that twenty-five persons had been killed and many hurt and a car with nures and doctors was sent to the scene, only to learn the falsity to the scene, only to learn that falsity of the rumors.

Later the passengers were transferred to another train and continued on their journey.

TRUSTEES ORGANIZE.

Men Holding Hyde Stock Hold Long Conference.

After a conference at the Buckingham Hotel, in New York, which lasted from morning until night, Grover Cleveland, George Westinghouse and Justice Morgan J. O'Brien ratified the deed of trust by which they will vote and control the 502 shares of stock of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, purchased last Friday by Thomas F. Ryan from James H. Hyde.

It makes the three trustees the absolute masters of the stock and ends the one-man power which had such a malevolent influence upon the society while exercised by Mr. Hyde.

Troops Go to Asbury Park.

Trenton, June 16.—At a consultation yesterday between Governor Stokes and the military authorities it was decided to send the 2d Troop, of Red Bank, and the 3d Regiment, infantry, of Camden, to represent the State at Asbury Park on July 7, when President Roosevelt will speak to the National Education Society.

CHURCH'S BI-CENTENARY.

Piscataway Town Congregation to Celebrate Next Week.

The two hundredth anniversary of the St. James Episcopal church at Piscataway town will be observed with suitable exercises on Wednesday, at 10:30 o'clock. Right Rev. Bishop Scarborough will be present, as well as many prominent clergymen.

The church was founded in 1704, and the anniversary date fell in the fall, last year, but it was not convenient at that time to arrange the celebration, and it was decided to postpone it until this summer. During the Revolutionary War the church was once used to shelter the horses of the cavalrymen. The church building was once destroyed by fire, and was also destroyed by the tornado on June 19, 1835.

The first regular services of the denomination in Piscataway town were conducted by Rev. Mr. Brooks, who officiated in seven different places, covering an area of fifty miles in extent, at Elizabethtown, Rahway, Perth Amboy, Cheesequakes, Rocky Hill and near Freehold.

FIRST VICTIM OF AUTO LAW.

Assemblyman Perkins' Chauffeur Before the Court.

The first case to be tried under the provisions of the automobile laws of March 23, 1903, was in Judge W. B. Toucey's court at Westfield, Wednesday, when a jury of twelve men decided that Frank Logan, driver for Assemblyman and Mayor Rardolph Perkins was not guilty of violating the automobile speed limitun der the provisions of this law. Under the provisions of the new law, all fines collected go to the overseers of the poor of the city of town.

Witnesses could not state positively the rate of speed at which Logan drove the car, and the complaint had three counts, including alleged offenses on three streets, but with insufficient evidence to adjudge Logan guilty. The jury was out just twelve minutes and polled two votes, returning into court with a verdict of not guilty. Those who appeared against Logan as well as the complainant had no timekeepers on the auto. Their evidence was, therefore, considered weak.

EDUCATORS' PLANS.

State to Take Active Part in National Meet.

George A. Frey, Edwin Florence and Colonel Sweeting Miles, composing the finance committee of the State Board of Education, and John Enright, county superintendent of schools of Monmouth county, and H. Brewster Mills, county superintendent of Middlesex county, representing the State Teachers' Association, held a conference at the State House, in Trenton, yesterday afternoon to consider plans for the part the two organizations are to take in the meeting of the National Educational Association to be held at Asbury Park, July 3 to 7.

Various matters were discussed and the conferrees adjourned to meet again in about a week, when a definite programme will be announced. Headquarters will be opened at Asbury Park under the auspices of the State Board and the State Association, and in other ways New Jersey will have a prominent part in the meeting.

SUMMIT TAKES NO ACTION.

Ordinance to Prohibit Expectorating in Public Places Not Yet Settled.

The ordinance to prohibit expectoration in the streets or in public places in Summit, which has been the subject of an animated fight in Summit's Health Board, came up for final consideration last night, but it was necessary to postpone action because Colonel Wallace announced that he would not vote for it. As only three members were present his vote was necessary to pass it. He declared that it was ridiculous to attempt legislation in a small place like Summit, that simply copied the ordinances of New York.

H. B. Twombly offered a resolution at this meeting also calling on the State milk inspector to visit Summit and examine some of the milk farms there, because he said he had been informed that some of these farms are in bad condition.

FATALLY HURT BY A TRAIN.

Bound Brook Man Tried to Board Freight and Died in Hospital.

John Bullock, a member of Company M, Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., died in the Somerset Hospital at Somerville Wednesday night as the result of attempting to board a moving coal train on the New Jersey Central Railroad at Finderne Station. Bullock was going to his home in Bound Brook.

Bullock missed a passenger train at Finderne Station and attempted to save time by boarding a coal train. He missed his footing and fell between the train and the edge of the station platform. He was rolled along the edge of the platform and dropped in an opening.

Bullock's head was terribly crushed and he was badly injured about the body. The doctors trephined his skull in an attempt to save his life, but he died in a few hours.

Mrs. Flory, of Bangor, Pa., is visiting at the home of her son-in-law, J. C. Martin, of Duer street.

Boy Wanted.

Stafford, the Printer.

AUCTIONEER LATOURETTE says he had tender perspiring feet since childhood . . .

Thorp's Foot Relief

cured them. Ask him about it. 50c per bottle. All druggists.

TO NEWSPAPER WRITERS.

Don't Think Noah Webster Was the Whole Thing in Words.

Invariably write on both sides of the sheet. The printer is always happy when you do this. It keeps him from swearing.

Never write plainly. It would give the printer heart disease, and the coroner might hold you responsible for his death.

If you cannot spell a word, leave it to the printer. He has plenty of time to consult the dictionary, whereas your time may be very valuable.

Never forget to close a death notice by extending your sympathy to the family. It looks well in print, and then, you may not have time to write a personal letter of condolence.

Make as many flourishes as possible in your writing. If there is one thing a real printer loves it is to wrestle with flourishes.

Always wait until the last minute before returning your copy. Everybody about a newspaper office has time to enjoy a rush at the final moment.

Never get to the office any earlier than you have to. The publishers always delight to see you come in late.

Never fail to prefix "Hon." to a man's name whenever possible. He may not deserve it, but it will make him feel that he really is somebody.

Remember that in any elopement the man is always a "gay Lothario."

Don't fail to keep in your vocabulary such words as "Sundayed," "Tuesdayed," "Fridayed," "summered," "wintered," "autumned, "falled," "springed," and the like. How much better it looks to say "Bill Jones, of Podunk, Sundayed in our town," than to make it "William Jones, of Podunk, spent Sunday here." Don't forget that Webster was not the whole thing in the word business.

Use the hardest lead pencil you can find, or buy. The fainter your writing the more time required to decipher it, and newspaper offices have time to burn.

Never say a good word for the administration unless it is of your politics, then never say a bad word.

Use "picknicked" and "picknicker" as often as possible. Purists may not sanction them, but what do you care for purists?

Always get down on your knees to the politicians of your party. They like it, and it makes no difference if your trousers do become baggy if the politicians can only be pleased.

Remember that, although you may put up the money and furnish the brains to run your paper, it really belongs to the people, and that each one of them has a perfect right to tell you just how your paper ought to be conducted. You have no rights and must not make the mistake of thinking so.

When referring to a boy or girl always prefix "young." If you don't some people might think the boy or girl was old.

INVENTIVE JERSEYMEN.

Westlin, Arlington, door lock; James N. Wright, Newark, hoisting apparatus.

AMUSEMENTS.

There is practically a new bill on the circus ring at Luna Park this week. Will Hill, king of the high wire, whose unmatched feat of daring still thrills the crowds nightly, as it has done for the past two years, is billed to appear twice a day during the entire season. The seventeen bears which have just arrived from Hamburg, Germany, will be put through their acts which created a furore throughout Europe. Julius Seeth, the well known animal trainer, has an admirable colaborator in Mlle. Louise, who is in the big barred ring alone with the animals throughout the act. The other changes include the following: Mons. Legette, single trapeze and ladder walker; Jack Theo Trio, sensational novelty act; the Three Madcaps, lady acrobatic dancers; Breakaway Barlows, in their startling breakaway ladder act; Le Vanion, Spanish rings and trapeze; Be Anos, gymnasts; the La Dells, hand balancers and acrobats; the great Lynch, marvelous performance on the slack wire; European Comiques, Francois Danalloh and Balno.

It's not the price alone we want to talk about—it's quality. That's the principle point after all. The lowest priced article is not always the most economical. The greatest claim we can make for our Carriages and Go-Carts is that they are the best constructed on the market. We make it a point to see all the good lines and we buy only what we can recommend to our customers.

In regard to price—they are as low as you can expect to buy first-class goods for. The price quoted in this ad. will tell you that.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

"Think not, sir. Supplies limited. Officer of the day reported half an hour ago every set was in use. Sent over to division quartermaster and he answered we had a dozen more'n we were entitled to now. Wanted to know if we meant to iron the whole regiment—"

"The he'l he did!" raged Canker. "I'll settle that in short order. My horse there, orderly! I'll be back by four, Mr. Gordon. Fix that detail to suit yourself." And so saying the irascible colonel flung himself out of the tent and into his saddle.

"You young idiot," said Gordon, whirling on Billy the moment the coast was clear. "You came within an ace of ruining the whole thing. Never ask Canker for anything, unless it's what you wish to be rid of. Tell Brooke you're for guard, and he's to go to town instead."

"Hopping mad," as he himself afterward expressed it, Col. Canker had ridden over to "have it out" with the quartermaster who had ventured to comment on his methods, but the sight of the commanding general, standing alone at the entrance to his private tent, his pale face grayer than ever and a world of trouble in his eyes, compelled Canker to stop short. Two or three orderlies were on the run. Two aide-de-camp, Capt. Garrison and a comrade were searching through desks and boxes, their faces grave and concerned. The regimental commander was off his horse in a second. "Anything amiss, general?" he asked, with soldierly salute.

The general turned slowly toward him. "Can our men sell letters," he said, "as well as food and forage? Do people buy such things? A most important package has been—stolen from my tent."

CHAPTER VI.

The great thoroughfare of that wonderful city, seated on more than her seven hills, and ruling the western world, was thronged from curb to curb. Gay with bunting and streamers, the tall buildings of the rival newspapers and the long facades of hotels and business blocks were gayer still with the life and color and enthusiasm that crowded every window. Street traffic was blocked. Cable cars clanged vainly and the police strove valiantly. It was a day given up to but one duty and one purpose, that of giving Godspeed to the soldiery ordered for service in the distant Philippines, and, though they hailed from almost every section of the union, except the Pacific slope, as though they were her own children, with all the hope and faith and pride and patriotism, with all the blessings and comforts with which she had loaded the foremost ships that sailed, yet happily without the tears that flowed when her own gallant regiment was first to lead the way, San Francisco turned out en masse to cheer the men from far beyond the Sierras and the Rockies, and to see them proudly through the Golden Gate. Early in the day the guns of a famous light battery had been trundled, decked like some rose-covered chariot at the summer festival of flowers, through the winding lanes of eager forms and faces, the cannoneers almost dragged from the ranks by the clasping hands of men and women who seemed powerless to let go. With their little brown carbines tossed jauntily over the broad blue shoulders, half a regiment of regular cavalry dismounted, had gone trudging down to the docks, cheered to the gateway of the pier by thousands of citizens who seemed to envy the very recruits who, only half-uniformed and drilled, brought up the rear of the column. Once within the massive wooden portals, the guards and sentries holding back the importunate crowd, the soldiers flung aside their heavy packs, and were marshalled before an array of tempting tables and there feasted, comforted and rejoiced under the ministrations of that marvelous successor of the sanitary commission of the great civil war of the sixties—the order of the Red Cross. There at those tables in the dust and din of the bustling piers, in the soot and heat of the railway station, in the jam and turmoil at the ferry houses, in the fog and chill of the seaward camps, in the fever-haunted wards of crowded field hospitals, from dawn till dark, from dark till dawn, toiled week after week devoted women in every grade of life, the wife of the millionaire, the daughter of the day laborer, the gentle born, the delicately reared, the social pets and darlings, the humble seamstress, no one too high to stoop to aid the departing soldier, none too poor or low to deny him cheer and sympathy. The war was still young then. Spain had not lowered her riddled standard and sued for peace. Two great fleets had been swept from the seas, the guns of Santiago were silenced, and the stronghold of the orient was sulking in the shadow of the flag, but there was still soldier work to be done, and so long as the nation sent its fighting men through her broad and beautiful gates San Francisco and the Red Cross stood by with eager, lavish hands to heap upon the warrior sons of a score of other states, even as upon their own, every cheer and comfort that wealth could purchase, or human sympathy devise. It was the one feature of the war days of '98 that will never be forgotten.

At one of the flower-decked tables near the great "stage" that led to the main deck of the transport, a group of blithe young matrons and pretty girls had been busily serving fruit, coffee and bouillon and substantials to the troopers, man after man, for over two hours. There was lively chat and merry war of words going on at the moment between half a dozen young officers who had had their eyes on that particular table ever since the coming of the command, and were now making the most of their opportunities before the trumpets should sound the assembly and the word be passed to move aboard. All the heavy baggage and ammunition had, at last, been swung into the hold; the guns of the battery had been lowered and securely chocked; the forecastle head was thronged with the red trimmed uniforms of the artillerymen, who had already been embarked and were now jealously clamoring that the troopers should be "shut off" from the further ministrations of the Red Cross, and broadly intimating that it wasn't a fair deal that their rivals should be allowed a whole additional hour of lingering farewells.

Lingering farewells there certainly were. Many a young soldier and many a lass "paired off" in little nooks and corners among the stacks of bales and boxes, but at the table nearest the staging all seemed gay good humor. A merry little woman with straw-colored hair and pert, tip-tilted nose and much vivacity, and complexion, had apparently taken the lead in the warfare of chaff and fun. Evidently she was no stranger to most of the officers. Almost as evidently, to a very close observer who stood a few paces away, she was no intimate of the group of women who with good right regarded that table as their especial and personal charge. Her Red Cross badge was very new; her garb and gloves were just as fresh and spotless. She had not been ladling out milk and cream, or buttering sandwiches, or pinning souvenirs on dusty blue blouses ever since early morning. Other faces there showed through all their smiles and sweetness the traces of long days of unaccustomed work and short nights of troubled sleep. Marvelous were Mrs. Frank Garrison's recuperative powers, thought they who saw her brought home in the Primes' stylish carriage, weak and helpless and shaken after her adventure of the previous day. She had not been at the Presidio a week and yet she pervaded it. She had never thought of such a thing as the Red Cross until she found it the center of the social firmament after her arrival at San Francisco, and here she was, the last comer, the foremost ("most forward" I think some one described it) in their circle at one of the most prominent tables, absorbing much of the attention, most of the glory, and none of the fatigue that should have been equally shared by all.

LITERARY.

Gertrude Atherton never writes an uninteresting story. Her novel, "The Traveling Thirds," which opens the July Smart Set, is a particularly striking piece of work, full of brilliant dialogue and exquisite bits of description. The tale concerns the adventures of a party of Americans who travel through Spain third class, in order that they may come into close contact with the people of that country. The heroine, Catalina Shore, is as independent, as original, as refreshing as the author's famous Patience Sparhawk. The love story in "The Traveling Thirds" is delightful, and the sensational denouement is one of the most dramatic scenes which Mrs. Atherton has ever written. The Smart Set has published a long line of novelettes which have lived a far greater length of time than the usual magazine story, but Mrs. Atherton's latest piece of fiction will win even a more lasting measure of praise.

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong, and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On June 18, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and poular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment.

"Thrift," says Russell Sage, "is so essential to happiness, that the failure so practice it, is to me, incomprehensible. It is such an easy, simple thing, and it means so much; it is the foundation of success in business, of contentment in the home, of standing in the community. It stimulates industry. It begets independence and self-confidence."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

It is reported that Louis Wiltse and "Pete" Lamar may be the battery for Somerville in case a series of contests is arranged with Plainfield.

Edward McLane, the Fordham College pitcher, joined Manager Burnham at Newark yesterday. He will become a member of the Newark pitching staff.

Duquette, formerly of Dover and Paterson, has been engaged by Manager Clark Griffith, of the New York Americans. He will be given a month's trial in the box.

The East Millstone team, twice victors over New Market, will meet the Dunellen team at the latter place tomorrow afternoon. Phil Smith will pitch for the home nine.

When Lew Wiltse's arm goes back on him he will probably make good in some other position owing to his ability to clout the ball. He recently subsituted at first base for Tim Jordan, of Baltimore.

A first class exhibition of baseball is promised for tomorrow between Plainfield and Philadelphia Giants on Crescent Oval. Both teams will put forth their best effort to win. "Jack" O'Neil, the new catcher, will make his first appearance here and should be given a cordial reception.

When the regular umpire failed to appear on the diamond to umpire the Poughkeepsie-Paterson game on Saturday last, the Rev. C. S. Rahn, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church, was asked to officiate. The minister, who was a college player before he was ordained, left the grandstand and held the indicator throughout the contest. The players passed the word that there was a "dominie" in the umpire's box, and there was an entire absence of profanity.

GIANTS AGAINST PLAINFIELD.

Philadelphia Team at Crescent Oval Tomorrow.

Manager Schlicter, of the Philadelphia Giants, expects to have the honor of winning the first game from the local team this season on Crescent Oval ,tomorrow, when these two teams meet for the third time this year. The locals took the first game by the small score of 2 to 1, and the second by a score of 4 to 2. In the last contest, Beck allowed the colored champions but four hits and the performance was considered a remarkable one. The Giants have not forgotten their two defeats and they are determined to make good this trip by a victory. The Giants have plenty of good pitchers and Ball has been picked to stand on the firing line. McClellan and Foster officiated in the other two contests and did good work. Monroe has promised to keep everybody in good humor by his coaching.

Manager Daab feels confident that the locals will give a good account of themselves and that Beck, with good support, will record another victory. He realizes that the team will have to play the limit to do this. "Jack" O'Neil will be at the receiving nd and the fans will be anxious to see him work. The lineup will be as follows:

Plainfield—Cosgrave, cf; Oldring, 2b; Connolly, rf; Cregan, lf; Kiernan, ss; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neil, c; Beck or Deegan, p.

Philadelphia Giants—Grant, 2b; Hill, lf; Monroe, 3b; Johsnon, ss; Moore, cf; McClellan, rf-p; White, 1b; Bowman, rf-p; Foster, rf-p; Booker or Washington, c; Ball ,p.

SCHOOL BUDGET APPROVED.

Amount to Run the Elizabeth Institutions Is Less Than Last Year.

The Board of Education of Elizabeth has approved of the report of the Board of School Estimate, which placed the amount to be asked for running the schools for the coming year at $155,420. This is $10,000 less than was originally asked for. School Superintendent Shearer has called the attention of the board to the benefits that have been accomplished by the truancy law and the way it was being enforced in Elizabeth.

SOMERVILLE UNABLE TO PLAY ON JULY 4

TOO LATE TO GET A TEAM TOGETHER AGAINST PLAINFIELD.

While it was decided at a meeting of the Somerville Baseball Association, last night, that it would be impossible to get a team together to play Plainfield on July 4, it was unanimously agreed that a series of contests be arranged between the two nines a little later, possibly within a month's time. The Somerville enthusiasts find that the time is too short to get the right kind of a team on the field, one that would be of equal strength to the local aggregation. In view of this, it was voted to give up the Independence Day contests here.

In the meantime the association will go to work at once to organize a team of the proper strength and prepare for a series a little later.

The Somervillians are very enthusiastic over the prospects of a series with Plainfield and they will put forth every effort to take a majority of the games. This they feel confident they can do, when fully organized. They know the strength of the local team and when the two organizations meet it will be a battle royal for honors. Rather than bring a team here that would be no match for Plainfield the association thought it best to defer the meeting, knowing that the contests will be all the more satisfactory to the fans of this city and Somerville by so doing.

Manager Daab will now make other arrangements for July 4, and he will bring a first class attraction here to meet the locals.

BOWEN'S NEW MOVE.

Will Try to Prove that Loomis' Explanation of Check is False.

Washington, June 16—Efforts are being made by the Bowen side in the Bowen-Loomis controversy to shatter the explanation given by Acting Secretary of State Loomis as to the $5,000 check from the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company. Copies of State department records, with other papers, were filed late Wednesday afternoon with Secretary Taft, which close friends of Bowen allege will nullify Mr. Loomis' explanation that the transaction was one of exchange on Mr. Loomis' departure from Caracas as minister.

The purpose of Bowen in filing these documents is to show that the check was issued at a date previous to the first intimation given to Mr. Loomis, as shown by the records of the State department, that he was to return to this country.

$63,000 for Y. M. C. A.

For the purpose of assisting General Secretary J. H. Strawbridge, of the Elizabeth Young Men's Christian Association, to raise the necessary $10,000 with which to furnish the dormitories of the new Young Men's Christian Association building, now in course of construction in East Jersey street, below Broad, in that city, the Women's Auxiliary has voted $1,000 towards this part of the fund. This makes now about $63,000 of the $70,000 needed to complete the structure entirely. This amount will be further reduced, it is thought, when the returns are made with the managers of Columbia, the benefit entertainment given in Jacobs' theatre recently. It is believed that the Young Men's Christian Association will net a little over $1,000.

Minister on Nasal Music.

That there is a time for all things, even to the use of the handkerchief, has been impressed upon the choir of St. Paul's Episcopal church, at Hoboken, by the Ven. Archdeacon William R. Jenvey. An address on this subject suggested itself to Dr. Jenvey at the choir rehearsal in his church yesterday.

At the conclusion of an anthem he said: "I have noticed here, as I have noticed repeatedly in church, that the members of the choir use their handkerchiefs at most imopportune times. I would beseech the ladies and gentlemen of the choir to remember that the art of using the handkerchief or not using it is just as important during the singing of an anthem as the proper method of breathing or enunciating."

MYSTERIOUS SNUFFLES STARTS OUT TODAY

WATCH FOR HIS EXPERIENCES IN TOMORROW'S ISSUE.

Firmly convinced that whiskers furnish no clue to the identification of a stranger, The Daily Press is about to put its theory into practise. At 3 o'clock this afternoon "The Mysterious Mr. Snuffles" will leave the office and wander about town courting detection.

If you think you recognize him, slap him on the back twice and holler in his ear, "You are a lobster." He will immediately admit his identity, give you a few swift punches in the eye and accompany you to the hospital, where you will receive all possible attention. As an additional inducement to the keen ones, The Daily Press will give several prizes, which will be shown in local store windows tomorrow.

Watch for "The Mysterious Mr. Snuffles and study him carefully. He wears a green coat and black eye. His first day's experience will be found in tomorrow's issue of The Daily Press.

SNAP SHOTS.

The census enumerators who are now busy interrupting busy householders with long and complicated questions about their age, habits, and complexions, are not particularly enamored of the jobs. They say that it takes too long to get the questions answered, particularly if they strike a talkative woman who wants to give them he whole family history. One enumerator who has been doing the high-class resident district is very sore on the job. He says he is frequently kept waiting half an hour before the lady of the house will deign to come down stairs and be interrogated. Several of them though before they saw him that he was making a social call and took the trouble to get out of their morning gowns into more fetching habiliments. When they found that all the visitor wanted was to count the people who lived in the house they got mad.

The committee which had the affair in charge consisted of Mrs. Schneegas, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Stelle, Mrs. Angerbauer, Mrs. Fleet and Mrs. Clark.

ROAD WASHINGTON TRAVELLED IN 1789

WHEN HE PASSED THROUGH ELIZABETH TO NEW YORK.

In letters written before the War of Independence we read of Matthias Ogden going crabbing on the Sound and in Newark Bay. There was shipping in abundance according to the business of the day, and many persons thought that Elizabeth might some day be a greater seaport than New York. This seems incredible. but is borne out by letters written by business men of that day. The Elizabeth River, with no bridge below what is now South Broad street, in that city, was wide enough and deep enough to accommodate the vessels of that day, and the market was at Broad street, and later at Bridge street, just below Thompson's lumber yard.

Elizabeth avenue and First avenue was called the King's road, and from the "Crossroads" was a road called the ,"New Point road," which led to Crane's landing, above where is the bay bridge.

Washington, when he rode through Elizabeth, in 1789, to take the boat at the Point for New York to be inaugurated, traveled Old Point road, now First avenue, and so on down to the foot of Water street, now Elizabeth avenue.

In 1889 the Board of Trade of that day, and citizens generally, did honor to the memory of General Washington and to his successor of the day, General Benjamin Harrison, by tendering him a reception and an escort through the city. The procession led over the same route covered by Washington and close by the remains of the old Ricketts place.

Ricketts was a wealthy man who had his estate before the time of the Revolution, on "First avenue," and extending a considerable distance. He was as patriotic as the average citizen of Elizabeth of those days, and, although warned, has refused to salute the British flag when coming in his boat form the Battery, New York. As a result while with his family and opposite the English fort the boat was fired upon, and one of his maids received a mortal wound.

The man who used to visit at the Ricketts place was James Alexander Lord Stirling, the brother-in-law of Peter Van Brugh Livingston and of Stevens, of Castle Stevens, Hoboken. —Elizabeth Journal.

LINDABURY DENIES SPEEDING.

Files Objections to Fine — Gives Reasons.

Decision has been reserved in the case of Richard V. Lindabury, the Newark lawyer, who is one of the three rich automobilists who recently had charges made against them of exceding the speed limit in Morris township.

Mr. Lindabury appeared Thursday before Justice Stilwell, and filed objection to the fine of $50 which was imposed on him. He declared he never exceeded the speed limit and remembered that when he was passing the stretch of road on which the offense was said to have been committed, he looked at his speed indicator, which, he says, registered nineteen and one-half miles an hour.

Mr. Lindabury was charged with travelling at the rate of 1,200 feet in thirty-one seconds. He said he did not calculate the momentum the auto gained in going down grade, which would not register on the speedometer, but claimed that if he was going at the rate of 1,000 feet in thirty-one seconds that was about twenty-six miles an hour, and he should only be fined proportionately, which he thought would be $15.

Princeton's Catalogue.

The new catalogue of Princeton University shows that in number of students Pennsylvania leads, with an enrollment of 342; New York has 252, and New Jersey 296. The Southern States show an increase, there being at present over 150 students from south of Mason and Dixon's line. The registration shows a total of 1,374 in all classes, a decrease of fifty-seven over last year. The freshman class is less by twenty-one, and in the graduate school there is also a marked decrease—87, as compared with 114 last year. In the School of Science there are 628, while last year's enrollment was 596. The decrease in the academic department is 56.

DR. CHAMBLISS' MASTERLY ADDRESS FEATURE OF N. P. H. S. COMMENCEMENT

His Talk on Education in the South an Instructive Discourse.

EXCELLENT PROGRAM.

Gift to Retiring Superintendent Wightman During the Exercises —Dr. Joy Presents Diplomas.

With beaming faces that nodded acknowledgment and appreciation, eight young people who have completed their course of study in the North Plainfield schools received, last night, from Dr. James R. Joy, president of the Board of Education, the cherished diplomas that represent years of hard work. The presentations were made in connection with the annual commencement exercises, held in Y. M. C. A. Hall, and which were witnessed by a gathering of proud relatives and friends that occupied every available seat. The graduates were seated upon the stage behind an array of palms, while back of them on the wall there stood out boldly the numerals "1905" and the motto "Perge Modo," in blue and white colors.

The Graduates.

Those in the circle and the course they had finished were Miss Sadie S. Fountain, classical; Clarence J. Hand and Julius J. Newmark, scientific; Miss Bertrude Townley, William H. I. Cubberley, Robin S. Hamilton, Otto Frederick Mueck and Carl Steiner, commercial. For high standing in studies, Clarence Hand had been accorded the honor of delivering the salutatory and Miss Fountain the valedictory. Superintendent Wightman and Dr. Joy were also seated upon the stage.

Invocation by Dr. Charles Wesley Parsons opened the exercises, after which a chorus of fifty selected voices from the High School, in charge of J. Edmund Skiff, sang Meyerbeer's "The March of Progress" with a sweetness and expression that won merited applause. The salutatory, "School Spirit," was delivered by Mr. Hand in a firm manner that fitted his subject.

Address by Dr. Chambliss.

The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, who took as his subject "Education in the South." At the outset Dr. Chambliss stated the fact that he is a Southerner by birth and that the greater part of his life has been spent below Mason and Dixon's line, thus enabling him to study conditions closely. The North, he said, has many mistaken impressions as to the illiteracy of the South, but, in truth, the people, with the exception of the "mountain whites," are as well educated as the rest of the world. Continuing, Dr. Chambliss said:

Where the Ignorance Is.

"You may be slow to accept some of the statements I make, but I say the ignorance is confined almost exclusively to the dwellers in the mountainous regions and the negroes. In the towns and agricultural regions it is as uncommon to find people who cannot read and write as it is in New Jersey. There was no free school system in the South before the war—private tuition was almost the only method because of the small expense, yet there were numerous colleges patronized by all classes. I may say at this point that the majority of the people of the South, even in the best sections, never owned slaves. It was not necessary for them to do so in order to be comfortable or to have the necessary means to educate their children properly.

Education Suffered from War.

"The colleges in the ante-bellum days were not much higher than schools of the present day, but the universities of Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia of fifty years ago were not surpassed by the Harvard, the Yale and the Princeton of that time. The war changed all things and education suffered badly. The universities were impoverished or paralyzed and the free school system was slow to be taken up. Despite these obstacles, the people fought for education and the colleges now are better than ever before.

"Few states in the Union are more lavish in their appropriations for education than those of the South. Texas takes three and a half millions from its common treasury each year, exclusive of another million from local taxation; Tennessee has a perpetual school fund of over two and a half millions, and other states spend vast amounts.

South's Enormous Expanse.

"The lack of educational opportunities in the rural regions is due to the enormous territory to be covered and the sparsity of inhabitants. The people of Massachusetts, for instance, are worth five times as much per capita as the people of Georgia. Massachusetts can build a school house every square mile and have sixty-five children in it. Georgia could have but eleven children, and or these, six would be white and five black. This would require two separate schools every square mile, if they are to be within the reach of the children. I say separate schools, because the question of black and white is settled in the South; it is sacred with the people, and they refuse to discuss it.

The Whites' Great Burden.

"There are 10,000,000 negroes in the South, and that means, just double the number of schools that would be required in the North. Ninety-five per cent. of the taxes are paid by the whites, yet the two colors share and share alike. The negro schools are similar in equipment to the whites' and the teachers are required to pass the same examinations; in fact, everything is done to give one side the same opportunities as the other.

Not Boasting of Their Aid.

"Since the war ended the whites of the South have spent $100,000,000 alone for the education of the negroes, but of what they have done and what they are still doing for the black man, they make no boast. While they are under no peculiar obligation from the fact of their previous ownership, since they inherited them from your forefathers as well as their, yet they could do no less than they are doing without turning a deaf ear to the united voices of humanity, patriotism and even self-protection. In a spirit of genuine kindliness toward the negro the white people of the South are disposed to give him all wise and real help.

Who the Lynchers Are.

"Do not, I pray you, form your judgment of the Southerner's attitude toward the black man from the horrible lynchings and barbaric cruelties of which you read. Of the millions that make up the white population of the South, I believe it would be quite within the truth to say that not 5,000 in all the states in all the years have had anything to do wit ha lynching, and these, as a rule, have come from the lowest and most degraded classes. The characteristic spirit of the white man is in keeping with the words of the great Christian, Wade Hampton: 'God bless all my people, white and black alike.' Education and prosperity go hand in hand, and the people of the South stand shoulder to shoulder with their fellows of the North in the effort to strike off the shackles of illiteracy.

The Quaint Mountain White.s

"As to the men of the mountains, whose dialect and quaint mannerisms have been made familiar in fiction, and whose ignorance and low social condition have been amusing when they have not become repulsive, I have this to say: They are the descendants of Scotch, Irish and English settlers; the same as those who built up New York and Pennsylvania. There are no facts to support the statement that they are the descendants of indentured servants and renegades escaped from camps, but there is much to prove their courage, their integrity and their fighting qualities. It was they who fought many of the great battles of the Revolution, the War of 1812, and the Mexican War; who sent many valiant bands to both sides in the Rebellion and who contributed more men in the late struggle with Spain than any State in the Union except Massachusetts.

Field for Educational Work.

"Their peculiar characteristics are due to isolation. It is the lack of railroads and the modern day methods of intermingling that have made them a distinct type. It is not to be denied that they are in a deplorable state, socially and literally, as it is these people and the negroes who give the South its high average of illiteracy; yet a great and good work is going on and the time is soon coming when they will be uplifted from their ignorance, and you young people can choose no better aim in life than to contribute your share of labor in this broad field for educational workers."

The Valedictory.

As Dr. Chambliss concluded, he was accorded hearty applause, the truth of his words making a deep impression on his hearers. The chorus rendered two selections, "Where Are You Going to" and "Lullaby," after which Miss Sadie Fountain, the valedictorian, was introduced. She talked briefly on the "Power of Education," laying stress on the fact that it has been thought and learning that has built up nations and ignorance, quoting Russia as an example, that has retarded others, or caused them to topple. In conclusion she thanked the members of the Board of Education and the fac-

GARDENER MUST LEAVE

Banishment for Youth Who Withheld Information From Police.

LAWYERS INTERESTED.

His Case the First of Its Kind, and They Wanted a Trial—Police Relieved.

James Gardner, the youth who was indicted for withholding information as to the identity of the incendiary who fired the Morey & LaRue laundry last January, has been ordered to leave Plainfield by Judge Vail. When Gardner's case was decided originally by the court he was placed in the hands of the probation officer. Chief Kiely did not think this disposition of the boy was entirely right, and told the court so, and his reasons for thinking so.

Gardner—all the boy's family, in fact—it is said, have been a source of constant trouble to the police. For several years one or another of the family has drawn the attention of the officers, and in the case of this particular member of it the chief is convinced that the criminal tendency is ingrained and certain to crop up again and again, as often as opportunity presents itself.

The chief told the court that he had no desire to hound the boy or see him immured, but he believed that the cause of right and justice, as far as Plainfield went, demanded that he be kept out of the city. The court saw the justness of the contnetion and the mother of the boy was instructed accordingly. She wrote to the chief, telling him that both she and the boy would live the city, if "he would let up" on the latter.

"I haven't any desire to keep at young Gardner," said the chief, "but I don't want such characters in the city. His departure makes a satisfactory termination of the case for me."

A number of lawyers were disappointed because the indictment against Gardner was not pressed. This is the first time in the history of New Jersey's criminal code that anyone has been charged or indicted under the law making the withholding of information as to criminal acts a punishable offense, and the lawyers were anxious to see the action carried through.

GAMBLE IN GREENBROOK.

Another Sunday Haunt Called to the Authorities' Attention.

The attention of the Somerset County authorities has been called to another haunt of the open-air Sunday gambles that infest the environs of Dunellen. In as large, if not larger, numbers than at Dewey Park, young men gather every Sunday morning at Greenbrook, just over the Dunellen line, for a day of uninterrupted gambling.

On newspaper spread beneath the trees they play poker, craps and other games. To a certain extent the older men who "run" the Dewey Park game, are the ones who keep the Greenbrook one going. A curious feature of the circumstances is that the official who was detected playing at Dewey Park has been seen at the Greenbrook hangout playing poker.

N. Y. Arcanum Councils Protest.

New York, June 17—Resolutions have been adopted by nine Royal Arcanum councils within Greater New York, appointing committees to investigate the new rates recently promulgated by the supreme council of the order. The councils that have adopted resolutions are: Acme, Brooklyn, Brevoort, DeWitt Clinton, Fraternity, Gramercy, Long Island, Oxford, Whitestone. Members of the committees will hold a joint meeting next week.

War on Impure Drugs.

Atlantic City, June 17—The Mann bill, now pending in Congress, which provides for the reduction of taxes on imported drugs and chemicals, has been indorsed by the convention of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association at the Islesworth Hotel. It also approved President Beringer's suggestion for the appointment of a committee to investigate compounds and to wage unremitting warfare upon them until they are driven out of the State.

WM. L. SAUNDERS URGES CONSOLIDATION

Tells Board of Trade It Should Take up the Matter.

REVIEWS THE SUBJECT.

Former Mayor of North Plainfield Willing to Make Speech on Question in the Fall.

In reply to a request of the Board of Trade that he appear before that body at an early date to address the members on the subject of consolidation, former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, urges that the discussion of merging city and borough be reopened. Mr. Saunders is the president of the Rand-Ingersoll Company, one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the world, and is one of the most public spirited citizens of the borough. He is known as the father of the annexation and consolidation movement and is undaunted by the defeat of the former plan some time ago. His letter follows:

L. B. Woolston, Esq., President Board of Trade:

I assure you that it is with regret that I am compelled to forego the pleasure of addressing the Board of Trade this month on the subject of consolidation. Please accept my thanks for the courtesy of the invitation which has been extended to me and which under ordinary circumstances I should be happy to accept. My only excuse is that certain business obligations in which I have become recently involved require all of my time. If the Board of Trade wishes to hear me in the fall, I shall be happy to respond.

The Board of Trade has from the first taken the initiative in the movement looking to the consolidation of the Plainfields, and it was through the action of your board that I put in a good deal of time and some expense in the preparation of laws which were passed by the Legislature about three years ago. Two bills on this subject were made laws by the signature of the Governor, one of which (the Annexation Bill) was acted upon by the people, and for all practical purposes is now extinct. It must not be forgotten, however, that the other bill providing a means by which consolidation may be effected has never been acted upon and is still on the statute books. This consolidation bill is a clean measure, drawn by careful and able attorneys, and though it has been subject to censure and criticism it has withstood the attack, and when understood will, I have no doubt, be appreciated and approved. Under this bill we may consolidate Plainfield and North Plainfield by a majority vote on both sides, and without further action of the Legislature until such time as it may become necessary to change the county line. I am, and always have been, for consolidation first and for annexation only as a means to reach consolidation. The people have voted annexation down in a campaign full of misapprehension and because the subject was not understood, its merits were not appreciated, and its best friends were handicapped by certain political conditions, the importance of which were, I think, magnified. But we must face the facts as they exist, and we cannot but recognize the great difficulties in the way of further legislation on this subject until consolidation has first been effected. I am, therefore, anxious that the Board of Trade should take up this measure on lines of consolidation only, joining these two municipal governments in one without county line changes and thus making the first step, the success of which will insure a further and practically unanimous movement for annexation and complete union.

Again thanking you for the courtesy which has been extended to me, I remain,

Yours truly,
W. L. SAUNDERS.

West End's First Game.

The West End Athletic Association, of Somerville, is getting busy in the baseball line. The work of erecting a fence about the grounds and the diamond is being put in fine condition and a grandstand is being erected. "Britt" Martin, of this city, has been engaged to cover second base, and H. G. Galbraith, of Gettysburg College, will play one of the outfield positions and be a substitute pitcher. The first game will probably be played on the afternoon of July 4 with the Bayonne Athletic Club, on the new grounds.

Sail for Home.

City Treasurer W. F. Arnold and A. M. Griffen, who have been in Italy, sailed for home today. The fact was made known in a cablegram received by friends today.

HE IS STILL UNCAUGHT

The Mysterious Mr. Snuffles Tells His Experiences.

THROWN IN STREET.

Handled Roughly on North Avenue—Replies to Several Queries—Laid Up for Repairs Now.

Ladies and gentleman of Plainfield, you who fancy yourselves sharp ones, be on your jobs. Here am I, "The Mysterious Mr. Snuffles, of The Daily Press," walking about town in broad daylight, courting detection, mingling and conversing with hundreds of your citizens, and yet unrecognized. Wonderful, isn't it? And it's all so easy. Clad in a green coat, with white duck trousers and rubber boots, I felt rather conspicuous myself, but nobody recognized me as the singular personage whose capture will mean so much, and I'm still at liberty.

Here are the experiences of my first day:

Promptly at 3 o'clock, as advertised, I sauntered out of The Daily Press office and dropped into the Kensington cafe for a drink. I heard the Mayor of one of our large cities say once that the saloon was the best place in the world in which to meet people, and I've got a sneaking idea he's right. While Eddie Newton, the gifted mixologist, was building me an ice cream soda, I glanced about to see if I might be recognized, but the crowd was so intent in gazing at Mr. G. Rivers, an old veteran from Philadelphia, and a lusty lunged plumber, both of whom were pifficated and carolling war ditties in a far corner, that I downed the chilly mess and resumed my walk unnoticed.

I next betook my way up North avenue to Timbo's restaurant, where I entered, and ordered clam pie and a hot dog, being served by a charming young chappie, whom the boss called Jack, and who divided his time between singing love songs and tearfully examining the New York World's dope sheet.

You should have seen his face brighten, however, when he spoke to the boss of the mysterious Mr. Snuffles. "Tommy, it's a cinch," said he. "I'll swipe that dub or bust. Since Bill Schorb and me retired from the turf, things is certainly on the blink. My Tuesday picnics have gone plum dippy, and I'm spillin' over with a mix up of spavins and rinky dink."

"Dat ain't no lie," chimed in Tommy the boss, "Dat's what you should ought to be."

Little did you know, Jackie, that the quiet stranger, eating his hot dog with a spoon and tucking his bread away in his hat, was the mysterious Mr. Snuffles. Better luck next time, pretty one.

I next entered a swell establishment on the avenue, and being slightly misled by a fancy sign on the window, which read "Experto crede," commenced conversing with the proprietor in Latin. "Vox populi, vox Dei, pro bono paregoric," said I, pleasantly, when up jumped a fat little man, built square like a brick house, and hollered, "Cut it out." Thinking he was simply addressing an immaculate and spider-like gentleman armed with shears, I went on affably and said, "In hoc signo vinces," when, to my surprise, he grabbed me firmly by my collar and the slack of my lily white ducks and threw me unceremoniously into the street. His partner followed his lead and played ragtime on my prostrate form, after which they both walked back into their Persian parlor and were lost to view.

Picking myself up slowly and painfully, I crept back to The Daily Press office for repairs, and Doc. Herbert says I shall be unable to resume my mysterious ramblings for another week.

It is a great experience, though. Next week I shall stroll through Park avenue, so take notice, you wise ones, and catch me if you can.

SOMERSET COUNCIL, 104, JR. O. U. A. M., CELEBRATES ITS 14TH ANNIVERSARY

Delegations From Sister Councils Present at the Exescises.

SOME GOOD SPEECHES.

New Market, Bound Brook, Dunellen, Plains, Westfield, Galia Represented.

The fourteenth anniversary of Somerset Council, No. 56, Jr. O. U. A. M., was celebrated last night in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, West Front street, in happy fashion. There were delegations present from Franklin and Benevolent Councils, of this city; Pioneer, of Bound Brook; Friendship, of New Market; Central, of Westfield; Fairview, of Gallia; William G. Holton, of Dunellen, and Twilight, of Scotch Plains. In addition State Council Secretary W. H. Meiers, and Past State Councilor, Rev. J. Morgan Reed, of Trenton, attended and each officer, as well as the representative from each Council made appropriate remarks in congratulating Somerset Council on its excellent record.

William Latourette, councilor of Somerset Council, was in the chair, and had charge of the programme, while other members of the Council had charge of the refreshments and minor details. The room was attractively decorated with American flags, bunting and various colored lights.

The Speeches.

The addresses of the evening were delivered by W. H. Meiers and Rev. J. Morgan Reed, and they gave the members a clear idea of the progress of the order in New Jersey, as well as other States. The old fight, between the Councils of New Yor, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and a few other States, against the Western Council, was reviewed, and this showed that the seceders are steadily gaining ground and have nothing to fear from the other Councils. Both addresses were along the line of patriotism. Mr. Reed won much applause in his reference to the fact that Governor E. C. Stokes is an active member of the order and has been a staunch friend of its principles, especially that in reference to the public school system.

Among the other speakers were Councilor H. C. Runyon, of Benevolent Council; John G. Bicknell, of Franklin Council, and representatives from the other councils. A feature of the programme was the rendiiton of a fine programme of music by an orchestra comprised of Juniors, under the direction of David Dreier, of Somerset Council. After the programme, refreshments were served and everyone had a general good time.

Has 265 Members.

Somerset Council was instituted June 12, 1891, in Spencer's Hall, in the borough, with thirty-five members. Today its membership is 265 and constantly increasing. Although organized in the borough and taking the name of Somerset, a few years later the Council moved to this city where better accommodations were secured. Recently, Somerset and Franklin Councils joined in leasing the present handsome lodge rooms in the Scheuer Building on West Front street, and meetings are held there every Friday night.

Its Officers.

The present offices of Somerset Council are:

Councilor, William Latourette; vice-councilor, George Wilson; junior past councilor, Fred Sopher, Jr.; warden, Arthur Dow; conductor, George Watts; inside guide, Arthur Thorn; outside guide, George Ga-Nun; recording secretary, Walter Walker; financial secretary, George Allen; treasurer, Jesse Scull; trustees, P. BUYING FURNITURE FOR NEW THEATRE

MANAGER ALSO BOOKS ADDITIONAL ATTRACTIONS.

The work of reconstruction having progressed far enough, Proprietor W. J. Counihan, of Plainfield's new theatre, is in New York today making contracts for the seats and furnishings for the orchestra floor or parquet. They are to equal any gracing the best playhouses in the metropolis, and will be in keeping with the elaborate decorations planned by the management. The chairs are to be of stuffed leather, with large arm rests, and there are to be 450 of them. The equipment for the balcony and galley will not be selected until the lower part is completed.

High class bookings are still being made and to the list already announced the following were added yesterday: Saturday, August 26, matinee and night, "Deserted at the Altar;" Tuesday, August 29, "The Sign of the Cross;" September 18, Thomas W. Ross and the big production of "Checkers;" October 2, "Sergeant Kitty;" November 15, Master Gabriel and the original "Buster Brown;" November 18, "Sherlock Holmes;" December 4, "Human Tearts;" January 29, "The Heir to the Hoorah," the play now crowding the Hudson Theatre, New York, nightly. In addition, Lew Dockstader's big minstrel company, Jefferson De Angelis and "Fantana" and Gus Hill's "Smart Set" are among the good things awaiting the local public.

MAGICIAN DELIGHTS BOYS.

Hal Merton at Hope Chapel Club Affair.

Hal Merton, the well known New York ventriloquist and magician, gave a pleasing entertainment at Hope chapel last night, under the auspices of the Boys' Club. He made rose bushes grow from wooden boxes, caught gold and silver coins floating in the air and conversed with tiny men to the great delight of a large audience.

The affair was given for the benefit of the club's baseball team and was in charge of the following committee; James Kenney, Frank Rimmer, Peter Sweeney, Morris Hunter, George Mead and Walter Firstbrook.

St. Mary's Closing Exercises.

Closing exercises well be held at St. Mary's Parochial School on Thursday and Friday nights, June 22 and 23, when a play entitled "Katinka," will be given by the pupils. NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The conviction of Daniel Galbraith, of South avenue, who was charged with Sunday liquor selling and allowing gambling games to be played on his premises, will probably do more o curb the disorderly element who have been making life miserable for the law-abiding resident in the east end on Sundays than a petition presented weekly could do.

Joe Alberts, who broke a small bone in his hand two weeks ago in the game at Cranford between Cranford and the Pearsalls, of Jersey City, is still out of the game, the injured member being wrapped in splints.

Tickets for the minstrel show, which will be given for the benefit of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, in the hall on Tuesday night, are selling well and the fire laddies are expecting a crowded house.

Tomorrow is Knights of Pythias decoration day. The graves of departed brothers who are buried in the Baptist cemetery here will be decorated by a delegation from the Plainfield lodges.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be at the usual hours: Sunday-school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching, by pastor, 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15 p. m.; evening sermon, 7:45.

AMUSEMENTS.

Bostock's Wild Animal Show, unequalled for originality and stirring amusement, is again the centre of attraction at Coney Island, having opened for the season under the personal direction of Frank C. Bostock, the famous animal king, last week. The greatest interest is of course centred in Bonavita, the brave and fearless conqueror of a hundred lions, who has returned from Bostock's Paris Hippodrmoe direct for the summer engagement.

Bride and Groom Known Locally.

William H. Cawley, Jr., of Somerville, and Miss Lena May Buck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Buck, of Dover, were married at the home of the bride's parents on Thursday, Rev. W. H. SOMERVILLE BARKS AT PLAINFIELD FANS

DON'T WANT GAMES HERE ON JULY FOURTH.

In reply to a recent article in The Daily Press intimating a series of baseball games between Plainfield and Somerville is a possibility, The Somerset Democrat pleasantly remarks as follows:

"The above article appeared in The Press, Tuesday night, and might lead Plainfielders to believe that Somerville was getting a team in shape just to play Plainfield on their grounds. Mr. Press man, for your information (if you are not close enough to Manager Daab to find out), Somerville will play no more games in Plainfield until that team has played here.

"We went to Plainfield last September and besides winning the game by a big score, making 15 hits off of "Jack" Cronin, we took down paid their way into the game and put many dollars into the defunct treasury.

"Now, it can be stated on authority in this paper, that if any games are arranged for July 4, they will be played in Somerville, and not in Plainfield. Then we will have a chance to see if the pinheaded sports from the Watchung gravel hole are up to the market price, and whether their jeans contain more than two cents' worth of cigarettes.

"It is a business proposition when Somerville goes to Plainfield to play ball. Right down in their hearts they would rather play any team than Somerville—because they can never win; but they know a loyal crowd follows the team and they are after the money. Do they think we are playing ball here just for our health!"

GRANT COTTAGE SOLD.

Home in Which Mother of the General Died Goes for Lumber.

The cottage in which Mrs. Jessie Grant, mother of General U. S. Grant, died twenty-one years ago, was sold at auction this week in Jersey City to make way for a new courthouse. The building is near the old courthouse on Jersey City Heights. A large plot was necessary for the new building and the historic old house was condemned. The house was sold for $500, to be torn down for the lumber in it. It is a two-story and attic cottage. The cottage was the home of General Grant's sisters, Mrs. Mary Grant Cramer and Mrs. Virginia Grant Corbin. Mrs. Cramer died recently at the home of Mrs. Corbin, in East Orange. The cottage was owned by Mrs. Corbin, who received a fair price for the property, but is engaged in a dispute with a former neighbor over a narrow strip, to which the neighbor claims title by adverse possession.

Mrs. Grant attende dthe Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, near the house. The pastor was the Rev. Howard Henderson, who had been a colonel in the Confederate army, and had not forgotten the bitterness engendered by the rebellion. General Grant wrote a courteous note requesting him to officiate at the funeral. Mr. Henderson declined, and suggested that some pastor whose sympathy was with the cause of the Union be selected. General Grant answered promptly, writing a characteristic note, and the rebel colonel-minister capitulated. He officiated at the funeral, and from this incident a warm friendship developed between General Grant and Dr. Henderson.

The Graduate

A half a century ago, girls, fortunate enough to go to school at all, learned only the three R's. A half a decade ago they were engrossed apparently with only geometry, trigonometry and higher mathematics, but to-day, to all of these is added a thorough knowledge of culinary art, the care of the kitchen, and the value of fuels. Gas is the ideal fuel for cooking and also for other kitchen appliances. Chief among these is the Gas Hot Water Heater. Speedy and reliable, it becomes a necessary adjunct to comfort when coal fires are out. $8.50 buys one.

PULPIT TALKS FOR SHUT-IN PLAINFIELDERS

NO. 1—By the Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, M. A., Rector-Emeritus of Grace Episcopal Church.

"Acquaint now thyself with Him (that is with God) and be at peace; thereby good shall come unto thee."—Job xxii:21.

An eminent writer of the Church of England (Norris), in his "Rudiments of Theology," says, "the time is coming, if it have not already come, when the truths of Christianity will no longer be taken for granted; when even the most elementary doctrines of religion—the doctrine of a Personal Creator, for instance—will be considered an open question. It has been so before, and it will be so again, perhaps in our own generation, only with this difference—that whereas in the last century doubters were for the most part scoffers, whose bad lives deprived them of any right to be heard in a matter so sacred, now in our century it is not so; earnest seekers after truth, whose lives are as strictly moral as our own, are putting the question to us in all seriousness—"is it possible for man to have any knowledge of God?" It is the old question, put to Job 3,400 years ago or more, by Zophar, the Naamathite, "Canst thou by searching find out God?" God is an infinite being, and man is finite, and therefore his knowledge of the infinite, as of all other things, must be finite. But certainly from the Creator's works and revelations, the creature must be able to learn enough—to learn all, that is necessary to make him wise unto salvation, while it is just as true that being finite and limited in his powers and faculties he cannot possibly understand the Divine existence fully. "Know thyself" is one of the most useful and comprehensive precepts in the whole moral system. Self-knowledge is absolutely necessary to a man's usefulness. He must, to some extent, know himself, his capabilities, his strength and his weakness; and although he is an extraordinary man, who fully knows himself, what he is fitted for, what he can do and what he cannot do, who never over estimates his ability, who is complete master of himself, men have never ceased to give much study to this science. And if it is so hard and next to impossible, if not actually impossible, for a mortal to fully know himself, how presumptuous and absurd must it be for him to attempt to comprehend the infinite God, or to complain of his inability to do so; or, because he cannot fathom the mind of the Deity, or understand all His ways, or see the wisdom of all His actions, to refuse gladly and thankfully to accept such communications as it has pleased Jehovah to make to him! We believe that our Creator has so constituted man that he may in part know himself—that this faculty was impaired by the entrance of sin into the world, that by diligent and persevering improvement it may be greatly developed and its powers augumented, and that he may know even God, whom to know is life eternal, and that it is necessary to his highest and best being and happiness, that he should faithfully exercise this faculty.

The evidences of Christianity, the proofs of the existence, of the wisdom, power and love of God, have been most ably and in a masterly way, put forth for the confirmation of our faith. The separate and distinct branches of the large subject have engaged the attention of master-minds. In every possible phase the subject has been dissected and examined, and the results of the scholarly investigations given to us. Nature has been ransacked, history has been explored, the Bible has been for generations the one subject of study and criticism to thousands of scholars, who, although they have found in it, as St. Peter told them, long ago, they would find, "Some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest unto their own destruction," unite in testifying that it must be the revelation of God—that it must be true.

How comes it then that, in this 20th century of the Christian era, after all these labors and explorations and enquiries have been going on, age after age, and have now accumulated to such an immense bulk, when it would really seem as if no question had been left uninvestigated, and no point, however small, had escaped observation, men supposed to be honest can be found, who insist that these questions are still open and undecided questions? I know not how it can be, unless for the reason given for Christ's inability to work miracles in His own country. St. Matthew declares "He did not many mighty works there, because of their unbelief." St. Mark, referring to the same event, writes, "He could there do no mighty work, save that He laid His hands upon a few sick folk and healed them. And He marvelled because of their unbelief." Well may He have marvelled, and well may He marvel at the unbelief of men today, in the full noonday light of this Gospel dispensation. They look back to the first Christian century and read the records of the doings and sayings of the Son of Man and think if they had lived in those days and had enjoyed one opportunity of seeing our Divine Redeemer open, by a word, the eyes of one born blind, if they could have stood by the grave of Lazarus and have seen him, that had been dead and buried, come forth at Christ's word of command, they would have believed. But the record contradicts them, for it declares that not the restoration of sight to one, nor of life to another was sufficient to convince some, who stood by and saw the miracles wrought. And it may without hesitation be asserted that any one who rejects the accumulated evidences of the truth of God's word that are put within his reach at this day, would not be persuaded, though one rose from the dead. And is it not rather for the reason that they cannot understand all than because of any great difficulty in regard to those things which concern them that they stumble and settle down in unbelief and declare themselves agnostics, and in their assumed ignorance and inability to know hope they have found a refuge and shelter? A man going to England, Russia, Prussia or Turkey, if he desired to keep out of trouble, would be careful to conform his outward conduct, whatever his thoughts might be, to the laws of the realm in which he was residing and to the usages of their society, if he expected to be admitted to it. And so it seems to me these men of whom I am speaking, being citizens of this world, are arguing today that it is well for them to conform to the laws of their land and do the best they can in the position and in the relations of life in which they find themselves or into which they may enter, and that doing this, they are doing all that can be expected of them. There may be another world, they admit, and another life and other relations into which they may enter hereafter, but then again there may not be. God has never made any individual revelation to them of these things. The Bible, it is true, speaks of God and of a life to come, but then some one said you can prove anything from the Bible, which foolish assertion is just as true and no truer than it would be to say that one can prove anything he desires from any book. The good and wise of all ages and of all lands, differing about very many things, have united in asserting that the Book contains the only written revelation that it has pleased God to make of the way by which man may be saved, and that is by believing and accepting Jesus Christ, who came into the world to save sinners. And that, after all, is the great point which every man who thinks must desire to know and settle. He may easily perplex and confuse and confound himself with questions and problems of the future state—he can take a slate and quickly fill it with questions that he cannot answer—a fool can ask questions which no wise man can answer. He may shatter the slate into fragments, but that act will not solve one problem. He may rise up and declare himself an agnostic—assert that he cannot acquaint himself with God, or know anything beyond this present world and life; he may resolve to live and move and have his being in himself, and in this state of existence, amid the things that he can see and handle and understand, and it will not be an hour before some unanswerable question will present itself to him, if he is a thinking man, for this present world is full of mysteries, and the greatest mystery to man is man. And I take it, few men are willing to admit that this world bounds and circumscribes their existence—that their destiny is accomplished here. They see how incomplete and unfinished our life and all life's work are—how unjust and unmerciful God would be, if the judgments of this world were final judgments, when cruel injustice often gains victories, when wrong often triumphs, when deception and falsehood often prosper, when transgression of law often goes unpunished, when the innocent and guileless so often suffer much more than the guilty offender. If one, then, attempts to make his life consist of these visible, temporal things of earth, he tears from his brow the crown of pure gold his Creator placed there, when "He breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul," when He made him lord of this lower creation and gave him the power of an endless life.

A man, though made in the image of God, can so wrong his Creator and himself, can get so far away from these fundamental truths of religion and of his own being, that it seems well-nigh impossible to bring him back to them—he can become so immersed in the cares of this world, so engrossed with its pleasures, that, when you speak to him of them, it is as if you spoke in an unknown language. But such estrangement from God and the things of God surely is not good for man. It is as if your child should go away to some foreign land, should there form associations and connections, should learn the language and adopt the habits of the new land, and grow into its ways—should cut off all connection with his home, forget the land of his birth and cease to care for his parents, until finally the change in him should be so complete that he would not be recognized by you if you should pass him in the street. Such a condition of things would be most unnatural. And yet in just that condition do many of His children live towards the great God and Father of all. They know not peace—they have tried to make up a truce, which is a miserable substitute for the peace which the love and service of God impart to His child. God comes near and tries to help you acquaint yourself with Him, that you may have and enjoy this peace, which passeth understanding—that good, the best and greatest even eternal good may come unto you. He comes near to you here in His house—His holy spirit accompanied you hither, if you came to learn of Him. He comes near thro' His word and His worship and the sacraments of His church. Go out upon the hills, on this lonely summer day, and Nature will reveal Him to you, as you see His hand, the hand of the great Painter that has touched the plants of the field with such gorgeous hues, as no human artist can hope to imitate. And let Nature, or the church, or the needs of your soul lead you to God your Father. "Acquaint now thyself with Him, and be at peace, thereby good shall come unto thee."

Saving Time.

The man who makes two blades of grass grow where there had been but one is proverbially a public benefactor. Similarly, perhaps, the man or the agency that adds to the ease of life or the facility of its active operations deserves recognition. Such, in effect, is the accomplishment of the Pennsylvania Railroad in its new service to and from the West, and the fast that it is a corporation, seeking primarily to increase its revenues, need not detract from the acknowlegment. To most persons, perhaps, the sensational reduction of the New York-Chicago running time to eighteen hours appeals in much the same way as a record-breaking automobile trip—an interesting and somewhat exciting achievement. But it is much more. It brings the commercial centre of the Middle West three or four hours nearer to Philadelphia and New York; and this saving of precious time is multiplied infinitely through its effect upon business activities and intercommunication. Once more, and conclusively, the Pennsylvania Railroad has proved its title to the term "standard,—a title won in the most intense competition for supremacy in equipment and operation. Some of the policies of the management in the past have proved mistaken; but no one can question that in physical results, such as improved construction and progressive schedules, the Pennsylvania sets the pace for all its rivals.—Editorial in Philadelphia North American, June 14.

Plainfield, N. J., June 17, 1905.

After having made his first day's round of the city, "The Mysterious Mr. Snuffles" tells of his experiences. His story will be found on page one. Read what he has to say and look for his tales every Saturday.

Former President of Common Council John B. Dumont has increased the free open-air band concert fund by contributing five dollars. This brings the total up to sixty-five dollars. A list of those who have helped along the cause will be found in another column. Who's next?

The first of a series of sermons by Plainfield clergymen will be found on page three. These pulpit talks are intended for the shut-in; for those who are unable to attend church services on Sunday, but we feel that all our readers will be interested in them. It is proposed to publish one every Saturday, the kindness of the local clergy permitting us to do so. The first is by the Reverend Erskine M. Rodman, the venerable dean of local ministers, who is well-beloved by the people of the town.

SQUIRE A LIFE-SAVER.

J. C. Cooper Nearly Drowns in Rescuing Another.

Justice of the Peace John C. Cooper, of Warrenville, brother of Sheriff Edward Cooper, almost lost his life Thursday night. Albert Marshall was bathing in a lake made by an old mine, when he slipped over a ledge into thirty feet of water.

Justice Cooper was attracted by the man's cries. He dived after him. Marshall seized the justice by the legs, and they both sank beneath the surface. When they came up Cooper struck Marshall a blow on the jaw, stunning him and causing him to release his hold.

Cooper then seized the man and swam with him to shore. Marshall became unconscious before he was taken out of the water and a doctor was summoned. He was revived with difficulty. Cooper was nearly exhausted when he was taken from the water.

LICENSE FEES.

New Ordinance by Elizabeth Councilmen.

An ordinance has been passed on first and second readings by the Elizabeth Council increasing license fees. The fee for a circus charging 25 cents or more admission will be $200 daily; charging 10 to 25 cents admission the license will be $50 a week or a portion thereof, and $25 for each additional week. For a concert or entertainment charging 50 cents or more admission, the fee will be $10 each performance. Charitable or benevolent affairs are exempt from this license.

The theatres will be required to pay a license of $150 a year and concert halls where liquors are sold a license of $20 a month. The ordinance will be in effect as soon as passed on third reading.

Plainfield Tax Rate.

While it is expected that Plainfield's tax rate for the coming year will be the same as last, 2.52, this cannot be definitely known until after the Union County Board of Assessors meet at Elizabeth in August. The local Board of Assessors has completed its work here and the Common Council has approved the books. Now a report must be made to the county board of assessors, when the various rates will be established throughout the county as well as the county rate.

"Bosey" Reiter Here.

R. H. Reiter, formerly of Princeton University, but now at the head of the department of athletics at Wesleyan University, is spending some time here, prior to going to the Harvard Summer School. He anticipates that the coming year will be one of the best in athetics at Wesleyan and that the various teams will be heard from in their contests with other colleges.

SOME ATTRACTIONS AT SEA GIRT CAMP

DAILY PRACTICE ON RANGE ROR SHOOTING EVENTS.

Sea Girt, June 17.—This spot, known to everyone because of the beautiful reservation on which the State militia encampments are held, will be thronged with visitors this year. In addition to the regular field days of the different regiments of the National Guard which always attract crowds of mothers and sisters of the State's soldiers to the hotels overlooking the ocean, there is to be a competition in rifle shooting of picked shots from all the regiments of the regular army, held on the rifle range. The grounds of the State reservation have been greatly enlarged since last season, and gangs of men are hard at work getting the new rtact in shape before the arrival of the first troops. For some time detachments of soldiers from Governor's Island have occupied tents on the old camping ground. They are practising daily over the ranges in preparation for the coming event.

Aside from the interest the presence of the soldiers lends to the summer life of the community, Sea Girt itself has natural attractions enough to well repay a visit. The hotels and summer cottages are picturesquely situated on high land commanding a magnificent view of the ocean, as well as the surrounding country. The roads in and about the place are of fine hard sea sand, admirable for driving or automobling. In many cases they run through lines of pines and low lying bushes of sage and scrub pines for miles and miles. There are many very fine summer home scattered along the coast, and some pretentious houses are in course of construction, quite far inland. A regular feature of the life here, as well as at many of the other places along the coast, is to see the fishermen visit their traps each morning and return with their catch.

All along the shore, at intervals of a mile or two, fishing huts have been established. The traps lie about a mile from shore, and the fishermen who, for the most part, work on shares, visit them every day, no matter how bad the weather or how high the surf runs. Their boats are large, roomy and long, capable of accommodating six or eight men. They were originally propelled by oars, but recently transferable engines have been installed in most of them, greatly to the comfort and convenience of the fishermen. To see one of these boats ride in on the breakers, her engine puffing like a locomotive and the crew jumping like monkeys from one side to the other to keep it trimmed, is a sight well worth taking in.

Then there are the United States life saving stations, which dot the shore every three miles. Interest in the work of this corps never ceases, and their comfortable and well kept establishments are thronged with visitors throughout the season, who are cordially welcomed by the crews, glad of anything that will break the monotony of their lives. Exhibition drills are given at frequent intervals, which anyone is at liberty to attend.

There is also a large steamer which makes regular fishing trips far out to sea during the season, on which the cottagers and hotel guests frequently take passage. While the accommodations are naturally somewhat rough, the fishing is perfect, and amply compensates those discomforts that they may have had to endure.

After the hearing in the city court, Saueracker accused Becker of beating his wife.

ulty for their efforts in behalf of the students and spoke the parting words to her classmates, expressing sorrow at the leavetaking and bidding all to bear in mind that "commencement" meant the beginning of a new life.

The presentation of diplomas was made by Dr. Joy, who improved the opportunity by speaking of North Plainfield's excellent school system and congratulating the graduates on the successful completion of the required course.

Supt. Wightman Surprised.

A final number was to have been given by the chorus, but before the singers could assume their places, M. K. W. Heicher, of the school faculty, took the center of the stage and addressed Superintendent Wightman. He spoke regretfully of the parting that was to come through Mr. Wightman's accepting the principalship of school at Altoona, Pa., and then, in behalf of teachers and students, presented him with an elaborate bronze desk set. The recipient, in responding, expressed pleasure and surprise at the gift and then said:

"I have been with the North Plainfield schools eight years, and though they have been fraught with hard work, I shall always look back to them with pleasant thoughts. I have done my best in promoting the cause of education, and I believe that through it all I have had the support of the public."

The delightful chorus selection, "Gipsy Life," by Schumann, brought the exercises to a close.

STREET DEPARTMENT AS BUSY AS USUAL

WORK BEING DONE UNDER DIRECTION OF COMMISSIONER GAVETT.

For the purpose of overcoming certain difficulties that have existed carrying off the surface water at West Seventh street and Plainfield avenue, Street Commissioner Gavett is having strong iron culverts installed at that corner. This will make it possible to get at the drain for cleaning and thus prevent obstructions which have heretofore held the surface water back.

Other work being performed by the street department is the turnpiking of Hillside avenue, between Evergreen avenue and Randolph road. This has also been rolled, making it one of the most serviceable streets leading to the hospital.

The work of resurfacing Belleview avenue, which leads from Park avenue to Hillside Cemetery, has been temporarily delayed owing to the lack of fine stone. This is expected to arrive next week, and when the work is completed this will be one of the best macadam roads in the city.

The next work of importance to be taken up will be the resurfacing of Hillside and Evergreen avenues, the surface of which has been considerably disturbed by the sewer work. After that it is quite probable that East Fifth street, between Watchung avenue and Richmond street, will be resurfaced. Other repair work in various parts of the city will be taken up in accordance with the necessity of it.

The street sprinkling work is being done quite satisfactorily, although Mr. Gavett has recently discovered some of the drivers putting too much water on certain streets. This difficulty will be remedied at once and effort made to have a more even distribution of water.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., will confer the entered apprentice degree Tuesday night, June 20, and on Thursday night, June 28, at a special communication the fellow-craft degree will be conferred to be followed by refreshments. The lodge will "call off" during the months of July and August.

As an honor to the youngest chapter in the jurisdiction of New Jersey Royal Arch Masons, Dr. J. P. Salter, high priest of Perth Amboy, Chapter No. 41, has been made representative for the grand chapter of New Zealand. The latter is the most recently formed grand chapter. A delegation of grand officers visited Perth Amboy Chapter Thursday and made known the appointment.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, of Grandview avenue, have returned home after a two weeks' trip for Mrs. McKelvey's health.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Men's Club of Grace M. E. church on Monday night, June 26, to decide on plans for next year.

Under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist at the First Presbyterian church, a special musical service will be held at the church tomorrow morning. Mr. Braider has arranged to have the Euterpean Glee Club, Sydney R. Titsworth, Howard Lewis, E. Maxwell Honeyman and Elmer D. Cutting, to present a special programme. This quartette sang at the church three years ago, giving entire satisfaction and no doubt many will be pleased to hear them again.

Mrs. J. E. Tompkins has removed from Crescent avenue to East Ninth street.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

JUSTICE HARLAN ATTRIBUTES VIGOR TO OUTDOOR EXERCISE.

FISH COMMISSION'S REPORT

Al Fresco Potomac Dinner at Its Best —Always Marrying Off Unmarried Public Men—Secretary Moody a Victim.

WASHINGTON.—The rumor is again circulated that Associate Justice John M. Harlan contemplates retirement from the supreme bench. Judge Harlan's enthusiastic advocacy of the establishment of a Presbyterian cathedral in Washington has inspired this latest rumor. It is suggested that if the matter is taken up by the Presbyterian general assembly Judge Harlan will be requested to take charge of the movement, and in order to do so he will relinquish his place on the bench and devote all his energies to the building of the cathedral.

Recently the judge was asked concerning the report that he would leave the bench for the purpose of furthering the Presbyterian cathedral movement. He declared that he was not in a position to discuss the matter, and whatever was done would depend upon the action of the general assembly. He announced his great interest in this movement and his willingness to assume a large share of the burden of raising the funds, but he was not prepared to say whether he would leave the supreme bench for the purpose of devoting all his time to the matter.

Judge Harlan is entitled to retirement, having passed the requisite age, but few of his colleagues are more wrapped up in their work than is he. He has been a member of the supreme bench for 28 years, and still does his full share of its work. He is physically in the finest condition and demonstrated only a few weeks ago that he was a formidable opponent for anyone to meet on the golf links. He took part in a golf competition and played 18 holes over a rough, hilly course, and won the match for his club, the Chevy Chase Golf club, by defeating his opponent on the eighteenth green. He has made some of the most difficult strokes ever played on the Chevy Chase links, and it is no unusual thing for him to walk from his home to the links, a distance of four or five miles. The judge attributes his fine physical condition to his indulgence in this sort of out-of-door sport.

Scarcity of Shad.

GEORGE M. BOWERS, chief of the fish commission, has very discouraging reports to make this year to the lovers of the toothsome shad. The work of collecting shad eggs for the purpose of stocking rivers and propagating this important food fish was seriously retarded this spring. The low temperature of the waters produced by the continued cold weather interfered with spawning and then the fishing season opened with tremendous onslaughts by fishermen. Mr. Bowers reports that instead of taking hundreds of millions of shad eggs, as the commission has been able to do in past years, the government will be lucky to obtain 40,000,000 eggs this year.

Only dwellers along the Atlantic coast appreciate to the full this splendid fish. The season begins early in Florida and works up along the coast, reaching its height when the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers are reached. The first shad in the market is a sure harbinger of spring, and is welcomed as joyfully as the spring flowers in the hills. With the coming of warm days the shad leave their winter haunts and seek the waters of the bays and rivers. Their destination is the shallow depths of the fresh water rivers, where their eggs will quickly ripen. The taking of the fish by millions in nets interferes with the run and the roe shad that have gotten through and reached the spawning beds have not produced because the temperature of the water has been so low.

The government considers the propagation of the shad so important that an annual appropriation of $250,000 is made for the collection of the shad eggs. Fishermen are paid $10 per million for the eggs, but the outlay this year will be very limited. The end of the season comes about May 20, and the prospect is that the government will have mighty few shad fry to plant in the coast rivers this year. The result of the scarcity will be felt three or four years from now.

Planked Shad of Washington.

IN Washington and at the river resorts round about the shad is met with in all its glory. This city is as famed for its planked shad as Philadelphia is for its catfish and waffles, Boston for its cod, or Chicago for its planked whitefish. To enjoy this delicacy at its best, planked shad should be eaten at one of the many resorts along the Potomac river. There the fish is planked in good old-fashioned style, in the open air, before a good hot wood fire. A shad weighing two or three pounds is split up the back, tacked to a two-inch oak plank and set up at an angle before the glowing hot wood coals.

A row of the fish dressed in this style is attended by a negro cook, usually a white-haired old servitor, who first began the practice of his art in the days before the war. He knows exactly the temperature to maintain, and how to keep the fish from scorching by liberal basting with melted butter. When the fish is cooked to a turn it is served in the open air on a table on the plank on which it is cooked. Accompanying it are fresh spring vegetables, particularly the luscious onion, and with a platter of hoe cakes, the latter the genuine southern article, cooked on a plank in front of the same fire as was the fish, and the rare, delicious but simple combination of water ground corn meal and water spread thin upon a hot plank.

The Secretary of Agriculture.

SINGLE men in the cabinet or in public life must pay the penalty of their condition. Dame Rumor is always busy with their names, and hints and predictions of marriages are many. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is one of the conspicuous victims of the persistent social gossips. Mr. Wilson lost his wife some 13 years ago, and it is doubtful if he has ever given a single thought to a remarriage. This does not prevent the periodical appearance of the newspaper paragraph stating that the secretary is about to marry a lady who is variously described as a school teacher in his own state of Iowa, a middle-aged clerk in his department, or a charming widow in society.

Mr. Wilson has long since given up the idea of suppressing this sort of gossip, and has resigned himself to the fate of being talked about, no matter how distasteful it is. The fact is, the secretary is too busy with the affairs of his department, and his mind is so engrossed with plans for the advancement of agriculture and the betterment of the condition of farmers, that he has little or no time to give to the lighter and more personal affairs of life. He is more diligent in seeking an effective enemy of the boll weevil or in the inoculation of sails to make them more productive than he is in the fair sex or in the quest of a wife.

Attorney General Moody, the bachelor member of the president's cabinet, is another target for Dame Rumor's shafts. Mr. Moody has been too busy all his life building up a reputation in the law to give much thought to seeking a partner for life. The accommodating social gossips of the city, however, have settled his fate for him, if they are to be believed, and have him engaged to marry a charming widow in Boston, who is conducting a very prosperous millinery establishment. They declare that the lady, highly educated and charming as she is, cares nothing for society, and is particularly indifferent to official society, and therefore has declined to become Mrs. Moody as long as Mr. Moody remains in the government service. When he retires, however, it is declared that one of his first moves will be to take the Boston widow into partnership for life and then enter upon the practice of law at the Hub.

When "Uncle Joe" Is Not Popular.

SPEAKER CANNON is not very popular with representatives of organizations and societies that are seeking national charters for the purpose of getting a quasi connection with the government. Mr. Cannon in his long experience as chairman of the house appropriations committee learned that one item of extravagance in government affairs is the printing of documents and reports that are of comparatively limited interest. He has been convinced that some of the most ornate specimens of the printers' and engravers' art that are turned out of the government printing office really should never have been authorized, and their costly production is a waste of public money.

The Daughters of the American Revolution secured a national charter in 1896 which provides that it shall make a report to the secretary of the Smithsonian institution, and that the secretary shall communicate to congress such portions of the report as may be of national interest. So far the secretary has assumed that the voluminous annual reports of this society are all of national interest, and they have been sent bodily to congress and printed at public expense. A review of the report makes it difficult to understand what national interest there can be in the major part of such a document.

Speaker Cannon, with this expensive report in view, has of late years persistently opposed the granting of national charters to any society unless the act contained a provision specifically declaring that the organization shall in no manner whatever become a charge upon the United States treasury. His insistence on this restriction has proven a damper to a number of societies seeking a charter at the hands of congress which would permit the publication of their reports by the government.

ATTRACTIVE TRIFLES.

Checked Silk Under Sheer Materials—Violet Trimmed Slippers.

Silk in large checks is used under plain voile or other sheer materials with good effect. An attractive French gown carrying out this idea is of the new white serge, which is very sheer, made over a foundation of bright red and white checked taffeta. The gown is trimmed with white fiber braid and pipings of the red silk.

Violet satin slippers with large clusters of violets on the instep certainly sound theatrical, but in reality they are very pretty worn with a mauve frock.

A belt with a watch pocket is something new in pique or linen. The belt is four or five inches wide and fastens with the usual oval gilt buckle. The pocket is at the left side, a little pointed flap buttoning down over it to hold the watch securely.

Among the new fabrics for coat and skirt suits is linen duck. All linen, from every country and clime, is fashionable, but exclusive dressers are wearing the linen with a dull finish.

Colored linen suits are very smart this summer with gobelin and porcelain blues in the lead.

Butchers' linen in white, which sells for 10 or 15 cents a yard, makes a most satisfactory summer frock.

White serge is smartest of all the wool materials for coat and skirt gowns. It is a serge we have never seen before, sheer and soft.

No woman need worry about the length of her coat. It is merely a matter of becomingness as far as fashion goes. Any length is right. A short woman should not wear a long coat unless it touches the hem of her gown.

The girl's frock pictured is of white batiste. English embroidery is inserted in the skirt in band effect, trimmed top and bottom with valenciennes lace. The baby waist is made with a double yoke—a small round one of embroidery and a larger one of batiste. Both are outlined with lace ruffles. The cravat and belt are of pale blue ribbon.

NOTES ON FOOTWEAR.

Oxford and Colonial Ties Are Smart Styles In Low Shoes.

It is harder to practice economy in the shoe branch of the summer wardrobe than in any other department. The short dresses worn on all occasions—morning, afternoon and evening—make their selection a serious matter and models built on the very best lasts are not cheap by any means.

In low shoes the fashionable styles are the oxford and colonial ties and the new pumps. The simple pumps with cuban heels, round toes trimmed with flat bows, is the smart low shoe for warm weather.

Low shoes in suede in dull finished kid and patent leather are much worn. Patent leather certainly does wear abominably, still while new it looks extremely well and sheds the dust much better than the dull leathers.

This season tan shoes and slippers are more worn than ever, of course with stockings to match. Some of the white canvas and kid pumps are laced with wide black ribbon. The effect is more striking than elegant.

All of the smart low shoes have the Spanish heels, the high French stilts being reserved for evening slippers. With the short skirts the moderately high heels are prettier than the common sense two lap ones.

Children's sandal slippers, the real old fashioned kind with ankle straps, are made with spring heels to suit the modern child.

Linen spats to match linen shoes are made to order by the shoemakers.

The dainty low shoe illustrated is of white linen. The vamp is elaborately embroidered with a conventional design in cotton thread. Through the eyelet holes are drawn wide linen tape laces.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

"Adios!" she gayly cried, as the "assembly" rang out, loud and clear, and waving their hands and raising their caps, the officers hastened to join their commands. "Adios, till we meet in Manila."

"Do you really think of going to the Philippines, Mrs. Garrison?" queried a much older looking, yet younger woman. "Why, we were told the general said that none of his staff would be allowed to take their wives."

"Yet there are others!" laughed Mrs. Garrison, waving a dainty handkerchief toward the troops now breaking into column of twos and slowly climbing the stage. "Who would want to go with that blessed old undertaker? Good-by—bon voyage, Geordie," she cried, blowing a kiss to the lieutenant at the head of the second troop, a youth who blushed and looked confused at the attention thereby centered upon him and who would fain have shaken his fist, rather than waved the one unoccupied hand in perfunctory reply. "When I go I'll choose a ship with a band and broad decks, not any such cramped old canal boat as the Portland."

"Oh! I thought perhaps your husband," began the lady, dubiously, but with a significant glance at the silent faces about her.

"Who? Frank Garrison? Heavens! I haven't known what it was to have a husband—since that poor dear boy went on staff duty," promptly answered the diminutive center of attraction, a merry peal of laughter ringing under the dingy archway of the long, long roof. "Why, the Portland has only one stateroom in it big enough for a bandbox, and of course the general has to have that, and there isn't a deck where one couple could turn a slow waltz. No, indeed! wait for the next flotilla, when our fellows go, bands and all. Then we'll see."

"But surely, Mrs. Garrison, we are told the war department has positively forbidden officer's wives from going on the transports"—again began her interrogator, a wistful look in her tired eyes. "I know I'd give anything to join Mr. Dutton."

"The war department has to take orders quite as often as it gives them, Mrs. Dutton. The thing is to know how to be of the order giving side. Oh, joy!" she suddenly cried. "Here are the Primes and Amy Lawrence—then the regiments must be coming! And there's Stanley Armstrong!"

Far up the westward street the distant roar of voices mingled with the swing and rhythm and crash of martial music. Dock policemen and soldiers on guard began boring a wide lane through the throng of people on the pier. A huge black transport ship lay moored along the opposite side to that on which the guns and troopers were embarked, and for hours bales, boxes and barrels had been swallowed up and stored in her capacious depths until now, over against the tables of the Red Cross, there lay behind a rope barrier, taut stretched and guarded by a line of sentries, an open space close under the side of the greater steamer and between the two landing stages, placed fore and aft. By this time the north tide of the broad pier was littered with the inevitable relics of open air lunching, and though busy hands had been at work and the tables had been cleared, and fresh white cloths were spread and everything on the tables began again to look fair and inviting, the good fairies themselves looked askance at their bestrewn surroundings. "Oh, if we could only move everything bodily over to the other side," wailed Madam President, as from her perch on a stack of Red Cross boxes she surveyed that coveted stretch of clean, unhampered flooring.

"And why not?" chirruped Mrs. Garrison, from a similar perch, a tier or two higher. "Here are men enough to move mountains. All we have to do is to say the word."

"Ah, but it isn't," replied the other, gazing wistfully about over the throng of faces, as though in search of some one sufficient in rank and authority to serve her purpose. "We plead in vain with the officer-of-the-guard. He says his orders are imperative—to allow no one to intrude on that space," and madam looked as though she would rather look anywhere than at the animated sprite above her.

"What nonsense!" shrilled Mrs. Garrison. "Here, Cherry," she called to a pretty girl, standing near the base of the pile, "give me my bag. I'm army woman enough to know that order referred only to the street crowd that sometimes works in on the pier and steals." The bag was duly passed up to her. She cast one swift glance over the heads of the crowd to where a handsome carriage was slowly working its way among the groups of prettily-dressed women and children—friends and relatives of members of the departing commands, in whose behalf, as though by special dispensation, the order excluding all but soldiers and the Red Cross had been modified. Already the lovely dark-eyed girl on the near side had waved her hand in greeting, responding to Mrs. Garrison's enthusiastic signals, but her companion, equally lovely, though of far different type, seemed preoccupied, perhaps unwilling to see, for her large, dark, thoughtful eyes were engaged with some object on the opposite side—not even with the distinguished looking soldier who sat facing her and talking quietly at the moment with Mr. Prime. There was a gleam of triumph in Mrs. Garrison's dancing eyes as she took out a flat notebook and pencil and dashed off a few lines in bold and vigorous strokes. Tearing out the page, she rapidly read it over, folded it and glanced imperiously about her. A cavalry sergeant, one of the home troop destined to remain at the Presidio, was leaning over the edge of the pier, hanging on to an iron ring and shouting some parting words to comrades on the upper deck, but her shrill soprano cut through the dull roar of deep, masculine voices and the tramp of feet on resounding woodwork.

"Sergeant!" she cried, with quick decision. "Take this over to the officer in command of that guard. Then bring a dozen men and move these two tables across the pier." The cavalryman glanced at the saucy little woman in the stunning costume, "took in" the gold crossed sabres, topped by a regimental number in brilliants that pinned her martial collar at the round, white throat, noted the ribbon and pin and badge of the Red Cross, and the symbol of the Eighth corps in red enamel and gold upon the breast of her jacket, and above all the ring of accustomed authority in her tone, and never hesitated a second. Springing to the pile of boxes he grasped the paper, respectfully raised his cap and bored his stalwart way across the pier. In three minutes he was back—half a dozen soldiers at his heels.

"Where'll you have 'em, ma'am—miss?" he asked, as the men grasped the supports and raised the nearmost table.

"Straight across and well over to the edge," she answered, in the same crisp tones of command. Then, with total and instant change of manner, "I suppose your tables should go first, Madam President," she smilingly said. "It shall be as you wish about the others."

And the Red Cross was vanquished.

"I declare," said an energetic official, a moment later, leaning back on her throne of lemon boxes and fanning herself vigorously, "for a whole hour I've been trying to move that officer's heart and convince him the order didn't apply to us. Now how did—she—do it?"

"The officer must be some old—some personal friend," hazarded the secretary, with a quick feminine comprehensive glance at the little lady now being lifted up to shake hands with the carriage folk, after being loaded with compliments and congratulations by the ladies of the two favored tables.

"Not at all," was the prompt reply. "He is a volunteer officer she never set eyes on before to-day. I would like to know what was on that paper."

BABY TIMBER WOLVES

FIERCE FATHER SOMETIMES DEVOURS HIS INFANTS.

Visit to Zoological Garden — Baby Wolves in an Upper Berth—Medicine Dropper and Nursing Bottle.

I was standing in front of the wolf dens in a big zoological garden, when the quiet voice of a keeper arrested my attention:

"Look out there, sir! That big timber wolf in the last cage is a devil; if you put your hand within reach, he'll have your fingers off before you know it. He killed and ate two of his own cubs, the other day, and since then, when a wolf in the next cage stuck a paw through the bars, that fellow chewed it off. That is the father of those cubs you've come for, and I guess they're all wolf; that is all that's left of them."

"All that's left of them," proved to be four; their amiable father had devoured two before he was removed. We went round to look at the babies, and found them lying all together in a nest in a corner of their den; just one bunch of gray fur. Their mother, an alert-looking creature, but not nearly so formidable as her mate, watched us anxiously as we looked her youngsters over. Then I went to attend to some other matters, and when I returned, the little wolves were all together in a box covered with wire netting and ready for their long railroad journey to my home in New Hampshire. Of course, the infants would have to be fed frequently en route, so the first thing to do was to get a supply of milk, with the necessary "dropper" and baby's bottle.

I was going by way of Boston, and my train started from the Grand Central station, New York, at 11 p. m. I reached Forty-second street at 10:55, too late to get anything but an upper berth, and started out on the platform. The watchful ticket puncher threw a glance of his eagle eye at the big box containing my wolves, but, as the netting was hidden beneath a cloth, he never suspected livestock. The size of the box, however, held his attention, and he remarked, rather severely: "You'll have to put that in your berth; there's no room for a box of that size in the aisle." A moment later I stepped on the train, just as it pulled out of the station. The porter was busy making up a berth, so I set my box down and waited. Waiting with me was a good-natured looking fellow with whom I exchanged a few words, and who happened to have the berth below my own. Presently the little captives, getting hungry, no doubt, began to scratch on the side of their box.

"Hello!" said the man. "What have you got there?"

"Hush!" I answered, putting my fingers to my lips. "Tomato plants."

"Ah! I thought so by the sound," he replied. "Well, as I have the berth below yours, I hope they won't grow through the side of the box before morning."

When the porter came, I let him take my bag and a few other traps. The box I handled myself, and swung it up into the berth, following as fast as I could, and keeping up a running fire of conversation with the porter, to drown the whines and scratchings of the babies, who were growing more hungry every moment. At last he was gone, and I "drew the drapery of my couch around me," without, however, lying down to pleasant dreams. The instant I took the cover from the box, the wolf puppies scrambled out, and fairly besieged me, whining with all their might. In their eagerness for food, two of them scrambled to the very edge of the berth, and I just saved them from tumbling over into the aisle by snatching them back by their tails. But, hungry as they were, they had no knowledge of either medicine-droppers or nursing bottles, and I had a warm time of it before I succeeded in pumping into my charges enough milk to last them until morning. In the excitement, I fear we made more noise than I had been aware of, and just as I was putting the cubs back into the box, the curtains were drawn apart, and a black face appeared.

"What's de trouble, suh? Ah you sick, suh?"

"No, just a little tired, that's all;" and as his eye rested on the face of one of the young wolves, which indiscreetly poked its nose over the edge of the box, I added. "Here's something for your trouble, and if I'm not disturbed again to-night, there'll be another for you in the morning."

"A' right, suh," and, showing ivory from ear to ear, he drew the curtains close together and disappeared down the dimly-lit aisle.

GOLF.

C. B. Morgan, who played as a partner with Miss Maude VanBoskerck, at Baltusrol, this week, in the mixed foursomes, is steadily improving his game.

Roger F. Murray has been doing some fine work in golf this season and he always returns low scores. He recently won a medal in the tournament at Paterson, for the lowest score.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, who made such a good showing on the Baltusrol Golf Club course, this week, has returned home. Her caddy udring the tournament was Marty O'Loughlin, the expert at the Plainfield Country Club.

Robert Abbott, of this city, a student at Yale, has been devoting considerable time this season to baseball, and his interest in golf has decreased somewhat. Upon his return from college he will probably take up the game of golf again.

Considerable interest is being shown in the approaching play for championship of the Plainfield Country Club. It is expected that there will be a large entry list of the best players in the club, including F. O. Reinhart. He made the round of the course this week with a very low score.

HAMBURG BELLE.

Filly Lead All the Way in Handicap.

Sydney Paget's handsome chestnut mare Hamburg Belle, winner of the Futurity Stakes in 1903, yesterday showed the old-time speed which made her famous two years ago. It was in the Coney Island Handicap, at the Sheepshead Bay track. She led from start to finish and beat a field of fast sprinters over the six-furlong course in 1.12 3-5.

Hamburg Belle was faster yesterday than she was at any time in her career. She picked up 124 pounds and showed her opponents the way to the finish at such a terrific slip that they all became leg-weary chasing her and were staggering from exhaustion in the homestretch. This great mare, which possessed more speed as a two-year-old than the mighty Beldame, did not mind the strain of racing and drew away from Roseben in the last furlong and beat him home by open daylight.

Thirteen horses were entered for the handicap and nearly every one of them was well backed. Hamburg Belle was always the favorite. She carried many thousands from the clubhouse contingent, who backed her at the good odds of 2 to 1.

ANOTHER BIG CROWD AT THE BAND CONCERT

BLOCKING OF STAND ENTRANCES CAUSES INCONVENIENCES.

Almost ideal weather and a fine programme of popular selections attracted another crowd of 2,000 people to the band concert last night. The grandstand was comfortably filled and the usual large number stood about the grounds. The soloist, Johnny Nestor, who gave four songs, two of them illustrated, and Louis Anderson, made distinct hits.

A great deal of inconvenience was caused intending partons of the grandstand last night by people standing in front of the entrances and refusing to vacate the choice places to let anyone in. The special marshals detailed to take care of these matters were too absorbed in the blare of brass to notice the trouble, and the concert fund lost numerous dimes in consequence. Chief Weiss was informed of the matter and effected a radical change that promises to be permanent. Hereafter the entrances to the stand will be kept clear, the officers having been given instructions to see to it.

Death of Mrs. Mary Singer.

Mrs. Mary Singer, aged 77 years, widow of Theodore Singer, died this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Montreville Knight, of 312 New street. She had been in feeble health for some time. Besides a daughter she leaves a son, who lives in California. The funeral services will be held from the home of Mrs. Knight Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Electricty for Chapel.

Marconnier chapel is to be wired next week, and on Sunday night, June 25, the building will be lighted by electricity. It is a much-needed improvement and will be greatly enjoyed by speakers and worshipers these hot nights. The next needed improvement is window screens to exclude mosquitoes and other bugs, attracted by the lights.

DEATH ENDS CASE THAT BAFFLED LOCAL DOCTORS

END CAME TO JUDSON BROWN AT 11 THIS MORNING.

Judson Brown, proprietor of the lunch wagon on East Second street, whose illness has puzzled the physicians at Muhlenberg Hospital for the past four weeks, died at the institution this morning, shortly after 11 o'clock. A brother, Newman Brown, from Chicago, reached his bedside before the end.

Brown boarded at 208 East Fifth street, and was taken ill on May 14. His case was diagnosed as sugar diabetes, accompanied by spinal meningitis. From the time he entered the hospital until he died, Brown remained in a semi-conscious condition, and his case was said by the physicians to be one of the most complex they had ever encountered.

Brown was an acrobatic performer before coming to Plainfield and played at the New York vaudeville houses. He is said to be a Mason, and members of the local lodges are interesting themselves in the matter.

Miss Van Eps Wins.

S. S. Swackhamer, counsel for Miss Mary L. Van Eps, received word from the District Court at Elizabeth yesterday to the effect that his client had won the action instituted against her by Horace Coddington, a Somerville lawyer, to recover a fee alleged to be due on the attempted collection of a claim. Coddington claimed that Miss Van Eps had hired him to collect $1,000 from a mortgagee in New York, and asked for $300 to repay him for time and money expended. Miss Van Eps' contention was that Coddington's fee was contingent upon his collecting the money, which he did not do.

FORMER ASSEMBLYMAN WEDS.

Joseph T. Hague, of Elizabeth, Makes Announcement of His Marriage.

Elizabeth, June 17—The fact has just come out here that former Assemblyman Joseph T. Hague, a young lawyer of Elizabeth, was wedded on May 25 last to Miss Anna L. Brynes, daughter of Michael Brynes, of 400 Westfield avenue, here, and who is a prominent building contractor in Union County.

The ceremony took place in New York city. Mr. and Mrs. Hague started last night on a wedding trip to South Jersey. The groom was one of the three Democratic Assemblymen from Union who were elected in 1903 by the big revolt of the Plainfield Republicans against the Elizabeth Republican machine.

Mr. Hague is an active member and one of the organizers of the Elizabeth Democratic Club and like-Benevolent Order of Elks. He is also the worshipful master of Essex Lodge, No. 49, F. and A. M.

TEMPLAR'S SWORD A GIFT

Brooklyn Knights' Present to Grand Commander Kirkner.

ELABORATE DESIGN.

Plainfielder an Honorary Member of Clinton Commandery which Gave the Token of Esteem—One of Many Gifts.

Jacob Kirkner, of West Eighth street, who by his election on May 9 last as Grand Commander, Knights Templar of New Jersey, was made the foremost member of the order in the State, has become the possessor of one of the handsomest Templar swords ever carried. It was presented his last week by Clinton Commandery, No. 14, of Brooklyn, without his receiving the slightest hint in advance as to why he had been called to their asiyum. The gift was made for no other purpose than to show the esteem the Brooklyn Knights have for him personally and their recognition of his devotion to Trinity Commandery, of this city, with which he has been connected thirty years.

The sword is made of the very best quality of steel, permitting it to be bent double, and is the handiwork of G. Braxmar & Co., of New York. The blade is beautifully etched with Templar emblems and is surmounted by an ivory hilt bearing the monogram "J. K.," surrounded by a wreath composed of various colors. On the reverse side is the badge of Trinity Commandery. The blade bears the inscription, "Presented to Right Eminent Sir Jacob Kirkner by Clinton Commandery, No. 14, K. T., May 24, 1905." The difference in dates is due to the fact that it was the intention of the donors to make the presentation earlier than they did.

The scabbard is of an elaborate design and is heavily gold plated. Near the top is a Templar cross composed of ten perfect garnets and significant emblems traverse the entire length. The whole affair represents the highest art in sword manufacture and excites favorable comment whenever shown. In his career as a Knight Templar, Mr. Kirkner has received many gifts which he prizes highly but none of them have the beauty or elaborateness of the last one.

The members of Clinton Commandery are not strangers to Plainfield as they exchange visits with Trinity Commandery every year. Their meeting was first brought about at the field day held in this city in 1879, when at the suggestion of Charles G. Little, of Sandford avenue, a member of Clinton, Mr. Kirkner, then eminent commander of Trinity, invited the Brooklynites to participate. They came with a large delegation and have been coming at different times ever since and a very warm feeling exists between the two. Shortly after the field day, Mr. Kirkner was made an honorary member of Clinton Commandery and Mr. Little became an honorary member of Trinity.

ELKS LODGE LOCATES A MISSING MEMBER

ELIZABETH COUNCILMAN FOUND AT LAST DOWN EAST.

Councilman Edward P. Mohr, the missing representative of the Sixth ward, of Elizabeth, who disappeared March 5 and who it was feared had met with foul play, has been located in Portland, Maine, through a circular letter sent out by Elizabeth lodge, No. 289, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He left Elizabeth without giving anyone the least hint of where he was going, after dissolving his business relations in the real estate office of E. P. Mohr & Company with Thomas A. Clark, and resigning as treasurer of Boudinot Council, Independent Order of Foresters.

As soon as it was known that Councilman Edward P. Mohr, who is a member of the Elizabeth Elks, had disappeared, the Elizabeth lodge mailed a descriptive circular to every lodge of Elks in the order. This contained a photo of Mr. Mohr, together with a minute description of him. One thousand lodges were thus notified.

As the result of this thorough search, the Elizabeth lodge received word Saturday from Portland, Me., that Brother Mohr had attended a regular session of the lodge June 14, and was in the best of health and spirits.

Thrown Out of Kensington Cafe, He Returns and Flings Missile Into Crowd About the Bar.

One of the white men who, with a sprinkling of colored men, filled the Kensington Hotel barroom at about 10:30 o'clock Saturday night, got into a fight with Eugene Britton, colored. Britton's head was laid open and he was put out.

"Ill get that ——— ———," said Britton as he left.

He went to Thompson's colored pool room on Park avenue and put one of the pool balls in his pocket. Then he returned to the saloon, stood deliberately in the doorway, and threw the ball into the crowd with all the speed he could put into it. John Sheppard, 25 years old, of Park avenue, was walking toward the door. The ball struck him over the left eye, and he went down and out. Britton turned and ran back to the pool room.

Dr. Zeglio, who was attending a meeting of the Watchung Spring Spring Water Company in the hotel parlor, was called in to look after Sheppard. He brought Sheppard around and took eight stitches in a deep, triangular cut that marked where the ball had hit. Then he carried the young man home in his automobile.

Patrolman Overbaugh found Britton playing pool in the Thompson place. He went to the station house quietly.

According to Britton's story, he was drinking by himself at the bar when a white man hit him from behind with a blackjack. He said he didn't know who hit him.

The police say that there must have been two fights. In the first one some other negro was thrown out, and the white man who hit Britton mistook him, probably, for the other negro. The cops are looking for Britton's assailant.

Before Justice Mosher this morning, Britton was held in $300 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury, under a charge of felonious assault. Not being able to procure bail Britton was committed to Elizabeth jail. He waived examination, through S. S. Swackhamer. The charge was made by the police. Sheppard was not in shape to come to court.

ESCAPED PRISONER FELLED BY NIGHTSTICK

DREW RAZOR WHEN CORNERED BY MARSHALS POPE AND DOOLEY.

Marshal Pope, of the borough police force, arrested Orrin and Morton Holmes, brothers, for disorderly conduct, Saturday night, and was escorting them to the lock-up when the latter suddenly struck him a stinging blow in the face. During his momentary confusion, both made an attempt to get away but only Morton succeeded. Orrin was placed in a cell and the plucky officer started back after the other offender, locating him at his home in the upper part of the row at Somerset and Race streets.

Special Marshal Dooley went with Pope and as the two entered, Morton drew a razor and made a vicious dash at them. He failed to notice Pope draw his nightstick and when it descended on his head the weapon dropped from his hand and he fell to the floor. The one crack was sufficient to take all the fight out of him and he was quickly landed at headquarters.

Morton was afterward released on $50 bail and Orrin on $10 to appear tonight.

BACK FROM CONVENTION.

District Deputy Vanderhoef Returns from Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. E. Vanderhoef, of Prospect place, have returned from Milwaukee, where Mr. Vanderhoef represented New Jersey at the session of the Supreme Conclave, Improved Order Heptasophs, at which nearly all the old officers were re-elected.

The various reports presented showed the order to be in a flourishing condition. Mr. Vanderhoef was instrumental in having Atlantic City selected for the next Supreme session in 1907.

Start the day right by drinking a cup of good coffee. If it's made from Neuman Brothers' Old Government Java or Java and Mocha, you may be sure it's all right.

POLITICS IN SOMERSET

Both Parties May Prefer New Candidate for State Senator.

OPPOSE THE SLATE

Objection Raised as to Senator Childs —Frelinghuysen Candidacy Meets With Objection from Leaders.

As Samuel S. Childs, the Democratic State Senator, has had only one term, and is looked upon as entitled to another term, and it is generally conceded that Joseph F. Frelinghuysen will probably be named again by the Republicans, there is a probability that the Senatorial fight in Somerset county in the fall will be very much like that of three years ago, so far as the candidates are concerned. And yet, there is a strong possibility that other men may be named by both parties—Nelson Y. Dungan by the Democrats, and Irving Hoagland by the Republicans. The reason why either party might depart from precedent is an interesting story.

Three years ago Childs was a candidate for the nomination for State Senator, but without explanation the delegation from Bernardsville withdrew his name and Nelson Y. Dungan, of this place, was nominated. There was all kinds of crimination and recrimination and charges of bad faith, and the party was threatened with a factional fight. To show his good faith and to keep the party organization intact Dungan withdrew and another convention was held to do what the previous convention failed to do. Childs was then nominated "according to Hoyle," and made a splendid campaign, and he was elected by a plurality of 312 votes.

There is a strong sentiment in different parts of Somerset county that Childs has had the honors of the place and he should not permit his name to go before the convention this year, but he should allow Dungan to be nominated for State Senator. Friends of Dungan say that three years ago, when he could have been elected with a greater majority than that received by Childs, the former County Prosecutor stepped aside in the interest of harmony, and he is justly entitled to recognition this time, and Childs should display the same spirit and step aside for him.

Major Nelson Y. Dungan, who gets his title of "Major" from the position he holds as Major of the First Battalion in the Second Regiment, is a man of forceful personality. He has lived in Somerset county since he was six years of age, and this town has been his home for more than twenty years. He served as county prosecutor from 1895 to 1900. His administration of the office won for him high praise, and in that five years he added to his reputation as a lawyer.

The former prosecutor has been a leader in the Democratic party for a number of years. Rarely has there been a Democratic convention held in Somerset county at which he has not been the chairman or had something timely to say. He has also been chairman of several State delegations to the State conventions, and he is in every way identified with the business interest of the county. Major Dungan is prominent in the Masonic order, a Mason of high degree, and is Past High Priest of the State Chapter of Royal Arch Masons. He is recognized as an officer of exceptional tactical ability in the National Guard and he is an expert shot, having qualified on the State range with some excellent scores.

It is but natural that Joseph S. Frelinghuysen should want to run again for State Senator. He was defeated by as mall margin, and having control of the county organization, as chairman of the Republican executive committee, it is believed he can have the nomination in the fall, if he wants it. That he wants it is a foregone conclusion. That he would also prefer to run against Childs rather than Dungan is also true, for Major Dungan, because of his popularity throughout the county, is looked upon as a much stronger man than Childs.

There are some things within his own organization which may prevent Frelinghuysen from controlling the county convention as he would like to do. James L. Griggs, a local lawyer, who had just completed his term as county prosecutor, wanted another term. He made a vigorous fight for reappointment, but Frelinghuysen favored the appointment of J. F. Reger, and won his fight. As a result of Reger's appointment Griggs and his friends are none too warm in their support of Chairman Frelinghuysen, and should he be nominated again, it is possible they might sulk secretly, although it is not believed that they would come out openly and oppose Frelinghuysen, for Griggs knows well that it is better to stick by the organization at all

Brooklyn Wife Causes Arrest of Charles Olsen and Successor.

HELD FOR COURT.

Olsen in Jail and Wife No. 2 Released on Her Recognizance—He Tells His Tale.

About four months ago Mr. and Mrs. Charles Olsen, who said they came from Far Rockaway, rented a house on Mountain avenue, Scotch Plains, and settled down to housekeeping. They were devoted to one another to all appearances, and though they made few friends the neighbors regarded them as a model couple and respected them accordingly. On Saturday a woman, who said she was Mrs. Charles Olsen, came out from Brooklyn with a detective. She said she was the real Mrs. Olsen and that the other woman had no legal or moral right to the name.

After sleuthing around the detective located the Olsen home on Mountain avenue. Then he and the woman went to Elizabeth and secured a warrant for the arrest of the couple from Justice Kelly. Constable Walpole, of Scotch Plains, served it.

Olsen was held in $500 bail for the Grand Jury. He was unable to secure a bondsman, and was locked up. The woman was released on her own recognizance.

Olsen is said to have acknowledged the truth of the complainant's allegations. He says her temper caused the breaking-up of their home in Brooklyn. He met the other woman after leaving his wife, he said, and a mutual affection sprang up between them. He said he had merely tried to forget the old life and start all over again. The Mrs. Olsen of Scotch Plains has a four-months' old infant.

Olsen's friends have interested themselves in his case, and an effort is being made to secure a bondsman. The Brooklyn wife has a ten years' old child.

FREEDOM CASTLE AT DIVINE SERVICE

G.E. MEMBERS AT DEPARTED BROTHERS GRAVES.

For the first time in the history of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, the members observed Memorial Day yesterday, taking this opportunity to visit Hillside Cemetery during the afternoon, accompanied by a detachment of the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, where the memorial service of the order was conducted at the graves of the late members, Frank Bowman and Vincent Gulick. Horace J. Martin was in charge of the services, assisted by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan. Thirty-eight Knights attended. After the services the Knights adjourned to the home of Mr. Martin, on Marion avenue, and were served with refreshments, which were very acceptable, owing to the extreme heat.

Last night about sixty Knights attended divine services at the First Baptist church, where the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. H. Chambliss, delivered an appropriate sermon for the occasion. His subject was "Christian Manliness," and after referring to the noble and worthy objects of the order and expressing his pleasure regarding the fact that it was founded on Christian principles, and wishing it a continuance of success, he delivered his regular sermon, which was enjoyed by all.

During the service there was special music by the choir, including several anthems and a solo by William Holmes.

A Freakish Shower.

The business part of the city was treated to a heavy downpour of rain at 11:15, last night. It lasted about ten minutes and in that time the streets were flooded. Strangely enough, only a few drops fell in the outlying sections.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS' MEMORIAL OBSERVANCE

CRESCENT COMPANY AND VISITING DELEGATES DECORATE GRAVES.

With a greater number of men participating than ever before, Pythian memorial day was fittingly celebrated by Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank, yesterday. Fully 200 members of the order were in line, delegations coming to Plainfield from Brooklyn and Port Chester, N. Y.; Jersey City and Newark. Colonel P. Frank Shanley and staff, of Jersey City, were among the distinguished visitors.

Services were conducted over the Pythian dead in the North Plainfield and the Plainfield avenue cemeteries. At the former, Captain John Hall was in charge and was assisted by Joseph C. Blimm, Oliver R. Pearson, Jr., David Bowden and Charles McGinley. At the other, Captain Hale, of Rathbone Company, Brooklyn, officiated. The Knights marched to and from the cemeteries and with the full Independent Fife and Drum Corps in the lead, the large body of uniformed men presented a handsome appearance.

Following the memorial work, the visitors were entertained at a sumptuous supper served at Timbo's. This is the first time in many years that this part of the day's programme did not take place at Scotch Plains, the change being made because of the large number of men to transport each way. The graves at that place were decorated in the morning by a special delegation.

CHILDREN'S DAY EXERCISES.

At Seventh-Day Baptist Church on Saturday.

Children's Day exericses were held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church on Saturday morning in place of the regular services. Miss Green, president of the Christian Endeavor Society, was in charge. The decorations consisting of potted plants and other flowers of the season, adorned the platform.

The programme comprised an organ involuntary by Miss Jessie Utter, a processional during which the school marched into the church in a body singing a hymn. There was an anthem by the chrous choir, followed with a recitation by Hannah Shaw, a Children's Day anthem by the primary department, recitation by John Cottrell, Jr. Mrs. John Cottrell sang a solo during the offertory and the pastor, Rev. George B. Shaw, conducted a Bible reading in place of the sermon, and made a few remarks. An anthem by the choir concluded the services.

Frank Stover Buried.

The funeral services of Frank Stover, formerly of this city, but late of New York, were held this morning at 10 o'clock from Grace church. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

The judges were J. Wesley Johnson, W. F. Williams and W. A. Coddington, of this city, and Dr. Voorhees, of Somerville.

HUSBAND AND WIFE SUE GILL ESTATE

NOT REMEMBERED IN WILL AND WANT MONEY FOR SERVICES.

The only case of interest to Plainfield in the Union County Court, today, is that of Mr. and Mrs. Armitage D. Oakley against John P. Emmons, executor of the Estate of Mrs. Ellen Gill, deceased. The plaintiffs are represented by W. S. Angleman, Esq., and Isaac P. Runyon is counsel for the executor.

The suit is brought to recover for services performed by the plaintiffs for Mrs. Gill in January, 1904. According to the will of Mrs. Gill, Mr. and Mrs. Oakley were not remembered, it being understood that they would be. The case will probably take all day.

Accident on Fifth Street.

While Frank Schuck, Jr., was riding his wheel along East Fifth street, toward Richmond street, this morning, he was run into by a young man named Brokaw, who was driving a horse in the opposite direction and on the wrong side of the street. The confusion in passing was made worse by a trolley car which was turning the corner at Richmond and Fifth streets. Schuck escaped injuries, but his wheel was badly damaged.

Women's Tennis Singles.

There was continuation of play at tennis in the women's handicap singles at the Plainfield Country Club this morning. Miss Elsie Burke beat Mrs. George S. Ring, 6—3, 7—9, 6—4, and Miss Adelaide G. Ball beat Miss Grace Burke, 7—5, 6—4. The finals will be played in a day or two between Miss Elsie Burke and Miss Ball.

PLAINFIELD'S WATERLOO

After Ten Successive Victories Daabsters Meet Defeat.

COLORED TEAM WINS.

Bill Beck in Distress—Booker Does the Trick for Philadelphia Giants.

Once in a while the expected happens. Everybody knew that the winning streak couldn't last forever, and in strict accordance with the law of averages or some other consarned principle it was busted by those Philadelphia Giants Saturday afternoon. 11 to 6, too. Tough; but bearable. Ten goes without a flunk is not any considerable to the bad, and it was a deserving bunch of athletes that plugged the going. Charlie Dixon wasn't there to see the plugging; he was off on a trip. Fate is kind to Charlie, yes.

What happened to us embraced a thick wad of woe for W. Beck, the grocery boy wonder, and a glittering bunch of unctuous satisfaction for Mistah Bowman, his hated rival. Surrounded by an air of grim determination, those Giants fell on our William in a body and cocked it to him something cruel. They plugged his delivery for fourteen good and sufficient plunks, including a homer, three triples and two doubles, earning seven of their marks by the honest sweat of their swatpoles. This looks bad for Bill, but there was a sneaking suspicion among the assembled experts that the Giant gents would have slugged anybody in the flinging business. They wiggled their sticks like Demon Batsmen for a fact.

As for the Hon. Mistah Bowman, he had the Mysterious Mr. Snuffles beat a mile for seven eventful innings. Our heroes couldn't tumble to him. Up to the eighth they landed on him for only three clips. Several times a goodly swat would have meant a run, but that swat was not. In the eighth our devoted band rallied in great shape, but though they tore away from the whitewash man in inspiring order, that pluck-the-victory-from-the-jaws-of-defeat act was not for theirs.

All these things were accomplished to sweet and tuneful accompaniment from soft-toned colored brethren who filled the rightfield bleachers. Another such victory for a tinted team hereabouts will surely result in apoplexy and joyful death among dark hued experts.

Among the other exhibits was Frederick Douglas Abraham Lincoln Monroe, chief coacher and gentle humorist. Munny talked freely. He also played third base and biffed the ball on the nose. All of which he did up to expectations. Munny recently struck Manager Slichter for a raise. Slick ought to have handed out without being asked.

Another interesting feature. J. O'Neill, late of the Orange A. C., appeared in the late P. Lamar's boots back of the bat. What he did included some passable work, a meritorious attempt at a foul, and one bum chuck to second. Jack looks like an earnest youth, and we saw nothing to raise misgivings as to his

NEW JUDGE FOR APPEALS COURT

GOVERNOR TO APPOINT AT ONCE AS TRIBUNAL MEET NEXT TUESDAY.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, June 15—The attention of Governor Stokes was drawn to the fact yesterday afternoon that the Court of Errors and Appeals and the Court of Pardons would meet for the June term on next Tuesday, and he was asked if he had as yet made up his mind whom he would appoint as judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals to succeed Judge Peter Van Voorhees, who resigned some time ago.

"I must take that matter up right away," was the Governor's reply, but further than that he had nothing to say on the subject. He was also asked when he would appoint the commission to investigate the subject of limiting and taxing franchises as provided by the substitute for the Colby bill, and he replied that he intended to dispose of that matter too before long.

The Governor has now in his possession and unacted upon fourteen of the bills left in his hands when the Legislature adjourned. Among these is the general appropriation bill, but he may take his time in disposing of that, as it does not go into effect until November 1 next. Another of the fourteen is the Duff bill for bonding the Jersey City water works, but this, in all probability, will not be signed, as the attorney-general is of the opinion that the measure is unconstitutional.

The Governor has not as yet decided what he will do with the Trading Stamp bill, introduced by Assemblyman Layden, of Passaic. This provides that trading stamps shall have upon their face a cash value, at which they may be redeemed, and is advocated by local merchants and tradesmen in all parts of the State.

A question has been raised, however, that the bill conflicts with a federal statute on the subject, and it may not, for that reason, be approved. There is doubt, also, as to what will be the ultimate fate of the bill which creates a new circuit judge, as no appropriation was made for his salary, and the measure which makes the salary of superintendents of county schools $2,000 to be paid by the State.

Speaker John Boyd Avis, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senator in Gloucester, spoke to the newspaper men here yesterday of the "Colby platform," so called. He had always been in favor of conditionally limiting franchises, the Speaker said, but his idea of limited franchise was that the franchises of all corporations should be periodically adjusted by the municipalities granting them. He thought that something along the lines of the Massachusetts law was good, as it provided that corporations should retain their charters on good behavior.

The Speaker said he did not believe the people of South Jersey would accept that portion of the Colby platform which calls for the equal taxation of the main stem of railroads, because that section of the State derived a larger revenue from the present system of taxing railroad property.

G. A. R. PARADE ORDERS.

Trenton Companies Will Head Procession During Encampment.

Official orders for the parade in connection with the State G. A. R. encampment at Trenton next week were issued Thursday by Major Fred Gilkyson, chief of staff. The Trenton companies of the National Guard will head the procession.

The G. A. R. veterans will be next in line, then the Sons of Veterans, Spanish-American War Veterans and other societies. There will be four bands and several drum corps in the parade. The parade will start at 2 p. m.

The first instalment of the military exhibit, which will be one of the features of the encampment, has arrived at the State House. One of the pieces is an old brass cannon captured from Spain during the siege of Havana in 1763. This, with other cannon captured during the Revolutionary and other wars, will be mounted on the plaza in front of the capitol.

Another interesting exhibit is a magnificent old Mexican saddle with engraved silver mountings and elaborate decorations of woven grasses. It was presented by a high naval officer to Governor Alden, to be turned over to the Jerseyman who most distinguished himself in the Civil War. The impossibility of the Governor making such a designation is obvious, and the saddle is still the State's property. It was unearthed at the State arsenal, but the name of the donor is lost. The old boxes from which drafts were made in the Civil War have also been taken to the State House. They resemble on a large scale the boxes from which juries are drawn.

OCEAN GROVE'S SEASON

President Roosevelt, Governor Stokes and Others to Speak.

CAMP MEETING, AUG. 19

More High Concerts This Year Than Usual — Choruses Have Over 1,000 Voices.

Asbury Park, June 14—The programme for the season, so far completed, was announced today. The Ocean Grove Festival orchestra will consist of sixty-five players. They are due here by June 28.

The first rehearsal of the Ocean Grove Festival chorus will be held in Association Hall Friday evening, June 23. Thereafter there will be two or three rehearsals a week. Tali Esaen Morgan contemplates the season to organize a branch of the chorus in Asbury Park.

There will not be as many oratorio performances this season as last, but more high class miscellaneous concerts. Beside the "Elijah" and the "Messiah" two of the standard works which are demanded by the public every year, there will be given such work as Stainer's "Crucifixion," "The Nativity," by Geibel and "Clarice of Ebenstein," by Rheinberger. These works take only one-half of an evening's programme and the combination with a miscellaneous concert will undoubtedly prove highly successful. The New York Festival chorus of 500 voices will join the Ocean Grove chorus in singing the "Messiah" and the "Elijah." The Philadelphia chorus will join the Ocean Grove chorus in singing at a great concert to be given on the evening of July 22.

Frederick Charles Freemantel will again be Mr Morgan's assistant in the choral work and Julian Walker will assist him with the orchestra. On account if the injury to Miss Cecelia Bradford's arm, her place as first violinist will be taken this year by Johann Grolle, of the Philadelphia orchestra.

Prof. J. H. von Hardoff will be the organist and the pianists will be Alice Walter Bates ,Louis Virginia Moore, Cornelia Fitzgerald and Edith Wynne Morgan. Monroe Brown has been re-engaged as organ and piano tuner Yatman's Meetings.

Yatman's Young People's meetings will begin on the morning of June 25. Georgia and Ada Park will be the cornet soloists and Ray Fitzgerald and Cecelia Bradford the violin soloists. It is expected that the temple orchestra will number about fifteen regular players. Belle Greene will be the pianist.

Dr. Munhall will again have charge of teh Bible class, while the intermediate department will be in charge of Joseph Hudson, who met with such great success last year, and the primary department will be in charge of Mrs. W. H. Skirm.

The programme from June 25 to September 10 is as follows:

Young People's meetings—Every morning at 9 o'clock, from June 25 to September 3 in the temple under the leadership of Rev. C. H. Yatman.

The Philadelphia Festival chorus will come to Ocean Grove by special train on Saturday, July 22. The Philadelphia chorus will sing with the Ocean Grove chorus at the concert to be given Saturday evening, July 22, and will participate in the Children's Day exercises on the 23d.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM MAYBE MUCH CHANGED

COMMISSIONER GETTING OPINIONS FROM LAWYERS OF THE STATE.

The commission appointed by Governor Stokes to consider and report on changes in the judicial system of New Jersey, consisting of ex-Governors John W. Griggs and Franklin Murphy, ex-Supreme Court Justice Bennet Van Syckel, Charles L. Corbin, of Jersey City, and John R. Hardin, of Newark, has sent out queries to lawyers and others in the State with the request for brief replies.

The principal questions are:

"First—Are you in favor of an independent court of last resort, and how many judges should this court contain? Should this court be constituted as an appelate division of a Supreme Court, the other divisions of which would be the law division and chancery division?

"Second—Are you in favor of uniting the Supreme Court and the Court of Chancery as one court, with one set of judges, part of whom shall be assigned to the law division to hear law cases, with all the powers now exercised by the Supreme Court, and others assigned to the chancery division, with the powers now vested in the Court of Chancery; the law procedure and practice and the equity procedure and practice being retained substantially as it now exists?"

The purpose of such a change beand expense where a suit is commenced on the law side of the court, when it includes a subject of equitable jurisdiction and vica versa; and to enable the court more readily to transfer the case to the proper jurisdiction, to be there conducted in accordance with the appropriate procedure. This question is based on the assumption that the amendment will be so framed as to practically preserve both the law and equity jurisdiction to be exercised separately with the well understood powers each court, when the action is exclusively legal or equitable.

ASBURY PARK'S WEEK.

Baby Parade, Firemen's Festival, Masque Fete and Water Carnival.

Asbury Park, June 17—Every entry in the Asbury Park baby parade, which will be held August 31, will receive a souvenir pen. The design, as selected by the committee, represents a seashell, with the legend "Asbury Park Baby Parade" on the margin. In the centre is a sunrise and a miniature baby floating in the waves. At the bottom of the head piece is the date, 1905. The pins will be of silver and gold plate. It has been decided also to offer a fourth prize in each division. It will be a silver cup with handles, resembling a loving cup.

Claude V. Guerin will be grand marshal of the parade. He will select his marshals, captains and aides early next month. The judges will also be named at a later date by the awards committee. No distinct plan of the march has yet been outlined by the committee, although it is likely that the parade will revert to the original idea of a continuous route from the Auditorium down Ocean avenue and return.

On the night previous to the parade the masque fete will take place.

AIDES-DE-CAMP FOR GOVERNOR.

Mr. Stokes Names Captains Kramer and Margerum and Col. Bryant.

Trenton, June 17 — Governor Stokes has announced three appointments to his personal staff: They were Captain Mahlon R. Margerum, of his city, of the Second Brigade staff; Lieutenant-Colonel Lewis T. Bryant, Atlantic City, assistant inspector-general, and Captain Harry C. Kramer, Camden, adjutant of the Third Regiment. These are in addition to Colonel Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset County, who was appointed by Governor Stokes as his personal aide soon after the inauguration. The new appointees will rank as aide-de-camp by detail.

This does not complete the staff, and the Governor said he would name the other members in a short time.

State Tax Board on Bank Stock.

Major Carl Lentz, president of the State Board of Taxation, made public yesterday a letter which announces his opinion on the question raised in connection with the assessing of bank stock under the Buck bank stock law passed by the last Legislature. The letter was written in answer to an inquiry from J. B. Grier, president of the Board of Assessors of Salem, about the assessing of National Bank stock. It was as follows: "I acknowledge receipt of your letter making inquiry about the assessment of National Bank stock. The only change, if any, in the law relative to the assessment of National bank stock would be made by the ac tintroduced by Mr. Buck, copy of which I enclose. In my judgment, this does not change the valuation of bank stock from what it was heretofore. However, you should consult counsel on this subject, and act according to his advice."

Mrs. Powlison, from out of town, is the guest of Mrs. Davidge, of Rockview avenue.

Who will donate a sum sufficient to allow the City Union of King's Daughters to install a telephone at the baby camp on the mountainside? This institution is doing a good work and deserves general support.

Party leaders are enraged over Everett Colby's platform for the State senatorial nomination in Essex county and a disruption is probable. Any political body that cannot accept his platform, limited term franchises and equal taxation, is dishonest and should be driven from power. If Colby is the kind of fighter that Philadelphia' mayor seems to be, his battle will do a lot of good in New Jersey even if he doesn't land the coveted office.

POLITICS IN SOMERSET CO.

times.

Then there is L. A. Thompson, former State Senator, who wust be reckoned with. For a number of years Thompson was the recognized "boss" of Somerset county. His will was close to being law. Then Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, became State Senator, and the North Plainfielders did not take to some of the policies of the Republican party as advocated by the "county end" of it, and there was factional discord and a bitter fight that ultimately extinguished the Plainfiel diawyer, and Democrats profited by electing some of the county offices.

Irving Hoagland, who has had one term in the Assembly, has been mentioned as a possible nominee for State Senator. The objection to him, however, has been that he is not as thoroughly a resident of Somerset county as he might be. While his home is in the county, his place of business is in New Brunswick, and it is only of late years that he has been identified with the politics of Somerset county. He is a young man, ambitious, a lawyer of ability, and well liked where he is known. His plurality of 858 is a proof of his personality.

Somerset county is generally considered debatable ground. This is particularly true on "off years" when there is no Congressional or National ticket to increase the interest and bring out the vote. In 1904 Samuel Swackhamer was elected to the Assembly by aplurality of 688. The Democrats believe that on account of the dissatisfaction existing in the Republican ranks due to the fight over the appointment of the prosecutor, the probable indifference of former Senator Thompson and his followers, and the jealousy of the North Plainfield crowd, the Democrats should have a fair chance to win the election.

From what can be learned it is not expected that Major Dungan will make a fight against Senator Childs for the nomination. The friends of Dungan feel that Childs should display his gratitude to Dungan for his generosity three years ago by withdrawing and allowing him to have a clear field. It is not believed, however, that Childs will do this, and the development may be such between this and the time for the holding of the convention that the friends of Dungan will make a fight for the delegates, and if they do make an active canvass it is probable that they will control the convention. In that event, there would be nothing left for Childs but to accept the situation and retire gracefully.—Newark Call.

HUNDREDS DIE IN CAMP

Plague is Devastating Czar Nicholas's 56,000 Troops,

JAPS FORCE FIGHT.

Oyama is Pressing the Russians Hard — Praying for Peace Now.

A dispatch to the New York Evening Journal dated at London says the Russians in Harbin are dying at the rate of 100 a day and that cholera and dysentery are raging and the situation is rapidly growing beyond control. There are now 56,000 sick and wounded soldiers in Harbin and more are being brought in daily. Eighteen isolation hospitals have been constructed outside the city, all of which are overcrowded. Russian officers and men are thoroughly disheartened, despite the optimistic reports from St. Petersburg, and peace is their only hope.

A cable from Tokio declares that Field Marshal Oyama is pushing his army toward a general engagement, driving the Russian cavalry outposts before him in confusion. In the second rush upon the Russian position the Japanese line extended ten miles, the whole force following the railroad in is general direction between the Cheyang Range on the eas and the Heresu River on the west.

Along the four main roads running parallel with the railway the Japanese columns, three on each road, advanced. They met with the hardest fighting to the exterme left, where General Misthenko, with 5,000 cavalry and twenty guns, met the Japanese, but this force was finally routed and retired in great confusion.

TIMES' GREAT DAY.

Martine Speaks on Behalf of Plainfield Papers.

The opening of the Elizabeth Times Publishing Company's new building at Elizabeth on Saturday, was an enjoyable affair. The auspicious event was marked by a number of speeches, including one by James E. Martine, of "Cedar Brook Farm," who spoke in behalf of the Plainfield papers.

Other speakers included John Moody, Rev. Dr. J. R. Atkinson, Joseph McManus, James C. Connolly and N. C. Barton. In addition to the addresses in which the enterprise of The Times Publishing Company was praised and the new building favorably commented upon, there was a luncheon which was not the least of the pleasant features. The guests were all permitted to inspect the building afterward.

Jimmie Montross, who is at the hospital under treatment for typhoid fever, is improving.

Mrs. J. H. Van Winkle, Sr., of Duer street, is entertaining her niece, Miss Dollie Vanderbilt, of Atlantic Highlands.

MORGAN'S GOOD SCORE

Wins First Honors for Golf Committee Cup at Country Club.

THE DETAILED SCORE.

Miss Goddard First in Clock Golf Competition—Two Contests at the Park Club.

The weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, a mixed foursome, first play for the boys' championship and clock golf competition for women were the events at the Plainfield Country Club, on Saturday, and while the entry lists were not large in any one event, the results were most satisfactory and low scores were the rule. Despite the intense heat there was a good breeze blowing across the course and the players did not mind the high temperature. Others found the clubhouse a delightfully cool place to spend the afternoon, and in the evening many enjoyed the music and dancing.

For the Golf Committee cup, C. B. Morgan won first honors with the low net score of 73, while Arthur Murphy and E. A. Criukshank finished second and third respectively with net scores of 76 and 77. The best scores returned in this competition were as follows:

C. B. Morgan, 79, 6—73; Arthur Murphy, 84, 8—76; E. A. Cruikshank, 94, 17—77; E. B. Shoemaker, 82, 4—78; C. E. Halsted, 85, 6—79; A. E. Barclay, 96, 17—79.

There were ten couples entered for the mixed foursome, but only eight completed and posted their scores. Miss Maud VanBoskerck, who made such a showing at Baltusrol, last week, and A. G. Henderson, won with a net score of 83. The scores were as follows:

Miss Maud VanBoskerck and A. G. Henderson, 98, 15—83; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin D. Rae, 107, 19—88; Mrs. Walter Gaston and C. B. Morgan, 100, 9—91; Miss Daisy Elsberg and George F. Schoonmaker, 103, 12—91; Miss Marjorie Fleming and Willard Wadsworth, 106, 14—92; Mr. and Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, 93, 1—92; Miss Margaret Goddard and W. L. Glenney, 96, 3—93; Miss Adelaide Ball and Dr. F. C. Ard, 112, 11—101.

Six couples started in the initial play for the boys' championship, the prize being the Oshkosh cup. The result was as follows:

Gordon Stewart won from R. H. Depew, Jr., by default; Ogden Rogers beat George Endicott, 5 up and 4 to play; Ralph Hallock beat William Edwin Brown, 2 up and 1 to play, and W. T. Glenney beat Murray Rushmore, 6 up and 5 to play.

Miss Margaret Goddard won the clock golf competition for women with a score of 21. The other scores were as follows:

Miss Anne Murphy, 22; Mrs. E. E. Iremonger, 23; Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, 23; Miss Martha Robert, 23; Miss Adelaide G. Ball, 24; Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, 25; Miss Margaret Hayes, 28.

Some very good scores were returned for the President's and Park Golf Club trophies at the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon. Reuben Knox, with a net score of 75, won first honors for the handicap cup. Lester W. Hallock finished second and Alex. Gilbert third. For the scratch cup Lester Hallock finished first, Reuben Knox second and Raymond D. Carroll third. The best scores posted were as follows:

Reuben Knox, 97, 22—75; Lester W. Hallock, 93, 16—77; Alex. Gilbert, 104, 22—82; Walter C. McNaughton, 110, 24—86; R. E. Hallock, 100, 13—87; Charles A. Reed, 103, 12—91; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 107, 13—94; J. L. Watson, 119, 25—94; W. W. Howland, 108, 14—94; George T. Rogers, 117, 23—94; Samuel Townsend, 117, 20—97; Rev. J. O. McKelvey, 111, 13—98; Raymond D. Carroll, 99, 1—98; R. D. Rice, 111, 12—99.

ability to fill Pierre's footgear. Welcome, Jack.

Things began with the tinkle of the gong. One out, Hill singled to center, and loped in on Munny's three-sacker to the same place. Munny was nipped at the plate on a fake chuck to second and Moore foul fled to Cregan.

In the third, the round thing hummed. Booker, first up, smashed a three-bagger to center, and came in on Grant's single. Hill dittoed, and Grant went on. He was forced at third by Munny, who roosted safe on fielder's choice. Johnson ripped off a two-bagger, Munny and Hill scoring. Moore foul flied, but McClellan banged one to center, scoring Johnson. White made the third out with a left field fly.

Another one in the fourth, with two out, on Leonard's fumble of Grant's plunk, O'Neill's bum throw to second and Beck's feeble block of Hill's whack. Munny flied out.

Three more in the next, thus: Johnson hit safe to left, Moore sacrificed him along, and McClellan hit him in with a two-bagger. Bowman smashed one over Cregan's head for a beaut homer, scoring McClellan ahead of him.

Bill Beck came in waving the distress signal, but Manager Daab told Bill he still had faith in him. The grandstand gave Bill a great bunch of encouraging hands. Then Bill went up to the bat and struck out. Very tough.

Two more in the next, and with two out, thanks to a bum error on Mr. Kiernan's part. Monroe hit to Kiernan and the gent at shortstop tried to pick the ball up with his feet. Munny stole second and Johnson took the vacated bag as a gift. Thereupon comes Mr. Moore with a three-bagger. McClellan popped out and Mr. Kiernan went behind the grandstand and kicked himself.

After that, nix for the demon batsmen, and for us a few in the eighth, as afore touched upon. Cosgrave singled to center and went to third on Oldring's biff—his third; 'twere a great day for Rube—in the same place. Connolly toddled. Then loometh Mr. Cregan very large on the horizon with a two-base belt to center that sent everybody home. Leonard died, short to first. Driscoll walked. O'Neill plunked one to Munny, and Munny chucked to second to head off Dave. It arrove too late, and the sacks sagged beneath waiting and hopeful athletes. Intense excitement reigned as Bill the Wonder stepped up, but the best Bill could do was a long fly, Cregan scoring on the throw in. Kiernan made the third out, short to first.

In the ninth, one out, Oldring was punched on the funny bone; he stole second and loped in on Connolly's peach welt to left for three sacks. Con squeezed in like greased lightning on Pete Cregan's plunk to third. He took the final end of the trip on his tummy, ripping thereby his pantties from knee to hock, swallowing a lot of dust and biting a piece from one of Booker's spikes. It was a great dive. Leonard landed on White's error, and Driscoll dumped a Texas leaguer in right, but O'Neill popped out. Finis, whipped but undaunted.

Fragments of the fray.

NEGRO'S EDUCATION, MISSIONARY'S TOPIC

REV. DR. COOPER'S TALK AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

An able talk on the colored people of the south, their condition and progress along educational lines, was given at the Congregational church, yesterday morning, by Rev. Dr. J. W. Cooper, secretary for the American Missionary Association, of that church. Dr. Cooper was formerly pastor of a large Congregational church in Connecticut, but he has made a study of the colored race and for two years past has been devoting his time and attention to this work.

He referred to the colored people as being of one common brotherhood with the white people and said that color should be no barrier to the proper education and advancement of the race. He referred to the fact that when it is considered that the black man originally came from Africa and that for 250 years he was in slavery, it is no wonder that he is no further advanced. He said that his environments have until now been of the worst.

He thought the white people were expecting too much from the black man in the past, but not until now could he be expected to show the results of time and money spent in his education. Although some people do not favor the negro colleges in the south, he cited two where there are 1,500 students and of this number only 150 are preparing for the various professions. The others are preparing themselves to follow the ordinary pursuits of life and this, the speaker said, would mean a great deal for the future of the south.

Last night Dr. Cooper again occupied the pulpit at this church and gave an address along the lines of general mission work.

Part of the New Law Bearing on Wrongful Acts.

LIMIT OF SPEED.

What Automobilists Must Do and Must Refrain From Doing in New Jersey.

Every resident of the State who is the owner of a motor vehicle and every non-resident owner whose motor vehicle shall be driven in this State, must file in the office of the Secretary of State, a declaration duly verified that such owner is competent to drive the motor vehicle for which application for license is made, and a written statement containing the name and address of such owner together with a brief description of the character of such motor vehicle, including the name of the maker and the manufacturer's number of the motor vehicle, if number there be, and the rated horse-power of the motor vehicle, and shall pay to the Secretary of State a registration fee of $1 for each motor vehicle. The Secretary of State shall issue for each motor vehicle so registered a certificate properly numbered, stating that such motor vehicle is registered in accordance with this section, and shall cause the name of such owner, with his address, the number of his certificate and a description of such motor vehicle or motor vehicles, to be entered in alphabetical order of the owner's names, in a book to be kept for such purpose. Upon any and every transfer of said motor vehicle said owner thereof in whose name the same is registered the said registration and certificate thereof shall forthwith be and become void, and the holder of said registration certificate shall return the same to the Secretary of State for cancellation, and the purchaser thereof shall thereupon, in conformity with the provisions of this section register the said motor vehicle anew and procure a certificate, as hereinbefore set forth. Every manufacturer of or dealer in automobiles instead of registering each automobile owned or controlled by him may make application, as hereinbefore provided in this section, for a registery number, and the written statement in addition to the matters herinbefore contained, shall state that he is a maunfacturer or dealer, as the case may be, and that he desires to use a single number for all machines owned or controlled by him; and thereupon the Secretary of State, if satisfied of the facts stated in said application, shall issue a certificate, as hereinbefore set forth, assigning the same a number as hereinbefore set forth, which certificate shall contain the statement that the same is issued to the applicant as a manufacturer or dealer, as the case may be, and that one certificate shall cover and be valid for all automobiles owned or controlled by such manufacturer, or dealer until sold or let for hire, or loaned for a period of more than five successive days, and all such automobiles shall be regarded as registered under such general number, provided and if, it be displayed on the front and back of the car as hereinbefore provided, there shall be added the letter M, of equal size and prominence. The fee dealer's license shall be $10.

2. Section three of said act shall be amended to read as follows:

3. The owner of each and every motor vehicle driving the same upon the public streets, public road, turnpikes, parks, public parkways, public driveways or other public highways in the State shall have the number of the license issued as aforesaid by the Secretary of State, upon both the front and back of every such motor vehicle, in a conspicuous place, so as to be plainly visible at all times, during the daylight, such numbers to be separate Arabic numerals, not less than four inches in height, and the strokes to be of a width of less than one-half of an inch, and there shall not be placed upon the front or rear of said vehicle another number similar in size and general appearance, which shall conceal or confuse the identity of the registration number of said motor vehicles.

Section four of said act shall be amended to read as follows:

4. Every motor vehicle shall carry, during the period from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, at least two lighted lamps, showing white lights, visible at least two hundred feet in the direction toward which such motor vehicle is proceding, and shall also exhibit one red light visible in the reverse direction. Upon the sides or fronts of the two aforesaid lamps showing white lights shall be displayed, when said lamps are lighted, in such manner as to be plainly visible, the number of the license issued as aforesaid by the Secretary of State, the same to be in separate Arabic numerals, not less than one inch in height. Every motor vehicle shall also be provided with good and efficient brake or brakes and shall also be provided with suitable bell, horn or other signal device.

Section five of said act shall be amended to read as follows:

5. A rate of speed of one mile in three minutes may be maintained, but on any public street, public road, or turnpike, public park or parkway, public driveway or public highway, in this State, the said rate of speed driving a motor vehicle; provided, however, that nothing of this section contained shall permit any person to drive a motor vehicle at any having regard to the traffic and use of highways, or so as to endanger the life or limb or to injure the property of any person; and it is further provided that nothing in this section contained, shall effect the right of any person injured either in his person or property by the negligent operation of a motor vehicle to sue and recover damages as heretofore.

5. Section eight of such act shall be amended to read as follows:

8. Any person driving a motor vehicle the owner of which shall not have complied with the provisions of this act, and which motor vehicle shall display a fictitious number, the same being a number other than designation for such motor vehicle by the Secretary of State, shall, upon conviction, be fined in a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, and, in default of payment thereof, be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty days.

Section nine of said act shall be amended to read as follows:

9. Any person driving a motor vehicle upon any public street, public highway, public road, turnpike, park, public parkway or public driveway in this State (1) in a race or on a bet of wager; (2) or to make a public speed record exceeding the rate of one mile in three minutes; (3) or any person driving a motor vehicle thereon who shall in violation of the provisions of section six of this act, pass from either dirrection a person riding or driving a horse or horses at a speed greater than one mile in three minutes; (4) or who shall drive a motor vehicle thereon at a speed greater than one mile in two minutes shall, upon conviction, be fined in the sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, or may, in the discretion of the magistrate, if the violation be wilful, be imprisoned in the county jail for a period not exceeding ten days; provided, however, that no conviction or imprisonment shall be had, under the provisions of this act upon the uncorroborated testimony of a constable or police officer, and provided that nothing in this section contained shall authorize a speed greater than that provided in section five.

An Old Newspaper.

This office has been favored by a friend with a copy of the "Daily New Brunswicker," of Monday, June 22, 1857, which is the first title of the Daily Press, changed shortly afterwards to the Daily Fredonian. The Daily Press was fifty years old as a daily newpaper last January, being sixteen months older than the Republican party whose principles and candidates it has espoused in every campaign in the party's history. Yet the precious gang that has fastened its venomous fangs upon the party's organization in this city and county thinks it owes its highest allegiance to a newspaper which seized the psychological moment to change its politics a few years ago when it had become evident that the party whose fights had been made under circumstances of adverse character by the Daily Press and the Daily Fredonian alone for nearly a half century was destined soon to come into power. This course of conduct is in line with the policy of giving many choice offices to former Democrats to the exclusion of lifelong and loyal Republicans. Such Republicans, so-called, are but traitors in disguise, who will more than likely flop back again when conditions change, and no Republican is called upon to have his Republicanism tested by any question of loyalty to such foolhardy leadership. The best Republican service can be rendered by those who love the Republican party for its principles and its honorable history, by striking down at the earliest opportunity such asinine and treasonable "leadership." — New Brunswick Daily Press.

Journalism Yellow With Age.

Exactly 100 years have elapsed since the New Brunswick Guardian, whose meteoric career in the sky of New Jersey journalism has been long forgotten, printed the following:

"The art of political lying, being in general use and of great service to every party, ought to be well understood and reduced to some certain principles. To affirm, for instance, as some of our newspapers have done, that General Washington had purloined the public money, and was a traitor, tyrant and murderer, will not pass even on the most ignorant and credulous minds."

And yet it is said that modern reporters and editors are "yellow!"—Trenton True American.

State Bar Session.

Atlantic City, June 17—Important changes in the judicial system of the State may be recommended at the seventh annual meeting of the New Jersey State Bar Association, which opened at the Hotel Chelsea yesterday. A special committee appointed last year has made a study of judicial procedure and will make a report on methods by which the law business of the State can be simplified and expedited. Alan H. Strong, president of the association, was toastmaster at the annual banquet of the organization, which took place last night, and J. Hampden Dougherty is the principal speaker at the meeting session today.

MODISTE MATTERS.

Scallops Buttonholed by Hand Are Smart Gown Trimmings.

Scallops buttonholed by hand as a lingerie trimming on gowns is an expensive fad of the summer. Colored muils embroidered in openwork design with white are shown in expensive robe patterns. These robe patterns come with flounces to match.

Castellated trimmings both in lace and embroidery are much in evidence around the bottom of tub frocks.

Daintiness and simplicity are the leading features of the smart wash

frock, and it is better to depend for this effect upon sheer material and a little real or good imitation lace than a coarse quality of lawn elaborately trimmed with showy embroidery and lace.

So built up behind are some of the hats that the hair must be dressed to correspond. An arrangement of light curls and puffs fill up the back of the head beneath the cache peigne, while those who prefer something less pronounced have returned to the Grecian knot style of hairdressing.

Ornate and decorated combs for the hair are de mode, but the best quality of tortoise shell are much smarter.

The frenchy little hat illustrated is of white crin. It is trimmed with ruches of white tulle and choux of liberty satin. Applied on the outside of the brim is a fancy silk galloon, which shows very prettily where the shape perks up into saucy curves. At the back are a bunch of white feathers and an aigret. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SARTORIAL NOTES.

Hints For Smart Lingerie—A New Tommy Atkins Hat of Flowers.

Medallions of lace and embroidery transform otherwise plain lingerie into expensive loveliness. Butterfly motifs of lace may be used with good effect.

The val lace patterns showing dots now have these dots embroidered. It sounds like painting the lily, but the effect is lovely. The embroidery sets off the delicate mesh of the lace and the mesh the embroidery.

A pretty lingerie hat easily made at home is constructed from an all over piece of broderie anglaise. The wire frame is round in front and turns up sharply at the back and is worn tilted over the face. The shape is covered with the broderie on top and faced with folds of white chiffon under the brim. About the edge joining chiffon and embroidery are two ruffles of inch valenciennes lace. The flat round crown is encircled with a pale blue ribbon, fastening at the side with a bunch of American Beauty roses. A bandeau at the back is banked with shaded pink roses and a tiny bunch of violets.

Another odd hat is a rather large Tommy Atkins made entirely of lilies of the valley strung around the frame in lines. A single large red rose is placed through the brim at one side.

The bathing suit in the cut is of red pongee, which material is to make the smartest dresses of the season. About the deep collar is a ruffle of lace exactly matching the color of the pongee. The cap sleeves are trimmed with the lace. A waved braid trims the skirt and waist, the latter being box plaited. JUDIC CHOLLET.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

But now the roar of cheering and the air of martial music had reached the very gateway. The broad portals were thrown open and in blue and brown, crushed and squeezed by the attendant throng, the head of the column of infantry came striding on to the pier. The band, wheeling to one side, stood at the entrance, playing them in, the rafters ringing to the stirring strains of "The Liberty Bell." They were still far down the long pier, the sloping rifles just visible, dancing over the heads of the crowd. No time was to be lost. More tables were to be carried, but—who but that—"that little army woman" could give the order so that it would be obeyed. Not one bit did the president like to do it, but something had to be done to obtain the necessary order, for the soldiers who so willingly and promptly obeyed her beck and call were now edging away for a look at the newcomers, and Mrs. Frank Garrison, perched on the carriage step and chatting most vivaciously with its occupants and no longer concerning herself, apparently, about the Red Cross or its tables, had the gratification of finding herself approached quite as she had planned, by two most prominent and distinguished women of San Francisco society, and requested to issue instructions as to the moving of the other tables. "Certainly, ladies," she responded, with charming smiles. "Just one minute, Mildred. Don't drive farther yet," and within that minute half a dozen boys in blue were lugging at the first of the tables still left on the crowded side of the dock, and others still were bearing oil stoves, urns and trays. In less time than it takes to tell it the entire Red Cross equipage was on its way across the pier, and when the commanding officer of the arriving regiment reached the spot which he had planned to occupy with his band, his staff and all his officers, there in state and ceremony to receive the citizens who came in swarms to bid them farewell, he found it occupied by as many as eight snowy, goody-laden tables, presided over by as many as 80 charming maids and matrons, all ready and eager to comfort and revive the inner man of his mighty regiment with coffee and good cheer illimitable, and the colonel swore a mighty oath and pounced on his luckless officer of the guard. He had served as a subaltern many a year in the old army, and knew how it was done.

"Didn't I give you personal and positive orders not to let anything or anybody occupy this space after the baggage was got aboard, sir?" he demanded.

"You did, sir," said the unabashed lieutenant, pulling a folded paper from his belt, "and the Red Cross got word to the general and what the Red Cross says—goes. Look at that!"

The colonel looked, read, looked dazed, scratched his head and said: "Well, I'm damned!" Then he turned to his adjutant. "You were with me when I saw the general last night and he told men to put this guard on and keep this space clear. Now, what d'you say to that?"

The adjutant glanced over the pencilled lines. "Well," said he, "if you s'pose any order that discriminates against the Red Cross is going to hold good, once they find it out, you're bound to get left. They're feasting the first company now, sir; shall I have it stopped?" and there was a grin under the young soldier's mustache. The colonel paused one moment, shook his head and concluded he, too, would better grin and bear it. Taking the paper in his hand again he heard his name called and saw smiling faces and beckoning hands in an open carriage near him, but the sight of Stanley Armstrong, signalling to him from another, farther away, had something dominant about it. "With you in a minute," he called to those who first had summoned him. "What is it, Armstrong?"

"I wish to present you to some friends of mine—Miss Lawrence—Miss Prime—Mr. Prime—my old associate, Col. Stewart. Pardon me, Mrs. Garrison. I did not see you had returned." She had, and was once more perched upon the step. "Mrs. Garrison—Col. Stewart. What we need to know, Stewart, is this: Will all your men board the ship by this stage, or will some go aft?"

"All by this stage—why?"

But the colonel felt a somewhat massive hand crushing down on his arm and forebore to press the question. Armstrong let no pause ensue. He spoke, rapidly for him, bending forward, too, and speaking low; but even as she chatted and laughed, the little woman on the carriage step saw, even though she did not seem to look, heard, even though she did not seem to listen:

"All by this stage! Why?"

"An awkward thing has happened. The general's tent was robbed of important papers perhaps two days ago, and the guard-house rid of a most important prisoner last night. Canker has put the officer-of-the-guard in arrest. Remember good old Billy Gray who commanded us at Apache? This is Billy Junior, and I'm awfully sorry." Here the soft gray eyes glanced quickly at the anxious face of Miss Lawrence, who sat silently feigning interest in the chat between the others. The anxious look in her eyes gave way to sudden alarm at Armstrong's next words: "The prisoner must have had friends. He is among your men, disguised, and those two fellows at the stage are detectives." A low cry came from her lips, for Mrs. Garrison dropped at the instant and lay half under the wheels in a deathlike swoon upon the dock.

"GROWN-UP BOOKS FOR CHILDREN'S READING."

Under the above title, Mrs. Laura E. Richards, wh o is herself a popular writer for young people, tells in the Churchman of December 3, 1904, the result of her experience in reading aloud to boys and girls. "It has been my privilege," she says, "for several summers past to read aloud twice a day, an hour at a time, to some twenty right-minded boys, from ten to eighteen years old, in a summer camp beside a lake, and it occurs to me that I can hardly do better than to tell of some of the books that these boys liked, and liked so well that they would often cry out for another chapter, even when it was time to go fishing. And let me add that all these books have been tried on girls, too, at one time and another, and have found equal favor in their eyes." In the morning, she read "something with a solid core," in the afternoon, a story that "must be of a nature to make us sit up and say 'Gee' at the end of a chapter and clamor for more." Almost all of the books she read in this way are circulated in the Public Library, and for the benefit of parents or older brothers and sisters, I give the names of both the books "with the solid core" and those which made her auditors "sit up and say, Gee." The books on the first list are those read in the morning—the solid books. Those in the second list are the afternoon books which, according to Mrs. Richards, are warranted to keep the young auditors wide awake.

She also gives in this article the names of some grown-up books which they will enjoy reading to themselves (List No. 3) and makes a strong plea for the reading aloud of the best poetry to children. All who are interested in the subject of children's reading will be interested in seeing the full article.

These lists will make good summer reading for children. Keep them for that.

CLINTON AVE. WINS.

Imperial A. C. Defeated by Score of 3 to 2.

In one of the best games of the season, the Clinton Avenue team defeated the Imperial A. C., of Elizabeth, on the local grounds, Saturday afternoon. It was the ninth straight victory for the home team, the score being 3 to 2. Scott was in the best of form and he held the county boys down to three hits, while the locals secured four hits off of Cubberley, including a two-base hit by Barnes. O'Loughlin and Hallard were the only ones charged with misplays, otherwise the home team played its best game. Next Saturday Clinton Avenue will play New Market on the local grounds.

HOBOKENS SHUT OUT.

Jersey City League Team Won by Score of 4 to 0.

Six thousand fans saw the Jersey City Eastern League team shut out Hoboken, yesterday, for the first time this season, by a score of 4 to 0. Inability of the Hoboken team to connect with McGann's curves and twisters, combined with four errors, lost them the game. McCann allowed but three hits, while Deegan, who pitched a fine game, was touched for only five singles. Jersey City scored one run in the first inning, two in the fifth and one in the eighth. Jersey City played an errorless game. The series now stands two to one in favor of Jersey City. The score:

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

W. C. Leek acted as precentor last night for the singing in Trinity Reformed church, owing to the absence of the choir.

The Women's Missionary meeting will be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, instead of 3 o'clock.

Meetings of a similar character will be held every Sunday through the summer. Next week William N. Sortor and John Daub will lead. Miss Jessie Jones will sing and Mr. Korff will play.

Sixty Days for Negro.

Officer O'Keefe discovered Osborne Harris, colored, and a white man fighting on Somerset street, near Front street, Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Vroom left later on a wedding trip and at its conclusion will make their home at Pluckemin.

The citizens of South Plainfield will hold another mass meeting tomorrow night to discuss the advisability of incorporating as a borough. A committee appointed for the purpose will submit figures in regard to taxation at the present time and with the proposed change for the benefit of the voters. At the present time it is thought a majority of the villagers prefer the borough form of government.

With the near approach of the "Glorious Fourth," Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, has issued timely warning against the open display of fireworks. According to the city ordinance it is unlawful to place firecrackers, torpedoes or other inflammable or explosive substances upon the sidewalk or in front of any store or building near the street. Persons disregarding the notice sent out by the chief are liable to prosecution.

Want S. S. S. to Speak.

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer has been invited to speak at the opening of a new resort at Black River Falls, Hunterdon County, on July Fourth. ACCIDENT CAUSES DEATH.

Mrs. Fahy Succumbs to Injuries Received in New York.

From injuries received in New York three months ago, Mrs. Patrick Fahy, of Lee place, formerly of West Fourth street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon. While returning to Plainfield from a visit in Brooklyn, a New York Sun delivery wagon knocked her down at the entrance to the Brooklyn Bridge. She was hurt badly in several places, and though she partially recovered, complications followed and it was necessary to remove her to Muhlenberg. Only last week a specialist was brought from New York and declared that after an examination that she was improving.

Mrs. Fahy had been a resident of Plainfield only two years, coming here from Brooklyn, where she and Mr. Fahy, the well known street car conductor, were married. The body was removed to Brooklyn last night, as her mother and other relatives reside there. The funeral and interment will take place tomorrow.

Fell Through Trap Door.

John Stevens, of Watchung avenue and Second street, who recently fell through a trap door in the harness room at the Plainfield Cab Company's place on North avenue, and severely sprained his arm, is still obliged to carry the injured member in a sling. Lewis C. Putnam, of West Fifth street, met with a similar accident at the same place several pears ago, sustaining an injury to his leg from which he has never recovered fully.

READ BY PLAINFIELDERS

Fiction Leads the List With General Literature. Next.

TRAVEL IS THIRD.

Facts About Classes of Books Chosen by Those Who Patronize the Plainfield Public Library.

There is a vast amount of theorizing on the subject of books people read, and the statement is often made that our public libraries have become purveyors of fiction, and if one may judge by the frequently published "six most popular books" circulated by the "public library," not always of the highest class.

Libraries, however, keep statistics of the quantity and quality of the books they circulate, and as we are told that figures, whatever virtues they lack, do not lack that of truthfulness, let us turn to them, remembering that these tell only of one division of a library's work, the books lent for home use. Of that great number which are used at the library, these figures have nothing to do. One other point usually overlooked is the fact that libraries have come to minister to a far larger and more promiscuous number than was formerly the case when practically their only users were students. Now they are used not only by students, but by all classes of the community for their general reading, for recreation and for help in their work, manual or professional, all of which purposes come definitely within the scope of the modern public library. This inevitably means both a broadening of the character of the books read and immense increase in bulk. In our own case, statistics show that adult fiction bulks but 45 per cent. of the whole, and when I add that the first year that the library was open the percentage of this department was 73, it will be seen that there is a growing tendency toward the reading of books other than fiction, due to various causes into which the limit of this article prevents our entering.

Children's stories form 17 per cent. of the whole number of books circulated, but fiction forms only 29 per cent. of the whole reading. That is, while grown people are reading 45 per cent. fiction, the children are reading but 29 per cent.

Next in popularity to fiction comes the department of General Literature, under which rather broad head are included Essays, Poems and plays, histories of literature, and also Fiction in foreign languages. This forms 7 per cent. of the whole, and of its sub-division, American essays lead in popularity, then Fiction in the French language, followed by English essays. Of main departments, Travel is next in popularity. Our own country is by far the most read of, and this year Japan, following the general sympathy, comes next, then Russia.

History comes next to travel, and here as in Travel, the books read on the United States greatly exceed those read about any other country. As might be expected, English histories are next, then French.

Biography followed History in popularity. This has no sub-divisions.

General works, a department include books too general for closer classification, comes next. This popularity is wholly accounted for by the circulation of periodicals, both current and bound volumes, which are classed here.

Fine arts is a broad class, such diverse subjects as baseball and art aesthetics being included. One is bound to say here that Amusements lead, that is, books on games and sports of all kinds; next is Music. The interest in beautifying the home which has produced so many attractive books, makes the division on Home decoration, furnishing, etc., next in demand. The circulation of books of this character is surely a wholesome sign.

Science is next in demand. The order here is Natural history, Botany, Mathematics. The popularity of the first two is due to the prevalence of the "Nature books." Books in Mathematics are mostly taken by young men and women who are fitting themselves for a business life.

Sociology in its broad significations follows Science. Books on manners and customs are most read, then books on Education, followed by Political economy. The books on Education are read chiefly by teachers, who nothwithstanding their busy lives, find time for professional reading. Of books on Political economy, over one-fourth circulated were on the relations of labor and capital.

Useful arts, with Engineering as decidedly its leading sub-division, is next in order of popularity. Domestic science, including books on Cookery, is second, and Agriculture third.

R. R. STATION ROBBED

Leisurely Thief Rifles Cash Drawer and Chewing Gum Machine.

ACCESS VERY EASY.

Found Window Unlocked and Ready For Him — Cop Discovers Crime — Tickets Undisturbed.

When Officer Vanderweg made his hourly tour about the Grant avenue station at 11:30 o'clock last night he spotted an open window on the east side. When he went by at 10:30 that window was closed. The ticket office closes at 7 o'clock, and an open window was a matter for investigation. Vanderweg climbed inside.

He found the ticket agent's cash drawer wide open. The tickets in it were undisturbed, but there was no sign of the money. A chewing gum machine on the platform had been taken to pieces.

Hubbell L. Hayes, the ticket agent, reported this morning that the money drawer had $20 in it when he left last night. He didn't know how much was in the gum machine.

The window through which the thief had entered gave no indication of having been forced, and the police say the robber must have found it unlocked. The gum machine was taken apart very neatly, as if the thief had worked leisurely and with full knowledge of his surroundings. The job is laid to hoboes.

COUNCIL IN SESSION FOR SEVEN MINUTES

JUST LONG ENOUGH TO PASS SCHOOL APPROPRIATIONS.

For the purpose of adopting on third and final reading the tax ordinance which provides for the assessment and collection of $13,000 with which to furnish the new High School, and the adoption on first and second readings the ordinance providing for the assessment and collection of $70,000 thought to be necessary for school purposes during the coming year and $260 interest on bonds previously issued for the above amounts, a special meeting of the Common Council was held last night.

At the regular June meeting through an oversight the Common Council forgot to adopt the ordinance providing for the $13,000 on final reading and it for this reason as well as to adopt the other ordinance at this time a meeting was necessary. The ordinance providing for the $70,000 together with he $260 interest money has to be advertised a certain length of time before final adoption, and it is the desire of the members to pass it on its third reading at the regular July meeting.

There was no other business considered at the meeting and the session will probably go on record as one of the shorest of the year, seven minutes being required to transact the business noted in the call. The necessary six members were present—President Daniel and Councilmen C. C. Randolph, F. DeW. Randolph, R. I. Tolles, W. L. Gloak and Stephen Higham.

N. P. SCHOOL CHANGES

New Faces to be Seen When Doors Open on September 12.

SPECIAL TEACHERS.

Linton B. Crandall and Herbert Lloyd Are Among Number—Where Retiring Teachers Will Go.

The North Plainfield public schools will reopen September 12, when it is expected that the new building will be ready for occupation. Its use will put an end to part time classes and relieve the pressure which has been so distressing for the past four years.

Supervising Principal H. C. Krebs, who succeeds Prof. Wightman, is an honor graduate of the Pennsylvania Normal School at Kutztown, and was superintendent at Egg Harbor and Hammonton, N. J., before he came to Somerville eight years ago. He will continue in office as county superintendent. He is still young and has achieved a high reputation as an educator. Prof. and Mrs. Krebs will reside at 23 Fairview avenue.

As usually happens when there is a change of superintendents, more than the ordinary number of changes in the teaching corps will take place. With the exception of the ungraded class and one kindergarten helper the vacancies have now been filled as follows:

High School—Miss Margaret Speidel takes the preparatory class. She is a graduate of Albany Normal College, and has taught for the past eleven years in Canajoharie and Rome, N. Y.

Grammar School—Eighth grade, Miss Marion P. Hilliard, graduate N. J. Normal, '99, has taught at Atlantic City and East Orange.

Seventh grade, Miss Edith Neill, graduate Geneseo (N. Y.) Normal, now teaching at Irvington, N. J.

Miss Margaret Hudson, graduate Plattsburgh (N. Y.) Normal, now teaching at Sayville, L. I. Miss Hudson also takes Miss Waterbury's place as high school pianist.

Primary—Fourth grade, Miss Edna L. Dampman, N. J. Normal, '03, now teaching at Garfield, N. J.

Third grade, Miss Laura G. Turner, B. A. Mt. Holyoke College, '03, now teaching at Easthampton, Mass.

Second grade, Miss Malvena P. Rittenhouse, N. J. Normal, '04, now teaching at Allendale, N. J. Miss Elizabeth K. Conkling, N. J. Normal '99, now teaching at Flemington, N. J.

Special Teachers.

To continue the work in the manual training school, formerly carried on by Robert W. Sander, the board has secured an exceptionally competent man in Linton B. Crandall, B. Sc., a graduate of Alfred University, who has had five years' experience in teaching.

Herbert Lloyd, of Bound Brook, has accepted the position of supervisor of music. He has been a very successful teacher of this branch in his own town and should be able to get good results here on the foundation laid by Mr. Skiff in the past year and a half.

In addition to these new instructors two teachers who formerly did service in the borough are returning after a year's absence. Miss Lizzie Southworth, of Cortland, N. Y., has been re-engaged for the first grade, and Miss Elizabeth Claypolle will serve as general substitute and assistant in the principal's office.

The Retiring Teachers.

The high standard of professional excellence in the borough schools is indicated by the fact that so many of the teachers now leaving have received very fine appointments at increased salaries. Misses Yoran and Weller at Montclair, Misses Peek, King and Gillette at Yonkers, and Miss Richards in New York city. Misses Powers and Waterbury will not teach next year. Mr. Sander has not yet accepted a position.

PLAINFIELD HORSES WIN MANY PRIZES

LOCAL EXHIBITORS TAKE SEVEN CUPS AT HORSE SHOW.

Plainfield horses walked off with a majority of the prizes at the annual horse show held in New Brunswick on Saturday, particularly to the stables of Miss Leila Cruikshank and Charles W. McCutchen, as well as W. J. Buttfield. Of these, Miss Cruikshank took four firsts, one second and three thirds, while Mr. McCutchen had three first and a second to his credit. Miss Cruikshank gave a fine exhibition of horsemanship. She rode both Fassiferee and McGregor in their trials over the fence.

Miss Banahan, W. J. Buttfield, took first prize for roadsters, shown to wagons, and Reuben T., C. W. McCutchen, took second prize. All Ablaze, C. W. McCutchen, took first prize for horses to vehicles; also first prize for ladies' saddle horses. In the hunter class, Miss Cruikshank took first and second, and Dr. M. O'M. Knott, third. Miss Banahan took first prize in the pair of roadsters' class.

Horses owned by Miss Cruikshank, C. W. McCutchen, Dr. Knott and W. J. Buttfield also took prizes in the classes for pairs of horses, saddled horses, jumpers and hurdle race.

PAST GRANDS FURTHER THEIR ORGANIZATION

DISTRICT ASSOCIATION HOLDS ITS THIRD MEETING HERE—160 MEMBERS.

The Past Grands' Association of District No. 10, I. O. O. F., held its third organization meeting in Odd Fellows' Hall last night. The district embraces Carteret, Rahway, Elizabeth, Westfield, Perth Amboy, Woodbridge and this city, and representatives from practically all these places were present. Almost a score of Plainfield past grands were there.

The work of organization was almost completed. Most of the time was taken up with the consideration of by-laws and the discussion of ways and means. The last of the by-laws, and the final steps of permanent formation, will be adopted at the next meeting, to be held in Elizabeth, Saturday, July 29.

At present the organization numbers 160 members. There are something like 400 past grands in the district, and in time practically all of them will be in the association. Seventy of the past grands live here.

DUNELLEN COUNCIL GETS NEW LOOP PETITION

AGAINST APGAR'S HALL LOCATION—R. R. CROSSING QUESTION INTRODUCED.

Another petition on the trolley loop location was presented to the Dunellen Council at its adjourned meeting last night. Further than to refer the petition to committee nothing on the loop question was done. Both sides seem to be marking time. None of the P. S. C. officials were present.

The petition, signed by over a score of names, asks that the Apgar's Hall site be ignored by the Council. An unexpectedly strong opposition to the center -of-town location has developed, and the borough solons are apparently at a loss to decide what they want now and when they expect to get it.

Councilman Ryno, whose effort to introduce the Chestnut street crossing question at the last meeting was blocked, forced the matter on his colleagues early in the meeting. He declared that it was time the railroad did something to safeguard the users of the crossing. After some discussion it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of a commitee to be named by the Mayor. Mayor Wyckoff announced that the committee would be announced at the next regular meeting, which will be held in two weeks. Stories to the effect that the railroad interests, through its employes in the Council, practically control the Council's action on matters affecting the road, have been current in the borough for some time. The citizens are watching the councilmen in connection with the crossing question with unusual interest.

George Huff was awarded the contract to macadamize the south side of Washington avenue. The only other bidder was P. J. Staats.

MOTHER EVE WAS BLACK

Rev. Prof. C. T. Chicizzli, of Abysinnia, explains It Anthropologically.

AND NOAH AND MOSES.

Coptic Priest Friend of Emporer Menelik and Head of Abysinnian College, Lecturing in Negro Churches.

Rev. Prof. C. F. Checizzli, a priest of the Coptic church and founder-president of the International College at Gondor, the capital of Abyssinia, delivered an anthropological lecture at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, colored, last night. The reverend professor's subject was "Eve Was Black."

A reporter asked the Professor for an abstract of his theory this morning. The professor wrote the following, and his pencil didn't stumble once:

"Anthropologically speaking, the conspicuous germs of protoplasm, dropped from the eternal plains of metaphysicial greatness, contributed an imperfect embryo for man, in an unconscious state. Which state, having been chaotic, have had to be perfected, contributing life for the psychological construction of Eve. Therefore, since it has been through the process of alezoic and neozoic properties which made the generic Adam red, it was through incipient protoplasm, aided by the same process, which made Eve black. The facts have been shown by her six children, who were black and red."

Tonight, at Calvary Baptist church, Prof. Checizzli will discourse on "Moses and Noah Were Black."

The reverend professor refers to Emperor Menelik, head of the Abyssinian nation and conqueror of the Italian-African legion, as a personal friend. The professor says he studied at Oxford with the emperor.

Prof. Checizzli has been staying with Rev. Mr. Ashley, pastor of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, for several days. He has appeared in a mortar board and academic gown on the streets several times. He is very black.

NEW $7,000 BRIDGE FOR WEST END AVENUE

BOARDS OF FREEHOLDERS AUTHORIZE ITS CONSTRUCTION NEXT WEEK.

The committee appointed by the Union County Board of Freeholders to investigate the need of a new bridge over Greenbrook on West End avenue, met yesterday and in connection with Mayor N. B. Smalley, inspected the present structure. They decided that it should be replaced and will so report to the board. The Somerset county authorities have already voted in favor of a new bridge and a meeting of the two committees will be held next week to make the final arrangements.

The proposed structure will cost about $7,000, and will be similar to the one on Watchung avenue. It will be sixty feet wide, in order to conform with the street and the extensive improvements that are to be made to property in that section. The bridge now in place is a small affair and has been standing many years.

The committee from Union county that inspected the site yesterday was composed of five members, with William A. Westphal acting chairman.

FOUR BALL GOLF MATCH.

F. O. Reinhart Returns Good Score in Opening Play.

A four ball match quite out of the ordinary was played on the course of the Englewood Golf Club, yesterday, when Frank O. Reinhart, of this city, and George Low, the professional at the Baltusrol Golf Club, met Murray Olyphant and Professional Jack Hobens. A brilliant score by Hobens, who established a new eighteen and thirty-six hole records of 74, 72—146, was a feature of the match.

Hobens and Olyphant were 9 up for the thirty-six holes. There are thirty-six holes more to be played at Baltusrol. Reinhart returned a score of 80, 81—161.

There is a fine entry for the open tournament of the Englewood Golf Club, to begin on Thursday. The cracks who were enlisted when time was up last night included Frank O. Reinhart, Dudley H. Barrows, George Brokaw, Archibald Graham, Douglas Laird, Allan Kennaday and Jerome D. Travers. The outside entries numbered fifty-five, which indicates a large field.

AGED MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

Orrin Sherwin Found Dead in Chair by a Son.

HE LEFT A NOTE.

Requested Relatives Not to Grieve Over His Act—Had Been Melancholy—Mourned for Wife.

In a fit of melancholia brought about through a feeling of lonliness, Orrin Sherwin, one of the city's oldest and best known residents, committed suicide at his home on East Second street sometime during Sunday night by drinking a poison said to have been laudanum. His body was discovered seated in a chair by his son, Horace M. Sherwin, who lives in the house adjoining on Washington street, and who went to call him for breakfast at 7:30 yesterday morning. Dr. J. B. Probasco was hurriedly summoned, but death had ensued many hours before.

Mr. Sherwin was in his eighty-second year, and since the death of his wife three years ago he had always been more or less melancholy. His daughter, Miss Eleanor Sherwin, kept house for him, but Sunday she went for a visit out of town, and he was alone all day. It is thought that being alone preyed upon his mind to such an extent that he resolved upon self-destruction. From appearances, he planned the affair carefully, as he left a note admonishing his relatives not to grieve over his act and to have a very simple, private funeral.

Mr. Sherwin was born in Whittingham, Vermont, in 1823, and when a young man engaged in business in Boston. He moved to this city in 1863, and for many years was confidential clerk for Buckley, Dunton & Co., paper manufacturers, of New York. He was a devoted Christian and faithful member of the First Baptist church.

Mr. Sherwin is survived by three children, an unmarried daughter, Miss Eleanor Sherwin; two sons, Horace Sherwin, the local shoe dealer, and George Sherwin, of Newark. The funeral services will be held on Wednesday from the house, and will be private. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will officiate.

SCHOOL ELECTION DECLARED INVALID

BOROUGHITES MUST VOTE AGAIN ON APPROPRIATION.

The issue of $4,000 of school bonds voted by the North Plainfield citizens on May 23 has been invalidated by a ruling of Attorney-General McCarter, which declares the ballots used at that election to have been irregular. It is held that the ballots should have given the complete resolution and not merely the words "for" and "against."

At the time of the election the school board acted in accordance with all the information that had been given them on the subject. The atorney general's ruling in regard to such ballots are given in a circular that has not been distributed even yet. The election of last year, at which $36,000 of bonds were authorized, was carried out with the same sort of ballots.

The rejected issue will be resubmitted to the people, it is understood, without loss of time. The money is urgently needed to complete the furnshing of the Somerset street building. The question was carried unanimously in May and no opposition to it at the coming election is anticipated.

Mrs. Singer's Funeral.

The funeral services of Mrs. Mary Singer were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Montreville Knights, of New street. Rev. Mr. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, was in charge of the services. There were many floral tributes from relatives and friends. The interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Won History Prize.

The prize for the greatest proficiency displayed in American History by a pupil in any of the Somerset county schools was awarded yesterday to Earl Wright, of the Somerville schools. The prize was a $5 gold piece, offered by Gen. Frelinghuysen Chapter, No. 75, D. A. R.

Court of Appeals Open.

The opening of the June term of the Court of Errors and Appeals took place at the State House in Trenton today. There are eighty-nine cases listed already, and it is very likely that when the unlisted cases are added the cases to be heard will go over the hundred mark.

CORPORATION BUYS LAND

Krom Works, Employing 200 to 300 Men, Coming Here?

MAYBE, SAYS Mr. KROM.

Combination of Two Plants, Now in Jersey City, Proposed—Now Site Not Definitely Picked.

Authoritative announcement of the sale of a big plot of ground adjoining the Pedrick & Ayer plant on West Front street to George H. Fraser and Arthur Krom, who comprise the Krom Machine Works, of Jersey City, a close corporation, was made yesterday. The Krom Machine Works is planning the merging of its two plants in Jersey City into one big plant. The West Front street plot may be the location of the new shop.

The sale of the land was made by William Jeffery, the real estate agent, of 136 Park avenue, for the Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company. The plot has a frontage of 1,050 feet on the Central Railroad and extends back 200 feet.

Arthur Krom, head of the Krom Company, lives at 411 West Fourth street. He was seen last night by a reporter in regard to the sale.

"It would be premature to say now that we intend to build the new plant here," he said, "but it is true that we are thinking of it. We have been planning to move, and bought the West Front street site to cover ourselves. We have options on other sites, and it is impossible to say definitely that we will build in any one locality. It is hard to get desirable sites within twenty-five miles of New York and we have merely put ourselves in position to locate satisfactorily if we build at all."

The Krom Company makes milling machinery for mine work. It has two plants in Jersey City, the Krom Machine Works and the Kent Milling Company.

Mr. Krom organized the machine works four years ago. A little later the milling company was consolidated with it. Mr. Fraser, the other member of the corporation, lives in Brooklyn. Mr. Krom is president. The company has an office at 170 Broadway.

It is proposed to turn out all the work of both plants in the proposed new shop. As soon as the latter is completed the other two places will be abandoned. The enlarged shop would give employment to considerably more than 200—maybe 300—men.

Mr. Krom is a young man. The business he has built up is a rapidly growing one, and promises to rank in time with the biggest in the milling machine field.

MISS RANDOLPH DEAD.

Sister of the Late Mrs. Gilbert Passes Away.

Miss Alice Randolph, a resident of this city many years, died yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. West, Crescent avenue and Second place, where she had been making her home for some time. Death was due to a complication of troubles of long standing. Miss Randolph was a sister of the late Clinton Randolph, of Central avenue, and the late Mrs. Alexander Gilbert, and prior to the death of her sister she lived with her on West Eighth street.

Miss Randolph was a devoted Christian and for many years a faithful member of the First Baptist church. Owing to illness she had been unable to attend services for a long time.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the home of Alex. Gilbert, West Eighth street, and Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, will officiate. The interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

THE ITALIAN RECOVERED.

Dying Man Wouldn't Wait for Patrol Wagon—Fell Off Car.

The telephone rang wildly att police headquarters at 8:30 o'clock this morning, and Chief Kiely hustled to the receiver.

"An Eytalian has just fallen off a car at Richmond and Second streets," said an excited voice. "He's dying; send the patrol wagon rignt off."

The chief banged the hurry-up wagon signal, and Driver O'Gorman went out at a life-and-death clip. Richmond and Second streets was quiet and unstained by gore when he got there.

"There was a ginny that fell off a car," volunteered a small boy, "but he got up and went on the car again. He wuz knocked out for a little while, but his coco looked all right when he got up."

Mrs. C. Zabriskie, of East Sixth street, has returned home after spending some time in Brooklyn.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The Perseverance minstrel troupe, which is booked tonight at Excelsior Hall, should be greeted by a large audience. WILL EDUCATE THE FARMER.

State Board of Education Has Begun Campaign.

The State Board of Agriculture has just begun a campaign of education for farmers and fruit growers of New Jersey. Secretary Franklin Dye has this to say concerning the work:

"We want to teach the farmers of New Jersey to produce larger and better crops from a smaller acreage. It is really pathetic to see how poor farmers will spread their efforts to increase their incomes by cultivating as large an acreage as possible. Farmers in these days must study their business and go about their work in a business-like way. They must learn about the soil of their farm, its needs and capabilities. One acre, well fertilized and well cultivated, will produce more than five or ten acres poorly farmed and at infinitely less expenditure of labor and money."

SIX HOURS WITHOUT WATER.

Break in Water Main Makes Trouble for Perth Amboy.

A break in the new twenty-four inch water main between Rahway and Runyon on Saturday deprived almost the entire city of water for six hours. It was located on the meadows, on the south side of the Raritan River, where a six-inch valve had blown out.

That part of the main was cut out and an old sixteen-inch main used to get around the break. The break happened at a time when the superintendent of the water works and most of his employes were on their annual excursion to College Point. Repairs cannot be made until low water.

New Telephone Co. for New York.

Delegates to the convention of the National Interstate Independent Telephone Association, which opened at Chicago today, are arriving. No fewer than 1,000 delegates and exhibitors are expected during the week, and every known phase of the telephone business will be exploited.

One of the leading questions to be discussed at the meeting is the possibility of installing a nindependent company in New York city, it is declared, and the subject of uniform toll rates for inter-connecting telephone plants will be another important topic. The association has divided the territory into districts, each of which will be officially represented by delegates, and the advantage of standardizing equipments and operation will be fully discussed, with a view of satisfying the largest possible number of companies.

Scene at the 4,000 Acre Camp and Game Preserve, 1,500 feet above Sea Level, at Tolland, Mass.

Walter T. Griffin, of East Seventh street, and Miles Roberts, of Kensington avenue, comprise the local end of a syndicate that has taken steps to acquire and develope one of the largest camps and game preserves in the New England States. It is situated at Tolland, Mass., and 4,000 acres of land abounding in natural scenic beauty have already been purchased and improved. The property entirely surrounds a pretty lake a mile in extent at an elevation of 1,500 feet above sea level, on the shores of which a club house has been erected for the accommodation of members and their friends.

In order to get the tract, it was necessary to buy up thirty farms, a task requiring many weeks of patient work and the outlay of a large sum of money. The greater part of the land is covered with forest and it is believed the proper treatment of this will add to is attractiveness and prove a source of revenue. It is not proposed, however, to denude the property by the wholesale cutting of trees but rather to develope a large and valuable permanent forest.

A separate social organization composed of stockholders who, outside of those from this city, are from Brooklyn and Yonkers, has been formed to control the hunting, fishing and other privileges of the camp. The club house is a roomy affair and was made by enlarging and improving a suitable building on the lake shore formerly occupied by a farmer and his family. It has sleeping accommodations and comforts aplenty and is an ideal place to gain health and strength in the summer recreation.

Hitherto, people from this section who have the camp "fever," have located in New York State and the Tolland purchase has been an innovation. Since Mr. Griffin and Mr. Roberts became part owners, other Plainfielders have interested themselves in it and the probabilities are that many of them will join the syndicate.

ROYAL RELICS IN DECAY

Roof That Sheltered a Bonaparte at Bordentown Lets in Rain.

"LAKE HOUSE" IN RUINS

Estate of Former King of Naples and of Spain in Delapidated Condition—Story of Its Historic Associations.

Bordentown, June 19—An unusual number of visitors have been attracted to Bonaparte park during the last few months, and there has been frequent controversy of late concerning the three old mansions still standing within the limits of the old Bonaparte park.

Not even the owners of the property agree fully as to which of the houses should really be known as the Boneparte Mansion. It is well known that Joseph Bonaparte, who possessed successively the crowns of Naples and Spain, resided for a time in the mansion now in ruins, known as the Lake House, on the left of the big gateways giving entrance to the park. It is also claimed, but not on good authority, that he lived for a time, after the burning of his original mansion, in the rambling old two-story dwelling on the right of the entrance way. But this house, which was built during the latter years of Boneparte splendor in Bordentown, was the home of the coachman and gardener.

Both of these old houses near the entrance to the park are now in a state of dilapidation, and it is generally conceded that the real home of the former king was the well-kept mansion still in splendid repair, set well back from the entrance, in the centre of the park grounds.

It is even claimed that Joseph Bonaparte superintended the building of this mansion during his residence at the Lake House, after his first home was burned. In reality Bonaparte never saw this mansion. It was not built until after his death. After his original mansion was burned, through the carelessness of a gentleman whom the count entertained, who went off to Philadelphia and left a wood fire burning in his bedroom with the door locked, another mansion was built upon its site.

Then the former King Joseph left his property to his grandson, Joseph Lucien Charles Napoleon, more popularly known as Prince Joseph. It is said that he expected his grandson to reside upon it until the restoration of the Bonapartes to power, an event which he never doubted would occur. But the young Prince entertained different views. He soon commenced disposing of his farms, and all were sold at remunerative prices. At last the park was put up at auction to the highest bidder, Thomas Richards, of Philadelphia, becoming the purchaser. This occurred in 1847, the title being conveyed to Mr. Richards August 11 of that year. He, however, held it only a few years, conveying it to Henry Beckett on October 15, 1850. Mr. Beckett was a son of Sir John Beckett, of Somerby Park, Lincolnshire, England, who was created a baronet in 1813, and a brother of Sir Thomas, and of his successor, Sir Thomas Denison Beckett.

Not satisfied with the Bonaparte mansion, Mr. Beckett had it pulled down and near its site erected the mansion which is stil standing and is used as "St. Vincent's Summer school." The only things Mr. Beckett saved from the Bonaparte place were two mantelpieces sent to this country as a present to the count by his uncle, Cardinal Fesen. They were carved in Italy at a cost of $5,0000 each, and are beautiful works of art.

Mr. Beckett was lavish in expenditure in the erection and furnishing of this mansion, as he had the Hamilton wealth at his command. He settled in Philadelphia on coming to this country, at which port he was for a long time British consul. He married a Miss Lyle, of Philadelphia. Her mother was a Miss Hamilton, who was descended from Andrew Hamilton, a Scotchman, and deputy governor of Pennsylvania in 1701. After Mr. Beckett purchased Bonaparte Park many of the old Hamilton papers were stored in the Lake House during the building of the new mansion.

The Lake House was built by Joseph Bonaparte for his daughter, Princess Zenaide, who married her cousin, Charles Lucien, Prince de Canino and Musignano, son of Lucien Bonaparte. Prince Charles and Princess Zenaide joined the count's family in America, where he gained a high reputation as an ornithologist, which was increased by his subsequent labors after his return to Italy in 1828.

In the Lake House Prince Charles had his famous cabinet of birds, insects, etc. During the preparation of "American Ornithology, or the natural history of Birds of the United States, by Alexander Wilson and Prince Charles Lucien Bonaparte, many famous naturalists visited the Lake House in Bonaparte Park, and for a time it was quite as noted as the imposing palace in the centre of the park.

Though large and roomy, the Lake House was never specially handsome. It is a three-story brick structure covered with plaster. The ceilings are low, windows rather small and entrance large. With is white walls and green lattice shutters it presented a plain but neat appearance during the days of its fame as the home of the ornithologist and Princess Zenaide and as the temporary home of the ex-king, Joseph Bonaparte. It was a house well worth saving, not only for its associations, but for its situation and its substantial oldtime comfort. It is a matter of general regret among the residents of Bordentown that it has been allowed to fall into ruin.

Dr. Groszmann and his bride left town today for Spring Lake, N. J., where they will remain for some time.

WHY RATES ARE CHANGED

Reasons for Adjusting Royal Arcanum's Assessments.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

Five Readjustments on Basis of Supreme Council of the National Order.

Regarding the readjustment of rates of the Royal Arcanum, which is causing so much discussion among the members of that order, the Royal Arcanum Bulletin, which contains the official news of the Supreme Council, just issued, gives the following reasons why an adjustment of rates was necessary at this time:

First—Because the revenue from the present scale of assessments during the past two years was not sufficient to pay the mortality claims, the surplus in the current cash account had been exhausted and the emergency fund entrenched upon at the time of the meeting of the Supreme Council. This made it evident that one of three things must be done—either readjust the rates, go back to the old policy of calling extra assessments, or use up the emergency fund. Not a single member of the Supreme Council suggested the advisablity of returning to the old system of calling extra assessments. A few expressed themselves in favor, at first, of letting the matter go over for another year and drawing on the emergency fund to make up the deficiencies.

Second—The necessity for a readjustment being apparent to the large majority of the members of the Supreme Council, the next question was whether it should be a temporary expedient to carry the order along for a few years with the probable recurrence of the readjustment of rates within a few years, or whether there should be such a readjustment as would be equitable and permanent. That question was discussed in all its phases and the conclusion of the Supreme Council was that the readjustment should be on the basis of permanence.

Third—Experts assured that the administrative officers that the twenty-seven years' experience has been sufficiently long upon which to base permanent rates. The experience of the order had been compiled, the mortality and lapse statistics carefully studied and the actual cost for each member at each age for each certificate had been determined according to that experience. A mortality table was constructed from this experience and rates reduced therefrom. Their accuracy is vouched for by competent experts.

Fourth—Before the present scale of assessment, which took effect August 1, 1898, had been two years in operation, it was evident that it was operating with gross inequity toward the members of the different ages. Young men fresh from their medical examination, in the groups having low death rates were contributing as much as members who had entered at the same age fifteen or twenty years before who had become impaired risks, in whose class attained ages the death cost each years was much higher than their contributions, and who had made no payments in the early years of their membership to meet the increasing cost as their ages advanced.

Had the scale of assessment adopted in 1898 been applied to all members at their attained ages, there is no doubt that the inequities that the scale of assessments would have been reduced to a minimum and the revenue sufficient to last for a long series of years. Not one dollar of the emergency fund was contributed by a member over 55 years of age on August 1, 1898, when the present rates took place.

Fifth—The mortality cost for the ages of 55 and over exceed the contributions of those members who were paying at the ages at which they had been assessed prior to the rates taking effect. These inequities would have been perpetuated and aggravated still further if any revision had been attempted on the basis of threeo r four or five assessments and dividing the amount by twelve so as to make a monthly payment, or if the new rates had been applied to the members at their assessed ages they would have been much inequitable and it would not have been treating new members fairly. Abundant illustration of this can be given. The new rates of assessment will wipe out the deficits and all members will start anew on October 1 upon the same basis, each one having their choice of method of contribution, the regular rates and the different options being so adjusted on the basis of the mortality experience of the order that all the contributions will, in the end, be equivalent to each other.

Burial of Orange J. Brown.

The body of Orange Judd Brown, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital, Saturday, was sent Sunday to Honesdale, Pa., where the funeral and interment took place yesterday. The arrangements were perfected by his brother, Neuman Brown, who will arrange his affairs in connection with the lunch-wagon business on East Second street.

Plainfield, N. J., June 20, 1905.

Thanks are due Henry A. McGee for a contribution of five dollars towards the open-air band concert fund. The list of subscribers is published on page one. Are you among them?

Why all the anxiety these days to cut down the time between New York and Chicago? What we want to know at this time is how to get to the arctic region in eighteen hours.

The business men along North avenue who hugely enjoyed the clouds of dust today are assured that the councilmanic street committee has not ordered sprinkling discontinued. Mr. Snuffles is hunting up the contractor to explain that North avenue people would like to see what one of those water carts look like.

California produces about 2700 cars of raisins every year, while the consumption in the United States is about 1000 cars, says the Philadelphia Record. The surplus is sold to the distilleries at a sacrifice. A prominent grower at Fresno proposes advertising as a remedy for these conditions. The food value of the raisin should be made a matter of educational publicity. The million dollars that annually slips through the fingers of the producers in disposing of their surplus would pay the cost of an adequate advertising campaign five times over. Advertising is the universal adjuster that makes consumption commensurate with production in any industry to which it is properly applied.

Attorney General McCarter has nullified the proceedings of the citizens of North Plainfield whereby a $4,000 school bond issue was authorized on May 23. In his ruling the Attorney General makes the point that the ballots should have borne the full text of the resolution instead of the words "for" and "against." The borough Board of Education in its procedure complied strictly with the law and with the rules of the State board so far as they were informed of them. The new ruling is to be embodied in a circular which the State authorities have not yet distributed. It is worthy of note that the proceedings last month, which are declared irregular, were precisely the same as those of June, 1904, when the $36,000 of school bonds were voted on the same sort of ballot which is now rejected. As the money is absolutely necessary to complete and furnish the Somerset street school house immediately, it is to be hoped that the Board of Education will lose no time in resubmitting the proposition to the people. It went through unanimously before, and there is no likelihood of opposition now.

K. T. FIELD DAY.

Trinity Commandery to go to Atlantic City.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., held a conclave last night and discussed plans relative to participating in the annual field day of the Knights to be held on October 12, at Atlantic City. The Knights voted to attend in a body, but just what provision will be made for the trip has noe yet been decided. It may be arranged to run an excursion from this city, giving anyone so desiring an opportunity to take the trip. George M. Macintyre, eminent commander, will soon appoint a committee to complete details for the trip.

During the evening the Order of Malta was conferred on five candidates by Right Eminent Sir Dr. D. C. Adams. It was decided to "call off" the conclaves for the summer months. It is quite likely that other Masonic lodges will do the same thing.

Alfred P. Gardiner and family, who have occupied their house corner of Grove street and Park place, for the past two months, have gone to their cottage at Allenhurst for the rest of the summer.

arts, the books most in demand are those of a practical nature, as books on personal religion, then books relating to the Bible.

The most read sub-division of Philosophy which follows Religion in order of popularity, is Psychology; here, as in Education, the demand being chiefly from the teachers. The sub-division, Ethics, next claims the most readers.

Philology is the least read of any of the main departments, but 153 books representing the entire number circulated throughout the year.

Incomplete as it is, the above summary gives something of the character of the reading. As to its quantity, the library circulated over 50,600 for the year ending May 31st. This is the largest number ever circulated in one year. Each available circulating books has been out 2 16-100 times, and every inhabitant has had an average of 3 29-100 books during the year. Comparing these figures with those of other libraries, we may feel that people are making good use of the public library, and that our work compares favorably with that of other libraries, both in quality and quantity.

ARCANUM UPRISING.

Talk of Reconvening Supreme Council Denied.

Considerable surprise was expressed yesterday at the announcement in a New York paper that the executive committee of the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum had been impelled by the outcry over the recent advance in assessment rates in that order to call a special meeting of the Supreme Council to be held at Boston on June 29 to hear protests and to take such action as might be deemed necessary.

In reply to a telegraphic inquiry to W. Holt Apgar, of Trenton, a past supreme and past grand regent of the order, the following explanation has been received:

Trenton, June 20.—Executive committee, Royal Arcanum, has no authority to call Supreme Council in special session. That committee will hold a regular session in Boston on June 27 to transact its regular business. It has not authority to change, alter or amend laws.

W. HOLT APGAR.

Big Celebration at Park Club.

The affair promises to be more elaborate than ever and every effort will be made to surpass the celebrations of previous years. P. H. S. CLUB CONCERT AT CASINO LAST NIGHT

YOUNG MUSICIANS GAVE A CREDITABLE PERFORMANCE.

The first of the series of social events that mark commencement week locally took place at the Casino last night, when the initial June concert of the Plainfield High School Musical and Glee Clubs was given. Though the entertainment was an innovation it attracted as much attention as though it had been customary for years and the seating capacity of the cosy auditorium was tested. The gathering included members of the school and their parents and young alumni who have not lost their interest in P. H. S. affairs.

The student musicians and vocalists were assisted by several more experienced instrumentalists, and the entire programme was worthy of commendation. The work of the participants showed long and careful practise, and it was rewarded by hearty applause after each number. Features were bass solos by Charles P. Titsworth and several selections by a trio composed of Arthur S. Mosher, violin; C. Kenneth Shupp, 'cello; Vincent Sokol, piano.

17 LAWS EFFECTIVE NATION'S BIRTHDAY

ASSEMBLY AND SENATE BILLS TO BE LAWS ON JULY 4.

Seventeen laws passed by the Legislature will go into effect July 4 because they have no section specifying a certain time when they shall become effective. A State regulation provides that all such acts shall go into effect July 4 after their approval. The seventeen laws referred to are as follows:

Senate 3, by Mr. Brown, now chapter 27. Appropriates $500 for the erection of a monument at Monocacy, Md., in memory of the Jersey soldiers who fought in the battle of July 9, 1864.

Assembly 15, by Mr. Wright, now chapter 48. Authorizes religious corporations to convey lands held for burial purposes to municipal corporations for public parks.

From "The Inland Printer," Aug. '04:

Tasteful composition has a large share in the production of the specimens although ink and paper have done their share, the typography has given the stamp of distinction to nearly every piece. A thorough appreciation of the suitability of certain type-faces to different kinds of printing has been the chief factor in producing this good work. Refers to Stafford, Printer

Samuel E. Moffett, writing in Collier's for June 24, again discusses "Legal Ethics," and among other things says: When it looked as if the people of Philadelphia were in a fair way to save their property from the robbers, 'the best lawyers in town'—I quote a typical New York despatch—'were started to work tying up the revolution in a legal tangle.' It was 'a brilliant exhibit of counsel fighting for the life and perpetuation of the political machine when the late Matthew Stanley Quay made the most powerful in the United States."

Pearson's Magazine for July represents an attractive collection of early summr reading, both in breezy short stories and in timely special articles. Chief among the latter is R. H. Graves's "Our Annual National Slaughter," recapitulating the enormous army of Fourth of July victims annually killed or maimed while celebrating Independence Day. "Points About Sea Swimming," and "The Camping Wagon" treat of subjects that will interest every one longing for the wildernes and relief from the heat of a sweltering ctiy. Charles M. Harvey contributes a timely article on "The Fortunes Earned by American Railroads," Charles C. Johnson in an article entitled the "Star Spangled Banner" tells of a wonderful industry of patriotism which has sprung up among us. "The Swish of the Lariat" is an accout of how, recently, the cow-boy king won his laurels as champion roper. "The Profession of Getting Hurt" and "How to Make Money Out of Pets" complete the list of article.s

In "How the Barlows Took It," in the July McClure's, Sewell Ford tells the other side of a "scare-head" story. The magnate's rattle-brained son has run off with an actress. When he comes home "broke" with his bride, hard-headed Mr. Barlow handles the case as fathers have done before, but the girl is quite outside of his and the family's and the reader's calculations. It is a stirring situation when she faces the family, and when it is over the reader will agree that she is as good and as splendid as Henry's Hutt's color-drawings make her beautiful.

SCORES SOMERVILLE.

Commissioner Says Residents Allow Corporations to Do as They See Fit.

Town Commissioner Chares A. Houston, of Somerville, has declared open war on the Somerville Water Company, and has signified his willingness to assist another water company in getting a franchise there. Mr. Houston declares that the town is paying the Somerville Water Company almost $1,000 a year for water used for the purpose of putting out fires, and that in the course of a year $50 worth of water has not been used. The water company has no franchise there, and unless some different arrangement is made in paying for water used for fire purposes, something will be done about getting another company in the town.

Mr. Houston said: "The citizens of this town want to wake up. The gas, electric light, water company, telephone company and Public Service Corporation use the streets of the town just as they see fit, and compel the taxpayers to pay an exorbitant price for everything that is used in the town. For my part I am tired of it and propose to make a fight, in which I will enlist the aid of every tax-paying citizen, in order to beat these corporations out. Public sentiment must be aroused and that's what I propose doing."

DEMOCRATIC ELECTION BOARD.

R. H. McAdams and Crowell Are Again Chosen to Serve.

The Union County Democratic Committee met Friday night at Democratic headquarters, in Elizabeth, and the election of two members of the County Board of Elections, to serve from July 1 next, was taken up. Under the law recently passed one member must be chosen for a term of two years and one for a term of one year. Robert H. McAdams was elected for the two-year term, and John L. Crowell, of Rahway, to serve one year.

The tickets for the annual outing to be held on Long Island, August 23, were distributed, and an effort will be made to make a record in the matter of attendance on that day.

ELIZABETH'S POPULATION.

Estimate on Census Returns Fixes It at 62,000.

The census takers at Elizabeth finished their labors Saturday. Elizabethport shows a big general increase in population, and it is estimated the entire tabulation will show Elizabeth to have about 62,000 inhabitants, which would be an increase of 10,000 in five years.

Had it not been for the closing of the Crescent Shipyard and the removal of the Babcock & Wilcox Works and Worthington Pump Factory from Elizabeth, the population it is believed would exceed 70,000.

Smith Fanned Eighteen.

Phil Smith's superb pitching was the feature of the Dunellen-East Millstone game, at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon. He struck out eighteen men. The score was 4 to 0, in Dunellen's favor.

It's not the price alone we want to talk about—it's quality. That's the principle point after all. The lowest priced article is not always the most economical. The greatest claim we can make for our Carriages and Go-Carts is that they are the best constructed on the market. We make it a point to see all the good lines and we buy only what we can recommend to our customers.

In regard to price—they are as low as you can expect to buy first-class goods for. The price quoted in this ad. will tell you that.

FASHION'S REALM.

How to Drape the Pointed Bodice—A New Madras Called "Shirting."

In draping the pointed bodice the line of the figure is followed three inches above the waist and three inches below.

A shirt waist with a small vest showing below the yoke is one of the new ideas. All of the shirt waist skirts are cut walking length, a little shorter than just touching.

Linen leads in wash stuffs, but chambray and dark plaid ginghams relieved with white chemisettes or embroidered collar and cuffs are stunning. Broderie anglaise suits are smart, but very expensive, and tiny eyelet all over gowns made with trimmings of eyelet and embroidery showing other designs are exceedingly handsome.

Quite charming, made of gingham or volle, is the dress seen in the picture.

GINGHAM OR VOILE COSTUME.

The skirt hangs from a shallow yoke at the sides and back, but lengthens into tab ends in front. A deep shoulder yoke on the bodice surrounds a chemisette of lace. Odd bows of ribbon of contrasting shades give character to the waist.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FRILLS AND FRIPPERIES.

Huge Lace Trimmed Buttons—Adjustable Linen Sets on Coats.

Huge buttons as large as a fifty cent piece are made by sewing the smallest imaginable frills of lace round and round in circles on a covered wooden button mold. These buttons are used to ornament the fronts of handsome linen coats.

The plain close fitting waistcoat of white pique is a favorite with Parisian makers of street suits. Adjustable collar and cuff sets of linen are seen on many severely tailored street frocks.

Embroidered linen belts in every conceivable design are to be popular with the summer girls.

A stunning belt is made of wide silver flexible braid lined with pale green silk. The shivery light of the green through the meshes of the silver tissue are beautiful. The belt fastens with an opalescent buckle of wonderful workmanship.

A new and expensive variety of summer corset is made on the lines of the ventilated cheaper models. The material is heavy white silk openwork net, with boning covered with narrow white satin ribbon. They are shaped with the greatest care and skill and are very comfortable.

A beautiful coaching parasol of the season is of water green rajah silk.

WHITE NET WAIST.

perfectly plain. The crook handle is of a beautiful piece of real bamboo and ornamented with a long tassel of chenille fastened with a rosette of silk. White pongee parasols on the same lines have gold tassels.

For trimming hats or making belts come bolts of ribbon in half dozen pieces, each piece a shade lighter than the other, so that when put together they are beautifully shaded.

The dressy waist pictured is of white embroidered net made over a fitted lining of white silk. The guimpe and collar are of shirred net overlaid with bias bands of silk. The bolero of net is edged with white and green chiffon roses, which also form loops about the elbow sleeves. JUDIC CHOLLET.

CHAPTER VII.

Billy Gray was indeed in close arrest and the grim prophecy was fulfilled—Col. Canker was proving "anything but a guardian angel to him." The whole regiment, officers and men, barring only the commander, was practically in mourning with sorrow for him and chagrin over its own discomfiture. Not only one important prisoner was gone, but two; not only two, but four. No man in authority was able to say just when or how it happened, for it was Canker's own order that the prisoners should not be paraded when the guard fell in at night. They were here at tattoo and at taps all right. The officer of the guard, said several soldiers, had quite a long talk with one of the prisoners—young Morton—just after tattoo, at which time the entire guard had been inspected by the commanding officer. But at reveille four most important prisoners were gone, and such was Canker's wrath that not only was Gray in arrest, but the sergeant of the guard also, while the three luckless men who were successively posted as sentries during the night at the back of the wooden shell that served as a guard-house—were now in close confinement in the place of the escaped quartette.

Yet those three were men who had hitherto been above suspicion, and there were few soldiers in the regiment who would accept the theory that any one of the three had connived at the escape. As for the sergeant — he had served four enlistments in the —teenth, and without a flaw in his record beyond an occasional aberration in the now distant past, due to the potency of the poteen distilled by certain Hibernian experts not far from an old-time plains fort, where the regiment had rested on its march 'cross continent. As for the officers—but who would suppose an officer guilty of anything of the kind—a flagrant military crime? And yet—men got to asking each other if it were so that Bugler Curran had carried a note from the prisoner, Morton, to Mr. Gray about 2:30 that afternoon? And what was this about Gray's having urged Brooke to swap tours with him an hour later, and what was that story the headquarters clerks were telling about Mr. Gray's coming to the adjutant and begging to be allowed to "march on" that evening instead of Brooke? It wasn't long before these rumors, somehow, got to Canker's ears, and Canker seemed to grow as big again; he fairly swelled with indignation at thought of such turpitude on part of an officer. Then he sent for Gray—it was the afternoon following the sailing of the ships with the big brigade—and with pain and bewilderment and indignation in his brave blue eyes the youngster came and stood before his stern superior. Gordon, who sent the message, and who had heard Canker's denunciatory remarks, had found time to scribble a word or two: "Admit nothing; say nothing; do nothing but hold your tongue and temper. If C. insists on answers say you decline except in presence of your legal adviser." So there was a scene in the commander's tent that afternoon. The morning had not been without its joys. Along about ten o'clock as Gray sat writing to his father in his little canvas home, he heard a voice that sent the blood leaping through his veins and filled his eyes with light. Springing from his campstool and capsizing it as he did so, he poked his curly head from the entrance of the tent — and there she was — only a dozen feet away — Maj. Lane in courteous attendance, Mr. Prime sadly following, and Miss Prime quite content with the devotions of Capt. Schuyler. Only a dozen feet away and coming straight to him, with frank smiles and sympathy in her kind and winsome face—with hand outstretched the moment she caught sight of him. "We wanted to come when we heard of it yesterday, Mr. Gray," said Amy Lawrence, "but it was dark when we got back from seeing the fleet off, and uncle was too tired in the evening. Indeed, we are all very, very sorry!" And poor Billy never heard or cared what the others said, so absorbed was he in drinking in her gentle words and gazing into her soft, dark eyes. No wonder he found it difficult to release her hand. That brief visit, filled with sweetness and sunshine, ought to have been a blessing to him all day long, but Canker caught sight of the damsels as they walked away on the arms of the attendant cavaliers—Miss Lawrence more than once smiling back at the incarcerated Billy—and Canker demanded to be informed who they were and where they had been, and Gordon answered they were Miss Lawrence, of Santa Anita, and Miss Prime, of New York—and he "reckoned" they must have been in to condole with Mr. Gray—whereat Canker snarled that people ought to know better than to visit officers in arrest—it was tantamount to disrespect to the commander. It was marvelous how many things in Canker's eyes were disrespectful.

So he heard these stories with eager ears and sent for Gray, and thought to bully him into an admission or confession, but Gordon's words had "stiffened" the little fellow to the extent of braving Canker's anger and telling him he had said all he proposed to say when the colonel called him up the previous day. The result of that was his being placed in close arrest and informed that he should be tried by general court-martial at once. So he had taken counsel, as was his right, and "counsel" forbade his committing himself in any way.

"Then you refuse to divulge the contents of that note and to say why you were so eager to go on guard out of your turn?" said Canker, oracularly. "That in itself is sufficient to convince any fair-minded court of your guilt, sir." Whereat Gordon winked at Billy and put his tongue in his cheek—and Billy stood mute until ordered, with much asperity, to go back to his tent.

But there were other things that might well go toward convincing a court of the guilt of Lieut. Gray, and poor Billy contemplated them with sinking heart. Taking prompt advantage of his position as officer of the guard, he had caused the young prisoner to be brought outside the guard-house, and as a heavy, dripping fog had come on the wings of the night wind, sailing in from the sea, he had led the way to the sheltered side, which happened to be the darkest one, of the rude little building, and had there bidden him tell his story. But Morton glanced uneasily at a sentry who followed close and was hovering suspiciously about. "I cannot talk about—the affair—with that fellow spying," he said, with an eager plea in his tone and a sign of the hand that Gray well knew and quickly recognized. "Keep around in front. I'll be responsible for this prisoner," were his orders, and, almost reluctantly, the man left. He was a veteran soldier, and his manner impressed the lieutenant with a vague sense of trouble. Twice the sentry glanced back and hesitated, as though something were on his mind that he must tell, but finally he disappeared and kept out of the way during the brief interview that immediately followed. The prisoner eagerly, excitedly began his explanation—swiftly banishing any lingering doubts Gray might have entertained as to his innocence. But he had come from a stove-heated guard room into the cold sea wind of the Pacific—into the floating wisps of vapor that sent chill to the marrow. He was far too lightly clad for that climate, and presently he began to shiver.

"You are cold," said Gray, pityingly. "Have you no overcoat?"

SNAP SHOTS.

One of the young men students of Seton Hall College, whose home is out of town, and who graduated on Tuesday last, was twitted considerably for a few days last week by his classmates and other students of the college to whom he showed a letter that he had received from home. The letter was one that had come from his father in reply to one asking for $50 to see him over his graduation expenses. When the father of the young man got the request for the "Fifty," which he had expected, he concluded he would worry the boy a little, and instead of remitting at once he pasted on a piece of paper a verse that had been clipped from a magazine purporting to have been written by a young man at college asking for a like amount. It read as follows:

The Rose is Red,
The Violet is Blue;
Please send me Fifty,
For I Love You.

Beneath the verse the humorous father of the Seton Hall young man added:

The Rose is Red,
The Carnation's Pink;
Here's Your Fifty,
I Don't Think.

"What do you think of this?" said the young man to some of his classmaes after he read the reply to his letter, "the guv-nur has turned me down."

For a couple of days life was made miserable for the young student, and his patience was about exhausted over the twitting he was receiving when another letter came—it also from papa. It contained a check for fifty, and the young man then had the laugh on the others.

AMUSEMENTS.

Thursday evening next will mark the full opening of the season at Manhattan Beach, for at 8 o'clock in Pain's Amphitheatre will be produced Port Arthur, the pyro-spectacle of the season, depicting the most important event of the Russo-Japanese war. The scenery has been painted with great care, so as to maintain strict truthfulness as to the locations of the various important points in the fortress. The picture presents a view of Port Arthur looking diagonally towards the sea. In the foreground are seen the old and new towns and the permanent fortifications. Across the harbor is Rihlung or Ehrlungshan (Mountain of the Two Dragons), which was reduced December 30, 1904, and which was the immediate cause of the surrender of Gen. Stoessel. To the right is the narrow entrance to the outer harbor from the shelter of the hills, while outside Admiral Togo's vessels are seen in the offing.

Luna Park, Coney Island, is now running full blast. The advent of the warm weather has proved a magnet for Coney Island, drawing the people there in hundreds of thousands and from noon till midnight and later every noise that the ingenuity of man has invented calls patrons to the respective show places. In the matter of attendance this year Luna Park is distancing all competitors, records of previous years falling by the board each warm day. Thompson & Dundy credit this to the fact that the free circus has been so enlarged and improved that for the gate admissions persons may enjoy a day in Luna Park without the expenditure of another cent. The best and biggest circus acts of the world, many of them brought direct from Europe for Luna Park, are in continual progress from noon to midnight with no repetition in the programme.

Perhaps the individual hit of the Circus on Mars at the Hippodrome has been made by Marceline, the English clown, who has kept his audience in roars of laughter by his droll grimaces, funny antics and grotesque tumbling. Bessie McCoy, the "saucy soubrette," has danced her way into the hearts of her audiences. In the circus part proper, the famous Clarksonians ride and do their unique aerial act; Carre presents his horses, dogs and ponies, and the Ballatzer Sisters and many other European acts find place on the boards. In "The Raiders" are presented two tableaux, one at West Point at the outbreak of the Civil War, showing the corps of cadets on the drill ground, and the second the battle at Rocky Ford.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.

Somerville Boy in Jail for Attacking Girl.

Harry Illingworth, twelve years old, son of George Illingworth, a former superintendent of the Somerset Woolen Mills, was placed in the county jail at Somerville, last night, in default of $5,000 bail, on a charge of murderous assault on Kate Jekel, aged five, at her home in Raritan. The girl was struck on the head with a stone, and the doctor says that she will die. The boy's friends say that he hit the girl by accident.

Within a few months George Illingworth, the father, has been badly hurt in a fight with Chief Engineer William Crater, in the Somerset Woolen Mills, and his two sons, Denton and William, who attempted to avenge the old man, were both shot and seriously wounded by Crater. Denton Illingworth is now seriously ill, and one of Illingworth's young daughters is believed to be dying.

HOLMES HEAVILY FINED.

Pays $50 for His Attempted Assault on Marshal Pope.

Pleading that he was drunk at the time and did not know what he was doing, Morton Holmes, who attempted to slash Marshal Pope with a razor, answered to the charge before Recorder Doud, last night. There were three counts against him in all, assaulting an officer, drunkenness and using profane language. The court imposed a fine of $50 or 100 days in jail and he took the former, having deposited the amount as bail soon after being arrested.

Orrin Holmes, who was mixed up in the first part of the affair and who was released in $10 bail, did not answer when his name was called. The bail was forfeited and the police were instructed to arrest him on sight.

SORRY HE MOVED.

Jim Donahue Says Its Cheaper Living in the City Than in the Borough.

Jim Donahue, who celebrated his removal from the city to the borough by getting gloriously drunk, handed up $5 to Recorder Doud, last night.

"I'm sorry I moved over," moaned Jim, as he saw the greenback go down in the court's pocket, "it's cheaper living on the other side."

"Maybe so," Judge Doud agreed, "but we'll just call this five spot your initiation fee for coming into a first-class community."

Cass Teller, who appears in the borough court, periodically, was fined $5 and promised to pay.

MISS RELLING A BRIDE.

Boroughite Becomes Mrs. Walter L. Randall.

Miss Sophie Relling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Relling, of 87 Harrison avenue, and Walter L. Randall, formerly of this city, but now of Trenton, were married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. C. E Herring, of the First Presbyterian church.

The bride was gowned in white chiffon over white silk and carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by her sisters, the Misses Gussie and Lena Relling, as bridesmaids. They were gowned in white chiffon and carried bouquets of pink roses. The best man was Albert Koch, of the borough.

The ceremony took place in the parlor beneath a large floral bell, also decorated with greens and the season's flowers. After the ceremony a reception was held, nearly one hundred guests being present from New York, Brooklyn, Trenton and this city.

During the reception music was furnished by a mandolin and zither orchestra. The bride received many gifts of silverware, cut glass and furniture. Later in the evening the couple left for Trenton, where they will reside. The groom is employed in that city by Roth & Co.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

Man's Arm Torn Loose from Shoulder in Trolley Car.

Charles R. Sawyer, of Camden, was badly injured on a trolley car while passing through Westfield Saturday night. Mr. Sawyer was riding on one of the through Philadelphia cars. He was talking to a man in the seat ahead of him and had his left arm resting on the window sill of the car.

As the car turned out on a side track near the west end of town, to be passed by one coming in the opposite direction, something struck Mr. Sawyer's arm, tearing it loose from the shoulder and breaking it in two places. The man in the seat ahead of him was also struck on the forehead and badly cut. Both men were taken to Dr. Sinclair's office, and after being treated were sent to their homes. It is said Mr. Sawyer's injury may result in the loss of his arm.

No one seems to know what it was that struck the men as the cars passed. The trolley people say the men could not have been injured by coming in contact with the passing car, and that they must have been struck by a pole or something of the kind in the hands of a passenger on the car that passed the one on which the men were riding.

The route of the parade has been made short to accommodate the enfeebled members of the G. A. R. who may want to march. Carriages will be provided for crippled veterans.

MATCH-HEAD BURNED EYE.

Assessor H. C. Van Emburgh Saves His Sight by Narrow Margin.

Assessor H. C. Van Emburgh struck a match yesterday to light a cigar. The blazing sulphur top flew off and shot toward his face. He shut his eyes instinctively. The next instant his left lids were stuck fast by the sputtering sulphur ball. If his eye hadn't closed the fiery pellet would have buried itself in the center of the pupil.

The lid was painfully burned, but Dr. F. C. Ard, to whom Mr. Van Emburgh hurried, said there was no danger of his sight being affected.

South Plainfield Citizens' Ways and Means Committee Report.

FIGURES AND REASONS

Leaders in Borough Movement Point Out the Handicap Under Township Government —Enthusiastic Sentiment.

Succinct and pungent reasons for the divorcing of South Plainfield from the rest of Piscataway Township were given by the Citizens' Ways and Means Committee in a report to the voters at a meeting in Washington Hall, South Plainfield, last night. The meeting, one of the regular monthly gatherings that are being held by the supporters of the borough movement, was attended by practically every voter in the entire district and the sentiment in favor of a separate municipality was markedly unanimous and enthusiastic.

The committee's report was as follows:

"This is a village which comprises more than one-third the wealth of the township; more than one-half of the population, and less than one-fifth of the area. We have two schools, costing about $7,000. The rest of the township has, or is to have within a year, schools costing about $32,000. There is $1,500 paid yearly for transportation, of which we get no benefit.

"The taxable wealth of the entire township is $1,848,510. Our taxable wealth is $627,355. From this it can be seen that we furnish $33,516 more than one-third of the taxable property and hold only a little more than one-fifth of the school property of the township, while we get none at all of the benefit of the transportation tax. In addition to furnishing a farm for the poor, worth $10,000, the township pays yearly $1,200 for its maintenance, of which we pay more than one-third, while there is not, we are glad to say, a pauper from our district.

"In the past year the township paid $2,529 for official service; our share of this amount was nearly $900. Our district is represented by one officer, namely, town committeeman. He receives about $130, while we were entitled to a patronage of $900 in the disposition of salaries. Gentlemen, if this place was a borough we would not pay $900 and get $130 worth of service. We would pay $450 and we would get $450 worth of service, that is, $100 to a borough clerk, $100 to a treasurer, $100 to our assessor and $150 to our collector. All the rest of the officers in a borough get no salaries.

"We are peculiarly situated at one end of a township about ten miles long. We are the wealthiest and most populous village in the township, but owing to the central location of New Market it is the seat of government. Our interests differ from those of New Market, inasmuch as we are a suburb of Plainfield, and our people are dependent, for the most part, on public works, while New Market is the headquarters of a farming community and dependent, for the most part, on farming interests. Consequently, the government that is best suited to the interests of New Market and the rest of the township is detrimental to our interests.

"We need a government that will labor to induce manufacturing enterprises to locate within our territory, and trolley connections to carry such of our people as are employed or may be employed in Plainfield, to and from their work. But as things are now, if any industry seeks to locate here, who is it that has authority to deal with them? Surely nobody in South Plainfield has any authority. Why, if a burglar enters your house and carries off all you possess, you have not sufficient authority to cause his arrest until you first get a warrant from New Market. And this, understand, is a village that has nearly as many inhabitants as the rest of the township. Does not that remind one of the tail wagging the dog?

"You have heard of people being made a lamb's tail of, but we wish to tell you, gentlemen, that we have been made a township tail, and, what is more, to our shame, we have meekly accepted the humiliating position, as if we were men who were afraid to stand for our rights. We don't know if you, gentlemen, have noticed that although this township is nearly 150 in the majority Republican, when a South Plainfield Republican runs against a New Market Democrat for any office, the Democrat wins by as much as 30 majority; and we want to tell you, gentlemen, that we give New Market credit for it, because a man who will go back on his own people is no good in any way in this world.

"Now then, considering all we have said, there seems to be but one remedy. Let us make South Plainfield a borough.

We understand there are a few people in South Plainfield who think it will be the means of raising their taxes. Well, we don't see how anybody can give them a bond that their taxes will not be raised, whether this place is made a borough or not, but judging from how things have been done in the past we can't see much to fear from in that quarter. If we did, we would not be in favor of it. In the last year there was raised by taxation in this township $31,662.57; of this amount the State and county got $15,897.77, leaving a balance for general purposes of $15,764.80; of this amount we were entitled to more than one-third, or, say, $5,500. We had expended on roads about $1,600, on schools about $1,400, and on salaries of township committeeman $130, making a total of $3,130. Now, understand we do not mean that our schools were both run for $1,400, because the State furnished from twelve to fifteen hundred dollars.

From this you can see that if our village was a borough and we paid the same amount of taxes as last year and made the same amount of improvements as last year, we would yet have a balance in the borough treasury of $2,370, or nearly one-half of the amount raised. Besides, do you know that there is no kind of municipality over which the law has such a check as a borough. If this was a borough and its officers wished to raise the taxes, do you know that they could not do so without the ocnsent of the people?

"Now, Mr. Chairman, from all that has been said we hope we have made it clear that there is no cause to fear that the borough would raise the taxes.

"But since your committee has started out on the duty for which it was appointed, they have noticed a certain condition about to exist, which is a real danger to health and property, and which, as a community, in our present coindition, are unable of ourselves to resist. We refer to the establishment by Glazier of a dead animal rendering plant, better known as a stench factory, If this was a borough we could make an ordinance prohibiting the existence of such establishments within our borders.

"Above and underlying all this, there is a sentiment born in the hearts of every human being, in every age and in every clime. It is a desire to manage their own local municipal affairs. The great fathers of this glorious republic possessed it, and they showed the world what they could do, and we would indeed be unworthy of the name of American citizens if we did not voice their sentiments."

After the report had been read a motion that all those in favor of the establishment of South Plainfield borough stand up was made. Every man in the hall rose.

The meetings will be continued, and the agitation will go on with increased force. The citizens have subscribed over $150 to defray the expenses of the meetings.

ALL CUBANS NEXT.

Unusually Strong Team Scheduled for Saturday.

Fans are looking forward to Saturday's baseball contest with the All-Cubans as one of the banner attractions of the year. This fast bunch of ball tossers from Cuba have been making a great record since coming to the States a few weeks ago, and they have an unbroken string of victories thus far. The defeat of the locals on Saturday by the Philadelphia Giants has put Manager Daab's men on edge and they are determined to regain their winning streak. "Billy" Beck, who was touched for fourteen singles by the colored brethren, is not discouraged, especially when he remembers that McKenna, pitching for the Plainfield team, was hit thirteen times safely by the same bunch. Yet he was more fortunate in winning his game through phenomenal fielding on the part of his team mates.

The defeat on Saturday will do the team lots of good and tend to "ginger" the players. The All-Cubans are much stronger this year than last and they are sure to give a fine exhibition. A feature of their play is that they do all their coaching in Spanish. They are remarkably fast as fielders and base runners, and their playing holds the interest of the crowds throughout the game.

The lineup of the teams will be as follows:

Plainfield—Kiernan, ss.; Cosgrave, cf.; Oldring, 2b.; Connolly, rf.; Cregan, lf.; Leonard, 3b.; Driscoll, 1b.; O'Neill, c.; Beck or Deegan, p.

All-Cubans — Bustamente, ss.; Valdes, 2b.; Almeyda, 3b.; Palomino, rf., p.; Garcia, c.; Hildago, cf.; Marzan, lf.; Cabrera, 1b.; DeMeza, Perez, Medina, p.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Williams, of Watchung, are the parents of a young son, who came to their home Sunday.

THOMPSON FOR SENATOR

Somerset County Leader to Oppose Frelinghuysen as a Candidate.

SITUATION IN UNION.

If Fisk's Name is Presented by Plainfield He Can Have Unanimous Nomination for State Senatorship.

The Newark News' political writer had this to say yesterday of the situation in Somerset and Union counties:

The News has already set forth the causes of the leaders' apprehen- Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, personal aide to the Governor and chairman of the Somerset CountyCommittee, wants the Senatorial nomination. It seems that the old rivalry which divided the Republicans of Somerset into the Thompson and Reed camps has been revived. Former Senator and Former Clerk in Chancery Lewis A. Thompson is incensed at the way in which the colonel opposed the reappointment of James L. Griggs for prosecutor of the pleas and got the place for John F. Reger, and has announced his intention of punishing the Governor's aide by appearing at the primaries as a candidate against him.

The leaders are annoyed, it is said, that this factional fight should have broken out in Somerset at this time, when the utmost harmony is needed in the party ranks to secure the election of a State Senator who will have a vote for United States Senator Dryden's successor.

There is one prominent State leader, whose position in the party should make him thoroughly familiar with the situation, who takes a pessimistic view of the conditions in Union County. There is an impression abroad that the Republican county leaders have decreed that the Senatorial nomination shall go to Plainfield next fall. According to the man referred to, this is not exactly correct. The real understanding is that if Plainfield presents a man who comes up to the Senatorial standard established for Union by such men as Chancellor Magie, Judge Benjamin F. Vail, Foster M. Voorhees and Judge Joseph Cross, she can have does not come up to this standard, the nomination will go elsewhere.

William Runyon has been spoken of as the choice of Plainfield for the nomination, and the leader referred to emphatically declares that he does not size up to the situation, and that if Plainfield presents him at the convention he will be opposed. If, on the other hand, former Mayor Charles J. Fisk should be brought forward as Plainfield's candidate, he would receive the nomination without opposition.

Mr. Fisk, however, has not consented to be a candidate, and it is by no means certain that he will allow his name to be used in connection with this.

It has been said that inasmuch as the friends of Representative Charles N. Fowler were actively promoting the candidacy of Mr. Fisk, Senator John Kean and his followers would oppose him and his nomination would stir up the two old-time factions anew and ruin all chances for that harmony which will be required to carry the county for the Republican party in this off year. The News's informant, who is close enough to talk for him, said that there was nothing in this because Mr. Fisk's nomination would be entirely satisfactory to the Senator and his followers, and that, as he put it, Representative Fowler was such a dead one, both in Congress and Union County, that it did not make the difference of a cent's worth whom he supported or opposed.

Plainfield has still another candidate for the Senatorial nomination in the person of Ernest R. Ackerman, a former freeholder and a man of standing in the community, who, it is said, comes up to the standard for a Union County Senator.

If Mr. Runyon should receive the nomination, the News's informant went on to say, he would be severely cut by the regular Republicans, besides which he would fail to obtain the support of the great majority of that independent vote which is so large in Union.

Should the Democrats exercise any wisdom in making their nomination and name a man who has the confidence of this independent element, he would poll almost all of this vote. About as strong a man as the Democrats could name, the speaker thought, is former Judge Patrick Hamilton Gilhooly,of Elizabeth. Mr. Gilhooly was for several years a member of the Common Council of his city, but of late he has devoted his time to the practise of his profession na let active politics alone. He is said to stand high in the estimation of his fellow-citizens, and would undoubtedly make a formidable candidate for the Senatorship.

RUN OVER BY ICE WAGON DYING IN HOSPITAL

FOUR-YEAR-OLD CHILD CRUSHED BENEATH 5,000 POUND WEIGHT.

From injuries received yesterday afternoon from being knocked down and run over by a heavy ice wagon belonging to the Natural Ice Company, Linda Bartel, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bartel, of Watchung, is dying in Muhlenberg Hospital today. Her right thigh was crushed and broken and she received internal hurts that may cause death at any moment.

The child was playing in front of her home near where the roads diverge at Williams' grocery, when an automobile came speeding along. She turned to get out of its way and ran directly into the ice wagon, driven by Edward McDonough. The pole struck her, and before McDonough could apply his brake, the wheels had passed over her. The vehicle was loaded with 5,000 pounds of ice, and it is a mystery to the physicians how she escaped being crushed to instant death.

MAN AND WIFE GET $3,000 FOR SERVICES

MR. AND MRS. ARMITAGE RECOVER FROM GILL ESTATE.

After deliberating for four hours, the jury in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Armitage T. Oakley, of this city, against John P. Emmons, executor of the Estate of Mrs. Emma Gill, deceased, returned a verdict for $3,000 for the plaintiffs, yesterday afternoon in Judge Heisley's Court, Elizabeth. W. S. Angleman, Esq., represented the plaintiffs and I. P. Runyon, Esq., the executor. The suit was for $5,000.

The case is one of long standing, dating back to February, 1904, when Mrs. Gill died at her home in West Fourth street. It was claimed by the Oakleys that they had assisted Mrs. Gill off and on for nearly ten years after the death of Mrs. Gill's husband and during her illness. Although the law would not allow the plaintiffs to testify in their own behalf, it was shown by other witnesses and by photographs that an electric wire and push button were installed between Mrs. Gill's home and that of the Oakleys next door, to be used when Gill needed assistance.

It was also shown by witnesses that Mr. and Mrs. Oakley performed many services for Mrs. Gill and that it was understood that when Mrs. Gill died she was to remember them in her will. At her death it was learned that she did not leave anything to them, but instead the bulk of the $1?,000 left by her went to relatives in England. There were a few minor bequests to persons in this city, but the Oakleys received nothing. It was further claimed that Mrs. Gill promised to give the Oakleys a residence property owned by her, but this she did not do.

Dr. Saran D. Kenney was one of the principal witnesses for the executor, as she was Mrs. Gill's physician for several years. She testified that she had never seen the Oakleys at Mrs. Gill's home and that her acquaintance dated practically from the time the suit was started. She could not remember that they had performed any special service for her patient.

Immediately after the verdict was rendered Mr. Runyon announced his intention of applying a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted, and the case will probably be taken up.

TURN DOWN ROAD.

Thoroughfare on Way From Plainfield to Shore Turned Down.

Elijah C. Hutchinson, State road commissioner, following an inspection of the Oak Tree and Woodbridge road in Middlesex county, the macadamizing of which has just been complete, has refused to accept it on behalf of the State road department, on the ground that it was not built according to specifications. The road cost $100,000, the State's share of which would have been one-third, or a trifle over $33,000 Under the action of the commissioner this will not be paid.

The road is one of the main thoroughfares from this city to the shore, and the specifications for its improvement were approved by the State department December 22, 1903. The macadam was to have been 12 feet wide and 8 inches deep. On the inspection Monday Commissioner Hutchinson found the surface good, but in places the road had been built five feet above the proper grade.

Roy Cox, of West Seventh street, will return from Harvard College, this week. He is a member of the senior class.

ST. GABRIEL'S EXERCISES

Bishop McFaul Makes Address at the Commencent.

PUPILS TAKE PART.

Held at the Park Club—Visiting Priests on the Platform—Bishop's Remarks.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, the pupils of St. Gabriel's Academy conducted their annual commencement exercises in the Park Club house, yesterday afternoon. The programme rendered reflected great credit on the classes and their teachers and both were warmly complimented. The recitations were exceptionally good, the music, vocal and instrumental, was true and inspiring, the customary operetta was cleverly given and the movements of the class in physical culture were gracefully and skilfully executed. The "Star Spangled Banner" in pantomime was exceedingly beautiful and earned a well deserved encore. At the conclusion of the programme, Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, gave an appropriate and helpful address on "Education."

In his address, Bishop McFaul said man naturally longs for the truth, and that education brings him to it. All schools have the truth for their precept and it broadens the mind, giving men physical and moral liberty. Education, he said, also inculcates patriotism, as it makes children love their homes and their country, as the country is but a collection of their homes. In closing, he complimented the pupils on the completion of their year's work and their rendition of the programme.

The pupils who took part in the programme were the Misses Lillian Pauly, Marie Kenney, Anna Pedeflous, Irene Duchesne, May Duchesne, Mary Logan, Francis LaPorte, Grace Rafferty, Jennie Dinneen, Bernadette Duchesne, May Noonan, Nettie Blank, Edith Joerges, Theresa Schneider, Mary Berkhan, and Hortense M. Sheldon; Masters George and John Noonan, Morton Kapp, Francis Lee, William Fullard, Charles Moraller and John Pedeflous. The Misses Hoover and Pauly acted as accompanists and Martin Korff was violinist.

Among the visiting priests who occupied seats on the platform were Mgr. O'Grady, of New Brunswick; Father Dunphy, of Dunellen; Father Tyrrell, of Rahway; Father Westman, of Cranford; Fathers Shandel and Miller, of St. Joseph's, and Father Bogan, of St. Mary's.

VAN ORDEN GUILTY OF NEGLECTING WIFE

JUSTICE SMALLEY ORDERED HIM TO PAY HER $3 WEEKLY.

Rendering a decision reserved for a week, Justice Smalley yesterday ordered Daniel B. VanOrden, a contracting carpenter who lives on Stoney brook place, to pay his wife, Harriet VanOrden, three dollars a week for her support and maintenance. VanOrden was arrested on a charge of desertion and non-support.

The wife alleged, and brought forward testimony to prove, that VanOrden had neglected her at various times, and given her insufficient money for household expenses. Two weeks ago, she alleged, he deserted her, and after waiting two days for he return she went to the home of her married daughter for shelter. VanOrden tried to prove, by grocers and other witnesses, that he had maintained his household properly, and that his absences from home were made necessary by business. He submitted testimony to the effect that he had returned from his last trip after two days and a half.

After considering the evidence for a week, Justice Smalley arrived at the conclusion that VanOrden had been neglectful as charged, and rendered his decision accordingly. Fred J. Huff conducted the woman's case.

The members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A .R., and the Women's Relief Corps will leave tomorrow morning for Trenton to attend the annual session of their respective organizations. Post No. 73 has been given the position of honor in the line of march.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA CRIPPLE WAS A FAKE

CONTORTIONIST SWINDLER WHO FOOLED PLAINFIELDERS IS EXPOSED.

George Bronson, a fake cripple with a remarkable record for money-making at the expense of the public sympathy in New York, was exposed and run out of town by the police of Hoboken Monday. The fact is of interest locally because Bronson worked his little game with a lot of success here for two days last week.

Bronson is a skilful contortionist, and his game is the imitation of an extreme attack of locomotor ataxia. He came into the city apparently in the most horrible shape from the disease. His walk was a nightmareish thing of shakes and quivers, and his head sagged down between his shoulders at every step. His legs seemed to bend above the knee, and he always appeared to be on the verge of toppling over. He applied to Mayor Buckle and Chief Kiely for a permit to sell laces, and at that time the authorities were fooled completely. Chief Kiely thought Bronson was in a terrible state and pityingly gave him the necessary permission to work here for two days.

In the time he was here Bronson gave about a thousand citizens the creeps, and nickels and dimes flowed his way. He offered his wares to every helper, but nobody felt mean enough to take anything in exchange for the money.

Detective McCarthy, who is a synic by way of business, watched Bronson closely, and the second day after the "cripple's" arrival he saw some things in the unfortunate's make-up that led to a quiet tip to get out of town quickly. Bronson tried to bluff his way through the call-down, but weakened when examination by a doctor was suggested. He said he preferred to move on.

To the Hoboken police Bronson made a complete acknowledgement. He said his favorite field was Twenty-third street, New York, where he had cleaned up over $200 a day at times. He must have gotten over $50 here.

MISS PATTEN WEDS.

Now the Wife of Edward C. M. McKay, of Cleveland.

Miss Louise Patten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Patten, of 327 East Seventh street, and Edward Creighton McKay, of Cleveland, O., were quietly married yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. William C. O'Donnell, formerly pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, but now of the West End Avenue M. E. church, Jersey City, performed the ceremony. Invitations to the wedding were limited to the relatives and a few intimate friends. Neither the bride or groom was attended.

There was a reception at 5:30, after which Mr. and Mrs. McKay left on a wedding trip. They will reside in Cleveland, where the groom is engaged in business as president of the Bodifield Belting Company.

The bride is well known here and is a favorite in a large circle of friends. She received many handsome and costly gifts, as well as the best wishes of all.

Caledonian Club Entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Williams, of East Randolph road, entertained the Caledonian Choral Club, of New York city, Monday night. A lunch on the lawn was an important feature, after which the guests strolled through the woods and gathered wild flowers. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. John Werle, the Misses K. and A. Werle, the Misses A. and G. Kathman, the Misses M. Mc Gee, A. McKinley, A. Miller, C. Heim and F. Abrams; C. B. Hayes, R. Young, Edward Cleveland, B. Kutz, J. Waterson, Mr. Green, Mr. Blubonds and Mr. James. The club is one of the practice classes of Damrosh's Choral Union.

W. S. Rapp, of Albany, has purchased Mrs. Earl's interest in the Scotch Plains Hotel, and will continue the business in a first class manner. Mr. Rapp thoroughly understands the needs of a hotel and will do all that is possible to provide for the comfort and convenience of patrons. He has arranged to give dances every Wednesday and Saturday night in the pavilion, commencing on Saturday night. Naylor's Superior Orchestra will furnish the music.

Senior Class Dance.

John Leal and the senior class of Leal's School gave the annual reception and dance at the Casino last night, and the affair, like previous ones, was greatly enjoyed by members and friends of the school. There were one hundred guests, including a number from out of town. The dancing began about 9 o'clock and continued until 2 o'clock this morning. At midnight refreshments were served.

CLASS DAY AT THE P.H.S.

Absence of "Roasts" on Faculty Marks Exercises of 1905's Graduates.

ODD THROUGHOUT.

Resolved Into a Class Meeting During Which the Programme Numbers Are Given.

Class Day exercises were held by the high school seniors in the assembly room of Franklin School last night. An audience composed of graduates, undergraduates, and their friends in goodly numbers, filled the room and overflowed into the hall. One notable feature marked the programme. The faculty was not roasted; not even the mildest of unkind cuts was launched at Principal Travell and his associates. It was denied after the exercises that the censor had been at work, and the old graduates were puzzled to account for the omission.

In beginning the exercises the class introduced a new wrinkle. The members resolved the gathering into a class meeting, and rung in every number under parliamentary rules. Harry Thompson, the regular president, presided. Miss Ella Kelly was elected secretary, to take the place of Miss Florence Derby, who was too ill to be present. The girls were ranged on one side of the platform and the boys on the other. The former were dressed all in white and the latter wore duck trousers, topped by dark coats.

After Miss Kelly had read the minutes of the last meeting, which were strictly regular, a class song by Miss Derby was sung.

George Bentley was accorded the floor, and undisturbed by the pained expressions on the faces of rival classmen, read the class history. If there was ever a more remarkable collection of young men and women at P. H. S. than '05, Mr. Bentley never heard of them.

The school song, "The Blue and the White," was sung in chorus. Miss Amy Conant, dressed as a gypsy, delivered the prophecy.

A quartette composed of Harold Brownell, Howard Craig, Chester Briggs and Theodore Gavett sang a school parody on "Yankee Doodle Boy." Miss Lillian Snodgrass read the class poem.

President Thompson called for a report from the presentation committee, and the chairman made public the fact that '05's parting gift to the school will be five bas reliefs, to be hung in the new building.

A class song, by Howard Craig, in chorus closed the outlined programme, but Cushing got the last actual number. The seniors didn't get down and mingle with the throng until a motion to adjourn had been carefully passed.

A dance followed the exercises. Suhr's orchestra furnished the music.

RECEPTON AT FAITH CHAPEL.

In Honor of Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Musson.

In honor of the completion of his first year as pastor, the members of Faith chapel gave Rev. J. W. Musson and his wife a reception at the chapel last night. The place of worship was attractively decorated with flowers, and the members and friends were present in large numbers to give pastor and wife a cordial greeting.

Deacon U. B. Crane was in charge of the programme, which opened with a prayer by Frank Stewart. After a piano duet by Miss Lottie May Conger and Miss Helen Jeter, there were several addresses.

Charles W. McCutchen, Rev. J. A. Chambliss, Rev. A. E. Finn, L. W. Randolph and Rev. J. W. Musson were among those to speak. The success of Mr. Musson's pastorate during the past year was recounted and a continuance of it was hoped for the future. Mr. Musson responded in a pleasant manner and thanked all for the kindly words spoken.

Following the addresses there was a solo by Willard Miner and a cornet solo by Whitney Frazee, accompanied by Miss Charlotte Conger. The programme was concluded with recitations by Miss Ida Englehardt and Miss Helen Myers, together with a selection by the choir.

A social time followed and refreshments were served by the committee in charge. Mr. and Mrs. Musson will soon leave on their annual vacation. A portion of the time will be spent in the mountains and one week in their former home at Washington.

—The verdict of the family and guests at the Patton-McKay wedding last evening, was that the supper served by Davide Demolli & Co., the West Front street caterers, compared favorably with the best efforts of the leading New York caterers. There were over one hundred people present.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A Plainfield drunk came into William Davis' meat shop yesterday afternoon and called for dinner. Walter Brokaw, the clerk, explained that dinners in the prepared state were not sold there. The man became abusive, and when Mr. Brokaw ordered him from the shop, struck the clerk and pulled his apron off. When Brokaw got through with him the troublemaker was leadning against a tree on the sidewalk, thoughtfully wiping blood from his face. He washed up at W. H. Cole's pump and somebody helped him get aboard a Plainfield car. He seemed to have lost his appetite for dinner.

The followfng officers were elected by the Presbyterian Sunday School at its meeting Monday night: Superintendent, A. A. Lake; assistant superintendent, J. D. DeGroff; secretary, J. N. Apgar; treasurer, R. F. Bogardus; librarian, R. F. Bogardus, Jr.; assistant librarian, C. B. Lake.

The Silver Leaves, the junior nine, will play the Bound Brook Juniors Saturday morning on the Madison avenue grounds. Manager George Apgar is anxious to arrange more games with junior teams.

Miss Ethel Fenner, of Pluckamin, to whose coming wedding a number of local people have been invited, is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. J. Swackhamer.

The P. S. C. gang started to make the Washington avenue gas main connection yesterday. The end of the whole job is in sight.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hetfield will move from the borough to the Palmer place, recently purchased by Mr. Hetfield, tomorrow.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley has returned from a stay in Northern New Jersey. His health has been improved by the trip.

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED BY PLAINFIELDERS

WRITTEN BY REQUEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS.

NO. 1.—A Simple Explanation of the Plainfield Sewage Disposal Plant by Andrew J. Gavett.

Sewage disposal in the United States has made great progress during the last ten or fifteen years, but it is stated, in a recent publication, that there are still but four hundred disposal works in this country as compared with thirty-two hundred in England. The number of investigating committees who visit the Plainfield plant, seems to indicate a lively interest in the subject at the present time.

The first and most natural thought in connection with sewage disposal, is to secure an outlet to tide water or to some stream, but it is becoming increasingly difficult to find locations where such disposal can be permitted. The owners of land along tidal waters and rivers have become very alert in conserving their rights, and it is even required, in some cases, to partially purify the sewage before discharging it into the open ocean. In New Jersey and in some other states, no city or town is allowed to construct a sewerage system until the plans of the work have been approved by the State Sewerage Commission.

Where a sufficient area of suitable sand, or a very much larger area adapted to farming, can be found near a town (but not too near), an excellent disposal system may be secured; it is for the benefit of places where these conditions are wanting that the most modern systems have been developed.

The system used in Plainfield is called a bacterial or biological process, but in reality all disposal systems are equally so, excepting chemical precipitation.

In the first part of the process used here, the action takes place with the air excluded as much as possible; in the two succeeding stages air is provided in abundance.

The main sewer from the city discharges, under water, into two septic tanks covered by a tar and gravel roof, which are concrete cellars. The sewage passes slowly through the tanks, a distance of one hundred feet, requiring, at present, eight or ten hours to pass from one end to the other. During the time of passage the heavier and lighter particles fall and rise, forming the sediment and crust respectively; these are constantly being broken up, some particles dissolving, some forming gas and the rest remaining as sediment or crust, to be periodically discharged through special pipes onto sand beds. Here it dries out and is used for filling or fertilizer.

At the opposite ends of the tanks from where the sewage enters, there is a row of openings, about midway in depth between the sediment and the crust, so as to get the clearest water. These openings lead up to a weir, which is a wall one hundred feet long with its crest level with the water in the tanks; the water falls over this crest, receiving its first aeration. It is conducted through an open channel and a pipe, to a gate chamber at the center of the four upper contact beds, from whence it is diverted to each of these beds in turn. The contact beds are concrete boxes, ninety-two by one hundred and six feet, and five feet deep, nearly filled with broken stone, slag or clinker.

The contact beds, as their name indicates, work by holding the clarified sewage in contact with the stone or other material for a fixed time, after which it is drawn off and the spaces occupied by the liquid are filled with air.

The spaces between the stones usually diminish in time, making it necessary to clean the material occasionally; it is proposed to do this in the four upper beds during the construction of the extension referred to later.

The customary way to operate the beds is to allow a fixed time (two hours at the city plant) for filling, two for standing full, two for emptying and two for standing empty. The beds are, therefore, filled three times during the twenty-four hours, and for six hours out of the twenty-four are standing empty for aeration.

The water, when emptied through the sluice gate at the bottom of each bed, is carried through a pipe to a lower gate house, where the same process is repeated in the four lower contact beds; after standing in these beds, the final effluent is discharged through a pipe into the brook. As it leaves the pipe it falls onto a platform which causes the flow to take the form of a fluted dome, making an attractive appearance, and furnishing additional oxygen.

Two men are required at the beds to operate the gates, etc., one during the day time and one at night.

On account of the great increase in the number of houses connected with the sewers, it has become necessary to enlarge the plant; the plans for this work have been approved by the State Board of Sewerage Commissioners, and the work will commence as soon as the Common Council can complete the necessary formalities.

VAN HORN WILL CASE TESTIMONY TAKEN

DR. COOLEY, OF NORTH PLAINFIELD, A WITNESS.

The taking of testimony in the contest over the will of the late Abraham Van Horn was ended yesterday afternoon in Jersey City before Court Stenographer Lightfoot, who will submit it to the Chancellor. Dr. Edward H. Cooley, of North Plainfield, was an important witness.

The defendant, Henry J. Melosh, to whom Van Horn willed all of his estate of $175,000, except $10,000 given to Mrs. Anna E. Terry, the wife of his cousin, was cross-examined, but little new evidence was brought out.

Dr. Edward H. Cooley, manager of a private sanitarium at North Plainfield, who has treated between fifty and one hundred cases of paresis, said paretic patients show irregularity in handwriting in the motor stage. The motor stage has been defined at the trial as the period in which the power of locomotion is affected. He had had cases in which the handwriting had not been affected until within six months of their death. Paretic patients are sometimes able to go on with their work. The ability to compute interest was not evidence of the absence of paresis. Physicians with paresis have made prescriptions correctly.

Miss Mary E. Terry, daughter of Gabriel S. Terry, and Mrs. Anna E. Terry, of the contestants, with whom Van Horn lived at the homestead in Lafayette, testified of the home which she helped to make for Van Horn. Miss Terry's mother has told of a promise Van Horn made to remember her daughter in his will. Miss Terry's evidence went to show that she ought to have been substantially remembered. Miss Terry admitted to the defense that an error of $100 in a bank deposit slip might have been her error.

A squabble between the counsel over the absence of interest receipt accounts which the defense insisted should be put in evidence was settled by the production of the papers by Lawyer Henman, of the defense, who says the papers are his personal property.

PERMIT FOR THEATRE.

Granted by Building Inspector Doane.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane granted a permit yesterday for the building of Plainfield's new theatre, to be located in West Second street, and the work will now be pushed as rapidly as possible. W. J. Counihan, the new owner, has complied with all the requirements of the building ordinance.

In remodelling this building the committee representing the Elks, comprising C. J. Fisk, Charles A. Reed, A. L. C. Marsh, L. B. Woolston and James F. Buckle, had to be satisfied, as well as the Board of Engineers and Building Committee from the Common Council. All the requirements have been met and agreed to by Mr. Counihan, and he feels as though the building will be a model one in every respect.

Extra precaution was taken in the plans for the constructing of the proscenium, and it will be enclosed in brick walls and amply supported by iron girders and heavy iron plates, and the supporting walls will be of sufficient thickness and strength to make it safe.

Work has been in progress at the building during the past week, Chief Doane being permitted to give the contractors the right to tear out and prepare for re-construction. Now that the permit has been granted, the work will be started with full swing.

Edmund Rushmore and L. Herbert Condict, of this city, have been stopping at the Victoria, Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Suffern, who have been spending their honeymoon at Atlantic City, have returned home.

Miss Laura Salmons has returned to the Plainfield Business College after a brief experience in the New York business world.

UNION LABEL SECTION IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

COURT OF ERRORS AND APPEALS REVERSES JUDGMENT IN FAVOR UNION.

By a decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals, announced Monday afternoon in the case of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America against William H. Goldberg, the tenth section of the cat respecting labels and trademarks, passed March 15, 1898, is declared to be unconstitutional, and the judgment below in favor of the union is reversed.

By the act referred to it is made lawful for any organization to register with the Secretary of State a label to designate its wares, and it is made unlawful for any person other than the members to use such label ,or any counterfeit thereof. Section 9 provides for an action in chancery against infringers of the law, and section 10 says an action of debt may be brought in any court having civil jurisdiction to recover the penalty from the person offending. The penalty provided is not less than $200, nor more than $500.

This action was brought to recover a penalty of $200, under the tenth section, and at the trial in the Newark District Court the defendant moved for a non-suit on the ground that the section was unconstitutional. The plaintiff, however, had judgment, which, on appeal to the Supreme Court, was affirmed. It was then appealed to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

The opinion says: "In other statutes the Legislature prescribes either the absolute sum or a standard for ascertaining the sum proportioned to the wrong done. But in the case now before us none of these just limitations is observed.

"The Legislature has attempted to devolve upon the private party the duty or power of weighing the public considerations on which the penalty should be measured. It has said, in effect, we do not know what penalty will be appropriate to prevent or to punish violations of this statute; we perceive that less than $200 would be inadequate and more than $500 would be excessive, but beyond this we cannot decide. We leave it to the determination of the party to be benefited thereby.

"Such a course seems to us unconstitutional. * * * Our conclusion is that under this tenth section the powers of government have not been and cannot be fully exercised for the imposition of penalties upon offenders against the statute. In other words, that the exaction of penalties in accordance with its provisions would be the taking of property without due process of law, and consequently those provisions are invalid."

Twelve justices, all those present, voted for the reversal.

Three Girls Accuse Man.

The screams of children Sunday night attracted the attention of persons living on Spring street, Elizabeth, not far from the old racetrack grounds. The cries were traced to three girls, whose ages ranged from eight to twelve years. They accused a man, who disappeared. They described their assailant and Policeman Higgins, on duty in the vicinity, was notified. With several men the policeman captured a man who apparently answered the description. It was with difficulty the policeman prevented him from being severely dealt with by his captors. He is about thirty years old and unable to speak English. He gave a name which sounds like Joseph Esperdk, and it is thought he is a Pole. He is locked up at police headquarters in that city.

May Be a Wire Thief.

In the capture of a man who gave his name as Frank Stark, the police authorities of Elizabeth think they have secured one of the wire thieves who for several months have been operating on the lines of the Jersey Central and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads, and also along the line of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in Union county. The prisoner, when arrested at an early hour yesterday morning on Orchard street by Policeman Richmond, had in his possession a large quantity of copper wire and a pair of cutting pliers. He refused to state where he got the wire, and is locked up at police headquarters at Elizabeth pending further investigation.

Pastor Painted Steeple.

Tired of waiting for the painters to give the finishing touches to the new St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church at Millville, the Rev. H. E. Meyer, the pastor, assumed the role of "Steeple Jack," and, climbing to the spire, finished the work himself. He has done other manual labor on the edifice since the first excavations were made for the foundation. Through his personal efforts the church has been almost entirely cleared of indebtedness.

Henry James on English.

Henry James, author, of London, New York, and conspicuously, within the past few days, of Bryn Mawr, has aroused a formidable army of critics by reason of his declaration that the newspapers and public schools create and foster the use of "crude, untidy and careless English."—Trenton True American.

Plainfield, N. J., June 21, 1905.

Alexander and Hyde are out and Ryan is in. Reforms are great—sometimes.

Not a day passes without a check being received for the free open-air band concert fund. Today it was W. E. Lowe who generously contributed ten dollars to the cause and hearty thanks are given for his thoughtful kindness. Ninety dollars has been raised; who will make it the even hundred?

In another column a story on the political situation in Somerset and Middlesex counties is reproduced from the Newark News. Its assertions regarding Judge William N. Runyon's candidacy for a State Senatorial nomination are valueless, for Mr. Runyon is not in the running. He is authority for the statement that he and his friends are for former Mayor Charles Joel Fisk for that honor.

The action of the Freeholders in deciding to build a new bridge over Greenbrook at West End avenue is commendable. It is the intention of a local syndicate to develop the tract known as Rockview Heights, and for this reason it is essential that the approaches be of the proper sort. From what can be gathered, the bridge is to be similar to the Watchung avenue one in construction, and, therefore, will be suitable in every way.

Commencing with this issue, The Daily Press will publish weekly timely articles of local interest written by prominent persons in the city and borough. The object is to diffuse information concerning local institutions and affairs generally, principally those misunderstood, or not understood, thoroughly by a majority of people. For instance, few know very much concerning Plainfield's excellent sewage disposal plant. This is chiefly because whatever has been written about it has been so filled with technical words and terms that the average reader does not thoroughly grasp it. For this reason Andrew J. Gavett, Plainfield's street commissioner and a recognized authority on the subject, was asked to tell the story in simple language and he has kindly done so. His contribution will be found on page three.

NEW FEATURES.

Another Series of Interest Starts Today.

The first of a series of timely talks by Plainfielders is to be found on page three. Read it today and watch for equally interesting articles every Wednesday.

The second in the series of pulpit talks by local clergymen will be published Saturday.

On Saturday also, "The Mysterious Mr. Snuffles" will give his second installment of wanderings about the city.

Central's New Feeder.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey yesterday consummated a deal whereby it has secured control of the Rockaway Valley Railroad, extending from Whitehouse to Watnong, N. J., a distance of 24.5 miles. The road will be rebuilt and extended to Morristown and Dover. The road makes connections with the Jersey Central at Whitehouse. The Rockaway Valley is a reorganization of the Rockaway Valley Railroad, the Rockaway Valley Manufacturing and Construction Company and Mendham and Morristown Extension Railroad, sold under foreclosure in 1895.

To Arrange for Special Election.

A special meeting of the borough Board of Education will be held tomorrow night for the purpose of fixing a date when the proposition for the issuance of $4,000 of school bonds can be submitted to the voters.

F. O. REINHART DEFEATED.

Plainfield Crack Makes Good Showing at Golf.

The home and home seventy-two hole four ball match between Murray Olyphant and John Hobens, of Englewood, against F. O. Reinhart and George Low, of Baltusrol, was practically decided on Monday during the first half of the match, played at Englewood, when, through the phenomenal work of Hobens, the Englewood pair finished in the lead by 9 up. Although the second half of the match was played at Baltusrol yesterday, the lead was too great for Reinhart and Low to overcome, especially as the visitors played quite as well over the Baltusrol course as did the home players.

In fact, on an even basis, it would have been no easy matter for Reinhart and Low to have won, as they were all even going out, and by coming home in par golf of 37, they were only 2 up on the morning round, which was primptly squared on the first two holes in the afternoon. At the turn honors were still even, but on the day's play Reinhart and Low finished 1 up.

This had no effect on the general result of the seventy-two holes, as Olyphant and Hobens, with their lead carried over from Englewood of nine holes, handily won the match by 9 up and 8 to play. Some good golf was played yesterday, as the best ball of each pair showed par golf. Low did the course in the morning round in 76, which shows that his card represented the best ball of his side in all but the home hole, which the two amateurs halved in the sterling golf of 3. Hobens did each of his rounds in 80, which was not up to his brilliant display of skill at Englewood, but he was not pressed, as they had the match well in hand, and had to play only for a half instead of being obliged to try to win each hole. The cards were:

MINSTREL TROUPE SCORES.

Muir's Blackface Show Scores at Scotch Plains.

The Perseverance minstrel troupe repeated former local successes at Scotch Plains last night, when the organization presented another of its blackface entertainments in Excelsior Hall. It was given under the auspices of the village firemen and proved such a drawing card that the "S. R. O." sign was displayed at 8 o'clock.

The performance passed off smoothly and the various members of the troupe made individual hits. Aleck Muir acter as interlocutor, and George B. Cose, B. C. Firstbrook, Thomas M. Muir and Harry Blimm handled the tambos on the end. Ira C. Bowers gave an original song and dance that "brought down the house," and Harry Blimm scored with topical verses to "Tammany," whitten expressly for the occasion. The other soloists were Elmer D. Cuttin, Jack Todd, William Doud, George Pope, William Firstbrook, Harry Keen, Harry Holmes and Joseph Baker. Edward Clark presided at the piano.

In an olio that followed the first part, A. E. Willard and Louis Schermerhorn kept the crowd laughing for thirty minutes with their original musical sketch, during which they gave solos on half a dozen different instruments. Their act was one of the features of the show. George Cose, Bert Firstbrook, Aleck Muir and Thomas Muir gave the popular "Essence of Ole Virginny" dance, and illustrated songs were sung by Elmer D. Cutting, with William Schorb operating the slides.

The show was arranged by Thomas Muir, the manager-actor, assisted by B. Casselberry Firstbrook, while the committee from the fireman comprised Philip Jahn, Edward Hand and Charles Meyers.

H. W. BOWEN DISMISSED.

President Acts Quickly on the Taft Findings.

Herbert W. Bowen, Minister to Venezuela, and brother of Henry G. Bowen, of this city, was last night dismissed from the diplomatic service by President Roosevelt, who in a scathing arraignment refers to his conduct in the Loomis case as "especially reprehensible" and accuses the minister of having shown "complete disloyalty" to the country he represented."

The President's censure of Minister Bowen is the most bitter given an official of the Government within the last twenty years.

His dismissal is the result of bringing what the President and Secretary Taft regard as "false and malicious charges against Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Loomis, who preceded him as American Minister at Caracas."

Mr. Loomis did not escape entirely. Secretary Taft, in his review of the case, in which the President concurred, said some sharp things of him.

This is the official verdict in the scandal which has been agitating the administration for months. Though Mr. Bowen has failed to substantiate his charges that Mr. Loomis acted dishonestly while Minister at Caracas and was really the agent of the Asphalt Trust and in its pay, he has made a showing which, it is believed, will force Mr. Loomis to resign. With his reputation for discretion publicly besmirched by the findings of Secretary Taft, his friends admit that his future diplomacy is ruined and that the only course open to him is to resign.

Telephone Company at Austion.

The independent Red Bank telephone company's property, including corporate rights, privileges, franchinses, immunities, telephone lines, real estate, wires, cables, poles, instruments, tools, and, in fact, everything connected with or appertaining to the company's business, will be sold at auction tomorrow afternoon in Freehold. The company went out of business several months ago, a mortgage having been placed on all its property.

Priests in Retreat.

Among the one hundred Catholic priests of the Newark Diocese who entered upon the first of the annual retreats at Seton Hall College Monday are Rev. J. E. Delahanty, of St. Mary's church; Rev. A. M. Egan, of Bayonne, and Very Rev. P. E. Smyth, of Jersey City, former rectors, of St. Mary's. The retreat will last until Friday.

STATE OFFICERS FOR VARIOUS REFORMS

CHARITIES AND CORRECTION HEAD CALLS ATTENTION TO DIFFERENCES.

Having completed his inspection of the State's penal and charitable institutions, Rev. Dr. George B. Wight, the new commissioner of charities and correction, finds much to approve and not a little to criticise in these places. Speaking of the State institutions he says:

"These institutions are under the control of excellent boards and officials. Of course, there will need to be some changes, some reform and some improvement. The purchasing of supplies particularly needs to be overhauled. I find, for instance, the difference of $2 per barrel in the price paid by different institutions for the same grade of flour. I also find a difference of two and three cents a pound in the price charged for precisely the same article purchased of the same firm, out by different buyers for different institutions.

"There are some fundamental defects in the institutions. Some of them have not been started right. Take the Rahway Reformatory, for instance. This institution was projected on a scale of costly magnificence entirely foreign to its character. It is an ornate and splendid building, but is so poorly supplied with beds that sixty or more of the boys have to sleep in cots in the halls. The institution should be better equipped."

Commissioner Wight will this week begin his tour of inspection of all the county institutions, penal and charitable.

Comment on Architect's Action.

"There has been a statement in the newspapers," said Dr. Wight, that I had gone out of the State for a draftsman. This is not true. Both Mr. Poole and the draftsman are licensed architects of this State. The hostile attitude the State Board of Architects has assumed is based on a misapprehension. The law simply provides that all plans for new buildings and alterations shall be approved by my assistant, Mr. Poole, and the work supervised by him. It does not necessarily follow that he is to draw all plans for such State buildings, and that no other architects are to be employed. Whenever the State undertakes the erection of a great and costly building it would be very appropriate to call in the services of other architects of high reputation.

"I may say that the department has already effected a saving to the State of from $20,000 to $25,000 through the services rendered by my assistant, Mr. Poole, an architect. The other day he saved a clean $10,000 in changing the location for the new building for the State Hospital at Trenton. He pointed out to me that the site chosen on the side of a hill would cost $10,000 more for the foundations than on level ground, and we looked about and found such a site in every way as adaptable for the purpose."

TOILET HINTS FOR WOMEN.

For Freckles.

Cucumber milk is the best thing in all the wide world for a complexion that is yellow, or speckled with freckles, or dulled with tan. Also very nice to use as a cleansing agent. Slice but do not peel three good-sized cucumbers; add half a cup of water and boil until pulp is soft; strain and cool. To one and a half ounces of the cucumber juice and an equal amount of alcohol. This makes three ounces of cucumber essence. In this dissolve one-fourth of an ounce of powdered castile soap. Let stand over night, next morning adding eight ounces of cucumber juice, one-half ounce of oil of sweet almonds, and fifteen ounces of tincture of benzion. Pour in the oil very slowly, shaking the bottle well. Keep in cool place.

To Get Rid of a Shiny Nose.

To rid your nose of "its ever glorious shine" bathe it frequently with diluted cologne. Regulating the diet will make the complexion less oily. Avoid pastries, fatty foods, and stimulating, spicy dishes. Eat all the crisp green vegetables you can. The scaly condition of the cuticle can be entirely done away with by the use of creme marquise.

Impure Breath.

Offensive breath is usually caused by some affection of the throat or lungs, or by decaying teeth. A teaspoonful of alcohol, two and one-half drams of cinnamon, one-half dram of ginger, one dram of essence of peppermint, one-half dram of cloves. Leave in infusion for two weeks in a covered vessel, filter and bottle.

Facial Massage.

Quick service directions for facial massage: Rub in orange flower skin food with a rotary movement of the finger tips, being careful not to push up the flesh in fine lines. For crowsfeet: Place first finger on eyelid close to the nose, sweep outward just beyond the eye, then back underneath to starting point. For wrinkles across the forehead use rotary movement and smooth the lines crosswise. Lines between the eyes: Place thumb at lower end of line and hold stationary; place first finger at upper end and smooth downward. Same treatment for lines extending from nose to corners of the mouth.

AN ORDINANCE

to Appropriate and Borrow Money, and to Secure the Repayment Thereof by the Issue of School Bonds, for the Purpose of Furnishing a School House in the City of Plainfield.

WHEREAS, The Board of Education of the City of Plainfield has decided by resolution That it is necessary to raise money for furnishing a school house, to wit, the new high school building in course of erection in the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, and has prepared and delivered to each member of the Board of School Estimate of said city a statement of the amount of money estimated to be necessary for said purpose, which amount it has estimated to be thirteen thousand dollars; and,

WHEREAS, The Board of School Estimate of the City of Plainfield has fixed and determined the said sum of thirteen thousand dollars as the amount necessary for said purpose, and has made two certificates of such amount, one of which certificates has been delivered to the said Board of Education, and the other to the Common Council of said city; and

WHEREAS, The total amount of bonds for school purposes, including bonds heretofore issued for such purposes and not redeemed, does not exceed a sum equal to three per centum of the taxable valuation of the real and personal property in said city; and

WHEREAS, Said Common Council has by resolution appropriated the sum of thirteen thousand dollars for such purpose and has directed that the said sum shall be raised and borrowed for the purpose aforesaid, by the issuing of bonds in the corporate name of the said city, bearing interest at the rate of four per centum per annum, which resolution was duly approved by the Mayor of said city; now therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That for the purpose of furnishing a school house, to wit, the new high school building in course of erection in said city, in conformity with the acts and proceedings above recited, the said sum of thirteen thousand dollars, be, and is hereby appropriated for the purpose aforesaid, and that the said sum shall be raised and borrowed for said purpose by the issuing of bonds in the corporate name of the said city, which bonds shall be each of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars and in the form annexed to, and approved by the resolution of the Common Council before referred to, which form is now on file in the office of the City Clerk of the said City of Plainfield, which bonds shall bear date the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred and five, all payable in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness, and which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of four per centum per annum. In order that a stated equitable amount of said bonds (in value) having regard to other school bonds already issued, shall become payable in each year within the time hereinafter specified, the bonds hereby authorized shall be made to mature as follows: On the first day of June in each year from the year one thousand nine hundred and eight, to the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty, both inclusive, one bond of one thousand dollars.

Sec. 2. That the proceeds of the sale of said bonds shall be deposited with the custodian of school moneys of said school district, and shall be paid out only on the warrants or orders of the Board of Education of the City of Plainfield, as provided by law.

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of meeting the principal and interest on the bonds hereby authorized, as the same may mature, there shall be assessed and collected each year by taxation, as other taxes are assessed and collected, a sum sufficient to meet the principal and interest maturing during such year.

Adopted by the Common Council June 19, 1905; approved by the Mayor June 19, 1905.

JAMES F. BUCKLE, Mayor.

Attest:—J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

GEORGE B. WEAN,
City Clerk, pro tem.
Plainfield, N. J., June 19, 1905.

A SUPPLEMENT TO AN ORDINANCE ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE FOR THE ASSESSMENT OF TAXES FOR THE YEAR 1905," APPROVED May 1st, 1905.

WHEREAS, The Board of School Estimate of this district, that is to say, the school district comprising the City of Plainfield, has fixed upon and determined the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the use of the public schools in such district for the ensuing school year, exclusive of the amount apportioned to it by the County Superintendent of Schools, to wit, the sum of Seventy Thousand Dollars ($70,000), and has made two certificates for said amount signed by a majority of all the members of said Board, one of which certificates has been delivered to the Board of Education of said school district, and the other to the Common Council of said City:

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of Free Public Schools and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," Approved October 19, 1903, the sum of Seventy Thousand Dollars ($70,000) be, and the same is hereby appropriated for the purposes aforesaid as other appropriations are made by the Common Council, and that said amount shall be assessed, levied and collected for the year Nineteen Hundred and Five in the same manner as moneys appropriated for other purposes in this City are required to be assessed, levied and collected.

Section 2. That in addition to the interest on school bonds directed to be assessed under the ordinance to which this is a supplement, there shall be assessed and raised by tax in the current year, for interest on Thirteen Thousand Dollars ($13,000) of school bonds authorized by the City Ordinance, Approved 19th, 1905, to fall due during the said year, the sum of two hundred and sixty dollars.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

"It's at my tent—I never expected to spend this night here. I've been before the summary court, fined for absence, and thought that would end it, but instead of that I'm a prisoner and the man who should be here is stalking about camp, planning more robberies. Yet I'd rather associate with the very worst of deserters or dead beats inside there," and the dark eyes glanced almost in horror—the slender figure shook with unmingled repulsion and chill—"than with that smooth-tongued sneak and liar. There's no crime too mean for him to commit, Mr. Gray, and the men are beginning to know it, though the colonel won't. For God's sake get me out of this before morning—" And again the violent tremor shook the lad from head to foot.

"Here—get inside!" said Gray, impulsively. "I'll see the adjutant at once and return to you in a few minutes. If you have to remain until the matter can be investigated by the general it might be—"

"It would be—" vehemently interrupted Morton, then breaking off short as though at loss for descriptiveness of sufficient strength. He seemed to swell with passion as he clinched his fists and fairly stood upon his toes an instant, his strong white teeth grinding together. "It would be—simply hell!" he burst in again, hoarse and quivering: "It would ruin everything! Can't the general give the order to-night?" he asked with intense eagerness, while the young officer, taking him by the arm, had led him again to the light of the guardhouse lamps at the front. The sergeant and a group of soldiers straightened up and faced them, listening curiously.

"It may be even impossible to see the general," answered Gray, doubtfully. "Take Morton into the guardroom till I get back, sergeant, and let him warm himself thoroughly. Don't put him with the prisoners till I return," and so saying he hastened away. Gordon, his friend and adviser, had left camp and gone visiting over in the other division. The lights at general headquarters were turned low. Even now, after having heard proofs of the innocence of the accused soldier, Gray knew that it was useless to appeal to the colonel. He could not understand, however, the feverish—almost insane impatience of the lad for immediate release. Another day ought not to make so great a difference. What could be the reason—if it were not that, though innocent of the robbery of the storehouse, or of complicity in the sale of stolen goods, some other crime lay at his door which the morrow might disclose? All the loyalty of a Delta Sig was stretched to the snapping point as Gray paused irresolute in front of the adjutant's tent, his quest there unsuccessful. The sergeant major and a sorely badgered clerk were working late over some regimental papers—things that Morton wrote out easily and accurately.

"I suppose, sir, it's no use asking to have the prisoner sent up here under guard," said that jewel of a non-commissioned officer. "Yet the colonel will be savage if these papers ain't ready. It will take us all night as things are going."

Gray shook his curly head. "Go ask, if you like, but—Morton's in no shape to help you—"

"Has he been drinking, sir?" said the sergeant major, in surprise. "I never knew him—"

"Oh, it isn't that," said Gray, hastily, "only he's—he's got—other matters on his mind! Bring me his overcoat. He said it was in his tent," and the young officer jerked his head at the patch of little "A" tents lined up in the rear of those of the officers.

"Get Morton's overcoat and take it to him at the guardhouse," snapped the staff sergeant to the clerk. "Be spry now, and no stopping on the way back," he added, well aware how much in need his assistant stood of creature comfort of some surreptitious and forbidden kind. The man was back in a moment, the coat rolled on his arm.

"I'll take it," said Gray, simply. "You needn't come."

"Go on with it!" ordered the sergeant as the soldier hesitated. "D'ye the service has gone to the devil and officers are runnin' errands for enlisted men? An' get back inside two minutes, too," he added, with portent in his tone. The subaltern of hardly two months' service felt the implied rebuke of the soldier of over 20 years' and meekly accepted the amendment, but—a thought occurred to him: He had promised Morton paper, envelopes and stamps and the day's newspapers—the lad seemed strangely eager to get all the latter, and vaguely Billy remembered having heard that Canker considered giving papers to prisoners as equivalent to aid and comfort to the enemy.

"Take it by way of my tent," said he as they started, and, once there it took time to find things. "Go back to the sergeant major and tell him I sent you," said Gray, after another search. "He needs you on those papers."

And when the officer of the guard returned to the guardhouse and went in to the prisoner, the sergeant saw—and others saw—that, rolled in the soldier's overcoat he carried on his arm, was a bundle done up in newspaper. Moreover, a scrap of conversation was overheard.

"There's no one at the general's," said the officer. "I see no way of—fixing it before morning."

"My God, lieutenant! There—must be some way out of it! The morning will be too late."

"Then I'll do what I can for you to-night," said Mr. Gray, as he turned and hurriedly left the guardroom—a dozen men standing stiffly about the walls and doorway and staring with impassive faces straight to the front. Again, the young officer had left the post of the guard and gone up into camp, while far and near through the dim, fog-swept aisles of a score of camps the bugles and trumpets were wailing the signal for "lights out," and shadowy forms, with coat collars turned up about the ears or capes muffled around the neck, scurried about the company streets ordering laughter and talk to cease. A covered carriage was standing at the curb outside the officers' gate—and the sentry there posted remembered that the officer of the guard came hurrying out and asked the driver if he was engaged. "I'm waiting for the major," was the answer.

"Well, where can one order a carriage to-night without going clear to town?" inquired Gray. "I want—one; that is—I wish to order one at once."

And the driver, who knew very well there were several places where carriages could be had, preferred loyalty to his own particular stable away in town, and so declared there was none.

"You can telephone there, if you wish, sir," he added.

AMUSEMENTS.

A summer evening show with whirls of pretty girls and the greatest aray of dancers and entertainers that ever struck Broadway is now drawing life a four-ring circus in New York. It is Charles Frohman's great musical play in which Sam Bernard, the funniest comedian on the stage, has created a new laugh-making part. Mr. Bernard and "The Rollicking Girl" have played to over $100,000 in receipts at the Herald Square Theatre in its first six weeks there. The average is $16,700 a week. Everybody that can secure a seat goes to see this tremendous big show. There are three uproarious hours of enjoyment in it and more up-to-date lively music and catchy songs than four music hall programmes could furnish. Sam Bernard tickles the audience's ribs all this time and the handsome Hattie Williams charms them with such breezy and irresistible songs as "Tricks" and "Friends That Are Good and True" which are the biggest hits of the season.

Miss Dorothy Morton replaced Miss Emma Carus in the role of Lady Longgreen in the burlesque "When We Ar eForty-one" at the Wistaria Grove on the New York Roof Garden Monday night. She received a very warm welcome and sang three songs. The vaudeville portion of the entertainment, which contains many of the acts seen the opening week, includes the Girl in the Red Domino in a mirror dance, Kelly and Reno in a new act, Mosher, Houghton and Mosher in a comedy bicycle turn and Miss Elsie Janis in imitations of well known stage people, La Belle Theresita's slack wire act and Coco's performance, were other features of the bill.

LITERARY.

Some years ago, says a writer in Leslie's Monthly Magzaine for July, Frank Bostock, the showman, had a chimpanzee that seemed well-nigh human. It wore clothes, it brushed its hair, it carried a walking stick, and it ate its meals with knife and fork. Bostock paid a comparatively small sum for it when it was fresh from the jungle, but just before it died he carried $50,000 insurance upon its life. And even had you offered him $50,000 cash for it, you could not have bought it. It was the star attraction at his exhibition, and thousands croowded about its platform, day after day, for months.

Copper and Beef acquire a new and still more startling meaning in the July Everybody's. A good many unpleasant things have already been made known about these two sovereigns of commerce. But the greater part of their story has so far been untold, and a generous slice of it—a pithy, dramatic, historically significant slice—has been inserted, for the benefit of a continent of vitally concerned readers, in this single number of a single magazine. The infamous launching of "Amalgamated;" the conspiracy to rob the public of hundreds of millions; the treachery of the conspirators themselves toward their nearest victim, Mr. Lawson; and the latter's heroic determination to atone, alone, for the crimes of his associates—these are some of the events embodied, this month, in this thrilling personal narrative of his. It is safe to say that the story of the intellectual and moral duel between Mr. Lawson and Mr. Rogers, when "Amalgamated" was a day old, is one that will sink pretty deeply and permanently into the popular consciousness.

SNAP SHOTS.

Rain in an accumulation of the tiny particles of the vapor of the atmosphere into drops. These drops, first small of size, attract others of their kind and become drops of such magnitude that they fall to the earth because of their weight. There is a limit to the quantity of water which the air is capable of absorbing and retaining as invisible vapor. Warm air is able to hold more than cold air; hence when the air which is saturated with moisture becomes cold for any reason whatever it can no longer retain its moisture. A portion fust under such condition accumulate into drops. These fall to the earth in the shape of rain.

Your Chapeau.

Saucer hats remain.
Pompadours are new.
Mushrooms enjoy favor.
Metal roses are a "latest."
There are mauve red violets.
Hydrangeas are "the" flower.
Breton sailors are very smart.
Ostrich plumes are ubiquitous.
Tricornes continue good style.
Plumes as a rule contrast with the hat.

A new snake plume which is light blue has emerald ends.

The pompadour turns up quite as abruptly in front as at the back.

Lingerie hats are now too numerous and varied to be cut in one class.

Quills are as ubiquitous as ever. One serves for the average sailor hat.

Honeymoon in Auto.

Latest advices from Somerville say that the baseball fans are getting their team together for the brush with Plainfield. It was stated in a certain quarter yesterday that either Ames or Wiltse would be secured to do the pitching for the county seat team and that the other positions would be filled by players of equal strength, all of which will make the series of games the moe interesting. The Somerville supporters of the game know the strength of Plainfield and they are not going to leave a stone unturned in getting just as good an aggregation together. They mean business and intend to win if possible. In the meantime Manager Daab will not be asleep and he can be depended upon to meet his opponents with a team that will give them the race of their lives.

One of the enthusiastic Plainfield fans who attended the baseball game at Elizabethport on Sunday between the Stars and Frankfords wants to know how it is that American League players can engage in a contest against a blacklisted man like "Red" Waller and others of similar standing on the 'Port team. He says that in the game in question Chase, of the New York Americans, played with the Frankfords, and being under the National agreement, he thinks it should prevent them from engaging in such contests. According to last night's Elizabeth Journal, Tannehill and McFarlan, of the Chicago Americans, composed the battery for the Frankfords. If this is not a violation of the National agreement, there are many fans who would like to know what is. There is scarcely a Sunday that National and American League players do not engage in a game at the 'Port against outlawed men, and in many cases they appear under assumed names. It was announced at the 'Port on Sunday that next Sunday the All-Nationals would appear, with Joe McGinnity, of the New York Giants, in the box.

GOLF.

Arthur Willis and Harold Underhill, who were unable to play for the Oshkosh cup, boys' championship, on the Plainfield Country Club links on Saturday, will play today, and the winner will play W. T. Glenney. The winner of the match between Ralph Hallock and Ogden Rogers will play Gordon Stewart on Saturdyain the semi-finals.

BULLET FIRED AT AUTO.

Man Leaped Into Road and Shot Without Warning—Hit Machine.

Either a highwayman or an extremely reckless constable endeavored last Monday evening to hold up a party of automobilists at Springfield by firing at them with a revolver.

In the automobile were Mrs. Frederick H. Levey, wife of a printing-ink manufacturer in New Yory city, Miss Madge Levey, his daughter; Miss Chetwood, a friend, all of North Broad street, Elizabeth, and Stanley Reed, the chauffeur. As the auto was speeding west from Elizabeth and drawing near Springfield, a man wearing whiskers suddenly stepped into the road, and, without giving any warning whatever, levelled a revolver point blank at the ocupants of the car.

There was a flash and a report. The startled chauffeur put on extra speed, and quickly goth the party out of danger.

Had it not been that the assailant's aim was a trifle low, one of the party must have been hit. The bullet struck a spoke in one of the wheels, was deflected upward and fell into the machinery of the vehicle.

The women in the auto were badly frightened and nearly fainted. They were glad to escape with tneir lives. They abandoned their trip and returned to Elizabeth in a very much unnerved condition.

Former Judge Gilhooly will endeavor, with the air of County Detective Keron, to ascertain the identity of the unknown marksman and have him prosecuted. The auto at the time was speeding at the rate of eighteen miles an hour.

The only clue any of the party can give of the pistol shooter is that he wore ordinary clothes and had whiskers.

COMMISSION STILL EXISTS.

Why Body Appointed for Union County Courthouse Is Being Paid.

There has been much speculation in Elizabeth as to whether the County Courthouse Commission appointed by the Legislature at a compensation of $3 a day to supervise the erection of the new Union County Courthouse there was still in existense and drawing pay since the building has been entirely completed and is now in use.

County Collector Edward M. Wood, when asked about the matter yesterday said: "The commission still stands and will remain in existence until May, 1906.

"There has been," said Mr. Wood added, "$25,000 withheld from the contractors as a final payment until next May, and until they are paid off the commission will remain in service. There is much to be done yet on the building as regards furnishing it thoroughly. The paint of the interior will also have to be renewed when the walls have thoroughly dried out, and there are other details to be looked after. For a couple of months the commission will meet daily as heretofore, for the reasons I have given, but after that time it will, I presume, have merely a nominal existence until the final settlement is made with the builders of the courthouse."

Collector Wood's explanation will doubtless put a stop to the talk on the street of the commission "having a graft" and the assertions that it was only heaping a needless expense on the county for its members to continue drawing pay since the job they had been appointed to superintend had been finished.

RUNAWAY SPILLED A FLOOD OF SMALL COIN

HORSE BOLTS WITH STREET ORGAN AND MONEY ROLLS AROUND.

Just as the swarthy proprietor had started to grind out "Take a car," the horse attached to a big street organ took fright at the banging of a trolley gong and bolted from the corner of Front street and Madison avenue early yesterday afternoon. The Italian at the crank held on and yelled at his horse, but the animal let out speed with every jump, and a few steps beyond Park avenue the organ grinder was shaken loose. While he hung on to the crank the wheel made little turns every few steps, and fragments of "Take a Car" gurgled out.

The Italian wasn't hurt by his fall, and went on after the runaway in a stern chase. The swaying rig narrowly missed collisions in the crowded block between Park and Watchung avenues, but there were no smashups. The horse went on unchecked to Richmond street, where a barking dog caused it to swerve and stumble. It fell in a heap and the organ overturned.

As the rig landed on its side a board in the back, near the axle, dropped and a flood of nickels, dimes and pennies rolled out. The jar had loosened the door to the organ grinder's secret money drawer.

The Italian was only about a block behind when the runaway ended, and he saw the busting of his bank. A wail of anguish broke from him, and he put on a spurt that would have shamed a professional runner. He got to the wagon in time to gather in all his money himself. He wouldn't let any of the bystanders help him. A boy sat on the horse's head and quieted it.

The Italian's name was not learned. He said there was over "sixty dol'" in the secret drawer. His rig was not badly damaged, and he started playing again as soon as the wagon was righted.

AN APPEAL FOR "SMILING JIM."

Judge Runyon Asks Kind Hearted People to Help in a Good Cause.

"Smiling Jimmie" Montross, as he was familiarly called by baseball rooters when he made a local reputation as the crack pitcher for the Hope chapel nine, is seriously ill. His need of financial assistance has prompted Judge W. N. Runyon to start a public subscription. The following letter, which is self-explanatory, is freely given space:

Editor The Daily Press:

If I may be permitted the use of your valuable columns, I wish to ask the many friends of Jimmie Montross throughout the city if they will not send to me at 221 Park avenue such amounts as they may feel disposed to give, in order that the same can be turned over to him.

He has been dangerously ill in the hospital for weeks himself, and in addition thereto, has an alarming amount of sickness in his immediate family.

I feel that those to whom he gave so much pleasure in the days of the Amateur Baseball League need only to learn that they may reciprocate at this time, in order to insure a most generous response, and for that reason I make the appeal.

Yours truly,

WM. N. RUNYON.

TREAT FOR PUPILS.

Charles L. Lewis Gives a Delightful Musicale.

As a compliment to the members of the graduating class, the pupils of the city high school were treated to a musicle by Charles L. Lewis, their vocal instructor, this morning. It came as a complete surprise and was greatly enjoyed by the students and faculty as well.

NEW YORK TO NEWARK IN THIRTY MINUTES

P. S. C. TO BUILD RAPID TRANSIT ELECTRIC ROAD.

Rapid transit to and from Manhattan with electricity as the motive power, with frequent trains and quick dashes under and over ground, from the heart of Newark, straight as engineering skill can form the line right to the spot that will be within convenient reach of the great business section of the metropolis, is soon to be realized, acording to an official announcement made yesterday by President Thomas N. McCarter, of the Public Service Corporation.

A private right of way has been acquired across the Hackensack meadows, and the route has been surveyed and laid out through Jersey City.

The terminal in New York has not yet been definitely located, but the cars will probably run through a tunnel under the North River.

SOCIETY NOTES.

G. Harwood Frost, of Woodland avenue, is in Canada on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm D. McKenzie, of Watchung avenue, will sail on Saturday for England.

Miss Matie Wadsworth and Miss Elsie Harman, of West Eighth street, have returned from attending the commencement exercises at Smith College.

Governor's Contribution.

Governor Stokes will donate a sum of money to the fund which is now being raised by the Millville Alumni Association and others for the purpose of installing a course in manual training in the schools of that city next fall. The Governor has long been interested in the public schools of his native city, having been for a number of years superintendent of schools. For several years he has offered prizes in gold to the graduate in the Millville High School who should excel in a certain branch of study. This year he decided to contribute to the fund instead of giving the prize money, as he believes that manual training is essential to every successful school.

Two Drunks.

William B. VanLiew and Thorval were arrested by Sergeant Frederickson last night, on East Front street, for being helplessly drung. Judge Runyon suspended sentence in the city court this morning.

FERRYBOAT OUT OF COMMISSION

Communipaw Taken Off After Twenty-five Years' Service.

After more than twenty-five years in the ferry service of the Central Railroad, the ferryboat Communipaw has been taken out of commission and sold for old junk. J. H. Gregory, of Perth Amboy, purchased the boat, and it will be taken to the boat graveyard at that place, where the valuable metal and boilers will be taken out and the hull destroyed by fire. During the time in which the Communipaw was in the Central's service she was in a number of collisions on the river, and about two years ago, in a heavy fog, she was rammed by a Pennsylvania freight float near the Central ferry slip, and was just able to land her passengers when she sunk in the slip. This is the third one of the old Central ferryboats that have gone to the boat graveyard at Perth Amboy.

BEARING FALSE WITNESS, $250.

One Cranford Woman to Collect Amount from Another.

Mrs. John Kline, of Cranford, was defendant in the Circuit Court, Elizabeth, yesterday, in a suit for slander brought by her next door neighbor, Mrs. James O'Neil. Outside of Mrs. O'Neil there were but two witnesses for the plaintiff, Mrs. Arabella Steward Park and Mrs. Delia Tunison.

The case closed at 12 o'clock noon and three-quarters of an hour later the jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for $250.

QUIMBY DIES SUDDENLY.

Investigation Ordered of Death of Former Yale Baseball Captain.

F. L. Quimby, former captain of the Yale baseball team, came to a sudden death at Colima, Cuba, on June 12. He played on the Plainfield baseball team last year. The news was kept a close secret by his family, and his mother, Mrs. J. R. Quimby, of New York, was not told until yesterday. The cause of the young man's death is a mystery.

The family gave out the information that they "were under the impression that it was accidental."

F. L. Quimby was graduated at the Sheffield Scientific school, at Yale, in 1896. He was prominent in college athletic and social circles and was captain of the baseball team in his senior year. In the Spanish-American War he went to Porto Rico as a member of Squadron A. After the war he bought, with two Princeton men, a sugar plantation in Cuba, eighteen miles from Cienfuegos, called Colonia la Fez.

The firm was known as Slidell, Montalbo & Quimby. The latter was resident owner and manager, his partners remaining in the United States.

Mr. Quimby, who was unmarried, retained his membership in the Crescent and Yale clubs of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Burke, of Netherwood, are spending a short vacation in Canada.

LOANED SISTER $3,000.

Mrs. Irving's Bill of Sale Blocks Mrs. Eva M. Earl's Creditors.

The attempt of W. Smith & Co., of Pennsylvania, liquor dealers, to levy on Mrs. Eva M. Earl's goods in settlement of a bill of $180, alleged to have been incurred while she was conducting a hotel in Scotch Plains, was blocked in Justice Mosher's court yesterday. The goods attached were stored in Westfield.

Mrs. Irving, of Jersey City, a sister of Mrs. Earl, claimed ownership of the chattels, and submitted a bill of sale to prove the claim. The bill was given her, she testified, in part payment of loans advanced to Mrs. Earl during the fatal illness of her husband. Mrs. Irving said she sent her sister $3,000 in various sums.

The case was submitted to a jury of six men. After little more than ten minutes' deliberation they returned a verdict for the claimant. Louis A. Clement was Mrs. Irving's lawyer.

Walter L. Hetfield, lawyer for the plaintiffs, said this morning that the case would be taken to the Chancery Court.

AT GRAMMAR SCHOOLS

Rev. C. E. Herring Addresses Graduates on Topic, Knowledge.

82 HAPPY ONES.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Makes Invocation and Dr. Probasco Presents Diplomas—The Exercises.

Eighty-two pupils of the city schools who have completed the grammar grade course received diplomas at graduating exercises held in the assembly hall of the Franklin building yesterday afternoon. Parents and friends occupied every available seat and the members of the Board of Education and teachers were on the platform with the graduates.

Invocation by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck opened the exercises and the programme that followed included many enjoyable numbers. Declamations were given by members of the class as follows: "The Present Crisis," George Stanley Robins; "The Leap of Roushan Beg," Florence Alberta Johnson; "Original Story," Agnes Marguerite Van Norden; "Our Boys," William P. Westphal. A chorus of graduates in charge of Charles L. Lewis rendered several selections that chorded well and the High School Mandolin Club earned two encores by the excellence of an initial instrumental number. Washington Franklin McIntyre contributed a pleasing piano solo, "The Music Box," by Anatole Liadow.

The customary address to the pupils was given by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who deducted numerous timely suggestions for their benefit from the subject "Knowledge is Power." At the beginning he expressed his commendation of the excellent school system maintained by the city and warmly complimented the classes on their environment of "charming teachers." Continuing, Mr. Herring said:

"A short time ago I had the pleasure of being a member of a party that was shown about one of the huge ships that traverse the Atlantic and I was greatly impressed with the massiveness of the steering gear and other parts of the mechanism. I contrasted it with the cumbersome methods used for the propulsion and guiding of the old Roman galleys—for instance, the long, heavy oars that required at least twenty-four men for each one. They called for great strength on the part of the rowers, and yet my inspection of the modern ship showed me that we are stronger than they were because we have knowledge, and knowledge is power.

"You young men and women do not attend school simply to learn, you come to train your thought and to train your will, thus gaining knowledge and strength for your future life battle. In your daily routine of lessons use your imagination; don't accept all hearsay as the positive truth, but go beyond and think for yourselves, thereby gaining the knowledge that is not fleeting, but permanent and powerful. Bright boys and girls receive a great deal of credit for exceptional proficiency in certain lines, and that leads me to say a good word for those who are not so noticeable. Genius is the capacity for taking pains, and the boy or girl who seems to be laggard and hanging back may be the ones who are proceeding carefully. Don't become discouraged because you are a little behind, but keep on, and you may be the genius of another day."

Mr. Herring also directed a few remarks to the girls. He declared it gave him pleasure to know that they were proficient in art and literature, but he advised them that a little knowledge of millinery and close acquaintanceship with household duties is as essential after school days are over as anything in the courses they complete. In closing, he reminded the graduates to bear in mind the chance they had in the world with the education they had received and urged them to make the best of every opportunity.

The diplomas were presented by Dr. J. B. Probasco, president of the Board of Education, and the exercises concluded with the singing of "America."

The graduating class was composed of the following members:

NARROW ESCAPE AT FIRE

Mrs. Bodine Nearly Met Her Death When Gasolene Can Ignited.

HOUSE MUCH DAMAGED

Loss Estimated at $2,000—Fully Insured—Her Presence of Mind Saved Woman's Life.

Following an explosion of gasolene that occurred at the home of A. B. C. Bodine, at Grandview avenue and Verdon street, at 10 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Bodine narrowly escaped being burned to death and fire spread through the house, causing damage amounting to $2,000. Before an alarm could be turned in the flames ascended from the basement to the attic and the interior was badly gutted. With the arrival of the borough department, three lines of hose had to be laid in and Chief Woolston's men worked for an hour before the blaze was extinguished.

Mrs. Bodine went to the basement to get some gasolene for stove use, and struck a match to locate the can. The next instant there was a flash and a roar and flames were all about the place. Her hair and eyebrows were scorched, her hands were badly burned and her clothing ignited in several places. With great presence of mind she rushed to the yard and rolled about the lawn, thus putting out the blaze. The fact that she wore a heavy dress is probably all that saved her life, as it did not burn very easily.

Though suffering greatly, Mrs. Bodine pluckily returned to the house, but the fire was then beyond control. Neighbors tried to save some of the furniture, but succeeded only in getting out the piano and a few chairs before the arrival of the department in response to an alarm from Box 135, turned in by Winfield Conover. The flames had worked up through the beams in the back part of the house and then spread through the rooms on each floor.

The furniture is almost a total loss, but is covered by $1,000 insurance. The damage to the house is estimated at $1,000, insurance, $2,500. The Bodines purchased the place about two months ago from Edward Stine, coming to the borough from Pittstown, near Flemington.

HONOR FOR RUSH RHEES.

Former Plainfielder May Be President of Smith College.

During commencement week at Smith College, it was whispered in certain quarters that the resignation of Rev. Dr. Seeley, the president, was not an unlikely thing, and that his successor might possibly be his son-in-law, Rev. Dr. Rush Rhees, a former Plainfielder, now president of Rochester University.

Dr. Seeley has been president of Smith College for a great many years and is beloved and admired by the entire student body, as well as all friends of the college. He is recognized as an educator of great ability, but owing to his advancing years, it is said, that possibly within a year or so he may retire.

It is said that in case that he decides to give up the presidency, Dr. Rheese will be the first choice, and that he can have the position if he will accept. Dr. Rhees as an educator is well-known throughout the country. He was graduated from the entered the ministry, serving the Baptist church at Newton Centre, Mass., as pastor for some time. He was also a professor at the Newton Theological Seminary. From there he went to Rochester University, where he is now the president. His work has been very successful, and his efforts in the literary world are well-known.

BIKE THIEVES BUSY.

Three Wheels Reported Stolen on Tuesday—One Gang's Work.

There was an active litle boom in the bicycle-thieving business in Plainfield Tuesday. Ephriam Hedden's wheel was stolen from in front of Dr. Marc Clawson's house on Park avenue, Aleck Ayers' bike disappeared from the doorway of the Smalley building, North avenue, and J. D. Loizeaux's machine was taken from a porch at Second and Richmond streets.

It is believed that one man, or members of the same gang, committed all the thefts. While these three are the only one that have been reported, it is probable that others were taken.

Bridal Luncheon.

Miss Jessie Saxton, of Clinton avenue, who was married to Harold B. Clark, of Roselle, last night, gave her bridal luncheon yesterday afternoon. Covers were laid for eight. The decorations were green and pink.

The visitors to room 100 in the Trenton House were given a card on which was printed the words: "Freedom of the city, and signed "Frank F. Katzenbach, Mayor."

The New Jersey Department, Women's Relief Corps, of the G. A. R., presented a magnificent silk flag to Charles Skelton School, Centre street, Trenton, yesterday afternoon.

It is the pride of every Jerseyman that the part played by this State in the Civil War placed it in the very forefront of the defenders of the Union. One histrian has said: "No soldiers in all the armies of the Republic fought with grander courage,

ANDREW ONDERDONK DEAD

Former Plainfielder Who Achieved Fame as a Constructing Engineer.

SOME OF HIS WORK.

Once City Engineer Here—Laid Many Miles of Railroad—Died Yesterday.

Andrew Onderdonk, a resident of Plainfield twenty-five years ago, and for some time employed here as city engineer and surveyor, died yesterday morning at his summer home on the Hudson River. Mr. Onderdonk had been ill for a long time owing to overwork. He was fifty-six years old.

There was perhaps no better known engineer in the country than Mr. Onderdonk, and he has superintended some of the most important construction work in the United States. At the time of his death he was general manager of the New York Tunnel Company, which is constructing the East River section of the Subway extension to Brooklyn. He wasone of the bidders for the New York Subway work, but John B. MacDonald was successful.

One of his early undertakings was the harbor improvement in San Francisco. In the early eighties he built 400 miles of the Canadian Pacific Railway in British Columbia for $18,000,000. The construction of the Entre Rios Railroad in South America occupied 1886 and the following year. He built nine miles of the Chicago Drainage Canal and erected the Northwestern Elevated Railway in Chicago. The New Ambrose Channel in the lower bay and part of the Jerome Park Reservoir were among his contracts in New York. His latest work, the East River Tunnel, Mr. Onderdonk took after John B. MacDonald had underbid him substantially for the construction of the Subway.

Mr. Onderdonk married Miss Sally Hillman, of Somerset street, and she with two sons and two daughters survive him.

CONSTABLE IS ARRESTED.

VanHouten Said He Tried to Pierce a Tire to Compel Machine to Stop.

Charles R. VanHouten, the Springfield constable who shot at the automobile of Frederick H. Levey, of No. 323 North Broad street, Elizabeth Monday evening, was arrested yesterday on charges of assault with attempt to kill and of common-law assault, made by Stanled Reed, the chauffeur. At the time of the shooting there were in the automobile beside the chauffeur, Stanley L. Reed, Mrs. Mary Levey, Miss Margaret Levey and Miss Virginia Chetwood.

VanHouten was taken before Judge Kelly, in Elizabeth, and held for the Grand Jury. He gave $1,000 bail.

VanHouten said that he fired with the intention of puncturing one of the tires of the machine, and in that way force the autoists to stop. It is considered extremely fortunate for the party that he did not succeed, because a puncture might have upset the vehicle and caused the death or injury of the whole party. Had the bullet pierced one of the feed pipes or the gasoline tank, experts say there would have been a disastrous explosion.

A resident of Springfield said yesterday that when the automobile was just beyond Springfield a boy threw a stone that struck Chauffeur Reed on the knee.

BASEBALL DECISION.

Plainfield Not to Be Allowed to Play Westfield.

The National Baseball Commission yesterday, at Cincinnati, gave a decision on the appeal of Manager Daab, of the Plainfield Baseball Association, as to whether the team, which comprises the Hoboken Club, could play in this city under the name of the Plainfield Baseball Association against the Westfield Baseball Association team. The point was raised that the players' relationship to Plainfield has nothing to do with Hoboken, but the commission decided that the local team could not play against Westfield, inasmuch as the latter team harbors several ineligible players.

NO ARCANUM DAY HERE

Local Councils Decide Not to Display Flags, as Customary, Tomorrow.

MEETING TONIGHT.

Grand Council Officers to Make Addresses at the Session of Joint Local Councils.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, as well as members of Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, have taken a decided stand against what they term an imposition in the act of the Supreme Council in raising the rates of insurance of the order, and one of the most important acts of the local members to show their disapproval of the recent announcement is the adoption of a resolution refusing to display the American flag tomorrow, which is known throughout the country as "Arcanum Day." One member, in speaking of the matter today, said that "the raising of Old Glory at this time would be a disgrace on the National emblem, and that Plainfield Council had unanimously voted to abolish the custom this year."

There will be an important meeting of Arcanumites tonight at the rooms of Plainfield Council. The members of Greenbrook Council, Fanwood Council and other nearby Councils have been invited to attend and listen to addresses by Past Grand Regent Horace I. Bowne and other Grand Council officers regarding the new rates of insurance.

This same members declares that if the order cannot be maintained successfully on the present rates, it is out of the question to believe that the new rates will solve the question. He characterizes the action of the Supreme Council as a direct effort to get the older members out of the order and to make the rates so attractive as to catch the young men, who in the course of time will be exactly in the same position as the older men are today.

BAND CONCERT PROGRAMME.

Patriotic and Popular Tunes for Tomorrow Night.

The soloist at tomorrow night's open air concert by Ben LaVere's instrumentalists will be the popular "Billy" Redmond, who made the greatest hit of any of the singers appearing in the past two seasons. He will give four songs, two of which will be illustrated. The programme in addition will be made up of popular numbers, and moving pictures will be shown at the close.

For next week Mr. LaVere has arranged to have two singers, and on July 7 a decided novelty will be introduced by "Billy" Murray, "Billy" Redmond and Louis Leever. Located in different parts of the grounds, they will render vocal selections in a form new to Plainfield concertgoers.

Tomorrow night's programme in detail is as follows:

"Star Spangled Banner," march, "Bold Front," F. R. Seltzer; overture, "Light Cavalry," Suppe; concert waltz, "Au Revoir," Waldteufel; vocal solo (a) "I Wonder if You Miss Me; (b) "Take a Car," Snyder, William Redmond; selection, "Little Johnny Jones," Geo. Conan; serenade, "Moonlight," Morel; a novelette, "Wooing the Muse," Brooks; vocal solo (a) "When the Bees Are in the Hive" (b) "Goodbye, Sweet Marie," Snyder, illustrated, William Redmond; march, "The Zitella Club," McKenzie; moving pictures.

In Daughter's Honor.

Hugh McDonald, of Park avenue, gave a reception at his home last night in honor of his daughter, Miss Mary McDonald, and the feature of the occasion was the presentation to Miss McDonald by her father of a handsome Mathushek piano. During the evening there was a fine musical programme. Among those present were Mrs. Katharine Lynch, Mrs. Henry Lutz, Miss Susie Lynch, Miss Lizzie Lynch, Miss Lottie Willard, John Lynch, Mr. and Mrs.. A. E. Willard, Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. O'Keefe, Mr. Meaney, Louis Schermerhorn and Harold Willard.

The stated play for the Mumford cup was continued yesterday at the Plainfield Country Club, when there were three contestants. Miss Maud VanBoskerck won first honors with a net score of 92. These scores were posted: Miss Maud VanBoskerck, 99, 7—92; Mrs. Walter Gaston, 111, 12—99; Mrs. Marvin D. Rae, 125, 22—103.

NO FACTIONAL FIGHTING

Attempt to Set up That Fisk is Fowler's Candidate.

HE MAY NOT RUN.

If Former Mayor Declines Senatorial Nomination, Tribune Writer Says Runyon is Likely to be Named.

The New Jersey political writer for the New York Tribune, who has always been partial to the Republican administration forces here, in today's issue sums up his view of the Senatorial situation in Union county in this wise:

"An effort is being made by the Democrats to cause trouble in Union county. They are declaring that the old Kean-Fowler row will break out again next fall in connection with the election of a State Senator to succeed Joseph Cross, who is now on the United States Court bench. There is no truth in this statement. Neither Kean nor Fowler is taking any active part in the coming campaign in their county.

It was agreed some time ago that the next Republican candidate for Senator should come from Plainfield. Elizabeth has been favored for some time, as Cross and Voorhees both come from that city. The choice of all elements is Charles J. Fisk, who was so long and so acceptably Mayor of Plainfield. An attempt has been made to show that Fisk is a Fowler man and is not agreeable to Senator Kean. This is absolutely false. Senator Kean and his brother Hamilton have both urged Mr. Fisk to run. Not only have they asked him personally to take the nomination, but they have been to his brother and partner in the banking business, Pliny Fisk, and asked him to induce his brother to act as the party standard bearer.

"It is doubtful, however, whether Charles Fisk will undertake the task. His family and close friends do not think his health will warrant the necessary strain and worry of a campaign. About a year ago he was very sick and for a time his life was despaired of. He is much better now, but has to be very careful. He is not able to devote much time to active business, and spends most of the summer at his country residence at Easthampton, Long Island. He is there now and appreciates the advice of his physicians, who tell him he can live for years by taking care of himself, but warn him of the danger of any excitement or hard work.

"In the event of his refusal, Judge Runyon, of Plainfield, is likely to be named. While Ernest R. Ackerman is talked of, it is pretty well settled that Judge Runyon will be the man, in the case of Fisk's declination. He is popular and apparently acceptable to Republicans both in Plainfield and throughout the county. The Democrats talk of placing ex-Judge Gilhooly, of Elizabeth, in the field, but while he is probably as strong as any one they could name, he would have no chance against Fisk or Runyon. The attempt of the Democrats to revive the old factional trouble in Union has apparently disturbed the State Republican leaders here somewhat, but it is without reason. Harmony will prevail in the old county this year, and whatever friction may yet prevail between Senator Kean and Congressman Fowler will not be injected into the campaign."

MISS WHITNEY'S MUSICALE.

Third of a Series of Piano Recitals is Given.

The third June piano recital given by pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney was held yesterday afternoon at her studio in the Babcock building. The assisting artists were Miss Bertha Van Nuise Willis, soprano, and Miss Florence Wohlfert, violinist, who delighted the audience with their solos.

Much praise was given by the intelligent audience to the pupils for the unusually high grade of their efforts. It was the opinion of all that their performance would have reflected credit upon pupils of more mature years.

This was the programme: Valse Lente, Clara and Florence Karen; Coquetry, Devotion and Valse in D, Marion Elizabeth Snyder; Song Without Words in A, and Prelude in F, Carolyn Welles; A Memory and to My Little Love, Miss Willis; Intermezzo and Aquarrellen in B flat, Helen George; Sonata, op. 13, Frances Marionette Rittenhouse; Andante Religioso and Second Valse Caprice, Sadie Winckler; Funeral March and the Two Larks, Muriel Collins; Andante from the Concerto, Miss Wohlfert; the Harp and Rondo Cappriccioso, Miss Myra Emmons.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Recorder Clark, of the 'Plains, had a hard time last night trying to get to the bottom fact of the neighbors' feud, which has been raging for several months past between the Snyder and Moffett families, who reside in the Cook house on Westfield avenue. The court has been asked to decide the facts in the feud before, and has even made personal calls for the purpose of trying to pour oil upon the troubled waters. Last night, by way of a change in the programme, Mr. Snyder had Mrs. Moffett before the court, charged with being disorderly and using indecent language on Saturay afternoon. According to the Snyder tale and drift of testimony, Mrs. Moffett has used all the "pet" names, etc., not generally found in the usual authorities on etiquette. Both were represented by counsel, the Snyder interest being looked after by Counsellor William DeMeza, while Counsellor Paul Oliver, of Westfield, was on the firing line for the defendant. Several wordy war of words were indulged in between counsel over the admission of certain evidence. Several times Counsellor Oliver lost temper and when the court ruled against him, objected srtongly, at one time telling the court that he was not a law unto himself. After sifting out the various tales the court found Mrs. Moffett guilty as charged and imposed a fine of $5 and costs, or ten days. Five days' option was allowed her to pay the fine or take the alternative.

Mr. and Mrs. William Collins, who have been visiting their children, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Collins, of Corona Villa, the borough, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

VERDICT HELD EXCESSIVE.

Supreme Court Cuts $20,000 Award Against N. J. Central In Half.

In the suit of John H. Ricker, well known in this city, against the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey for damages for injuries received in a wreck near High Bridge, an opinion was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday, deciding that the award of $20,000 by the court below was excessive. The opinion says if the plaintiff will consent to accept $10,000, the rule to show cause why a new trial should not be ordered will be discharged, otherwise it will be made absolute.

Ricker was a fireman and was injured in a head-on collision. Both legs were crushed, his right hip injured, the left leg broken, collar bone and shoulder blade broken, ribs broken and head injured. He was laid up seven months. He was not entirely disabled.

The opinion was by the court. The questions involved in the appeal were the negligence of the train dispatcher and the amount of damages. The opinion holds that the dispatcher was negligent.

Governor Murphy was right. Jersey's landscape is a mass of ruins, broken and shapeless, because of the advertising signs that burden and spoil it.—"Freeholder" in New York Press.

Honesty Becoming Popular.

Even a superficial examination of current anti-graft newspaper editorials and magazine articles leads one to the conclusion that it is getting decidedly popular to be ordinarily honest.—Trenton True American.

Solves Itself.

"Jews Must Solve Their Own Problem" is a headline in the Evening Telegraph. Anyone taking note of the substitution of Jewish names for those of old Quaker City business firms on Market street, Philadelphia, will be inclined to believe that the problem has ben solved.—Camden Post-Telegram.

Have the Inclination.

Publisher Walter E. Edge believes in frequently laying aside the cares of newspaper making and journeying off for recreation. He is giving a good example to the other publishers in New Jersey, who no doubt would willingly follow him but for the fact that their bank account will not permit an indulgence of a trip to Europe as frequently as the fancy strikes them—Atlantic City Sunday Gazette.

Trading Stamp Bill Held Up.

The number of bills remaining in Governor Stokes's hands undisposed of has been reduced to fourteen. Among them is Mr. Layden's trading stamp bill, which the Governor does not seem to be clear about. It provides that stamps shall have a cash surrender value printed on their face and they shall be redeemable in cash. The measure was strongly advocated by many merchants in Passaic county and elsewhere, but has evidently encountered influential opposition.—Paterson Press.

Somerset's Wheat.

A member of a party making an automobile tour in Somerset county last week remarked how well the ripening rye was looking and said that it was singular that no wheat of any considerable quantity was grown in this State. Ten minutes after making the remark the auto was speeding between two wheat fields of at least three hundred acres each, and uring the afternoon the party saw thousands of acres of wheat with well filled heads. It is almost ready for the reaper.—Newark Call.

Invitation to Loaf.

This country is full of pleasant nooks wherein the weary and the nerve-racked may recuperate. Resorts are everywhere for those who wish them, and the old farm house is not to be despised. Let those who really wish rest and a reinvigoration seek out these favored spots and there indulge in the much denounced but heavenly privilege of loafing away the few bright days of the yearly vacation. In this way only can the full benefit of the expenditure of time and money be secured.—Paterson Guardian.

Called Down.

How ridiculous it is for any resort of the size of Cape May or larger to attempt to palm off on an observing public the idea that it suffers the least of all places for mosquitoes. Just think of such a complacent pretension of the brightest and usually fairest journal of Atlantic City, with its seven miles of marsh and meadow, saying that "it is true that this resort suffers less from this scourge of the seashore than any other on the entire coast." What a newspaper whopper! to follow the solemn affirmation "it is true."—Cape May Wave.

Whole Sermon.

There is a brave and truthful sermon for the whole American people in Grover Cleveland's closing words in his statement of acceptance of trusteeship of the Equitable Life Assurance Society's majority stock: "We can better afford to slacken our pace than to abandon our old, simple American standards of honesty; and we shall be safer if we regain our old habit of looking at the appropriation to personal uses of property and interests held in trust, in the same light as other forms of stealing."—Elizabeth Journal.

Courage to Vote Right.

Public approval of the action of council in reducing the number of saloons is largely flavored with the feeling that the Republican majority of Common Council has shown tremendous courage, and it certainly takes courage for a man to stand up and vote right, when he knows that by his act he at once makes himself the enemy of scores of men whom he must meet in his daily walks. Most men are more afraid of making enemies than they are of all the rest of the perils that beset this life.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Billboard Is a Nuisance.

In the case of the billboard the best is truthfully none too good, and we really hope for a day—perhaps it is yet far distant—when the beauties of the American landscape will no longer be desecrated by signs, and when housetops and walls along the great railroad thoroughfares will no longer be blazoned with the alleged virtues of a thousand and one patent medicines or the particular charms of the newest corset or face powder. The billboard is a nuisance, and, in many places, it is a menace to public morals, especially in poorer communities, where the young are brought constantly face to face with its wild and lurid pictures.—Asbury Park Journal.

The Newspaper Man and Jury Duty.

Contending that newspaper men should be exempt from jury duty, the Burlington Enterprise assigns as one of the reasons that they "are generally too well informed regarding court cases, before they come to trial, to make unbiased members of juries." If the object of a court trial is to inform the jury of all the facts in the case, so that they can pass fair and impartial judgment, is not a man who has been fully informed prior to the trial all the more capable for jury duty? Is not knowledge of the facts necessary to a just verdict? Is he not likely when sitting in a jury box to quicker perceive the learned counsel's efforts to befog the case than the ignoramus who never heard of the facts until they are dragged out of the mouths of more or less unwilling witnesses, some of whom are likely to be half frightened to death by being compelled to testify in court or befuddled by legal cross examination? The newspaper man is trained to get facts—all the facts—in the case; to hear both sides so that he can get his "story" straight. After a few years of experience in his business he is quick to perceive falsehood, meet evasion and discount exaggertaion. Knowing that the truth is generally hidden, he intelligently and unrelentingly searches until he has found it. His sense of justice is well developed. He is taught to maintain a fair and unbiased attitude toward his fellows. The newpaper man's intelligence being unquestioned and his integrity unsmirched, there is no reason why he should not be as fair and impartial a juror as can be drawn from the general body of citizens; nor does his profession, exacting as it is and with duties of a quasi-public ntaure, entitle him to exemption from jury duty.—Camden Post-Telegram.

FOR SAVING NEW JERSEY.

West Jersey Presbytery Approves Dr. Chapman's Plan.

The West Jersey Presbytery meeting at Vineland Tuesday enthusiastically approved Rev. Dr. Wilbur Chapman's plan for saving New Jersey. Rev. Dr. A. W. Spooner, of Cape May, said the Presbytery would be ready to join in the great revival the middle of November.

Rev. Allen H. Broom, of Atlantic City, aged eighty, and who instituted Presbyterian churches in this section before Vineland was thought of, was notified that Princeton University had conferred the degree of D. D. upon him.

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong, and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On July 2, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours, and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment. 6-22-td

A King in Search of a Wife.

Alfonso, King of Spain, is hunting for a bride. He wants to get married, and, though there are many eligible princesses, he is very much in doubt. His photograph and the story of his efforts to get married will appear in the Sunday World Magazine June 25. Other very interesting features of this number will be the beautiful pictures and description of the $5,000,000 mansion that Charles M. Schwab has built on Riverside Drive, New York City; pictures of Mrs. Russell Sage and the squirrels in the park, which are her friends; the strange story of a remarkable lawsuit between deaf-mutes; the romance of two rich settlement workers; something about some June brides, and many other things. A most important and interesting number.

AUTOMOBILING.

One of the greatest automobile races ever billed for this country has been arranged for Saturday by the Empire City Club. Oldfield and Chevrolet are matched to race on the Empire City Track for $2,000, the winner to take the entire stake. Many loyal friends of Oldfield claim that in view of the years he has been the undisputed champion of track racing he is champion yet. Although a new and comparatively unheard of man until this season, Chevrolet's supporters claim that he should be considered the automobile champion, inasmuch as he has defeated both Oldfield and Basle. The National Motor Car Championship has been made for ten miles. Another event is the Dealers' Handicap Selling Race for two miles. Cars costing $3,500 will be placed at scratch and 100 feet will be given cars for every $100 less in price. There is also the Empire Handicap open to all classes; the Middleweight Class for cars weighing between 851 and 1,432 pounds, and the Lightweight Class for the little fellows weighing between 551 and 851 pounds.

Automobilists ask that the registration of an automobile in any one State be recognized by all other States. Many who carry New York numbers wish that the New Jersey law did not require the carrying of only the one set, and that set New Jersey license numbers.

Japan has purchased forty White steam cars, which, after being equipped with special bodies in Japan, will be used in Manchuria.

"The Book of the Automobile," by Robert T. Sloss, will be published by D. Appleton & Company this month. The following is a quotation which any metropolitan newspaper will heartily approve:

"While on the subject of 'Don'ts' the following by M. D. H. Morris are well worth fixing in the mind for general guidance for driving:

"Don't disobey the rules of the road.

"Remember to keep to the right and pass on the left.

"Don't forget that pedestrians have the same rights as vehicles at street crossings.

"Don't forget that your rate of speed should never exceed the legal rate, ten miles an hour in the greater city.

"Remember, when local conditions require, to adopt even a lower rate of speed than the legal rate.

"Don't get 'rattled.'

"Remember it is the 'other fellow' who always loses his head in a crisis.

"Don't insist upon your rights.

"Remember that the 'other fellow' may not know your rights, and an insistence on your part is bound to result in an accident.

"Don't argue with trolley cars, express wagons, brewery trucks, or other heavy bodies found in the public thoroughfare.

"Remember that the drivers of these powerful vehicles generally operate on the theory that might is right.

"Don't expect women and children to get out of your way.

"Remember that women and children don't know how to avoid danger.

"Don't run any unnecessary risks.

"Remember that while the automobile is flexible, powerful and easily controlled, you may make a slip.

"Don't drink.

"Remember that nine-tenths of the accidents occur to automobiles driven by intoxicated chauffeurs.

"Don't sneak away in case of accident.

"Remember that the true gentleman chauffeur, although he may not be responsible for the misfortune, stands his ground.

"Don't fail to be a gentleman under any provocation.

"Remember that the Golden Rule practised in the road will save you no end of trouble, expense and worry."

KNOCKOUT FIGHT AT ELIZABETH

Howard Smith Puts Away Harry Williams in Eighth Round.

It took Howard Smith, of Elizabeth, protege of Jack Hanlon, seven rounds and two minutes of fast fighting to send to defeat Harry Williams, of Passaic, in the Waverly section of the former city Tuesday afternoon. About 125 spectators were present. The affair was privately arranged and conducted free from mosquitoes and prying policemen, and was satisfactory to all present. Smith was seconded by Tommy Hart and Billy Manning, of Elizabeth, while in Williams's corner was his brother Johnny and Herman Fretz. Thomas Wittman refereed the bout.

Both boys sparred cautiously at the start, but in a mix-up that followed Smith was floored. After the first round Smith forced the fighting and hammered his opponent mercilessly. In the third, fifth and sixth he floored Williams, and in the seventh had him all but out.

After playing with his man in the eighth round, Smith suddenly shot a left jab to Williams's stomach, followed up with a right hook for the jaw. Williams sank to the ground, and was counted out.

Plainfield, N. J., June 22, 1905.

Have you contributed to the free open-air band concert fund?

It is quite positive that the dismissed minister to Venezuela will not go on the stage though it is not so certain that he will not write a book.

The term "Oslerize" having been coined to mean the killing of man when he reaches sixty, what's the matter with "Royalarcanumize" to signify that you are flim-flammed at sixty-five.

"Having learned the secret of strenuous life," says the Passaic Daily News, "Paul Morton feels able to tackle the Equitable life." From the way it looks now, the said Morton will want to patronize the elixir of life when the New York newspapers get through with him.

The Paterson Daily Press is offended because one of the proprietors of Luna Park in denying the "hot air" story that they intend to start a similar attraction in that city, declared that "he had never been in Paterson and from what he heard of the place did not care to go there." Probably he thinks it's time enough when he dies.

The average man has little time to investigate for himself, says Printers Ink, and he relies upon the advertiser to keep him informed. Most successful publicity is built upon such information, and when it is backed by integrity in dealing, the opinions of an advertiser become law, and begin to bear interest in commercial reputation.

Probably before he gets through, former Minister Bowen will do as good a service to the country as Lawson has done investors and the New York newspapers have accomplished for the Equitable policyholders. Certainly the controversy over Loomis's alleged crookedness will not end with a whitewash report of one man delegated by the President to investigate the serious charges made against the accuser's predecessor at Caracas and this no matter who the investigator may be. Mr. Bowen affirms that Loomis was dishonest while serving at the Venezuela post and it is not at all improbable that the man who made a name for himself while in the consular service during the Spanish war has enough friends to prevail upon Congress taking up the subject when it convenes.

A FIELD DAY.

Plainfielders Entered in New Brunswick Meet.

Several athletes from the local Y. M. C. A. will take part in the State Y. M. C. A. meet to be held on Neilson Field, New Brunswick, Saturday, and a very strong programme of events has been arranged. Harry Scull entered in the 110 yard dash, E. W. Overton in the 400 yard dash, C. B. Koons in the 880 yard dash and Walter C. McNaughton in the high jump.

The Plainfield team represented in the relay comprises D. Ferguson, Harry Scull, C. B. Koons and E. W. Overton. In addition to this team, the Newark and Trenton associations will be represented by teams.

Jump Fractured His Ankle.

While playing "stumpmaster" with several companions yesterday, Robbie Muir, six years old, took a high jump from the porch of his home on Essex street. He landed heavily on his right foot, fracturing the ankle. The injury was set by Dr. Brennan and half of his school vacation will be spent indoors.

Miss Burke Wins Cup.

In the finals for the women's singles at tennis at the Plainfield Country Club this week, Miss Elsie Burke defeated Miss Adelaide G. Ball 6—4, and thereby wins the championship for this year for women.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, of Grove street, is stopping at the Westminster, Asbury Park.

MISS SAXTON A BRIDE.

She Becomes Mrs. Harold Boylston Clark.

Before a large gathering of friends and relatives, Miss Jessie Elliott Saxton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton H. Saxton, and Harold Boylston Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Clark, of Roselle, were married last night. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, at Eighth street and Clinton avenue.

The house was very strikingly decorated, ferns, smilax and roses being used in profusion. The parlor, where the ceremony was performed, was decorated in green and white. The bay window was prettily bowered, and a large bell of roses hung from the arch. Within this bower the couple stood while Rev. Dr. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, spoke the words of union. The hall between the library and parlor was decorated in the same colors; a rope of white roses was twined about the banisters from the newel post to the floor above. The library was decorated in green and red. Pink and green were the dominant colors in the dining room.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock. Miss Saxton was attended by Miss Jennie Saxton, her sister, and Miss Mary Clark, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids. The best man was William J. Ransley, of Woodbridge.

Two little girls, Blanche Ransley and Susie Bennett, as ribbon girls, strung an aisle of white ribbon, through which the bridal party entered the parlor from the hall. Miss Saxton came in on the arm of her father, who gave her away in marriage. The wedding music was played by Miss Carrie Ewing, of Woodbridge.

The bride was gowned in white messaline, trimmed with duchess lace and wore a veil caught up with a spray of fresh orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaids were dressed in pale blue crepe de chine over light blue silk. They carried white carnations. The ribbon girls were clad in pure white.

A reception and wedding supper followed the ceremony. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Clark left for a week's honeymoon trip. They will reside for a time with Mr. and Mrs. Saxton, but will start housekeeping in the fall.

The bride received an unusually large number of handsome gifts. Besides the usual array of furniture, cut glass, linen and silver, Miss Saxton received the deed of a lot in Roselle from Mr. and Mrs. Clark and five shares of the preferred stock of the Hudson & Middlesex Telephone Company from W. J. Ransley. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold necklace.

THEIR ANNUAL AFFAIR.

Sale and Festival in Progress at the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

The Women's Guild, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, opened its annual sale and festival at the parish house yesterday afternoon. The affair continued through the evening and will be repeated this afternoon and night. A feature last night was the playing of an orchestra of twelve pieces.

Cake, candy, lemonade and fancy goods are on sale at prettily decorated booths and tables. Mrs. J. D. Ferguson and Mrs. James Campbell are in charge of the domestic table. Mrs. Charles Fraleigh and Mrs. Juan A. Babcock are at the fancy table. The cake table is in charge of Mrs. George Ludgate and Mrs. Alfred Brooks. Mrs. Bayard Hawthorne and Mrs. W. E. Sutton are at the lemonade well. The candy table is presided over by the Misses Alice and Elizabeth Forster. Mrs. E. E. Brown and Mrs. Kate Fisher Burke are at the ice cream table. Mrs. W. B. Grannatt and Mrs. Charles Graves are on the reception committee.

Mr. and Mrs. David Bush, of North avenue, have returned from a visit with Mr. Bush's mother at Somerville.

CIVIL WAR VETS MEET

or clung more steadfastly or with loftier faith to the cause, than those who in every combat were girt about with the memories of Princeton and Monmouth."

New Jersey's quota of soldiers in the war was 88,305, being 10,057 in excess of the number called for. Of this number 79,348 served with State organizations, and the remainder in regiments of other states. The marine and naval enlistments from this State numbered 4,853. The total disbursements by the State to the soldiers and their families was $2,317,374.58.

President Lincoln's first call for troops was made April 15, 1861. Of the total number called for by that proclamation New Jersey's quota was four regiments of 780 men each, or a total of 3,123, including the brigadier general, one aide and the brigade inspector.

The order of the Grand Army of the Republic was organized in Illinois early in 1866. To Dr. B. F. Stephenson, of Springfield, Ill., belongs the honor of suggesting the formation of this union of veteran soldiers, and of launching the organization.

Its object was to afford assistance to disabled and unemployed Union soldiers. Dr. Stephenson had been a surgeon in a volunteer regiment during the war, and was firmly convinced that an organization of the returned volunteers, for mutual benefit, was imperatively needed. A ritual was drafted under his supervision, and the first Post was formed at Decatur, Ill. Other Posts were soon mustered throughout Illinois and contiguous states, and the first State Department convention met at Springfield, Ill., July 12, 1866.

PHYSICANS' CONFERENCE.

Dr. Ellis W. Hedges Made an Address.

With an increased convention attendance, the second day of the New Jersey Medical Society was called to order yesterday morning, in the Hollywood Hotel, Long Branch.

At the annual election Dr. E. W. Hedges, of this city, was again chosen secretary.

Last night's programme proved most interesting, especially the addresses of President Johnson and Vice-President Ill.

Much interest was centred in the reading of papers yesterday morning, and the discussions which followed. The morning session opened with an address by Second Vice-President Alexander Marcy, Jr., of Riverton. His subject was "The Surgical Treatment of Bright's Disease from the Viewpoint of the General Practitioner." The second paper on the programme, "Ectopic Gestation," by Dr. Edward Staehlin, of Newark, brought forth a general discussion. The discussion was conducted by Dr. Florain Krug, of New York, and Dr. P. A. Harris, of Paterson. The rest of the morning programme was as follows:

"Prophylaxis in Gynecology," Dr. G. H. Ballereay, of Paterson, with discussion by Dr. E. J. Ill, of Newark, and Dr. F. D. Gray, of Jersey City; "Uremic Surprises," Dr. J. T. Wrightson, of Newark, with discussion by Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, of Plainfield, and Dr. Henry Mitchell, of Asbury Park; "Weaning," Dr. Floyd McEwan, of Newark, with discussion by Drs. H. L. Colt, of Newark, and A. W. Bingham, of East Orange; "Recent Progress in Cerebro-spinal meningitis," Dr. Frank W. Pinneo, of Newark, with discussion by Drs. R. C. Newton, of Montclair, and George E. McLaughlin, of Jersey City.

Fight in Court Room.

It required the whole constabulary of Mercer Court, at Trenton, yesterday to quell the outbreak of an Italian feud between the families of Irmo Marovico and Mary Baran. The two were on trial for adultery, and at noon recess the families came together in the court corridor. A free fight ensued and knives were in the air, when the constables rushed in and locked up the belligerents.

Hoboken Man Seeks Wife.

John Cordes, of Hoboken, went there yesterday in the hope of learning some tidings of his missing wife. Once before she had traveled in this direction while suffering from temporary insanity, and the husband thought she might be found here.

CLOSED PORTALS.

At a meeting held Tuesday night at Kitzler's hall, Elizabeth, by the Bartenders' Union, Local No. 432, John F. Murphy, business agent of the Bakes and Confectioners' Union, and of the Butchers' Union, was elected bartenders' delegate. Mr. Murphy will represent these three bodies of organized labor in the Union County Trades Council. About ten months ago he was sent from the headquarters of the Butchers' Union, to Elizabeth, to work for the interest of local butchers and advocate the closing on Sunday of all butcher shops. His efforts toward that end have been successful. Shortly after the beginning of the bakers' strike Mr. Murphy interested himself in their troubles and worked so faithfully for them that he was made their official representative. His work attracted the atention of the Bartenders' Union, and, as a result, he was chosen their representative Tuesday night. An effort will now be made by the Bartenders' local to unionize every saloon in Union county.

SOMERVILLE'S TEAM.

A Number of Good Players Are Signed Already.

Charles C. Kenyon and H. William Reusswig, of the board of directors of the new baseball team for Somerville, have secured some players from the Clinton, Hunterdon County, nine, which has gone into bankruptcy. They succeeded in signing Allenius for centrefield, Schaefer for third base anr Fritts for first base and substitute pitcher. All are considered very strong players. They are particularly fine batters.

Russell, of this city, has been secured as the regular catcher and Galbraith will be tried out as pitcher. He is now living in Somerville. "Brit" Martin, of this city, will cover second base. It was rumored Allen, of this city, would sign for a position, but it is stated that he cannot be induced to leave Raritan.

Two games with the Bayonne A. C. are scheduled for July 4. A series with Raritan and Plainfield will probably follow.

TO BEAUTIFY LAKE.

Mayor and Health Board to Suggest Improvements.

For the purpose of making Tier's Lake more attractive and removing the tree stumps and other unsightly objects that have been an eyesore for some time, the interested property-owners are trying to interest the Board of Health and Mayor to cause these tree stumps, etc., to be taken out of the bed of the lake at htat point, and deepen the lake so that the water will be allowed to come up flush with the dam.

The Board of Health, accompanied by Mayor Buckle, will visit the place, probably today and suggest ways and means to improve this spot. At present this is an excellent breeding place for mosquitoes and it is also in the hope of improving this condition that improvements will be made. J. Fred MacDonald is among those who are interested in the matter.

COUNTY COURT CASES.

A Lot of Plainfield Prisoners Plead Non Vult.

George Neal, of Exchange alley, who was indicted by the Grand Jury for keeping a disorderly house, was arraigned in the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth this morning, retracted his former plea of guilty and entered one of non vult. He will be sentenced on Wednesday, June 28.

Abraham and Lena Friedman, Frank Ross, Dominick Parreti, Lawrence Paoli and Thomas Brown, Plainfielders, indicted by the Grand Jury on a charge of illegal liquor selling, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Vail. They retracted their former plea and entered one of non vult. They will be sentenced on Wednesday, June 28.

SCHOOLS CLOSE.

After Announcement of Promotions Are Made.

All the city schools closed their doors this morning for the 1905 summer vacation. At the High School singing began the exercises. After H. M. Maxson spoke a few encouraging words to the pupils he school was dismissed.

In the other public schools, after promotion lists were read, the children were dismissed early. No lessons or recitations were given anywhere this morning.

Elizabeth's Oldest Woman Dead.

Mrs. Mary Emily Powell, who, according to the census enumerators, was the oldest living woman in Elizabeth, died yesterday at the home of Ava W. Powell, a relative, who lives at 454 Morris avenue, there. Mrs. Powell was born in Connecticut and was the widow of the late Dr. Elisha Powell. Had she lived until June 30 she could have celebrated her ninety-ninth birthday. For many years she resided in New York, Brooklyn and Cranford. She had only lived a few years in Elizabeth. Her mind was clear and her intellect unimpaired up to her last illness.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 25.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Our national heritage.—Isa. lx, 1-12. (Home missions. This may also be used as a temperance topic.)

In speaking of Christ in the opening chapter of his gospel John says, "And of His fullness have all we received, and grace for grace." The addition of grace to grace not only comes by growth, but also by inheritance. We inherit all the good of the ages that have gone before us. In philosophy, in invention, in theology and in religious experience we have the advantage of all that has been thought out and accomplished in the past periods of human history. The heritage of the American nation is a glorious one. When we think of the priceless privileges and glorious advantages that we enjoy today as a nation as a result of God's blessing upon our godly ancestry we cannot be too thankful to God and too appreciative of the sacrifices and toils of those brave bands of men who at great cost laid the foundation of the republic, whose freedom and manifold other blessings we enjoy today as an inheritence that has cost us nothing. As a nation we can truthfully say, "The lines are fallen unto us in pleasant places; yea, we have a goodly heritage."

Not the least of our national blessings, inherited from those who have gone before, are our religious blessings. The men who laid the foundations of our republic were strong religious men. The manliest men of the world have always been religious men. The religious privileges that should have been theirs by inheritance had been cut off by tyranny and oppression, and to a new land they came and won them back for themselves and handed them down to their children and their children's children, let us hope, until the end of time. These religious blessings are ours today—faith in God, the Bible, the Sabbath day, religious liberty and all the minor blessings that go with these greater possessions. And these priceless inheritances are abundant proof that God has called us from among the nations unknown when Isaiah wrote and that as a nation we have earnestly sought the Lord our God and the Holy One of Israel because He glorified God. Hitherto our national life has centered in God and in Christ, who glorified God. And may it ever be so. Realizing that nations as well as individuals should "seek first the kingdom of God," may our nation ever give God the first place in its life and exalt that righteousness which exalteth a nation and avoid sin, which is a reproach to any people.

The inheritor, to show his appreciation of his heritage, should use it well and strive to pass it on to those who come after him in still better condition. One of the darkest facts in human history is that of wasted inheritances. In how many cases inherited fortunes have been a curse rather than a blessing! May it not be so with our national inheritances. As we have fully received the gospel from those who have gone before us, may we extend it throughout our land and hand it down in its purity and simplicity to those who come after us. And as our national ancestors lived close to God and avoided the evils of life that destroy, so may we also live, practicing, above all things, that self control for which they were noted and by means of which they were able to do great things for their God and for their fellows. Thus can we best thank God and thank them for our goodly national heritage.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xx, 8-11; I Kings xv, 11-15; II Kings xviii, 1-8; Ps. xvi, 5-7; xxxiii, 12-20; Prov. iv, 25-27; xiv, 34; Acts i, 8; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 14, 15.

An Objection Box.

The English Christian Endeavor Times suggests as an attractive feature for Christian Endeavor meetings an occasional objection box. At one time, for example, members might be asked to bring to the meeting all the objections they had heard raised against foreign missions. Some skillful speaker of experience will be prepared to answer those objections and to send the members away ready to meet them with convincing argument when they occur in the course of future conversation. At another time in a similar way objections to the Christian Endeavor pledge might be considered, or to our Christian Endeavor consecration meeting, or to the practice of tithing.

A New Endeavor.

Japan has a new sort of Endeavor society—a Warriors' Families' Endeavor society, started in Yokosuka among the families of sailors. The empress became interested in the organization and sent a generous contribution to its treasury. It is established also at the Maizuru naval yard and consists mostly of families of sailors and cares for needy relatives of absent seamen.

A Tribute to Maine.

[Written for the first number of Maine's new Christian Endeavor organ.]

All hail to the state of the sturdy pine,
Whose sons are as masterful ever,
And hail to the sturdiest product of all,
The Pine State's Christian Endeavor!

Honor the state of the temperance host,
Discouraged, demoralized never,
And honor that teacher of firm self control,
The Pledge State's Christian Endeavor!

A cheer for the state that gave Longfellow birth,
The poet of young hearts forever,
And a cheer for that poem of God and of youth,
Perennial Christian Endeavor!

And never may weakness or sin or decay
These three from our banner dissever,
But always may power and pureness and youth
Be the glories of Christian Endeavor!

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

June 25: "The Vast Field of Southern Asia"—Mal. i, 11; Matt. viii, 11; John x, 16.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

"My name shall be great among the gentiles." India, from the snowy Himalayas to the farthest cape that looks out upon the southern seas, has for long ages been the home of uncounted millions of human beings who have struggled with each other for existence. A wonderland in fertility and natural resources, it has been the seat of empires vast in extent and fabulous in resources and luxury. It has been the object of the cupidity of every world conqueror in the successive centuries. It is today the special care of Britain and desire of Russia.

It is the home of religions having the largest following the world has ever produced. Hindooism and Buddhism were born there. The temples now in use are among the most numerous of any religion, while the ruins of those no longer maintained are objects of wonder and admiration for their architecture.

More than twoscore nationalities and many other tribes with a variety of languages and dialects numbering into the hundred, with a complex of customs and manners utterly bewildering and fastened by centuries of practice—all these go to make up a world almost unintelligible even to those who have studied it longest and with best opportunity.

It is into this mass of humanity that our religion has been carried and is making some of its most noted triumphs. Every league should at some time in the year make a particular study of our missions in southern Asia. History is making so rapidly at the present time and is so intensely fascinating that no one can afford to be ignorant of the conditions in this great peninsula of nations which is destined in the near future to play an important part in all probability in the drama of the world's progress.

Our own church began operations in India in 1856, when William Butler was sent out to found our mission. He selected the northwest provinces as our field because, among other reasons, no other church had missions there and also because our missionaries would not need there to learn so many languages as in other parts.

The story of our progress reads like the veriest romance. Today we cover the whole peninsula with our work and have extended our lines far down the eastern division of farther India, past Rangun, to the far strait of Malacca, and are firmly intrenched at Singapore and are reaching out into great Borneo and the unexplored fastnesses of the islands of the tropic seas.

The type of Methodism which is rising there is of the finest. Some years since, after he had made a tour of visitation of our missions there and had held all the conferences, Bishop Foss declared that if Christianity was lost from all the rest of the world there were sufficient vitality and aggressive power in the church in India to evangelize the world. Since that time the advance in the work has been very great.

All our young people should know the story of Sooboonagam Ammal of Madras. It will make an evening of much pleasure and interest to have it read in our chapters. The Woman's Foreign Missionary society will supply copies if asked.

Thy Will Be Done.

To step out of self life into Christ life; to lie still and let Him lift you out of it; to fold your hands close and hide your face upon the hem of His robe; to let Him lay His cooling, soothing, healing hands upon your soul and draw all the hurry and fever from its veins; to realize that you are not a mighty messenger, an important worker of His, full of care and responsibility, but only a little child, with a father's gentle bidding to heed and fulfill; to lay your plans and ambitions confidently in His hands as the child brings its broken toys at its mother's call; to serve Him by waiting; to praise Him by saying, "Holy, holy, holy," a single note of praise, as do the seraphim of the heavens, if that be His will; to cease to hurry so that you lose sight of His face; to learn to follow Him and not run ahead of orders; to cease to live in self and for self and to live in Him and for Him; to love His honor more than your own; to be a clear and facile medium for His life tide to shine and glow through—this is consecration and this is rest.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

Obedience to Duty.

We believe that obedience to duty is the way of life, and no one can do wrong without suffering. We believe in truthfulness, honesty of conduct, integrity of character, wise and generous giving, purity of thought and life. We believe that no real harm can befall the righteous in life or death.—C. F. Dole.

"Tell Him So."

If you have a word of cheer
That may light the pathway drear
Of a brother pilgrim here,
Let him know.

Show him you appreciate
What he does, and do not wait
Till the heavy hand of fate
Lays him low.

If your heart contains a thought
That will brighter make his lot,
Then in mercy hide it not;
Tell him so.

Wait not till your friend is dead
Ere your compliments are said,
For the spirit that has fled,
If it know,

Does not need to speed it on
Our poor praise. Where it has gone
Love's eternal, golden dawn
Is aglow.

But unto our brother here
That poor praise is ever dear;

PARASOL NEWS.

A New Japanese Embroidered Parasol a Novelty of the Season.

Japanese parasols are a novelty of the season. They are made along the lines of the cheap paper ones, but are covered with silk and decorated with the cherry blossoms these orientals so passionately love. A white silk Jap sunshade flowered with cherry blossoms adds a touch of coquetry to a smart white costume.

The newest parasols have plain outlines, but are quite as elaborate as those of last year. They are painted and embroidered in a thousand different ways. Bunch after bunch of tiny flowers find a home on the covers or four or five great blossoms are flung daringly on the parasol and the rest left plain.

For the edge of a linen parasol nothing is prettier than broderie anglaise, the eyelets gathered into waving lines. The outer edge is finished with a simple scallop.

One frippery parasol whose only excuse for being is its beauty has a foundation of wire lined with dull, soft green, its top a mass of pink flowers.

Silk parasols are embroidered with silk; linen with soft cotton, or simply tucked around the edge. Indeed hand work plays an important part on the tout en cas of the season.

The parasol illustrated is of heavy white linen. The shape is somewhat of a dome, one of the smart outlines of the summer. About the edge is a simple scroll design carried out in broderie anglaise. The handle is of white wood, with a stout knob end.

Hair Nets Are a Summer Vogue—Styles For the Small Girl.

Hair nets not only to cover the "bun," but to keep the pompadour smooth, are to be worn this summer, especially when traveling. The nets are made of human hair, both single and double in mesh, and come in three styles, large or small meshes, and of different sizes to fit the "bun" or pompadour or the entire head. When the hair is worn low on the neck and in a fluffy arrangement in front these nets neatly put over the head are very old fashioned looking and becoming to a girl with some pretensions to beauty.

Hair nets will be worn this summer at the seashore to keep limp tresses in shape.

play garments. They are made of brown holland, with collar and cuffs and a band continuing down the front closing for a few inches, or navy or cadet galatea cloth covered with white soutache braid.

Lingerie hats are blessings to mothers with small daughters, for these hats may be safely attempted by the amateur milliner given a becoming wire frame and pretty embroideries. For instance, a round white dolly appliqued with motifs of embroidery edged with narrow ruffles of val lace makes a lovely tam crown. The brim is lined with folds of soft mull and covered outside with a ruffle of embroidery.

For the little girls' wear at the seashore is a tan cloth loose coat in three-quarter length, with facings and trimmings of bright red.

The suspender frock will be just as popular with the small girl as it is with her mother. Remnants are used to the best advantage in a dress of this kind.

The charming little dress in the cut is of pink mull. The very full skirt has a ruffle of fine embroidery at the bottom, and above it are waved bands of insertion. In ray like strips this insertion trims the upper part of the skirt. The waist is a bloused affair, trimmed with insertion. At the top of the short puffed sleeves are rosettes of pink ribbon.

"And wait till morning for it to get here? No! I'll get it—somehow."

And that he did get it somehow was current rumor on the following day, for the sentries on the guardhouse side of camp swore that a closed carriage drove down from McAllister street for all the world as though it had just come out of the park and rolled on past the back of the guardhouse, the driver loudly whistling "Killarney," so that it could be heard above the crunching of the wheels through the rough, loose rock that covered the road, and that carriage drew up not a hundred yards away, while the lieutenant was out visiting sentries and presently they saw him coming back along the walk, stopping to question each sentry as to his orders. Then he returned and inquired if all was quiet among the prisoners, and then went and put out his light in the tent reserved for the officer of the guard, and once more left his post, briefly informing the sergeant of the guard he was going to the officer of the day. Then it was ascertained that he had visited half a dozen places in search of that veteran captain and appeared much disturbed because he could not find him. In half an hour he was back, asking excitedly of the sentry in rear of the guardhouse if a carriage had come that way. It had, said the sentry, and was waiting down the street. Gray hurried in the direction indicated, was gone perhaps three minutes and returned, saying that the sentry must be mistaken, that no carriage was there. But the sentry reiterated his statement that it had been there and had been waiting for some time, and must have disappeared while he was temporarily around at the opposite side of the building. This was about 11 p. m.

Then when Gray appeared at reveille Morton had disappeared.

"It's not the sergeant let them fellers out," said the regimental oracles. "This is no ten-dollar subscription business." And so until late in the afternoon the question that agitated the entire range of regimental camps was: "How did those fellows break away from the prison of the —teenth?" Then came a clew, and then—discovery.

By order of Lieut. Col. Canker a board of officers had been convened to investigate the matter, and after questioning everybody whom "Squeers" had already badgered with his assertions, threats and queries, they went to the guardhouse and began a thorough inspection of the premises. The wooden building stood in the midst of a waste of sand blown in from the shore line by the strong sea wind. It was perched on something like a dozen stout posts driven into the soft soil and then the space between the floor level and the sand was heavily and stoutly boarded in—thick planks being used. Between the floor and the sand was a space of about 18 inches vertical, and a dozen men could have sprawled therein—lying at full length—but to escape would have required the connivance of one or more of the sentries surrounding the building and the ripping off of one or more of the planks. In his keen anxiety Canker accompanied the board on its tour of investigation—a thing the board did not at all like—and presently, as was his wont, began running things his own way. It had been found useless to question the soldiers of the guard. Not a man could be found to admit he knew the faintest thing about the escape. As for the prisoners, most of them reckless, devil-may-care rascals, they grinned or leered suggestively, but had nothing to tell.

"We'll have this boarding ripped off," said Canker, decisively, "and see what they've got secreted under there. I shouldn't be surprised to find a whisky still in full blast, or a complete gambling outfit—dash, dash 'em to dash and dashnation! Send for a carpenter, sergeant."

"The morning will be too late."

The carpenter came, and he and two or three of the guard laid hold of one end of the plank after its nails were drawn, and with little exertion ripped it off the other posts. Then everybody held his breath a minute, stared, and a small majority swore. So far from its being open to cats, cans and rubbish, the space on that side was filled solid with damp, heavy sea sand—a vertical wall extending from floor to ground. Canker almost ran around to the opposite side and had a big plank torn off there. Within was a wall as damp, solid and straight as that first discovered, and so, when examined, were the other two sides provided. Canker's face was a sturdy, and the board gazed and was profoundly happy.

At last the colonel exploded:

"By Jupiter! They haven't got away at all, then! There isn't a flaw in the sand wall anywhere. They must be hiding about the middle now. Come on, gentlemen," and around he trotted to the front door. "Sergeant," he cried, "get out all the prisoners—all their bedding—every blessed thing they've got. I want to examine that floor."

Most of the guardhouse "birds" were out chopping wood, and Canker danced in among the few remaining, loading them with bedding belonging to their fellows until every item of clothing and furniture was shoved out of the room. One member of the board and one only failed to enter with his associates—a veteran captain who read much war literature and abhorred Canker. To the surprise of the sentry he walked deliberately over to the fence, climbed it and presently began poking about the wooden curb that ran along the road, making a low revetment or retaining wall for the earth, cinders and gravel that, distributed over the sand, had been hopefully designated a sidewalk by the owners of the tract. Presently he came sauntering back, and both sentries within easy range would have sworn he was chuckling. Canker greeted him with customary asperity.

"What do you mean, sir, by absenting yourself from this investigation, when you must have known I was with the board and giving it the benefit of the information I had gathered?"

"I was merely expediting matters, colonel. While you were looking for where they went in I was finding where they got out."

"Went in what? Got out of what?" snapped Canker.

"Their tunnel, sir. It's Libby on a small scale over again. They must have been at work at it at least ten days." And as he spoke, calmly ignoring Canker and letting his eyes wander over the floor, the veteran battalion commander sauntered across the room, stirred up a slightly projecting bit of flooring with the toe of his boot and placidly continued: "If you'll be good enough to let the men pry this up you may understand."

And when pried up and lifted away—a snugly fitting trap door about two feet square — there yawned beneath it, leading slantwise downward in the direction of the street, a tunnel through the soft yielding sand, braced and strengthened here and there with lids and sides of cracker-boxes. "Now, if you don't mind straddling a fence, sir, I'll show you the other end," said the captain, imperturbably leading the way, and Canker, half-dazed yet wholly in command of his stock of blasphemy, followed. At the curb, in the midst of a lot of loose hay from the bales dumped there three days before, the leader dislodged with his sword the top of a clothing box that had been thickly covered with sand and hay—and there was the outlet. "Easy as rolling off a log, colonel," said old Cobb, with a sarcastic grin. "This could all be done without a man you've blamed and arrested being a whit the wiser. They sawed a panel out of the floor, scooped the sand out of this tunnel, banked it solid against the weather boarding inside, filled up the whole space, pretty near, but ran their tunnel under fence and sidewalk, crawled down the gutter to the next block out of sight of the sentries, then walked away free men. Those three thieves who got away were old hands. The other men in the guardhouse were only mild offenders, except Morton. 'Course he was glad of the chance to go with 'em. I s'pose you'll release my sergeant and those sentries now."

"I'll do nothing of the kind," answered Canker, red with wrath, "and your suggestion is disrespectful to your commanding officer. When I want your advice I'll ask for it."

"Well, Mr. Gray will be relieved to learn of this anyhow. I suppose I may tell him," hazarded the junior member, mischievously.

"Mr. Gray be——. Mr. Gray has everything to answer for!" shouted the angered colonel. "It was he who telephoned for a carriage to meet and run those rascals off. Mr. Gray's fate is sealed. He can thank God I don't slap him into the guardhouse with his chosen associates, but he shan't escape. Sergeant of the guard, post a sentry over Lieut. Gray's tent, with orders to allow no one to enter or leave it without my written authority. Mr. Gray shall pay for this behind the prison bars of Alcatraz."

More Facilities and Improvements for the Patrons of the New Jersey Central.

To lead, not follow, is the motto which the New Jersey Central has before it at all times, and a demonstration of that fact is the establishment of the new uptown ferry of the Jersey Central at West 23d street. The mammoth building which is to be used as a ferry house is of steel construction advantageously located in the very heart of the hotel, shopping and theatre district. There is at this new station every convenience which the traveling public might anticipate, such as lounging rooms for ladies and gentlemen, telegraph, public telephones, news stands, flower booths and the hundred and one little necessities which make traveling a delight rather than a burdensome task.

The commuter, and the New Jersey Central's commuters are numbered by the thousands, can purchase his monthly tickets at 23d street as well as at Liberty street, or his home station. Parlor car tickets can be bought, and as usual a complete baggage checking system has been installed. The ferry between 23d street and the New Jersey Central's Jersey City station is a delightful sail and two new boats, the Elizabeth and Wilkesbarre, will be in operation. Both are twin screw and double decked boats, making the trip in very short order and connecting with not only through trains but with the commutation and suburban trains as well. The New Jersey Central has just placed an order with the Harlan & Hollingsworth Company, of Wilmington, for two more fast boats for the 23d street ferry. This will make a fleet of ten new double decked ferry boats operated by this company. That the New Jersey Central is a road whose interests are its patrons was some time since recognized by the public.

One of the most widely known features was placing in service of twenty-four new trains for its New York and Philadelphia service in a single day, and the farsightedness of the move has been acknowledged, since every one of these trains is a paying venture, and from time to time new trains have been added, until now there are trains every hour and on the hour from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m., between the metropolis and the Quaker City.

Again recognizing a public demand, the New Jersey Central has just built and placed in commission six new dining cars, introducing several features new to the traveling public, first of which is the arrangement by which the traveler in the day coach has access to the dining car. The custom on all roads heretofore being to limit the dining car to the parlor and sleeping car passengers only. The service for breakfast and lunch is a la carte, while the dinner is served table d'hote at the rate of $1.00 per capita.

The New Jersey Central has just placed in commission something like thirty new coaches of the most approved style of architecture, and though its four-tracked road-bed is a recognized model of standard road making, nearly two hundred thousand cubic yards of crushed stone will be used for construction during the present season, and no less than three thousand tons of 90-pound steel rails will also be used. Only recently the New Jersey Central opened a new uptown landing at, West 42d street for its famous boats, the Asbury Park, Monmouth and Sandy Hook, of the Sandy Hook route, making it possible for seashore patrons from the residential section of New York to reach the New Jersey coast resorts in a most comfortable and convenient manner, while the landing downtown is at the new pier at the foot of Cedar street.

That it is the aim of the New Jersey Central to serve its patrons as they like to be served is an acknowledged fact, and even now there are other improvements in contemplation which will further emphasize this fact.

McGee, ethnologist, Washington; John D. Benedict, superintendent of schools in Indian Territory; Capt. W. A. Mercer, U. S. A., superintendent of Carlisle Indian School; H. B. Frissel, principal of Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute, of Hampton, Va.; Miss Estelle Reel, superintendent of Indian Schools, Washington, and others trained in the most advanced lines of educating the Indian.

Mrs. Schafuss, of Fairview avenue, has returned from a visit with relatives in Kentucky.

Mrs. Charles Ward, of New York, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Hulburt, of West Front street.

Robert Marcley, of New street, leaves today for Asbury Park, where he will take charge of Acker, Merrall & Condit's transportation department for the summer.

LEAGUE PLAYERS' AVERAGES.

Records Made So Far By National and American Members.

Batting averages of the players of the National and American leagues compiled up to date, largely from the official scores, show Si Seymour, of the Cincinnati Reds, and Eddie McFarland, of the Chicago White Sox, to be the leading batsmen of their respective leagues at the end of two months' play. Seymour up to Saturday had taken part in every game his team has played this season and made the average of .354 per cent. McFarland has taken part in thirty-one games and his average is .339 per cent. Of the men that have played in every game, Willie Keeler leads the Americans with .327 per cent. Seymour and Mike Donlin, of the Giants, have made the largest number of hits, each having reached first base seventy-four times. Keeler, Sam Crawford, of Detroit, and Harry Davis, of the Athletics, have each made fifty-six hits, and lead the Americans. Billy Maloney, of the Chicago Cubs, who is called the "Second Billy Sunday," is the leading base runner to date. He has stolen thirty bases in fifty-two games. Arthur Devlin, of the Giants, is second with nineteen. Topsy Hartzel, of the Athletics, leads the Americans in base running. He has stolen twenty-three in forty-eight games. Kid Gleason, of Philadelphia, is the National League leader in sacrifice hits, with thirteen to his credit. Fred Parent, of Boston, holds the American League, with twelve sacrifice hits. MOSES' COLOR TURNED Rev. Prof. Checizzli Delivers Another Anthropoligical Lecture on Noah's Sons.

DROPS OF KNOWLEDGE

They Should All Have Been Black Like Ham, Because Noah Was Undoubtedly Colored.

That Moses and Noah were black was demonstrated anthropologically by Rev. Prof. C. F. Checizzli, in a lecture at Calvary Baptist church Tuesday night. The discourse was a companion exposition to the one delivered by the Abyssinian college president and priest at Mt. Zion A. M. E. church the night before, in which he proved, also anthropologically, that Eve was black.

The gist of the reverend professor's anthropological assault on the Aryan assumption that Moses and Noah were lily whites is as follows. The anthropologist dictated it himself:

"The subject of anthropology is one of the most conspicuous weapons of sciences that one can grasp to demonstrate facts of the human origin. It enables us to cast off the rusty garment of Hebrew's biblical myth, to investigate the stability of the allegorical cloak, made for centuries to cover us, and aids us to mount up the towering summit of veracity, tossing off fragments of delusion and superstition. Psychologically speaking, the origin and perfection of life—material or mythically spiritual—could be found in the broad field of spontaneous generation, which being heteronomously compacted, made it essential for protoplatic development of consciousness. Pardon the metaphysical argument of mine; for inasmuch as Jewish theories of genealogy having so potent a superstitious hold on the Christian family, I must determine first through the source of the broad field of philosophy the ethnological argument of Moses and Noah.

"Anyone learned in the Hebrew's language could not fail to see the close connection of the word Moses to the Amharic—which Aramaic was the original language used by the Eastern Africans, to whom the Jews were taken in bondage. Moses' mother was white, not if we technically speak, for nothing is white but snow; but from ethnological and historical grounds I say that his father was black. Why had the fabulous Phinetas, daughter of black Pharaoh, King of Egypt, rescued him, one the banks of the Nile's tributary, near Thebes' city?

"It was because she identified his physiological resemblance to hers. Do not mistake me to say personally that Moses was rescued—no! I speak by permission of your belief so strongly on Jewish traditional history. For my part I argue that he was never hidden by his half sister, Miriam, but consciously placed in Phinetas' route, knowing that she would pass there to obtain her regular bath.

"Logically speaking, take the allegorical miracle, the Hebrew attributed to God to have done—in asking Moses to 'put his hand in his bosom,' and 'take it out'—why, the inference is plain, his hand was black, or swarthy, and it was taken out white. He must then have been black, physiologically speaking.

"Noah, who was saved from a local flood, was black, on account of his nativity and ethnology. His son Ham became swarthy, taking his father's complexion; wherein Yapthar and Shem were, vulgarly speaking, freaks of Nature. In conclusion, let me say that the color of a man does not tend to obliterate his kinship of God, does not tend to obstruct his ethical and intellectual growth; nay, what tends to deteriorate and degrade him are the criminological microbes that might occupy his soul—I mean the mind, perception and various conscious vitalities."

Dr. Checizzli is not pleased with the way in which the Calvary Baptist church officials conducted their part of the lecture arrangements. He says they took up a collection and kept it. The professor says he himself never takes up a collection.

Cut by Flying Stone.

While Frank Mobus, of the borough, was directing some work at the quarry in the Notch yesterday, a sharp piece of stone chipped off by an Italian struck him on the side of the face. A long gash was inflicted that required the attention of Dr. Pittis. Several stitches were inserted to close it.

Kraemer Had a Cramp.

George Kraemer, arrested for drunkenness, was arraigned in the city court this morning. He said he suffered from cramps and took two drinks of whiskey yesterday to ease his pain. Judge Runyon suspended sentence, but suggested that he substitue cholera drops for booze next time.

It is expected that Mr. Colby will say that while he is running as a Republican, he will not accept the place on the Republican platform unless it embodies all his principles without restriction. He will not either compromise or allow himself to be swallowed up in any ingenious platform of glittering generalities.

ELKS PLAN CHANGES.

To Revise Ritual at Grand Convention.

Two matters of great interest to members of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks will come before the coming annual session of the Grand Lodge in Buffalo, which a Plainfield contingent is preparing to attend.

There appears to be a general sentiment tin the East, New Yorke excepted, to restore the ritual in question to its form prior to last year's revision. The new form is by no means satisfactory to many lodges.

The other matter is one that is being fostered throughout the West and which ha sits advocates all over the territory in which the Elks are organized. Its supporters, though, are particularly strong the other side of the Mississippi, and according to a well known local member of the order it would not be surprising if the proposed legislation were enacted. It would, however, have no retroactive effect.

JEFFERY BUILDING.

That's the Name of No. 134 Park Avenue Now.

William Jeffery has leased the entire building at 134 Park avenue, and the structure will hereafter be known as the Jeffery building. He returned what he had secured and Miss Day allowed him to go, though the matter has been reported to the authorities.

The strawberry festival at Marconnier chapel last night was a great success, in spite of the forbidding weather. It was largely attended, and all the ice cream and cake was sold. The affair netted between $35 and $40.

POTENT INFLUENCE OF EDUCATION; COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER'S SUBJECT

Rev. Dr. Hillis at 35th Annual Exercises of Plainfield High School.

DIPLOMAS FOR 28.

Howard Lapsley Delivered Oration and Miss Anna L. Runyon Essay —No Valedictory or Salutatory.

Marked by one of the largest classes that has been sent out in many years, the thirty-fifth annual commencement exercises of the Plainfield High School took place in the First Baptist church last night before an audience numbering 1,000 persons. The programme was of the usual interesting and commendatory nature, but differed from the prescribed rule in that there was no salutatory or valedictory, honors much sought after and awarded only to the pupils standing highest in studies. The former had been arranged for, but was omitted because of the indisposition of Miss Edna Florence Derby, and though Miss Carolyn Palmer was made valedictorian, she took no part in the exercises. The place usually accorded this number was filled by an oration by Howard Guernsey Lapsley.

With the members of the Board of Education, Dr. H. M. Maxson and Principal I. W. Travell, the graduates were seated on the platform and their respective courses were as follows:

Classical Course—Percy Mortimer Brown, Edna Florence Derby, Aimee Juliet Conant, Carolyn Palmer, Lillian Snodgrass. Latin-Scientific Course—Carro Adelia Bird, Ada Anna Westphal, Anna Louise Runyon, Emily Lawrence Winant. General Course—George Luason Babcock, Howard Guernsey Lapsley, Chester Harris Briggs, Walter Henry Rugen, Howard Hunter Craig, Harry Gilbert Thompson. Modern Language Course—George Lewis Bentley, Edith Lillian Jarvis, Hazel DuMont Grant, Roxana Bostock Love. Commercial Course—Harold Alexander Brownell, Laurance Miller, Maud Amy Disbrow, Mary Evelyn Gray, Lulu May Stryker, Emily Minto Hallett, Martin Brown Stutsman.

Frank's New York orchestra, stationed in the gallery, opened the programme with the overture "Murilla," and Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Soul's church, offered invocation. The salutatory being omitted, an essay, "Samuel Chapman Armstrong," remarkably well written, was delivered by Miss Anna Louise Runyon. The young woman's stage presence was easy and her lines were spoken in a firm, clear voice that carried them to every part of the auditorium. An instrumental selection, "Fantana," intervened, and Howard Guernsey Lapsley gave his essay, "Master Workmen," an effort very much above the High School average and which earned for him well deserved applause at the close.

The distinctive feature of the exercises was the address by Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, D. D., of Plymouth church, Brooklyn. Though his remarks were extemporaneous, he spoke for an hour on the value of education and the potent influence that knowledge has in the advancement of mankind. While not a dramatic speaker, Dr. Hillis has a convincing manner, and with his years of experience as a traveler, educator and clergyman he held the rapt attention of the large gathering during the entire time that he was before it. In the course of his address he said:

"The scholar is the favorite child of Heaven and earth and wisdom and knowledge are their own reward. We marvel at the flying looms and the intricacies of machinery, but they all have their beginning in the thought of some quiet man who has had the benefit of education. Nothing is accomplished without knowledge, and everything that is worth while in civilization is the achievement of a scholar. It is knowledge that takes the bar of iron and shapes it into horseshoes and cutlery and that touches all manner of rock in nature and makes it gush forth springs of wealth.

"This nation of ours has preeminence over all others in education because of our democratic form of government. In the autocracy the idea of education consists in teaching royalty, in the bureaucracy the teaching of the rich, but in the republic it is to educate the humblest citizen and so make them all royalty. It gives the country strength over monarchies that is best illustrated in the likening of the latter to a single battleship and the former to a raft. One shot from a gun would sink the monarchy, but every log in the raft could be riddled and yet the whole would continue to float on.

"The gradual rise of the primitive savage was nothing more or less than his becoming wise in various ways. Every implement, every convenience was the gift of knowledge, and without it he would have stood still. Take away our knowledge of electricity and the lights in the big steamship go out; deprive us of our knowledge of machinery and the ship becomes a boat, propelled only by wind or oars; and so we could trace it on and on until we reached the gibbering savage again with nothing but his hands to help him.

"Wealth is on every side of us, only we don't know it, and these young men and women must not think that every good position is taken, that every great discovery has been made, or that all inventions have been perfected. This country with its vast resources offers immense opportunities to the student and the scholar, and future generations are to advance over us as we have advanced over our forefathers. One new fact in connection with the present day locomotives would throw them all into the scrap heap, and some day a boy with knowledge is going to give it. Only tonight, as I arrived in Plainfield, the sight of a pile of soot reminded me that there are millions of dollars awaiting the scholar who can teach the world how to burn coal properly. By the present method, fifteen per cent. is used at the bottom of the furnace, and the other eighty-five per cent. goes out at the top of the chimney in smoke and soot. When one realizes the amount of coal used in the United States, the possibilities are limitless—yet the solution lies in education.

"There are thousands of problems coming, so great is the vastness of the country, and it is only the scholar who can meet them. There are but few of us who understand those existing now. There are difficulties for the banker, the lawyer, the statesmen, the editor, the doctor and all, yet none of them know to what extent until they have traveled the length and breadth of the land and gained some knowledge of its immensity. We have fields that can supply the grain for the world, trees and forests to build all the houses needed by the world, gold and silver enough to make all the money for the world, but what we want is to manufacture the souls of mankind and womankind to educate the rest of the world. Our country is to be dependent to no small degree on our young scholars, and I may say that in all the graduates I have seen this year they are the kind we want. It seems to me, though, that girls are outstripping the boys in their quest for knowledge, as in the ten commencements I have been at this season, sixty per cent. were young women. The percentage is increasing on their side yearly, and it is becoming a serious matter.

"While speaking of problems, there is another to be mentioned in the great tide of immigrants, 600,000 having landed in America since January 1, and with every prospect of the number reaching 1,000,000 before the close of the year. They offer great opportunities to the educated men and women in caring for them. New commercial enterprises must be started, new inventions made and a hundred and one things provided for this great army which is spreading itself over the country. In England and Ireland this exodus of sons and daughters has left those nations struggling with a problem, as the emigrants are invariably the best and choicest of their minds, and it is the unthinking who are being left behind. We are deriving the benefit, but it remains for our young people to take them in hand and by teaching them, make use of the knowledge they have gained."

With the conclusion of Dr. Hillis' speech, the presentation of rewards was made by Leander N. Lovell, and the diplomas were presented by Dr. J. B. Probasco, president of the Board of Education. A march, "Yankee Grit," brought the exercises to a close.

Mrs. Rogers Lone Contestant.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers was the only contestant for the Gaston cup at the Plainfield Country Club yesterday, no doubt due to the inclement weather. She went out in 48 and returned with a 41, which with a plus 2 for handicap gave her a net score of 91. Mrs. Rogers still leads for this trophy by a safe margin.

"Slipping," the Topic.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey will have charge of the prayer meeting at Warren chapel tonight at 8 o'clock. The topic will be "Slipping."

EXPLAINED R. A. CHANGE

Past Supreme Regent Bowne Addressed Local Councils on New Plan.

MEMBERS DISSATISFIED.

Volley of Questions Hurled at Speaker at Session of Plainfield Council Last Night.

There was a lively joint meeting of Plainfield and Greenbrook Councils, Royal Arcanum, in the Babcock building last night, called for the purpose of discussing questions relative to the recent announcement by the Supreme Council that new rates of insurance would go into effect October 1 next. There were over one hundred members present, and despite his long address, in which Past Grand Regent Horace I. Bowne attempted to explain the new assessments, the members were not satisfied with the Supreme Councils action, and before he finished he had an interesting time of it answering a volley of questions fired by different ones who came prepared with facts and figures.

Mr. Bowne began by giving a brief history of the order from its organization at Boston in June, 1877. He stated that its reasons for making a change in 1897 from calling for seventeen assessments a year to twenty-one, was to allow the extra assessments to establish a reserve fund. This, he claimed, has carried the order until two years ago, when it was found that the death claims were beginning to cut down the surplus to an alarming extent.

When the Supreme Council met at Boston last month, after a lenghty discussion of four days, the plan which goes into effect October 1 was adopted. Several options were decided upon, giving the members their choice. Mr. Bowne said that all the rates were mathematically equivalent, the only advantage being that members have the opportunity to select the plan that best suits them.

He denied that the purpose was to crowd out the older members, but that the change had to be made for the perpetuity of the order.

After the address the meeting resolved itself into a question box, and Mr. Bowne tried his best to explain each question, but in many cases he failed. It was almost the unanimous opinion that the Supreme Council had acted too hastily and that the $2,000,000 surplus should have been used before any change was made, and when this was done, either reorganize or explain its inability to keep the order going.

NEW SANITARY INSPECTOR.

Robert W. Meeker Selected for the Position.

Robert W. Meeker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Meeker, of West Front street, is now filling the position of sanitary inspector for the local Board of Health, succeeding Leonard Gavett, son of Street Commissioner Gavett. According to law, all persons securing such positions are obliged to pass an examination before the State Board of Health, as well as a physical examination.

Mr. Meeker passed a most creditable physical examination, and the one he took before the State Board of Health is believed to be equally as satisfactory. He has been engaged in the house-to-house inspection during the past month and the work is progressing favorably.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND.

Mrs. Gray's Family Frightened by Unexplained Absence.

Elderly Mrs. Theodore Gray, of 667 West Front street, decided to visit relatives in New York yesterday morning, and left without telling her family that she was going. She is in ill health and the family was frightened when her absence was discovered. Finding no trace of her in the neighborhood, she was reported as missing at police headquarters.

When Chief Kiely learned that Mrs. Gray had relatives in New York he instructed the family to investigate in that direction. Last night he received word that Mrs. Gray had been located, safe and unruffled, at the home of a friend in the metropolis.

DAAB AFTER N. B. A. C.

Plainfield Manager Has Collected Evidence of Numerous Violations.

WANTS EXPLANATION.

Agreements Not Enforced by Commission and Plainfield Team Suffers As a Result.

In view of the constant and open violations of the National baseball agreement at Elizabethport and other nearby cities and towns, Manager Daab, of the Plainfield Baseball Association, nas decided to get after the National Commission with a hot foot. He declares emphatically that the commission has got to do one thing or the other, that is give him absolute protection or release him from the conditions imposed by the agreement as subscribed to himself on behalf of his team. Yesterday it was announced that the commission had refused to allow his team to play Westfield, because the latter team harbors several ineligible players, and yet, in the absence of "Red" Waller at Westfield last Saturday, Altrock, of the Chicago Americans, occupied the box in his place. On the following day, several New York and Chicago American League players engaged in a contest at Elizabethport against the Stars, composed of many outlaws, including "Red" Waller.

Mr. Daab is determined to know what the commission proposes to do. It is possible that in case the commission decides adversely to Mr. Daab, he may adopt methods that will permit him to do certain things not now allowable.

Mr. Daab has collected evidence regarding flagrant violations of the agreement in this section and has forwarded it to the National Commission and he intends to put the whole matter up to this body and hold it responsible for future action."

In speaking of the matter yesterday Mr. Daab said:

"I do not propose to be held down to the strict interpretatino of the National agreement while others are allowed to openly violate it. Just now it appears that the commission decires to hold me to a strict account, saying that I must do just as it dictates, while I am to have no vocie or rights in the matter. The commission has got to give my team full protection against such violations or it cannot hold me up as it has been doing."

Mr. Daab expects to receive an answer to his letter within a week's time and he will then know just what to do. As yet he has not received the official copy of the decision given on Wednesday in regard to his appeal as to the Hoboken Club team being permitted to play under the name of Plainfield against Westfield. When this is received he will furnish a copy for publication.

FOR THE FAITHFUL.

Sub-Committee Authorized to Get Refreshment for Outing.

The outing committee of the Republican County Committee, which is arranging the excursion to go to Witzel's Grove, College Point, on July 29, met in Elizabeth last night. William Newcorn and Andrew McCardell were among the committeemen present.

The sub-committee on refreshments was authorized to get bids for the luncheon and other refreshments to be served on the boat, to provide music and employ waiters. The tickets to the outing have been out for over a week and they are going fast. It is believed that the boat will take out a record breaking crowd.

Taken to Hospital.

C. A. Heinecker, Jr., of Virginia, a representative for the Pond Machine Tool Works, who has been stopping for a few days at the Hotel Kensington, was removed to the hospital for treatment. He was taken ill on Saturday, and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, his physician, thought it best for him to be taken to the institution. His condition is not serious.

Special Meeting Date Fixed.

At a special meeting of the borough Board of Education, last night, July 3 was fixed as hte date for the special election for the issuance of $4,000 of school bonds. The polls will open in the Somerset street school at 8 o'clock.

Post Office Robbers.

The police were informed by telephone at 2:30 o'clock this morning that the post office at Millington had been broken into by burglars an hour before. The safe was cracked, but the robbers got nothing.

Another Bike Stolen.

A wheel belonging to Louis Lane, assistant news agent at the railroad station on North avenue, was stolen from the eastbound platform Wednesday morning.

Plainfield High School Graduating Class.

GULICK ON WAR PATH; BREAKS RUMPH'S RIBS

ALLEGED BRUTAL ASSAULT INCIDENT OF HORSE DEAL.

On complaint of Charles Rumph, of Lincoln, Justice R. F. P. Von-Minden, of Dunellen, issued a warrant last night for the arrest of Abram Gulick, also of Lincoln, charging him witn assault in which he claims that several ribs were fractured and tuat he sustained other injuries which have incapacitated him from work. The case will be given in the borough council rooms at Dunellen, tonight.

Acording to the complainant the affair happened a week ago and was the result of a dispute regarding a horse. He says that Mr. Gulick wanted him to pursuade his employer to purchase a horse of hiim, and because the employer secured another animal Mr. Gulick bega not depreciate the value of the horse by saying that he was not warth $2. Mr. Rumph took exception to the statement and while the two men were standing near the defendant's barn, where Mr. Rumph had just returned a borrowed wagon, the latter claims that Mr. Gulick beat him, jumped on him and fractured several ribs. He has since been under Dr. Gaston's care and it was only yesterday that he was able to leave the house and have a warrant issued for the arrest of his assailant.

ALL-CUBANS TOMORROW.

A Good Card is Presented by Manager Daab.

The All-Cubans will visit this city tomorrow for the first time, when they meet the local team on Crescent Oval. Many of the fans have seen this team and know their ability to play fast ball, and one of the largest crowds of the season should be present to witness the contest. The Cubans will present their strongest lineup, and it remains for the Plainfield team to break their winning streak. Manager Daab expects his team to play their best and add another victory to their long list. Beck or Deegan will be called upon to do the pitching, with O'Neill behind the rubber. This game will be one of the best attractions of the season. Notwithstanding that the team lost last week, it has been playing remarkable ball.

Following the exercises in the First Baptist church, last night, the high school graduates were accorded the usual reception at the Casino by the alumni of the classes of '03 and '04. It was attended by a large gathering of young people who enjoyed the dancing until a late hour, Frank's New York orchestra furnishing the music. The hall was profusely decorated with greens, school flags and colors.

Miss Nancy VanDeventer had charge of the arrangements and she was assisted by committees from the various classes.

There continues to be a gradual improvement in the condition of Mrs. Catherine C. Schenck, the aged mother of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital on May 9. She is now beginning to sit up a little each day and is gaining strength.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS BACK VAN HOUTEN

CONSTABLE HELD IN BAIL FOR THE GRAND JURY.

Charles R. Van Houten, the Springfield constable who shot at the automobile of Frederick H. Levey, of Broad street, Elizabeth, Monday evening, was brought before Justice James P. Kelly, at Elizabeth, for an examination Wednesday.

He waived a hearing and was held in $750 bail to appear before the October Grand Jury. The charge is on two counts and the bail is similarly divided, $500 for assult with intent to kill, and $250 on the charge of simple assault.

An interesting development of the affair is the announcement that the borough of Springfield will back Van Houten. The farmers have been aroused over the speeding of automobilists through their borough, and they have apparently approved Van Houten's summary but reckless effort to check it.

It was stated yesterday morning that Van Houten intended to enter counter charges against Stanley Reed, the chauffeur, for going through Springfield at an alleged illegal rate.

NO REPLY TO BOWEN.

Roosevelt Will Ignore Charges of Former Minister.

The Federal administration regards the Bowen-Loomis incident as closed, and no reply will be made to the charges contained in the statement which Herbert W. Bowen issued Wednesday. It was informally stated today, however, that there was no foundation for Mr. Bowen's statement that he was offered a promotion soon after he filed his charges against Mr. Loomis, which he construed as an effort to bribe him, and that he refused to accept it, as he wished to stay in Carcacas to continue his investigation into the record of Mr. Loomis while he was Minister at Caracas.

PARISH SCHOOL CLOSES

St. Mary's Parochial Institution Holds Interesting Exercises

NONE GRADUATED.

Good Programme Rendered to an Overflow Audience—Creditable to the Sisters.

Closing exercises were held by St. Mary's Parochial School last night in the school hall. A lengthy and notable programme was presented by the pupils. It was enjoyed by an audience that filled the hall to its limits.

The programme included recitations, action songs and a four-act play. It will be repeated tonight. There are no graduates this year, and orations have no part in the numbers.

The programme opened with an overture on the piano by Miss Mary Smith, who played all the accompaniments. "Welcome," an acrostic in verse, was acted by Richard Lorton, John Powelson, Alexius Ostermoor, Mary Kilbride, Mary Russ, Jennie Higgins, Agnes Heffernan. "Lullaby" and "The Peasant's Return," by Schumann, were sung in chorus by the school. Joseph Murray and Molly Traynor took part in a humorous dialogue, "Their First Quarrel." Miss Elizabeth Schuck played a violin solo, "The Good Comrade," by Krone.

Next to the play, the features of the programme were the action songs. The first of them on the programme was "The Merry Little Sailors," in which Joseph Carty, Alexius Ostermoor, James Daedy, Edward Galbraith, Richard Lorton, William Sheehan, James Casey, John O'Sullivan, Frank Donnelly, Joseph Bebout, James Corrigan, John Ball, Henry Donnelly, Bernard McCartney and John Henry took part. The second was the handicap, in which seventeen boys, dressed as jockeys, took part. They were James Cullen, Frank Casey, William Russ, George Flatley, Albert Naylor, Joseph Schuck, Harry Henry, Francis Cullen, Edward O'Loughlin, William Townley, Thomas Bystran, Frank Hand, Thomas Lappin, William Colvin, Charles Schuck, John Kregar, and Edward Hanrahan. "The Arithmetic Puzzle," the third of the action songs, was sung by fifty of the younger children, clad in school dress, with slate and pencil in hand.

A recitation, "A Legend of Service," was delivred by James Cullen. The school sang Poe's "Bells" in chorus.

Just before the play, which was the last number on the programme, the Shamrock Dance, which scored such a success at the exercises last year, was repated under the name of "A Frolic in Clover." The dancers were Norah McCarthy, Josephine Rock, Mary Kennedy, Madaleine Daedy, Mary Crosby, Kate Powers, Margaret Flatley, Mary Traynor, Loretta Walsh, Mabel Schuck, Ella Lappin and Mary Donnelly.

The four-act play, "Katinka, or the Indian's Trust," was a striking feature. It was well staged, and the cast executed the lines and stage business with unusual cleverness. It is, to a large extent, a play of school life, and over a score of schools girls appeared in it. Two of the scenes are in the class room of a convent school. The time of the play is right after the French and Indian War, and the action takes place near Quebec.

Elizabeth Brown, as "Katinka," was markedly successful, as was Kate Galbraith as "Nursie," the faithful old nurse who rescues "Katinka," after an Indian foray and afterwards maintains her at the convent school at the cost of much self-sacrifice. The other members of the cast, all of whom were perfect in their lines, were Elizabeth Casey, Mary Murray, Catherine Powers, Anna Callahan, Jeannette Hand, Lillian Leonard, Catherine McCauly, Loretta Walsh, Ella Lappin, Katherine Moore, Norah McCarthy, Ellen Welsh, Mary Donnelly, Mary Peterson, Mary Kennedy, Margaret Flatley, Madaleine Daedy, Bessie Parent, Ellen Smith, Katherine Barry, Mary Traynor and Mary Crosby. All the members of the cast are grammar school pupils.

Credit for the success of the play is due to William J. Romaine, who coached the cast Mr. Romaine is an actor, and he devoted all his knowledge and much time to perfecting the young players in their parts.

Former Pastors Present.

The gathering that witnessed the High School graduation exercises last night included two former Plainfield clergymen, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of Perth Amboy, and Rev. John McMurray, of Jersey City. A daughter of the former, Miss Lillian Snodgrass, was one of the graduates, and Miss Chrystella McMurray secured one ofthe prize rewards.

MAUCH CHUNK FOR JULY 4th.

There is no grander scenery anywhere than you will find on the journey to Mauch Chunk via the New Jersey Central.

Jersey is attractive, especially in the northern section, and the rolling country offers a variety of attractions the like of which no other section can boast. Pennsylvania and its mountains are too widely known to need elaboration, but Mauch Chunk and vicinity is a garden spot, if ever there was one. The Switchback Railroad is novel, inasmuch as no motive power is needed for operation. The inclines are gradual and in the fourteen mile journey there are many interesting experiences and fascinating scenes are unfolded with startling rapidity.

For a day's outing there is no place more thoroughly enjoyable than Mauch Chunk, and when the small cost of a day's trip is considered there is little left to be said. The New Jersey Central will run one of its popular one day excursions to Mauch Chunk on the Fourth of July by special train, which will leave Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk before noon. The returning train does not leave the mountain resort until 5:30 p. m., hence there is ample time for journeying over the Switchback, visiting Flag Staff and Glen Onoko. 6-23-td

Graduates' Part of the Exercises Last Night.

The Oration.

The oration was delivered by Howard G. Lapsley. His subject was "Master Workmen." He spoke as follows:

"In this age of energetic, powerful men, who in different branches of industry are achieving miracles, two men stand out boldly. For the high offices which they fill, they are both extremely young; one is forty-six, the other is forty-five years old. They are both statesmen of the highest caliber. They both are masterful rulers of men: one is a constitutional monarch whose power is quadrupled by his personality; the other is, even without his virile personality, the most powerful constitutional ruler of today. They both are overworked heads of nations; one rules sixty, the othey eighty, millions of people; one is Emperor William II. of Germany; the other is Theodore Roosevelt.

"Scholarly, strong, strenuous, versatile, fearless, the similarity between them is remarkable. The education and preparation of these men for their life's work was superb in the case of Emperor William and absolutely remarkable in that of Mr. Roosevelt. It was fitting that Crown Prince William should be finely educated at the University of Bonn before beginning his army training. Through the army he went step by step, from second lieutenant of the gigantic Potsdam Guards to commander of the largest and best trained army in the world. It was not only fitting, but highly remarkable, that Mr. Roosevelt received such a preparation for his present office as he has had. Crown Princes are tutored and trained from birth for their special office in life. Mr. Roosevelt, although not a crown prince, could scarcely have been more superbly prepared for the presidency.

"Theodore Roosevelt's four years at Harvard certainly did not have a tendency to make him conventional. Harvard is scarcely the college to do that. A course in Columbia Law School, a year's study in Germany, and mountain climbing in Switzerland, made him neither narrower nor more timid. Mr. Roosevelt's election to the New York Legislature at the impressionable age of twenty-three years did not leave him undeceived as to the iniquities of State politics. His six years' term on the Civil Service Commission was not a political, salary-drawing, plum. Through his influence the number of those holding office under civil service regulations jumped from 14,000 to 40,000. Next as president of the New York police force board he was not thrown into the arena to combat with square business men but rather with some thousands of municipal grafters. His office as assistant secretary of the navy was not a primary education in the lack of red tape in things martial. Of the far reaching effort of this same baneful influence, he was not kept unaware, when colonel of a regiment in service. As governor of the Empire State he was not kept in a secluded nook away from political bullies. Surely all these several employments are steps of a ladder of preparation up which not one of the twenty-five presidents before Mr. Roosevelt has climbed.

"The real test of strength is not so much the power a ruler has with his own country as it is the power he has with the world. In Mr. Roosevelt's case we were strongly impressed with this quite recently when we read from our morning papers: 'The President urges the Russian and Japanese governments.....to open direct negotiations for peace with one another.' Seemingly President Roosevelt has done what Togo could not do, namely, make the Russians acknowledge that they were beaten. Such acknowledgment is an unparalleled compliment to Mr. Roosevelt's strength.

"Tennyson says:

"never yet
Was noble man, but made ignoble talk."

"Especially in this age of rapid fire journalism, men who make self enter into their work are harshly, often scandalously, criticised on variously colored charges. These newspaper attacks affect both the Kaiser and the President in the way which stones thrown into a lake affect the lake. If it is raging no quantity of stones thrown into it will stop its raging. Of this fearlessnes of attack and individuality of action, both the Kaiser and President have recently shown evidence; the Kaiser in Morocco and the President in Panama. Upsetting the Anglo-French idea of lordship over Morocco, Emperor William, in his visit to Tangiers, told the Sultan that Germany regarded Morocco as a free country. France fumed, but France remembered. Similarly in Panama, President Roosevelt saw trouble if Colombian troops got near the canal, so he recognized Panama's independence. Newspapers talked about limits of a President's power, but in both cases the results have been achieved. In pursuing their courses both the Emperor and the President saw great possibilities of trouble. Unintimidated, however, they both did their duty as they saw fit.

"They not only have done things, but they keep doing. The Kaiser has chosen a motto applicable to both himself and Mrs. Roosevelt, 'If I rest, I rust.'

"What then has William done to keep from rusting? On assuming the throne he discharged Bismarck. He wished to be his own chancellor. On assuming the throne he found Germany without any battleships. She now has nineteen. The Kaiser's ideas dove-tail exactly with Mr. Roosevelt's where navies are concerned. Their mutual idea is that 'to be prepared for war is the most effectual means to promote peace.' Every ruling member of the Hohenzollern family has added territory to Germany. The Emperor has proved his right to the name of Hohenzollern by adding an unpronounceable island in the North Sea and a province in China. It is a safe assumption that he will not be content with this. Kaiser William has a powerful hold in the Turkish army, and if dilapidated Turkey falls apart Germany will get the lion's share and, moreover, she will keep it.

"During the next twenty years Germany will be an interesting country to watch. With its internal tendencies to anarchy, with its borders fringed with military powers, with its enormous army and rapidly developing navy, it is sure to be a country in which many political, social, and industrial problems must be faced and solved; and they will be wisely solved, we cannot doubt, under the directing genius of Emperor William.

"Mr. Roosevelt has not half the chance for such strenuousness on a large scale that Emperor William has had. In the last few years what has been done? As President, his administration is made memorable by many acts outside of the routine of the office; acts by which a courageous President has used the whole mighty influence of his office for the welfare of his people. He appointed the coal strike commission and thus by his own power and influence ended a great deal of misery. The only living ex-president once said, 'We face conditions, not theories.' Mr. Roosevelt realizes this. The question of today is the right to monopolize. Mr. Roosevelt recently showed the Chicago strikers that monopoly is as much an evil among laborers as among capitalists. The Northern Securities case, the Beef Trust case, the Sherman Anti-Trust act, and the establishment of a Bureau of Corporation, are great strides President Roosevelt has taken in the solving of this problem of monopoly.

"This is an age of termendous accomplishments, but the accomplishments of no two individuals stand out in bolder relief than those of our two master-workmen. Emporer William's varsatility and fearlessness will always brighten the pages of German History; an admiration for Mr. Roosevelt has already been engraved upon the hearts of the American people. Many sides our President has. Indeed, the St. James' Gazette says:

"Smack of Lord Cromer,
Jeff Davis a touch of him,
A little of Lincoln,
But not very much of him,
Kitchener, Bismarck and Germany's Will,
Jupiter, Chamberlain, Buffalo Bill."

"But after all what makes him the man of the time? It is the wisdom that enables him to seize upon the action necessary to the circumstances. It is the fearlessness and confidence with which he enters upon that action, once decided upon. It is the consecration of heart and soul to the cause of promoting righteousness. And it is the personal force which he throws into everything he undertakes. These qualities make him great. Mankind awards the crown of distinction, not to mediocre workers, who, shunning the chance of failure, leave no lasting mark behind, but to the eager worker who grandly dares and nobly does. Such a master workman is Theodore Roosevelt."

The Prize Essay.

Miss Elizabeth Crane Winter won the George H. Babcock prize for the best essay in the annual competition. Her subject was "A String of Beads." It is herewith reproduced:

The child with the golden hair played in the sunshine, and the old man in the wooden chair before the cottage door watched with little restless black eyes, while he tirelessly slipped a rosary through his fingers, and babbled Aves. Finally the child finished playing with his toys, and crept to ...e side of the chair. He watched the rosary gravely, as it fell from bead to bead in time with the sibilant patter of prayers.

"Why dost thou do that?" he queried, pointing a soft little finger at the crucihand held poised.

"'Thou?' 'thou?'" fretted the peasant. "Thou little aristocrat! Hadst thou lived when Samson played his merry little game in Paris, thy pretty head had not saved itself from a cooling in his basket. And he went so fast, so fast. We could not count. It was all blood, and moans, and the tumbrils rolled in bringing more, always more."

The old man moved in his chair, and sucked his shriveled lips with a grimace of unholy delight. The child looked troubled.

"'Guilbert! Guilbert!' they shouted," continued the peasant, mumbling to himself and searching the landscape with his eager little eyes.

"'Guilbert, save us!' But I, Guilbert, did not hear them. The beads were all laughed in their faces."

The boy clutched the old man's sleeve and shook him impatiently.

"What art thou talking about?" he demanded. "Tell me, now, I wish to know."

Guilbert brought his roving eyes back to the child, but they were bright, hard eyes. His wrinkled face looked like a mask of Tragedy, with exaggerated lines about the mouth, and a cruel lift to the eyelids.

"He looked like thee, the fool!" he muttered. "Silly yellow curls, like the gold he would not give us for bread, and a fair skin like the roses he threw at me in mockery. But she was mine, mine, not his. And was she not mine?" minced the peasant, changing his tone, and assuming an affected falsetto. "Was she not mine, and did I not do with her in the end as I liked?"

His voice dropped.

"But she was my foster-sister, and I loved her. Ah, there was no difference then. I took her through the fields, and we peeped at the nestlings in the hedges, and I brought her the first violets that raised their pretty faces to the sun. But they took her away from me, and she grew to be a fine lady. There was no food for us, but she fed the choicest from her plate to her doves and her lap-dogs. For me there was work, work, work, from sunrise to sunset; but for her all was pleasure and beauty.

"Eh, garcon, but I loved her, peasant that I was, and I went to her fairhaired brother and told him all. I went to him in his grand salon, where he stood alone, awaiting his guests. And what did he do? He laughed at me, and he called his servants to hold me until his sister came. She came, and the guests came, too, men from the court and the King's very presence, and they dragged me out and ridiculed me. 'Monseigneur,' they called me, and the women flung their flowers at me in scorn. Roses they flung, and the blossoms caught in my old rosary. Maddened, I tore it off and threw it on the ground, broke away from them, and rushed through the window to the lawn. With rage in my heart I watched them, back there in the lighted chamber. They were merry, and my poor crucifix lay on the floor all trampled on, until their smirking chaplain came through the room and rescued it.

"'Eh, eh, my children,' saye he, and that was all. And beneath the stars of Heaven I swore to be revenged."

"Ah, boy, how soon was that! The revolution came, liberty, and the cursed aristocrats were dragged to Paris for food for the hungry lady, La Guillotine. And with them came she, and her fairhaired brother, the fool! Ah yes, then it was that they called to Guilbert, when the judgment hall had them in its clutches. Save them? I?"

"'There is no case,' said the judges; but Guilbert knew, Guilbert whispered a word to a friend, and the friend spoke to a prison-keeper. Viola! the prison-keeper whispered to the judge, and there you are, my fine lady and my pretty boy, riding away with plenty of company. How is this after your coach and your carriage?"

The peasant's shrill voice grew thick in its utterances, and the wide-eyed child pressed nearer to hear the better.

"How they rolled, the tumbrils, always rolling, like thunder; and the tooth of La Guillotine, there you have your lightning. What a merry storm!"

"Along she came, with her white hands tied behind, and her white neck bare. And her brother, too, the fool of the fair curls, he sat beside her. A priest darted out from the crowd. It was the chaplain, and he was holding up my rosary. But no, my cure, Guilbert attends to that. Swifter than the Destroyer herself, I reached forth my arm and snatched it from him. It was all bloody, but I seized it, and grinned at them.

"'Oh, Guilbert!' she cried piteously, 'But save me, Guilbert, and thou shalt have—'"

"'Ah! Ah! What a pity to cut her short, Samson,' they cried, laughing loudly at the pun, and shaking hands and embracing one another, as one more head rolled into Samson's basket."

The peasant heaved a big sigh.

"Those were brave days, garcon," he chuckled, "and it was this crucifix, fancy, and so long ago."

He yawned and surveyed his wasted form amusedly, no longer savage, but facetiously god-humored.

"Well, well, Guilbert could not do it again,' he lamented. "No, no, little aristocrat, thou wilt have to find another to assist thee to thine end, should La Guillotine come into fashion again."

The Class Poem.

The poem was written by Miss Lillian Snodgrass. It is as follows:

"The sun peers o'er the Eastern mountains, and espies
A traveler far beneath him, staff in hand.
With eager steps the steep ascent he tries,
And gazes 'round him on the fruitful land.

"At first the way is easy, fresh his zeal and strength;
But soon the underbrush ensnares his feet.
The path grows rocky then, and seems of endless length;
The traveler longs or rest amid the heat.

"The Sun bath climbed the arch of heaven; down doth send
His parching beams upon the traveler's head.
He groans and cries aloud, 'Ah, will this never end?
'Twere easier far,' he thinks, 'if I were dead.'

"But now, amid the noonday's burning sun,
He comes upon a cool and sheltered nook.
'Neath friendly crags he rests, and hopes his journey done,
And drinks reviving draughts of a clear mountain brook.

"Reluctant, but with strength renewed, he leaves the spot,
His eyes turned toward yon distant shining peak.
The uphill road is rocky still, the sun beats hot;
Yet keenly strives he on, the top to seek.

"Traveler, the way leads upward to the very end.
You look ahead, and hope ere set of sun,
To gain the top. A few more steps, another bend—
And now you see your journey's just begun.

"Thus on and on, strength allows, you climb and rest,
Oftimes too weary to enjoy the view.
But lose not courage, care-worn traveler, all is best.
Climb while the daylight lasts; soon comes the evening dew.

"At length amid a glow of rosy sunset light,
The traveler sees the summit near at hand.
Amazed, he gazes; all about him now is bright;
'Tis but a step into the Perfect Land."

ARCHITECTS' CODES.

New Jersey Chapter Urges More Stringent Enforcement.

Becausethere are a great many cities in New Jersey, including Elizabeth, whose building codes are either too loosely enforced, or which are entirely without them, the New Jersey Chapter of the American Institues of Architects has embodied in a set of resolutions its conviction of the necessity of more stringent rules in cities already possessing a code, and also the adoption of codes by municipalities which are lacking in this respect. The architects suggested the appointment of a commission, consisting of a builder, an architect and an engineer, these to draw up suitable rules regulating the erection of all structures. The resolutions passed by the architects follow:

"Whereas, Much attention has been recently drawn to the looseness and insufficiency of the codes governing the erection of buildings in various cities of this State, said looseness and insufficiency being brought to the notice of our cities with particular force in the report of the Board of Fire Underwriters, recently issued, and

"Whereas, In the opinion of the New Jersey Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the various municipalities throughout the State should appoint commissions to draft adequate building codes for their respective municipalities, and that proper means should be provided for paying the expenses of said commissions. And be it further

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this Chapter, the personnel of said commissions should be made up of architects, builders and engineers of recognized standing in their various fields of work; and be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the various municipal bodies and organizations who may be interested in the passage of proper codes to govern the erection of buildings in the various cities of this State."

Plainfield, N. J., June 23, 1905.

Looks as if Mr. E. Quitable—Policyholder has made a flying leap from the frying pan into the fire.

"Mr. Snuffles" will tell the story of his second day's wanderings in tomorrow's issue. This time he visited Park avenue and incidently saw some funny things.

Before going on your vacation, make a contribution to the free open-air band concert fund. These concerts of popular airs furnish entertainment for thousands every Friday night. The third of the free festivals of music will be given tonight.

Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church, has kindly contributed the second of the series of sermons to be published in these columns on Saturday. Many favorable expressions have been received regarding the introduction of this feature and it is planned to continue the series indefinitely. These sermons are intended to reach the shut-in and the stay-at-home.

However harmonious the party will be for its county ticket in the fall, it does not take a particularly wise one to prophesy that there's going to be something doing in the municipal campaign so far as the Republican party is concerned. The administration forces are saying nothing, but thinking mightily, while the "anti-machine" men are working hard to form a strong opposition. Some of the councilmen not identified with the organization do not object to accepting another term, but political leaders in half the wards say they must be defeated at any cost.

MISS STRATTON MARRIED.

Former Plainfield Girl Wedded at Elizabeth.

Miss Emma L. Stratton, formerly of this city, and Reuben G. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, were married by Rev. F. C. Mooney, of Union Hill, N. J., at the residence of the bride at Elizabeth Wednesday night. Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff left for a trip of several days and will return Sunday and will be at home to their friends at 355 Morris avenue, Wednesdays after June 28.

In attendance upon the bride were Miss Cornelia May Terrell, of Rahway, a cousin of Miss Stratton and the flower girl was Miss Edna Fox and the page, Master Paul Fox, both of Elizabeth and friends of the bride. The best man was Harry J. Fromm and the ushers were Louis Allison and Clarence Williams, both of Elizabeth.

The wedding after the reception ceremony was attended by a large number of guests from Elizabeth and out of town, many being present from Plainfield, where the bride and her parents formerly lived. Mrs. Stratton, mother of the bride, received the guests. She wore fawn color voile over silk.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff received many handsome gifts, among them being articles of cut glass, checks, silverware, jewelry, hand painted dishes, furniture and bric-a-brac.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Stratton. Her father is the business manager of Boynton Beach. He made his residence with his family in this city Elizabeth to reside. The groom is the son of Mrs. M. C. Woodruff, of Conant street, Elizabeth, and is widely known there.

LITIGATION OVER PROPERTY.

Plaintiff's Attorney Wins a Point in Benner's Suit.

R. P. F. VonMinden, attorney for the defendants in the case of John W. Benner against Tube Dimond and others, has just been successful in having five applications filed by the plaintiff's attorney, William Newcorn, Esq., stricken out. The opinion was handed down by Supreme Cout Justice Fort yesterday and was argued last month.

The case grew out of a contract of sale of the Benner property, at Fanwood, where the hotel was formerly located. The plaintiff sued the defendants in the Supreme Court for damages for not aaking the title and up to the present time the pleadings, it is said, show the defendants were justified in not taking title.

Craig A. Marsh, Esq., represents the complainant.

Mr. Benedict, accompanied by Miss Bourdan, also of Roselle, was riding in a carriage on the date in question, when a trolley car struck them. Miss Bourdan received injuries which caused her death, and Mr. Benedict was also severely injured. The case will be on all day.

FLYER WRECK PLANNED

Hunting Down Man Who Caused Death of Twenty Persons.

ONE MAN SUSPECTED.

Detectives Gather at Mentor, Where the Twentieth Century Limited was Wrecked.

Cleveland, June 23.—As the result of the day's investigations of the causes of the wrecking of the Twentieth Century Limited, which went through an open switch while going through the town of Mentor, twenty-two miles from here, late Wednesday night, causing the death of twenty-one persons and the serious injury of several others, the officials of the Lake Shore road are more firmly convinced than ever that the wreck was deliberately planned by some malicious person.

The detectives of the Lake Shore Railroad Company are in search of a man who, they declare, knows something about the switch. The man is well known in the village of Mentor and has always been considered somewhat demented.

Several weeks ago a freight conductor refused to allow him to ride on a train coming to this city and roughly forced him to leave the tarin. Since that incident the man has made frequent threats that he would "get even" with the company. He was seen Wednesday evening loitering around the station in Mentor. Since then he has disappeared.

Every effort is being made to find him, but although the village and the country around is swarming with detectives, no trace of him has been discovered. Among the railroad officials the conviction that the wreck was due to malicious interference with theswitch is becoming more and more settled.

Investigation may, it is said, develop that a boy meddled with the switch. William Usher, ticket agent of the Nickel Plate road, and James Barnes, of Willoughby, reached the wreck twenty minutes after it occurred.

They met a boy carrying a lantern, who said that he had been down to shut a switch. The men found the switch open and locked. H. S. Storrs, General Superintendent of the Lake Shore, doubts that any boy had possession of a key and could turn the switch.

To Abandon the Schedule.

As a result of the terrible disaster to the Twentieth Century Limited on the Lake Shore road at Mentor, Ohio, on Wednesday night, costing twenty-one lives, the New York Central is going to abandon what has been called "frenzied railroading." President Newman announced yesterday that the Twentieth Century would return to a twenty-hour schedule today, and that no further effort would be made to cut down the time between Chicago and New York while he held the executive reins.

FORMER COUNCILMAN WEDS.

James P. Homan is Married at Raritan.

James Polk Homan, of this city, and Miss Mary Louise Carey, of Raritan, were quietly married at 7:30 o'clock last night, at the home of Mr. Dilts, of Raritan. The bride was gowned in white batiste, trimmed with lace. Neither she nor the groom was attended. Miss Amy Cain, organist of St. John's Episcopal church, played the wedding march.

A reception followed the ceremony and at 9 o'clock the couple left on an extended wedding trip. Upon their return they will live here. The bride received many handsome and useful gifts.

DOBBINS ON TRIAL.

Alleged Embezzler's Case on at Elizabeth Today.

The case of the Manor Real Estate and Trust Company against Walter E. Dobbins, on a charge of embezzlement, is being tried today in the Court of Common Pleas, Elizabeth. The complainant is represented by Prosecutor English, assisted by Alan Strong, Esq., of New Brunswick, and W. R. Wilson, Esq., of Elizabeth, assisted by Lawyer O'Connor, is defending Dobbins.

The charge is that Dobbins embezzled $2,775, less $25, which was paid on account for the purchase of a strip of land belonging to Mrs. Mary C. McPherson, of Rahway. The land was for the Pennsylvania Railroad, it being the intention to use it some day in elevating the tracks at Rahway. Dobbins was an agent for the real estate and trust company. The transaction occurred in July last and Dobbins made an appointment to meet Mrs. McPherson, when he was to pay her the voucher for $2,775 and receive a deed for the property.

When Dobbins met the woman he told her that he couldn't settle the matter at that time and had to ask for an extension of time until November. He then persuaded Mrs. McPherson to sign a paper supposed to be for an extension of time, but which, it is claimed, was the voucher, which he afterward had cashed. The case will probably take all day.

The groom is employed as a coachman b yW. G. Besler, vice president and general manager of the New Jersey Central, and is well-known. The bride is also well-known and the couple has a large circle of friends who wish hem success and happiness.

AMUSEMENTS.

Port Arthur at Manhattan Beach has received its baptism of fire. In the conception of this most thrilling incident of the Russo-Japanese war Mr. Pain has reached a point of realism which it will be hard to surpass in the future. The characteristic dashes of the Japs in the land fighting and the sullen, dogged resistance of the Moscovites give the onlookers an absolutely true picture of the fierceness of the combatants in the opposing armies. There is in Pain's Port Arthur a story told. It is not a mere dashing about of men and horses and the deafening roar of cannon aimlessly fired. The battel is the climax of an incident in history. It is the mournful story of the downfall of a proud and arrogant aristocracy at the hands of a small and despised nation. School children who see Port Arthur will complete the lesson learned at school by actual observation.

LITERARY.

The opening article in Good Housekeeping for July gives the truth concerning the generally misunderstood Japanese family bath. The author, Marguerite Glover, investigated for herself, and her description is full of interest. This July issue, by the way, is unusually varied. An illustrated article by Sarah Comstock describes The Training of Pet Animals. Dr. John Duncan Quackenbos, an expert in nervous diseases, writes most instructively of Sleep, in its various aspects. Lillie Hamilton French addresses a characteristically keen and friendly talk to the Elizabeths. A famous Normandy inn is described, with beautiful illustrations, by Mary Howard Smith, and A Battle with White Ants, by Carrie D. McComber. There is an illustrated description of the summer home of Douglas Volk, the artist, in Maine.

The leading story of Lippincott's Magazine for July is "An Orchard Princess," by Ralph Henry Barbour. This is almost enough to say in its commendation; for those who read his other Lippincott novel, "Kitty of the Roses," will be sure of an idyllic treat in picking up a second tale by him. The "Orchard Princess" is wooed, as she sketches the orchard day by day, by a very persistent man and an unyielding bull pup; and how it all turns out the reader will want to discover for himself.

The attention of the editor is especially requested for this extract (taken from our "The Profession of Getting Hurt") for the following reasons: At the present writing there is under way a mass meeting to be held at Sherry's, in New York, where the various presidents and the other officers of accident insurance companies, as well as the heads of the claim departments of the big corporations, will be invited to attend and to organize a protective association similar to the Bankers' Protective Association. The object will be, not only to run down mercilessly the swindlers making a comfortable living out of this class of fraud, but also to take a strong stand in putting a stop to the epidemic of one-sided laws which are constantly being introduced and slipped through the State legislatures to the peril of responsible interests and for the benefit of The Profession of Getting Hurt.—The Editor of Pearson's Magazine.

There is an important addition to literature in the July issue of "Success Magazine" in the first of a series of six complete detective stories by Alfred Henry Lewis, the well-known author of the "Wolfville" books. Mr. Lewis's central figure is Inspector Val, the prototype of one of the most successful of the younger detectives of the Central Office force of New York City, and several of Mr. Lewis' stories are based on some things that have actually happened. His first story is entitled, "The Mystery of Washington Square." It is the exciting and interesting unraveling of a celebrated case, and is mighty god reading. In the same number, Samuel Merwin has a powerful article which shows how various American cities are held in a grip of the railroads. He takes St. Louis as a typical example, and explains why it is possible for trunk lines to run into the city, and why the iniquitous toll must be paid over the famous Ead's Bridge.

QUAKER'S WISE RETORT.

How One Settled the Question of "Tainted Money" in 1812.

Apropos of the discussion about the propriety of accepting money believed to be "tainted," a correspondent contributes to Harper's Weekly an anecdote which presents an amusing and commonsense view of the question.

During the War of 1812, he says, the captain of a coasting vessel sought to evade the payment of a debt to a Quaker acquaintance by taking advantage of the fact that the Quakers, who, of course, disapproved of the war, were opposed to the taking of prize money. He offered the amount of his indebtedness with the remark that it was prize money, assuming that it would be refused. The Quaker, however, was equal to the occasion, and responded: "Friend, I feel no concern whatever about keeping this money, for I come by it honestly; if thee did not, thee will have to settle with thy Maker."—Philadelphia Record.

WASHING SHAWLS.

Some Valuable Suggestions for Women.

The soft, fleecy appearance of the Shetland shawls and other knitted wraps is often destroyed by careless washing, and it is well to know just how the work should be done before attempting it. The white and the delicate tints are of course the best colors for a really dainty wrap, but they soil much sooner than the darker colors, and for that reason are frequently passed by with a sigh when a new wrap is selected. This is entirely unnecessary, as they can be perfectly cleaned without injuring their color or fleeciness.

Prepare a strong suds of soft water and pearline, putting in more of the powder than is required for other clothes, as there is a harsh feeling to the wrap when first washed that requires considerable of the pearline to remove. Have the suds quite warm and have another tub of clear water of the same temperature for rinsing, says The Housekeeper. Put in the wrap and swash it about in the water, squeezing it between the hands, but do not rub or wring it. If the water seems much soiled it will be best to make another suds in the second tub and give it a second washing; then, before taking it from the second suds, prepare the warm rinsing water as before.

After rinsing it well put it through the wringer and hang on the line to dry in a good breeze. If it is white, it is best to hang it in the sun; but, if colored, the shade is best for it. A white wrap may have a little bluing in the rinse water, but it must be of the best kind to prevent spots or streaks. A pale blue wrap is improved in appearance by the use of a little bluing in the rinsing water, but other colors must not have it. The wrap must be well shaken before putting it on the line, and the shaking, stretching in every direction, and especially the snapping out of the fringe, must be repeated every few minutes until it is dry.

ADVICE TO ARCANIANS.

Justice Pitney Tells Morristown Council Not to Act Hastily.

At the regular semi-monthly meeting of Loantaka Council, Royal Arcanum, at Morristown, last night, Justice Mahlon Pitney made an address, two hours in length, explaining the action of the supreme council in increasing the assessment rates of of the order. He said he had made a very exhaustive investigation of the matter from every standpoint and firmly believed the supreme council had been perfectly honest in adopting the new schedule of rates.

He ridiculed the story that several old line insurance companies had raised a fund of $500,000 to bribe the officers and members of the supreme council to make this increase in rates for the purpose of benefiting the old companies. He argued that if the old line companies wished to see the Arcanum fail in its mission, the thing for them to have done was to have used their influences in maintaining the old Arcanum rates, thus showing that "the idea of bribery is preposterous on its face."

He urged the individual members of the order not to bee too hasty in their decision upon the matter, as the present rates do not take on form until October 1, and in the mean time he advised them to have a committee appointed to investigate further, and if they find the new rates unfair to instruct their representatives to the supreme council, which meets within a year, to make such changes in the schedule of rates as will bring about an amicable solution of the matter.

He said he thought the rates had been too low from the organization of the order, and in order to manitain organization it became necessary to raise the rates, which was done on the basis of the death rate for the past twenty-seven years.

Squaring Accounts.

An office boy in London owen one of the clerks three halfpence.

The clerk owed the cashier a penny.

The cashier owed the boy a penny.

One day the boy havnig a halfpenny in his pocket was disposed to diminish his outstanding indebtedness, and paid the clerk, to whom he was indebted three halfpence one halfpenny on account.

The clerk, animated by so laudable an example, paid one halfpenny to the cashier, to whom he was indebted one penny.

The cashier. who owed the boy a penny, paid him the halfpenny.

And now the boy, having the halfpenny again in his hand, paid another third of his debt to the clerk.

The clerk with the said really "current" coin squared instantly with the cashier.

The cashier instantly paid the boy in full.

And now the law, with the halfpenny again in his hand, paid off the third and last instalment of his debt of three halfpence.

Thus were the parties squared all round, and all their accounts adjusted. —London Tit-Bits.

Governor Won't Visit Alma Mater.

Because his health has been impaired by frequent speechmaking, Governor Stokes decided not to go to Providence, R. I., yesterday to deliver an address to the alumni of his alma mater, Brown University. The Governor's expected visit to Brown had been widely announced. The Governor will address the Grand Army veterans at their State encampment, which began at Trenton today.

VETERANS IN SESSION.

Grand Army Encampment at Trenton —Contest for Vice-Commander.

Veterans of the Civil War from all parts of New Jersey gathered at Trenton yesterday at the opening of the annual State encampment of the Grand Aamy of the Republic. A citizens' committee, of which former Mayor Welling G. Sickel was the haed, had made elaborate preparations for the reception of the visitors and the city was bedecked with flags and bunting.

The reports of Commander Atwood, who is a member of Winfield Scott Post, of this city, and the other department officers showed a total membership of 4,603 in the 109 posts in the State. The loss last year was 225, or a trifle more than 5 per cent.

The parade of the veterans yesterday afternoon was a feature of the day. It was reviewed in front of the City Hall by Governor Stokes, who saluted all colors and standards as they passed.

In Close Touch With Politics.

The Elizabeth Daily Journal says: "The political gossipers are naming City Judge William N. Runyon as a candidate for State Senator to succeed Judge Cross. The Plainfield Daily Press keeps in close touch with the political doings in that city, and it says the assertions regarding Judge Runyon's candidacy for the nomination are valueless, for Mr. Runyon is not in the running. He is authority for the statement that he and his friends are for former Mayor Charles Joel Fisk for that honor.

Illingworth Denies Reports.

Denton A. Illingworth, of Raritan, whose little son was locked up in Somerville, accused of trying to kill a little girl in Raritan with a stone, denies that the boy saw the child when he threw the stone. He denies that the little girl was seriously hurt. He denies also the published statement that a daughter of his is dying and that he himself is critically ill. The stories, he says, were set afloat by enemies.

H. A. M'GEE ON JAPAN

Talks to the First M.E. Brotherhood on Flowery Kingdom.

AN HEROIC PEOPLE.

Dr. Joy Presides at the Meeting—Vocal Selections on the Programme.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church held its last meeting and entertainment for the season in Vincent chapel last night, and the members entertained their women friends. Attractive features of the programme were several vocal selections by members of the church choir, under the direction of the organist, J. Edmund Skiff, and a talk on Japan by Henry A. McGee, who a year ago made a trip around the world, accompanied by Mrs. McGee. In the absence of Nelson A. Miller, president of the Brotherhood, who is detained at home by illness, Dr. James R. Joy was in charge of the programme.

The opening numbers included a vocal selection by Bradley Hall, William Barton, William Gilbert and Carlos C. Gallup and a soprano solo by Miss Conroy.

In his talk Mr. McGee began by referring to the Japanese-Russian War, telling of Japan's readiness for the long fight which has been noted for her many victories. He then referred briefly to Japan's religion, of the modes of travel, the railroad, tramways and cars, of the many festivals observed during the year and how each were associated with some kind of flower.

He said that the Japanese are a happy and contented lot of people and always willing and anxious to make any sacrifice for their country. He spoke of the excellent school systems, borrowed chiefly from American and German systems, and related amusing incidents in telling how the children enjoy themselves playing all sorts of games. He dwelt at some length on the natural beauty of Japan as a country, and of the great time and expense devoted to cultivating flowers and farm products. Mr. McGee advised those anticipating a trip to Japan to make the journey by way of China, and thus they would be able to see that country in all her beauty. In conclusion, he told of many personal experiences which proved of interest to all.

The programme was then concluded with a soprano solo by Miss Agnes Bailey and a Japanese song by Miss Gesswein, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Skiff.

After the entertainment ice cream, strawberries and cake were sold, the proceeds to be devoted toward the expense of having the weekly church bulletins printed. Dr. F. W. French was chairman of the refreshment committee, and he was assisted by other members of the Brotherhood.

SALE OF CADMUS TRACT PUT THROUGH TODAY

SYNDICATE WILL NOW PROCEED WITH PLANS FOR IMPROVEMENTS.

Title to the Cadmus tract adjacent to West End avenue, that is soon to be the site of a new residential park, was passed this morning. Samuel St. John McCutchen represented the syndicate that has made the purchase, and Abraham L. Cadmus and A. E. Hoagland appeared for the estate. The deal was to have been consummated last fall, but was held up through the judgment rendered against A. L. Cadmus in a damage suit and which was made to involve the property. A ruling of the court set this aside and the estate was then able to give clear title.

The new owners have all plans completed to proceed with the work of improving the property, and they will call for an outlay of many thousands of dollars. One of the first things to be done is to widen West End avenue to sixty-six feet, while Union and Somerset counties will act jointly in erecting a $7,000 bridge over Greenbrook at this point.

Barrows Drops in Semi-Finals.

In the competition among the beaten eight for a Class A cup at the Englewood Golf Club yesterday, Dudley H. Barrows, of the Plainfield Country Club, beat Murray Olyphant, Englewood, by 3 up and 2 to play in the first round, but in the semi-final round Barrows was beaten by H. V. Keep, Englewood, by 4 up and 3 to play. Although beaten in the championship play and again yesterday, Barrows made a good showing and displayed ability which will give him a position sooner or later among the best golfers.

FREE TROLLEY RIDES FOR POOR LITTLE ONES

AN APPEAL FROM THE RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

The following appeal is gladly given space:

Editor, The Daily Press:

Will you kindly give space in your columns for the usual annual solicitation for the trolley ride fund, a fund which has been raised for several summers, to provide trolley rides for many who suffer during our hot summers in homes very limited in space and located in the least agreeable parts of the city. The baby camp on the mountain, so admirably conducted by the City Union of the King's Daughters, provides comfort and recuperation for many sick children whose mothers are able to accompany them for the entire day or longer, but there are women who are unable to leave their homes for any length of time, but whose children might be benefited physically and made happy by a trolley ride. Also, there are aged persons to whom such a recreation is a real boon. It is proposed to give out tickets for such rides with great discrimination, and to give the benefit of them to those women chiefly upon whom has fallen the burden of support of a family. The general secretary of the Organized Aid Association will gladly direct the distribution of these tickets.

This is a small way of making many happy, and it is hoped your readers before starting on their vacations to the mountains and seashore will kindly remember those less favored in the community.

Contributions for the purpose will be received by Miss Randolph, treasurere of the Relief Association, East Front street and Farragut road.

COMTE DE PILATE LECTURES ON HAITI

BLACK REPUBLIC PROVES NEGRO'S ABILITY TO GOVERN, HES AYS.

Jacques Joseph Jeanitte Francois Lucas Paquiot, Comte de Pilate, a Haitien political exile, lectured on "Haiti and the Haitiens, From 1804 to 1904," at Bethel chapel last night. The lecture was illustrated with a large number of lantern slides showing scenes on the island and among the people, and views of public building and dwellings, private and official.

Count Paquiot gave a resume of the history of the Black Republic, from the first struggle for liberty to 1904. He denied, and cited various facts to prove, that Haiti had not reverted to barbarism; she proves, he said, the negro's ability to govern himself and govern himself well. He said the decrease in the number and frequency of revolution in the past fifty years and a growing sentiment in favor of sustained peace, proved it, for one thing.

"We have a government," said Count Paquiot, "that has made itself respected all over the world, at least to this extent, that all other governments have representatives at our capital."

Count Poquiot is an exile from Haiti because he fought against the then existing provisional government in the island two years ago, as commandante of the revolutionary cavalry. The count is a descendant of the old nobility, established by France, who ruled the island before the republic was inaugurated.

Haiti has a population of 2,000,000. She is governed by a president and two legislative bodies, the chamber of deputies and the senate. The legislature elects the president, in joint session; he holds office for seven years. There are fourteen cities of considerable size on the island, the largest of which is Port au Prince, the capital.

Miss Van Boskerck's Victory.

There were twenty-four starters in the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association tournament yesterday at the Nassau Country Club, when Miss Maude Van Boskerck, of the Plainfield Country Club, won the net score prize with a 100,12—88. Miss Helen Bishop won the gross score prize with a 95, 6—89. Miss Van Boskerck was the only Plainfield woman entered in the competition.

Special Musical Service.

The choir of the First M. E. church will give a special musical servie tomorrow evening. In addition to the regular choirs there will be a chorus of thirty-five children, who will sing separate selections as well as withthe choir.

Anthropologically speaking, the race problem seems to be more mixed than ever since the colored minister delivered his lecture in Plainfield on Adam, Eve and their children.—Newark News.

ONE HOUR ON PARK AVE.

The Mysterious Mr. Snuffles Relates His Second Journey.

NOT DETECTED YET.

This Time He Comes In Contact With Lawyers, a Druggist, Barber and Haberdasher's Clerk.

By the spook of Sherlock Holmes, you Plainfield dopes, I'm ashamed of you. You people couldn't tell the difference between a lobster and a grand piano. Yesterday I must certainly have been detected, had anyone kept his lookers peeled. I left The Press office at 3 p. m., clad in pink pajamas, white satin slippers and tan gloves. My coco was harnessed in a diaphanous creation of chiffon and Irish point lace, while in my left duke I sported a mangy bunch of bride roses and spinach. How on earth did I escape? Yet only once in all my ramblings did I fear the jig was up, and that was at the very outset, when Ted Clevely's canvas back Angora poodle, christened Theodore, walked solemnly toward me and gazed long and searchingly into my face with his bum lamp. "Ah me," sighed I, "stung so soon, and by a ki-yi!" My flutters proved groundless however, as pretty Theodore merely sniffed twice at my Brummellian calves, and then passed by on the way to his daily bath. Sobbing with fright, I turned into Park avenue for my second stroll, and without ado hied me inside Bert. Schreiner's poison foundry to see what was doing. With a smile like a burst of summer sunshine Berthold advanced to meet me, grasped both my maulers in his and imprinted a 2x6 kiss on my alabaster kopje. "Oh joy, oh bliss," I panted, as I whirled dizzily before him, "hold me up ere I swoon!" Bertie held me up all right; held me up for the price of a big show case through which I unwittingly tumbled in the effervescence of my rapture, and not until I produced the mazuma, did he let go my fin and allow me to escape. I never met so changeable a gentleman before, although I will say for him that as a kissist he's a regular ball of fire. Imagine my consternation however, all wobbly as I felt, to hear piercing screams emanating from the second floor "'Tis murder!" I cried affrighted, and would gladly have fled. A fearful fascination took possession of me though, and involuntarily I was drawn upstairs and into the front office where I stood transfixed. There before my enraptured gaze sat that great and wise jurist, Samuel Socrates Tackhammer, reading merry gibes aloud from a ponderous tome entitled "Side splitting evening in the Ark; a collection of Noah's best Rib Ticklers," to the vast delight of a little black man, who crouched beside him, giving vent to his pleasure in the most unearthly chortles I've ever heard. "And who may you be?" asked I of the diminutive jitney, after shaking hands with Somerset's Lincoln. "Why sah," he replied, "Ah doan know as zackly Ah quite recommembers mahsef who Ah is, but Ah specs dat ef Ah ain' who yo' doan' guess what Ah is, dat Ah mus' be someone what ain' lak anyone who is what Ah should be. An' ef Ah ain' lak someone who ain' lak Ah ain' Ah mus' be"—but I was out in the hall by this time, hardly knowing whether I was afoot of horseback. "Heavens, Sammie, but you're a genius," I gasped, preparing to bolt down the stairs. Once again however, strange sounds held me enthralled. A voice, strident and commanding, reached me through another office door. I listened. "Why, Pete, I'll skin 'em alive," said the voice. "I seen the boss Harp today, and I've got him on the hip. I'll harpoon the tarrier so full of holes before I get through with him, he'll look like a lace curtain. I'm a lalapaloozer, I am; Wow!!" "In Heaven's name, what's all that?" I asked another bewildered bystander. "Oh, that's Bill DeMeza and Pete Hamilton getting their bomb ready for Kiely," replied he, and I beat a break neck retreat.

So exciting had been my trip thus far that I was almost afraid to enter anywhere else. But Pete Feiring's hair factory appeared peaceable and in I went. There sat handsome Pete at a little table in the corner, busily engaged in writing a letter on vanilla paper. "Good afternoon," said I in response to his courtly salutation, "I am collecting Plainfield opinions concerning the Russian-Japanese war. May I have your views?" "Mit a punch of bleasure," said he smiling. "In der first blace, Admiral Rottenwhisky fit his nafigation battle in der wrong blace. He should ought to have hidded himself behint a ice berg in Baffin's Bay, unt shooted der Japaneses in der stomachs mit snowballs until dey vere all frozen ofer mit a stiffness. Den he voot haf hat

SAW JAPS' CELEBRATION

E. R. Ackerman in Yokohama When Togo's Victory Was Acclaimed.

BANZAI EVERYWHERE

Plainfielder Writes of Big Observance to The Daily Press—Letter in Mentor Wreck.

Ernest R. Ackerman and Mrs. Ackerman, of this city, who have been travelling abroad for several months, were among those who witnessed the celebration in Yokohama on June 3 of Admiral Togo's victory over the Russian fleet. Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman were guests at the Grand Hotel.

The Daily Press received from Mr. Ackerman today a clipping from the Japan Daily Advertiser, describing the demonstration. According to the Advertiser the celebration was the greatest thing of its kind that Yokohama has ever seen. The entire city went banzai-mad. Civil dignitaries and prominent merchants spoke. The celebration climaxed, at night, with an immense lantern parade.

The letter from Mr. Ackerman containing the clipping had a little experience of its own. It was on the wrecked Twentieth Century Limited of the New York Central that smashed up at Mentor, O. The letter was scorched and blackened by the flames that added horror to the wreck.

$500 FOR BLIND MAN.

Total Permanent Disability Benefit for Hans Anderson from Foresters.

Through the efforts of the officers of Court Plainfield, I. O. F., Hans Anderson, of Manson place, a member of eight years' standing, who has been blind for a year through atrophy of the optic nerve, has been granted a total permanent disability benefit by the order. Through the benefit Anderson receives $500 in cash and a paid-up policy for $500, payable at his death.

The check for $500 has been received by the lodge and will be turned over to Anderson at once. Anderson is a former employe of the Pond shop. He is totally and permanently blind.

BIKE THIEF AGAIN.

James Harris the Victim This Time —One Gang at Work.

James Harris reported to the police last night that his bicycle had been stolen at 6:30 from in front of the Morris Garage Company, East Fourth street.

This makes the fifth stolen wheel reported to the police within four days, and Chief Kiely is beginning to grow interested in bicycles to the exclusion of other chattels. There is a suspicion that a gang of young fellows is taking all the bikes, in some systematic way.

I. O. O. F. Initiation.

The degree team from Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., visited Somerville Lodge, last night, and conferred the second and third degrees on one candidate. There were also present representatives from lodges in Bernardsville, Three Bridges, White House and other nearby towns. The Plainfielders made the trip on a special trolley car, leaving here at 7 o'clock. They reached home about midnight. The team was highly complimented for its fine initiatory work.

Connelly's Luck.

William Connelly, an employe of the Pond Tool Works, was struck in the eye by a piece of steel yesterday afternoon. The flesh over and under the eye socket was gashed severely, but for some reason the eye itself escaped harm. Dr. Gessewein, who stitched the wounds up, said it was one of the most remarkable escapes from serious injury he had ever seen.

To Build in Westfield.

F. W. Conger, of Mountain avenue, has given orders for the erection of a two-story-and-attic modern dwelling house in Westfield, on Jerusalem road. The house will be lighted by electricity, and have hot water and steam heat. The plans have been prepared by Architect Fred L. Lancaster.

Fire Warning.

Fire Chief Doane has prepared a notice for distribution among householders calling their attention to the danger of Fourth of July fires in the presence of refuse or other inflammable material in their yards and on porches, and requesting them to clear such stuff away before the carnival of fireworks begins.

Tennis Tournament.

A tournament for doubles and singles will be started on the Y. M. C. A. tennis courts, Westervelt avenue, on July first. The play will last about a week. The list of entries will be announced next week.

SOME STATISTICS.

M. C. Dobbins and William Day on Committees—Financial Standing of Order.

The annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of New Jersey, closed last night. BOY ROBBERS' SENTENCE.

Chip Burke and Snort Cooper to Learn Their Fate Wednesday.

"Chip" Burke and "Snort" Cooper, the fourteen-year-old boys arrested for breaking into and robbing G. W. Scribner's stationery store on Watchung avenue a week ago, will be arraigned before the Juvenile Court at Elizabeth next Wednesday for sentence. They have acknowledged the crime, but as it is their first offense, so far as the police can find out, they will probably be released in charge of the probation officer.

After the boys were arraigned before Justice Mosher, Mr. Scribner made an effort to have the case discontinued, but the justice refused to allow it.

"I haven't the power to stop prosecution once the case comes up," he said yesterday, "but, in any event, I am opposed to such action. If people do not want to carry out such cases, they should not institute the action."

EXERCISES REPEATED.

Second Night of Closing Programme of St. Mary's School.

The closing exercises of St. Mary's Parochial School were repeated last night at the school hall before an audience even larger than the one of the night before. The programme was rendered with marked success, each number receiving warm and sustained applause.

As on the night before, the "Frolic in Clover," the elaborate figure dance by twelve girls, scored a great hit. Insistent demands for more compelled an encore of the entire dance "Katinka, or the Indian's Trust," was splendidly presented.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE FOR "SMILING JIMMIE"

JUDGE RUNYON ARRANGING TO GIVE MINSTREL SHOW TO RAISE FUNDS.

In addition to starting a subscription list to relieve his immediate wants, friends of "Smiling Jimmie" Montross, the popular baseball player, have gone still further, and now plan to conduct an "all-star" minstrel entertainment for his benefit. The affair is to be given in Saengerbund hall Thursday, July 6, and already volunteers in large numbers have been offering their services. The fact that City Judge William N. Runyon has the arrangements in charge is an indication that it will prove a success and that a neat sum will be awaiting "Jimmie's" discharge from Muhlenberg Hospital, where he is now undergoing treatment for typhoid fever.

In conducting the business end of the entertainment, Judge Runyon will have the direct assistance of a committee composed of George E. Firstbrook, John H. Cose, John P. Owens, Councilman Frank Randolph, Robert Gow, Alfred Prudhon, Aleck Muir, Ben Evans and George B. Cose. The show will be arranged by Thomas M. Muir and will eclipse anything of its kind seen in Plainfield during the past season. It is to comprise a "monster" first part, with six end men and a chorus of thirty, an olio of first class numbers and an afterpiece. One of the features in the first part will be an up-to-date topical song with many local hits, from Judge Runyon's poignant pen. The tickets are to be issued today, and can be had of members of the committee or at Schreiner's pharmacy and Timbo's restaurant.

The plans for the show were brought about through the desire of "Jimmie's" most ardent admirers to give him a chance to recover his health and strength and get back in the form that made him the hero of all baseball fans in the 1902 and 1903 league seasons. He has been a victim of sickness more or less for the past two years, and at the present time while he is in the hospital ward illness exists in his immediate family. The smile that attracted everyone to him has been fading away, but the knowledge that he is still as much of a favorite as when he was the Hope Y. M. A.'s phenomenal twirler will undoubtedly quickly restore it to his features.

WHY ISELIN ROAD WAS CONDEMMED

SUPERVISOR OF ROADS MEEKER EXPLAINS COMMISSIONER'S ACTION.

The published accounts of the action of the State Commission of Public Roads in condemning the work done on the Iselin road between Oak Tree and Iselin Station are much distorted, according to State Supervisor of Roads Robert A. Meeker, of West Front street. New Brunswick and Trenton papers have contained reports of the matter which are said to be much garbled, and in an interview with a representative of The Daily Press today Mr. Meeker said:

"The road was built in three sections, two of which are finished and paid for. The third or remaining section is the one which the Commission refused to accept, because it was more than five feet above grade at the eastern end. The contractor offered to deduct from the contract price whatever amount it should be ascertained he had not earned. This was satisfactory to the Board of Freeholders, but not to the State Commissioner of Roads. The latter insisted that the road should be completed according to the terms of the specifications and exactly in accordance with the plans."

Continuing, Mr. Meeker said: "The Commissioner informed the freeholders and the contractor that unless the road was built as agreed upon, he would not pay any portion of the cost. The result was that before the Commissioner left the road the contractor agreed to take up the macadam laid on the portion which was above grade and bring the road to grade, as required, and replace the macadam and finish the road as originally specified. In accordance with this agreement, the contractor is now at work removing the macadam from the section in question and will soon have the road cut down to the proper grade."

ARCANUMITES REVOLT?

New Jersey Considering Idea of Seceding From National Body.

WOULD BE BENEFICIAL

Members Here Said to Favor the Plan—Action May Soon Be Taken.

There is considerable talk among the members of the Royal Arcanum of New Jersey as to the advisability of withdrawing entirely from the Grand Council and conducting the order as a State organization. It is claimed that this can be done, and the members would then be able to regulate the insurance rate to suit the State Councils.

It is not improbable that some action along this line will be taken in the near future. When matters of representation and assessment failed to suit the Jr. O. U. A. M. of New Jersey, the order withdrew from the National body and has been doing well ever since, and it is believed that the Arcanumites would be just as successful.

It is said that the death rate in the Arcanum of New Jersey is lower than in any other State, and that for a long time the members here have been helping to pay a large share of the assessments in other states where the order has run behind.

Local officers of the order are much interested in a movement to cut loose from the National Council and run the Councils in the State on an independent basis, and efforts are now being made to learn the opinions of members in other parts of the State as to the wisdom of such a movement.

In accordance with the resolution adopted by Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, the members did not display their American flags yesterday, "Arcanum Day," and it is said that the custom was not followed generally throughout the State for the same reason that led the Plainfield members to let it go by default.

One member of Plainfield Council, speaking of the situation today, said that he had been in the order for many years, and although he had his doubts as to the wisdom of the Supreme Council's action, he proposed to remain a member and get all that he could out of the order. Perhaps among the older members is to be found the greatest dissatisfaction, while the young men are not joining as fast as the Supreme Council believed they would. It is generally believed that in case any great number of older men retire from the order, it will be impossible to continue even on the basis of the new rates of insurance, for the reason that there will not be enough young men joining to make up the difference.

PLINY FISK SECURES THE BIG ROGERS TRACT

NOW CONTROLS 1800 ACRES IN PASSAIC AND BERGEN COUNTIES.

Pliny Fisk, brother of former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, and at one time well known as a Plainfielder, together with Howard P. Frothingham, has acquired from the Metropolitan Museum of Art title to the tract of land situated in Bergen and Passaic counties, just above Oakland, formerly owned by the late Jacob S. Rogers. It consists of 1,800 acres and contains the pond known during Mr. Rogers' lifetime as "Rotten Pond," but now called "Le-Grande Lake."

After Mr. Rogers' death, and pending the settlement of his estate, Mr. Frothingham leased the property from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, but always had great difficulty with the inhabitants in the vicinity on account of trespassing, having to take the matter to the courts several times. They contended that roads running through the place were public, and this led up to Mr. Fisk and Mr. Frothingham acquiring title to the entire place. They have now had the roads legally closed and are erecting barb wire fences and posted it. Since they have taken this action, the owners have had numerous applications for permits to go on the tract, but have refused.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Frightened by the sudden dropping of the bars that were meant to keep it from the track of an approaching flier, the horse attached to one of William Dealaman's delivery wagons broke from the control of the driver on Washington avenue near the railroad crossing yesterday afternoon and bolted. The horse struck the closed gates at top speed. One of the heavy bars snapped like straw, letting the runaway go on across the track. The flier was not more than a block or two distant and the gateman hurriedly raised the bars on the other side of the track to give the horse a clear avenue of escape. He got them up just in time. The horse continued down the road, but it was shaken by the crash through the gate, and the boy who was driving it pulled the animal up within a quarter of a mile. The horse's muzzle was cut, but no other damage was sustained by the rig.

MAUCH CHUNK FOR JULY 4th.

There is no grander scenery anywhere than you will find on the journey to Mauch Chunk via the New Jersey Central.

Jersey is attractive, especially in the northern section, and the rolling country offers a variety of attractions the like of which no other section can boast. Pennsylvania and its mountains are too widely known to need elaboration, but Mauch Chunk and vicinity is a garden spot, if ever there was one. The Switchback Railroad is novel, inasmuch as no motive power is needed for operation. The inclines are gradual and in the fourteen mile journey there are many interesting experiences and fascinating scenes are unfolded with startling rapidity.

For a day's outing there is no place more thoroughly enjoyable than Mauch Chunk, and when the small cost of a day's trip is considered there is little left to be said. The New Jersey Central will run one of its popular one day excursions to Mauch Chunk on the Fourth of July by special train, which will leave Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk before noon. The returning train does not leave the mountain resort until 5:30 p. m., hence there is ample time for journeying over the Switchback, visiting Flag Staff and Glen Onoko. 6-23-td

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong, and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On July 2, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours, and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment. 6-22-td

PULPIT TALKS FOR SHUT-IN PLAINFIELDERS

NO. 2—By the Rev. A. C. Nickerson, Pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church.

THE WAY OF SALVATION.
John 14:15—"If ye love me ye will keep my commandments." (revised version.)

What is our assurance of eternal life? Our young people recite as a part of their belief, "We believe in eternal life as a quality of character!" You will find the meaning of this statement in Jesus' words, "This is life eternal, to know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent!" If it could be said that to know, to have opportunities for conversation with, a certain bright French woman was in itself a liberal education, one can readily see that to have one's "conversation in heaven," to so acquaint ourselves with God as to be at peace, is indeed a newer, broader, deeper life, life eternal. Eternal life, according to the author of Christianity, must be a quality of living and being which is eternally preservative. Not what is done for one's life, not what is done with it, but what it is, saves it in all the changes of fortune. The safety of any article of gold is in what it is made of. It may go through the fire and be melted, but soon or late it will be saved, because it is gold, and gold in any shape or no shape is everywhere of value for itself alone. It may be buried for centuries, overlooked for generations, still what it is insures its reappearance, some day; for time cannot diminish its weight, lustre or importance. It may be blackened and seem other than it is, but mere circumstances will be enough to bring it forth and to brighten it. The quality of our life then is its preservation, is the way or manner of our salvation. It is possible for any one of us to become something which cannot be destroyed! No one, not even Jesus, could pledge to any man the form we now call our own, or this place which we fill. It is only the esence, the essential of life, which is assured! So long as our government is good and our investments are in the last resource backed by government, our property is safe from entire annihilation. The house may burn, but insurance replaces it. although possibly in a new form; your land, which this year yields grass, may next year yield a better crop, still it is your land. If what you rely on to steady what you own has the country back of it, your fortune may encounter changes, but not eventual loss. The government of our minds and hearts, God's government, cannot fail—"Thy kingdom, O God, is an everlasting kingdom." All principles and all actions which have God's love, with its governing power behind them, will live through every change. God's love in Jesus Christ, his justice, his right, his truth, made tender, bearable, humane, will carry any soul, modeled after its directions, through the cataclysms of the ages. "When thou passeth through the waters they shall not overflow thee."

There are forces in us which are not sufficient to carry us through, forces which are good so far as they go, and good for much. An iron-like will is not enough. Iron rusts. Time can use it up. You can find iron which has disintegrated, flake by flake. You can find unbending wills in every generation which finally, in some stress or age, snap and are broken. To be sternly just is not enough. For some uses even silver is too hard. The dearest and best souls whom we know cry out against the even return for injuries received—the eye for an eye and life for a life doctrine of Judaism, which believed in God but not in God in the face of Jesus Christ. They want a more yielding, self-sacrificing ideal to live up to; something which not only allows but commands them to give more than is asked, more than could be demanded legally, more than the offender has any right to expect: they want the softer, more yielding and yet more precious gold of love. A strong will is good and justice is good, but love, willing to be slain for others, is better, more divine, the only thing which is eternal, deathless, God-enfolding.

This quality which is so persistent cannot be passively received, as if your soul were a cup into which it could be poured. A man may give you advice, but, unless you take it, it cannot become yours. One better informed than yourself may give you the benefit of his knowledge, but all that he tells you can be of no benefit to you unless you mentally lay hold upon it. Jesus gives to those who will accept it the secret of unending life. It is found in obedience to Christ's commands, in willing, joyous, unflagging fidelity to the spirit of life. There is a divine secret in obedience, but it is obedience to one only thing, the spirit of love. Just so far as we obey we are confident. Just so far as we disobey or hesitate we fear and vascillate.

Surely what we desire to attain to in this life is not what is known as happiness, the greatest material good which the largest number possible can share. Freedom from care, lightness of heart, the fulfilment of earthly wishes, cannot bring us any ternal possession. It can do very, very much for masses and races of men. It can alleviate the distresses of the poor and the sorrowing. But it is so far from helping an individual soul to conquer his weaknesses and grow up into a strength which others can lean upon that it actually misleads men, so that they mistake the true end of living; it brews bitter disappointment in many a heart. Just because no thing which makes us merely easy and joyous can last long, and going from one faltering pleasure to another, or one material blessing to another, and finding them all, sooner or later, crumbling, rotted with dry rot, the poor seeker goes straight into rank unbelief. No! happiness, or prosperity, as such, however spread out or heightened, is a rotten staff, for the individual soul! Men saw this very clearly centuries ago, and then they went in for stoicism, asceticism, puritanism, penaces and every mortification. So the last estate was worse than the first. For a person of any intelligence and moral insight to fix his thought upon the body, to make it more comfortable beautiful, contented with itself, seems a trivial thing, but to fix one's thought on the body to starve and pain and humiliate it is a wicked thing. All asceticism has been called "denying the body." It was the reverse. It was denying the spirit, turning from it to force every limb and sense to a certain wearing torture, which kept men continually conscious of suffering. Jesus was no ascetic, because all asceticism is negative religion. It tells where God is not, what is not good, what is not desirable. It is a stunting process. It forbids growth. Our latest asceticism—Shakerism—is dying of dry rot. It so assiduously denies the individual body as to kill the corporate body. Ancient Rome and Modern France each sought happiness and found the quest suicidal. Spain and Italy, so far as led by the Catholic church, have found absorption in bodily abasement equally suicidal. Life is found "more and more abundantly" in obedience to something higher than our happiness or our dangers. Man is not here to be a butterfly or a worm, a tiger or a deer. He is to be a living, loving, obedient soul! "If a man love me, he will keep my commandments." Obedience is nearly akin to love, for we only love what is above us. All true love has respect in it. If we love a person we are glad to be commanded to some duty by him or her. We ache to prove our love. Jesus did not say if a man love me let him do this or that. He said he will do it, voluntarily, will wish to keep the commandments. What were Jesus' commandments? What ones did he select as loved especially by him and precious to him? The first two of the old ten, and then one which he called new, "love to one another." This is my commandment that ye have love one to another, as I have loved you that ye also love one another." Men were to have love, as they have eyesight. They were not to exercise love, as they would a horse or their own muscles. They were to have it, as part of themselves, so much so that even as we say such a man has a fine form, such a woman beautiful eyes, men might say of one always and everywhere and promptly, he has love toward all men, love is part of his nature. Do men ordinarily have it? It seems almost absured to ask the question. How do any of us get it? By obedience! By making what is in our lives run in the way which we believe to be God's way and life. Now there are thousands of excellent people who believe in the commandments, that is, their intelligence endorses them as wise, as good, for every one of us; when they meet a lovable person they respect that person and know that what he or she is they ought to be, wish to be. They may even be enthusiastic over the teaching of religion, and like sermons which find them out and make them more thoughtful about duty, and life's brevity, and God's care for all of us. And yet that very honesty of avowal, that promptness of praise, that sensitiveness to appeals, may become a dangerous thing to any one of us. For, we may stop short for years, confessing, in many beautiful ways, the name of God. It is far, far better to go on to heaven's gate, and stand there, rather than to live away from good in some strange country. But, oh, it is a pity to be so near and yet never once within. What is that sentence of Jesus' about the children of the kingdom being shut out? "I say unto you that many shall come from the east and the west, the north and the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of heaven, but the children of the kingdom shall be cast forth into outer darkness." Is this a hard saying? It is not meant to be so. It is only meant to be pitiful, "like as a father pitieth his children." Why, what was the good of all those beauteous statues of which the ancient Athens was full, at one time more statues than there were people, if the Athenians were only to look at them and admire them and come to understand all the details of their worth, if they themselves were not to be made by them, not better connoisseurs, but stronger men? The Greeks were obedient to the lesson set them in marble, on every square, on every freize, and so, as they became the most physically perfect of men, they exulted more and more in their sculpture as the king of all arts. The forms which were the glory of their capital would, however, have become their shame had they not reproduced them in flesh and blood. Jesus set us a better example than Phidias did the Greeks. Not till we are obedient to the heavenly vision can we know how much better it is. I am afraid it is true that we none of us really love God until we embody his love in a showing forth of his highest commandment—that which he gave us through the lips and the life of Jesus. You say you have thought it all out, and are convinced that Christianity is the true religion, that it has got at the pith of truth, and is an ideal faith. You say you give willingly for its propagation and will fight for its doctrines if necessary. You say you are willing to deny yourself, statedly and appointedly, that its missionaries may be helped and its poor relieved. Yes, all that is very well. But why stand in the portico when the temple door stands wide open, and the service within has begun? You cannot love God by thinking him out, you cannot love God by reclaiming and chastening yourself. You can love God with a single mind only when you seek him and find him within. When you find him in you find yourself out. What is the good soldier? An expression of himself? Certainly not! He is an expression of military power, order, form. What is a good lawyer, a self-exacting person? Not at all. The traditional lawyer is always lost in his briefs, is an embodiment of legal lore! Whenever we are truly Christian, people look through us to the power behind us. When we put ourselves out and God in, we are not our own men any more. We are God's, "whether we live or die."

And so we do not have concern of mind any more! Why should we? God has thought for us. If a strong man is easily carrying a heavy load, why should a weak child strain its unused muscles to help him who needs no help? We do not worry about the future, earthly or heavenly. We "mind not high things." There is One who minds, who is mind itself. Many of us are weak and even breaking down because we are carrying heavy responsibilities. We have no right, as Christians, to carry any. What a great relief it is to many people to be employed, to have another responsible for the outcome, while they do as they are told. They say they can sleep better, and let things go. Every living being may have divine employment. Jesus said, "I must be about"—not my, but "my father's business." Inthis employment we are forbidden to take upon us the responsibilities. It is really absurd that any should be so presuming. No sane person in crossing the Atlantic thinks of looking after the steamer's machinery, the cargo's safety, the captain's reckoning, or lies awake to calculate over and over the possibility of the craft being overloaded. And yet such procedure on the part of the passenger would be wisdom itself compared with our "strain of toil and fret of care" over the course of the ship of time in which we sail. Cannot we trust the captain of our salvation? We call God "King of Kings, and Lord of Lords," and then we straightway live and act as if we believed no such thing. It is a not uncommon custom to lift heavy stones and other weights, that men may see how much they can lift, how much they can carry. For generations now mortal men have been in the habit of taxing, trying themselves, to see how much they can lift and carry of their own affairs and their neighbors' and God's. Sometimes a mother calls out sharply to a venturesome boy, "drop that weight, don't lift on that box! It is too heavy for you!" The boy would strain only his muscles, and experience temporary inconvenience, but we strain the little young life of our spirits, till in a state of chronic spiritual weakness we cannot even do what is rightly expected of us, and we do not hear or do not heed the voice which bids us "Drop it," "Cast your burdens on the Lord," "Ye are not your own," "My grace is sufficient for you." People who tell with trembling voices of the unpardonable stupidity of this neighbor, who declare they never will forget the offences of another, who do not see how any good can come out of their misfortune, and know not how they can endure such afflictions, do not believe one word of these consolatory passages. Drop that heavy stupidity of the other man's. It makes you weak to saddle yourself with it. Take that smarting load off your memory. It crushes the memory. Stop straining your spiritual vision to see the end! You cannot see; the more you strain in this earth twilight the less you see, the more incapable you become of seeing, even what is close by. There is one who sees! Why should a poor, weak creature of a day try the race with the All Seeing, who lives through eternity? You know not how you are to endure such suffering. You cannot endue it. No mortal can. If it lasts, you will not. Let it go! No longer be responsible for a twinge of it. How inconsistent we are! We are horrified that the Roman emperors should have deified themselves. It was the height of sacrilege! But what do we do; puny, time-serving men and women? We "wind ourselves too high for mortal man beneath the sky." Jesus "learned obedience by the things which he suffered." We, too, must so learn. We must not grasp at too much. He who takes the low seat is called up higher. St. Paul said: "I can do all things, yet not I, but the power which strengtheneth me." And the Christian hymnist puts it,

"I can do all things and abound,
Since thou art God in me."

Yes, brethren, the sooner we begin to be docile children, doing the will of God from the heart, the sooner we and the whole world will be comforted and stayed.

Dost thou believe in God? "The devils also believe and tremble." We ought to believe, and thrill with delight. We shall be so happy when we trust God and obey him straight out, all the day and every day, when we believe so much in the light that we cannot believe in darkness, nor talk of evil things, nor evil words, nor emphasize fears which have no right in us at all. We shall be so happy when obedience to God, to eternal goodness, absorbs us, so that every selfish indulgence, every hard thought, every disposition to judge others and punish others, is gone out of us, when, perhaps, above all, these great words ofthe Bible and these divine words of Jesus, are no longer mere lettering to us, but things which we hear and do, vital forces, with which we feed conduct, feeling, aspiration! Jesus was not one to read a treatise on swimming to a drowning man He held out his hand to him. He snared with the perishing man the life that was in his own heart. The gospel is not God and Heaven, and almighty strength and eternal youth by and by. It is all this here and now.

"'Tis heaven alone that is given away,
'Tis only God may be had for the asking."

Can we live up to so strenuous a faith.

Plainfield, N. J., June 24, 1905.

Trenton man robbed a lawyer's office. Turn about is fair play.

The high school girl who won a prize for an essay on "Beautiful New Brunswick" certainly earned the money.

Sperry, father of the green variety of premium getters, plans to build a $200,000 hotel along the Cranford River. Just see what trading stamps will do.

On page three will be found the second of a series of sermons contributed by Plainfield pastors. Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' church, has taken for hi stopic "The Way of Salvation."

Charlie Denman gives his word for it that there is public demand for the series between Plainfield and Westfield. There certainly is but not according to the methods that the foxy Westfield baseball magnate suggests.

Everett Colby, Essex's assemblyman who is fighting for the senatorial nomination on an honest platform, has called upon Major Carl Lentz, the Essex boss, to prove or retract certain damaging reflections. The major is quoted as intimating that Colby is backed by the Standard Oil and that he has represented that institution in the Legislature. In his characteristic way, the independent young assemblyman has framed a series of questions and calls upon the major for unequivocal answers. It will be interesting to read what the picturesque boss will have to say.

Short of Jurymen.

That a mistake was made in reducing the panel of petit jurors from fifty-four to forty-eight talesman was clearly shown during the past few days in the Union County Court. Each day the panel was exhausted and Sheriff Corlell had to chase around to get extra jurymen from among the audience in the court room. The forty-eight-juror panel would do well enough when only one court was in operation, but now in the new court house, where there are two separate court rooms, one for the Circuit and the other for the Common Pleas Court, both are in operation at the same time and the panel is insufficient. The other day the Sheriff was puzzled when drawing a jury in one court room as to whether the jurors who failed to answer their names were not serving on a case in the other court.

Civil Action Now.

In place of the abandoned criminal proceedings against the man alleged to have abducted her daughter, Guliano Cinquigrani, of New Brunswick, father of Mrs. Louis Skelly, of North avenue, has instituted a civil action against Carlo Deleberto, claiming $5,000 damages through Deleberto's alleged abduction of the girl. Deleberto was arrested yesterday morning in New Brunswick, and released on $500 bail. The alleged abduction preceded Skelly's marriage to the girl, and Skelly does not figure in the fuss that has been raised by the Cinquigranis.

Prefers Plainfield Water.

W. J. Whalen, of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, returned home yesterday from California, where he attended the National convention of the Knights of Columbus. The party returned over the Lake Shore and New York Central lines, passing the scene of the terrible wreck of the eighteen-hour flyer at Mentor, Ohio. Mr. Whalen says that he had a delightful trip, but that he would not exchange a residence in California for one in old New Jersey.

Invitation to Machinists.

Special from Westfield.

It looks very much as though there may yet be ball games between Plainfield and Westfield. The general disregard of alleged league rules on the part of many managers throughout the country is understood to be embarrassing to Manager Daab, who is being put in the attitude of being a lone stickler for technical construction of the agreement.—Westfield Standard.

Hotel from Trading Stamps.

Thomas A. Sperry, of trading stamp fame, whose home is in Cranford, has plans out for the erection of a large modern hotel on the banks of the Cranford river. It will cater to New York business men and their families. It is said that the hotel will cost about $200,000.

TRAMPS CAUSED WRECK

Hobos Seen at Mentor Swich Near Time of Accident.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 24.—While the belief grows that the Twentieth Century Limited train was wrecked by some unidentified man who was prompted by motives of revenge, it became known yesterday, in a dispatch to the New York Herald, that just before the ill fated train reached Mentor several tramps were noticed in a vacant house standing within five hundred feet of the misplaced switch. Immediately after the wreck no one could be found, although a search was made for the strangers.

The Lake Shore Railway Company has offered a reward of $2,000 for the arrest or for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons responsible for the wreck.

Superintendent Storrs has found evidence that Engine Driver Tyler applied the emergency brakes within five hundred feet from the switch, indicating that he then discovered that it was open. Storrs also points to the fact that the switch was locked open, proving conclusively that a railroad man in the natural course of his duties had not opened it.

A report has been received from Painesville that orders were received at Wickliffe Wednesday night directing a freight to make the siding at Mentor after No. 10, the Boston Mail, had passed and immediately before the flyer reached that point. It was said the switch at Mentor had been thrown open to receive the freight. The freight had taken the siding at Willoughby, but the switch at Mentor was not closed, and the limited ran into it.

ABSCONDING DEBTOR.

Charles E. Utter Posted—Attachment on His Locked-up Goods.

Posted as an absconding debtor, Charles E. Utter, if he ever returns to the city, will find that two attachments have been clapped on his goods in his Lyman place house. Charles Tallman and Nathan Sachs are the creditors. The papers were issued from Justice Hand's court, and put in Constable Manley's hands for execution.

The constable sleuthed around the Utter house yesterday. The place was tightly locked, but the officer saw some things of apparent value through the window. He will make an inventory of the stuff from the outside today.

STAFFORD, THE PRINTER, DOES FINE WORK

MUNICIPAL MUSEUM

PLACE WHERE CITIZEN MAY LEARN CITIZENSHIP.

MORE THAN LOCAL APPEAL

First in This Country Is Installed in Chicago — Invites Visitors from Town and Country—Local Improvement Associations.

HICAGO.— When we first saw the words Municipal Museum they conveyed to us little of pleasant or profitable suggestion; rather bespoke dry-as-dust records, technical matters of interest to a few specialists. This impression has been blotted out; we find the Municipal Museum a place where man, woman and child may walk in the pleasant new educational paths, may learn from vital object lesson, vivid illustration. Glad indeed should Chicago be that in her midst there stands this general inspiration to better civic life.

And visitors to Chicago, too, are fortunate to have such opportunity to study the city ideal; the museum is of no narrow local interest. As I thought on the far places that had sent here records of their accomplishments, the fancy arose it was a world beautiful there was a striving toward.

Mayor Harrison, some months before his service as Chicago's executive came to an end, addressed a circular letter to representatives of foreign and American cities asking their cooperation in the form of gifts or loans of materials suitable to the purposes of the museum, and the response was most generous. To quote from one of the museum pamphlets: "The response in the form of gifts and loans made by the German cities, from the remarkable German exhibit at St. Louis, was of an exceedingly substantial character, a representative collection of exhibits being loaned and many exhibits being given outright. Cities of France, Japan, Argentine Republic, Hungary, England, Denmark and Sweden also made extensive bequests."

The visitor, town or out-of-town, need not fear that he will but look upon dull specimens, depressing in their over-classification, discouraging to the uninitiated. On the contrary, although most careful classification obtains, there also obtains the graphic method; one sees in picture and relief map an understandable record of what some city has accomplished. And the exhibits (we quarrel with the term as unattractive) are not all that engage the attention; through the week a programme of interest is given, men and women that know whereof they speak, and have enthusiasm for their subjects, tell with talk and panorama of photographs what has been done, what can be done, to make a town worth living in.

Taking Her Reproach Away.

IN THE past we have often been ashamed to acknowledge we hailed from Chicago, could not raise our heads against the accusations of her wind-swept, dirty streets, her unspeakable alleys, her indifferent citizens, her odors, the cheapness in which she held human life, her bad water, her ignorance of sanitation, her —but hold, enough. Count it no more against her. She has the first Municipal Museum in this country.

For years her citizens have taken as a matter of course the squalid sights that met their eye on each short excursion about the town, called them the balancing disadvantages of life in a large town. They seemed hardened to conditions and to outside criticism, their one pride that the people traveled at headlong speed, the town grew at headlong speed.

But amongs the army of thoughtless and indifferent there journeyed through the streets a few women and men of thoughtful bent, standing aside and getting the right perspective, observing mistakes, observing possibilities. And what wonderful possibilities there are in this much-derided town; it has its beautiful great body of fresh water, as well as its notorious stockyards; it has men and women that love it and believe in its betterment, as well as grafters that believe primarily in greed. And the leaven of those that have faith in it is working now tremendously, he that runs may read that civic pride exists to-day in large measure in Chicago. A city healthful and a city beautiful is being worked out.

Work of the Museum.

THE museum is installed in the public library, accessible from all parts of the city, near the art institute, the shopping district, the downtown offices. It is open on week days from half-past ten to half-past five; and at stated times noon and late afternoon lectures are given. The record of attendance has shown as high as 2,000 visitors a day, the lowest 200. Arrangements are made for visits of clubs and different groups, and many school children have had opportunity to visit and learn about big cities that are clean and healthful, as well as big.

In regard to the collections, there are permanent exhibits and loan exhibits; the first of the loan exhibits lasted for one month. For this St. Paul and Minneapolius sent the best exhibit of any of the American cities, and as the Chicagoan sees how the Twin Cities are making such noble use of their natural advantages, he must long that the home town awaken to its opportunities.

New York's exhibit includes most interesting models of tenements, illustrating the improvements that have taken place in the housing of the poor in that city. South American cities give report of their progress in this new crusade for municipal betterment. The German cities have for long been active in this matter, and their exhibit is of especial worth.

The museum is classified as follows: Municipal administration, public art, public recreation, street making, street cleaning, transportation, sanitation, housing, education and school extension, libraries, charities and correction, civic literature and statistics.

Present Exhibition.

THERE is now in progress at the museum an exhibition in neighborhood improvement, to us the most interesting of all the valuable programme arranged.

It was 20 years ago when Chicago's first local improvement association was started; now there are 18 such organizations. Many of these are situated in the better part of town, one is beginning work in the Ghetto.

In a city like Chicago it is the local improvement associations that must set the ball rolling, and even if it leads to no final municipal assumption of the burden, at least it is somtehing to have one's immediate locality a liveable place. There are outlying districts here that are swept only once a year.

I listened delightedly to an enthusiast tell how work has been done, how other work can be done. She spoke of house to house visitation in Hyde Park, of arousing individual interest, of a mass meeting called, the formation of an organization and its subsequent success. And as the speaker, a small lady with the vitality that accomplishes, went on with the story of change from squalor to streets swept and garnished, I rejoiced that this has come to be considered womanly work, and, too, felt assured that women's help is necessary to city betterment.

Why shouldn't a woman utilize her taste and love of cleanliness for general good? There is no need for her in this age of machinery to sit housed over long seam or long stocking. She has leisure now for outside affairs. She helps and she initiates. It was Jane Addams that inaugurated the Municipal Museum, Mrs. Emmons Blaine that gave the first large contribution.

The Stereoptican Talk.

THE day we listened to the inspiring little lady we also listened to a young man that bade us rejoice in our opportunities of citizenship, gave us a new idea concerning what it meant to be resident in a town as unfinished as Chicago. He told us, instead of bemoaning such was our fate, we should think on the possibilities of work lying before the individual; he spoke of "grand citizen work," and we meekly put our complaining away and made effort to think of the new aspect of the matter.

He bade us give to city streets something of natural beauty, and for an eloquent introduction his first picture was that of a little child, the atom that must be considered even in the great industrial center. He showed us contrasts; unlovely bits of town, sordid, hard, unfit to live in; and these same surroundings softened, elevated by just a bit of sweeping, the sowing of a few seeds, the care of a little greenery.

And he dwelt on the miracle worked by the humble morning glory, and we found it a pretty profitable lesson; were minded to go home and at once begin effort on an uncompromising board fence of our own. He showed a stretch of railroad border the company had improved and warned us it were not well to grow hardened to miles and miles of neglected ugliness. He showed a charming glimpse of an old-fashioned garden in a mining town—of all places! And he told us of the tree-planting societies that are laboring in large cities to put back some of the forest beauty of which they have so ruthlessly been despoiled; and in mind's eye we saw the day when there shall be no bare, unbeautified streets, the earth again a garden.

Just here we were rudely awakened by an argumentative visitor, who declared, with much agitation and feeling, that all this was very well, all this local improvement business, but what good was it going to do the poor; it was just adding to the wealth of the landlord, improving his property. What we need, sir, is to get down to causes, sir, causes. "Yes," said the little lady, gently, "we must get down to them; but in the meanwhile we must do something for present welfare."

WHAT TO WEAR.

Coats to Be Used on the Hottest Days. Monograms on Shirt Waists.

It will be more fashionable this summer to wear a wrap and perspire than to go coatless and comfortable. Long loose coats cut on mannish lines will be worn with all kinds of costume both frivolous and severe.

An embroidered monogram is a smart touch on a shirt waist. A charming white linen suit has a short plaited skirt, each plait finished at the end of the corset with an embroidered arrow head. The waist has no plaits, but is cut with a good shoulder width. A round pocket on one side of the front is covered with an embroidered monogram done in heavy white linen.

Chemisettes are worn with almost every style of dress. The daintiest are made of embroidered muslin.

Odd and pretty boudoir slippers are made of canvaslike material, covered with an old fashioned cross stitch. They are neatly bound with ribbon.

The mourning costume in the cut is designed for a young girl. The material is dull black veiling. The bolero blouse bodice is gathered in a puff with headings at the bottom. Dull black silk embroidery and plaited insertions of muslin with bands of taffeta make the yoke. The skirt has a shirred narrow front and is trimmed at the bottom with bands of crape.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Pretty Gowns For Cool Summer Days. Princess Petticoats a Novelty.

A charming blue and white checked mousseline voile gown is mounted over white glace silk and trimmed with white broderie anglaise. This dress is fashioned on the simple plan of blouse bodice and gathered skirt, with tucks on the hem. When worn, as it certainly should be, by a young girl the accompanying hat is of tuscan straw trimmed with cherries and tied with blue and red velvet ribbon.

An attractive shade of blue is among the newcomers this summer that takes on the deepest tone of hyacinth violet that looks particularly well in mousseline taffeta trimmed with plain bands and little kilting of the same. With muslin undersleeves and vest this costume is both useful and elegant.

Princess petticoats are the latest novelty in the underwear world to wear with thin dresses. They obviate the necessity for underbodice or slip. The top of the skirt is trimmed with embroidery having generous openwork design, through which ribbon is run to keep it in place. At the bottom of the skirt is a flounce of embroidery headed with beading run with ribbon. These princess skirts have to be carefully cut and fitted.

Last summer's frocks may be cut out at the neck and sleeves and a white chemisette and cuffs inserted.

Short jackets of bright colored silks are to be worn over white dresses.

The attractive waist illustrated is of white Persian lawn. The yoke and shoulder epaulet are formed of rows of narrow lace. A graduated tucked yoke of the lawn surrounds the lace one. The sleeves are bishop affairs, with deep cuffs trimmed with lace.

CHAPTER VIII.

Social circles at West Point at long, rare intervals are shocked by a scandal, and at short ones, say every other summer—are stirred by some kind of a sensation, and the "Fairy Sisters" were the sensation of the year '97. They came in July; they went in September, and meanwhile they were "on the go" as they expressed it, from morn till late at night. Physically they were the lightest weights known to the hop room. Mentally, as their admirers in the corps expressed it, "either of them can take a fall out of any woman at the Point," and this was especially true of the elder—Mrs. Frank Garrison—whose husband was on staff duty in the far west. Both were slight, fragile, tiny blondes with light blue eyes, with lighter, fluffy hair, with exquisite little hands and feet, with oval, prettily shaped faces, and the younger, the maiden sister, had a bewitching mouth and regular, snowy dots of teeth of which she was justly proud. Yet, as has been previously said of Mrs. Frank, while the general effect was in the case of each that of an extremely pretty young girl, the elder had no really good features, the younger only that one. They generally dressed very much alike in light, flimsy gowns and hats, gloves and summer shoes all of dazzling white—sometimes verging for a change to a creamy hue—but colors, except for sashes and summer shawls, seemed banished from their wardrobes. They danced divinely, said the corps, and preferred cadet partners, to the joy of the battalion. They rode fearlessly and well, and had stunning hats and habits, but few opportunities for display thereof. They came tripping down the path from the hotel every morning, fresh and fair as daisies, in time for guard mounting, and at any hour after that could be found chatting with cadet friends at the visitors' tent, strolling arm in arm about the shaded walks with some of their many admirers until time to dress for the evening hop, where they never missed a dance, and on rainy days, or on those evenings, when there was neither hop nor band practice, they could be found, each in some dimly lighted, secluded nook about the north or west piazza or on the steps leading down to the "Chain Battery Walk," sometimes surrounded by a squad of cadet friends, but more frequently in murmured tete-a-tete with only one cavalier. In the case of Mrs. Frank no member of the corps seemed especially favored. She was just the same to every one. In the case of her younger sister—Miss Terriss—there presently developed a dashing young cadet captain who so scientifically conducted his campaign that he headed off almost all competitors and was presently accorded the lead under the universally accepted theory that he had won the little lady's heart. Observant women—and what women are not observant—of each other?—declared both sisters to be desperate flirts. Society at the Point frowned upon them and, after the first formal call or two, dropped them entirely—a thing they never seemed to resent in the least, or even to notice. They were never invited out to tea or dinner on the post—solemn functions nowhere near so palatable as the whispered homage of stalwart young manhood. "Nita is yet such a child she infinitely prefers cadet society, and I always did like boys," explained Mrs. Garrison. Some rather gay old boys used to run up Saturday afternoons on the Mary Powell and spend Sunday at the Point—Wall street men of 50 years and much lucre. "Dear old friends of father's," Mrs. Frank used to say, "and I've simply got to entertain them." Entertained they certainly were, for her wit and vivacity were acknowledged on every side, and entertained not only collectively, but severally, for she always managed to give each his hour's confidential chat, and on the Sundays of their coming had no time to spare for cadet friends. Moreover, she always drove down in the big 'bus with them Monday morning when the Powell was sighted coming along that glorious reach from Polopel's island and stood at the edge of the wharf waving her tiny kerchief—even blowing fairy kisses to them as they steamed away. No wonder Nita Terriss was frivolous and flirtatious with such an example, said society, and its frowns grew blacker when the White Sisters, the Fairy Sisters—the "Sylphites," came in view. But frowns and fulminations both fell harmless from the armor of Mrs. Frank's gay insouciance. Nita winced at first, but soon rallied and bore the slights of the permanent and semi-permanent residents as laughingly as did her more experienced sister. Nita, it was explained, was only just out of school, and Mrs. Frank was giving her this summer at the Point as a great treat before taking her to the far west, where the elder sister must soon go to join her husband. Everybody knew Frank Garrison. He had long been stationed at the academy and was a man universally liked and respected—even very highly regarded. All of a sudden the news came back to the Point a few months after his return to his regiment that he was actually engaged to "Witchie" Terriss. Hot on the heels of the rumor came the wedding cards—Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Terriss requested the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Margaret to Lieut. Francis Key Garrison, —th U. S. Cavalry, at the Post Chapel, Fort Riley, Kansas, November —, 1894—all in Tiffany's best style, as were the cards which accompanied the invitation. "What a good thing for old Bill Terriss," said everybody who knew that his impecuniosity was due to the exactions and extravagancies of his wife and "Witchie"—"And what a bad thing for Frank Garrison!" was the echo. His intimates knew that he had "put by" through economy and self-denial about $2,000, the extent of his fortune outside of his pay. "She'll make ducks and drakes of it in the six weeks' honeymoon," was the confident prophecy, and she probably did, for, despite the fact that he had so recently rejoined the regiment, "Witchie" insisted on a midwinter run to New Orleans, Savannah and Washington, and bore her lord, but not her master, over the course in triumph. To a student of human nature—and frailty, that union of a faded and somewhat shopworn maid of 27 to an ardent and vigorous young soldier many moons the junior was easy to account for. One after another Witchie Terriss had had desperate affairs with half a dozen fellows, older or younger, in the army and was known to have been engaged to five different men at different times, and believed to have been engaged to two different men at one time. Asked as to this by one of her chums, she was reported to have replied: "Do you know, I believe it true; I had totally forgotten about Ned Colston before Mr. Forman had been at the post a week. Of course the only thing to do was to break with both and let them start fresh." But this Mr. Colston, whose head had been somewhat cleared by a month of breezy, healthful scouting, accepted only in part—that part which included the break. Forman had the fresh start and the walk over and held the trophy just two months, when it dawned upon him that Margaret loved dancing far more than she did him—a clumsy performer, and that she would dance night after night, the lightest, daintiest creature in the hop room, and never have a word or a look for him who leaned in gloomy admiration against the wall and never took his eyes off her. He became jealous, moody, ugly-tempered and finally had the good luck to get his conge as the result of an attempt to assert himself and limit her dances. She was blithe and radiant and fancy free when Frank Garrison reached the post, a wee bit hipped, it was whispered, because of the failure of a somewhat half hearted suit of his in the far east, and the Fairy bounded into the darkness of his life and fairly dazzled him. Somebody had said that Frank Garrison had money.

There is no need to tell of the disillusion that gradually came. Frank found his debts mounting up and his cares increasing. She was all sympathy and regret when he mentioned it, but—there were certain comforts, luxuries and things she had always been accustomed to, and couldn't live without. Surely he would not have her apply to papa. No, but—could she not manage with a little less? He was willing to give up his cigars (indeed, he had long since done so) and to make his uniforms last a year longer—he who was in his day the most carefully dressed man at the Point. Well—she thought perhaps he ought to do that—besides—men's fashions changed but slowly, whereas women's— "Well, I'd rather be dead than out of style, Frank!"

And so it went.

SPRINGFIELD CELEBRATES

Unveiling of Statue Marking a Revolutionary War Battle.

VOORHEES' ORATOR.

Senator Kean Also a Speaker—Great Crowd at the Ceremonies.

The celebration of the Battle of Springfield, celebrated yesterday in the old Revolutionary town, attracted a large number of people from all parts of Union county and other parts of the State, including Hon. James E. Martine, of this city, and a number of Plainfielders. The celebration was marked by the unveiling of a monument erected by the State of New Jersey. The monument bore this inscription:

"The first British advance was stayed at the bridge east of the village, June 7, 1780. The Battle of Springfield was fought June 23. The Americans under General Greene on that day, near the stream west of the church, checked the enemy, who in their retreat burned the church and village. From this church Parson Caldwell took Psalm books duing the fight and flung them to the Americans for wadding, crying: 'Put Watts into 'em, boys!'

"Erected by the State of New Jersey, A. D. 1905."

The exercises were held at the Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Rev. William Hoppaugh presiding.

There was a musical prelude by the band, an organ voluntary by Mrs. Joseph B. Bryan, invocation by Rev. Dr. J. H. Egbert, school chorus, "Red, White and Blue," and the opening address by Mr. Hoppaugh. This was followed by a solo, "The Sword of Bunker Hill," by Gerald Gordon; a recitation, "Caldwell of Springfield," by Mrs. Amy Lyon Kingsbury, and the singing of "Star Spangled Banner" by the school chorus.

The oration of the day was delivered by Hon. Foster M. Voorhees, former Governor of the State. William S. Smith, president of the Board of Trustees of the Presbyterian church, presented the deed for the land upon which the monument stands, and it was accepted by Senator John Kean. The dedicatory prayer was by Rev. Walter B. Pimm, after which Miss Ruth Norton Kiggins, lineal descendant of Nathaniel Crane, and Miss Gladys Elizabeth Warde, lineal descendant of Joseph Edwards, unveiled the statue. The salute was by the Veteran Zouaves, of Elizabeth, Gen. J. Madison Drake, commanding. The exercises were concluded with "Hail, Columbia," by the band.

The members of the State Commission on Monuments, appointed by former Governor Franklin Murphy, comprise Charles H. K. Halsey, C. Symmes Kiggins and Rev. William Hoppaugh.

NEW PRISON PLANS.

Changes Are Made for the $250,000 Addition.

Governor Stokes has refused to approve the plans for the new $250,000 addition to the State Prison, resulting a complete change, under which, instead of demolishing the present west wing and erecting the new addition on its site, a new wing will be built on a line with the present inclosing wall, and extending from the main entrance along Third street to Federal street.

The new plan readily lends itself to extensive additions to the prison beyond the proposed new wing. In the future years, if it is desired to erect a new women's wing, or further to increase the accommodations for the men, it is planned to erect a companion structure to the one now in hand south of the main entrance, the site being on that of the wall as in the present instance. Furthermore, to the rear of the site of the last mentioned wing are old shops, which could be torn down and new and modern shops built, or, if desired, this space could be utilized for a third wing for cells. Thus, Mr. Poole pointed out yesterday, ample room can be provided in the prison for the next 150 years without using additional land, for which there has been a cry for several years.

REDMOND THE STAR.

Popular Tenor Singer Delights a Large Crowd at Band Concert.

The bright, particular star at last night's band concert was the ever-popular "Billy" Redmond, by far the best open-air singer who has yet appeared in the city. He gave four selections, and even then the crowd was loth to let him go. He was in excellent voice and his rendition of "Good Bye, Sweet Marie" and "Take a Car" were big hits.

The instrumental part of the programme was up to the usual high standard and encores were frequent. Next week the soloists are to be Johnny Nestor and William Weston.

—May Frances Minor, aged eight months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Minor, colored, died this morning. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and the interment will be in Hillside Cemetery.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The Clinton Avenue Club and New Market will meet at Clinton avenue this afternoon.

The Rahway fans are "knocking" its baseball team, and there are indications of a great shakeup.

The Dunellen team will play at East Millstone today, when an effort will be made to repeat the victory of a week ago.

Leon Ames, of the New York Giants, and his wife have been spending a few days at Somerville with friends. He will join the Giants today.

Howard Griffiths, of Jersey City, who was a member of the Jersey City Eastern League Club, and who is charged with conspiracy against the American League, will be tried by the National Commission at Cleveland on July 6.

With a series of games with Somerville in sight, and a possibility that Westfield may be taken on, the fans are already troubled with lint on the lungs. Brother Hoagland, of the Somerset Democrat, has been sharpening his pencils and getting in trim for the fray.

Walter Clarkson, the former Harvard twirler, who was farmed out to Jersey City a few weeks ago by Clark Griffith, of the New York Americans, has been recalled and he will join the Highlanders this week. Since going with the Skeeters he has been doing great work and Griffith thinks he is capable of doing good work for him.

"Al." Farmer, who has been catching for Westfield this season, has signed to play with Summit for the rest of the year at $15 per game. He will play two games a week in the Lackawanna League in addition to his regular Sunday contest. "Paddy" Cotter will return to Westfield and take Farmer's position. Smith Hubson, who formerly played short stop for Westfield, but who has been playing at Fargo, North Dakota, will return to Recreation Park for the rest of the season.

Louis Wiltse, of Madison avenue, has jumped the Baltimore Eastern League Club, and is now with the York, Pa., team, of the Tri-State League, where he will receive more money. His position with Baltimore was uncertain from the commencement of the season. He claimed that he was treated unfairly when he signed his contract and during the past few weeks he has not been allowed to work in turn with the other pitchers, notwithstanding that he has never been in better condition.

With the exception of a right-fielder, announcement is made of the lineup of the new baseball team for Somerville. The management believes it has a strong combination in fielding and especially in batting, while the pitcher, Galbraith, formerly of Gettsburg College, is considered a great find. This is the 1 ineup: Galbraith, p; Russell, c; Bockman, 1b; Martin, 2b; Daly, ss; Krufler, 3b; Scully, lf; Artemus, cf.

TAR TANKS AFIRE

LOSS IS $3,000

DEVIL'S KITCHEN AT LINCOLN IS DESTROYED BY FLAMES.

Through spontaneous combustion, several large tanks of tar were destroyed at the Lincoln Water Proof Cloth Company's factory in Lincoln last night, the loss being $3,000. The tanks were located just outside the factory and were encased in brick walls within a frame structure. They were known as the "Devil's Kitchen," and the blazing tanks of tar could be seen for many miles.

The Lincoln Hose Company, assisted by the Bound Brook fire department, succeeded in keeping the fire away from the main structure. Leigh Bache, Samuel Anderson and John Ward, employes in the factory, were severely burned about the hands and face, requiring the services of a physician. Captain William Bache is president of the company, and he announced today that the tanks will be rebuilt at once.

VALUE OF SLANG PHRASES.

Dr. Rhees Talks on Value of Catchy Phrases.

"Slang is of two kinds," said President Rush Rhees, of the university, disgressing from the subject of remarks he was making to the men students. "There are those slang expressions which are vivid figures of speech and which by reason of their aptness appeal to all and readily pass into good idiom and current usage. And then there are those phrases which are the result of intellectual indolence and are in no way actually descriptive.

"I do not know," said Dr. Rhees to a reporter, "just how the phrase 'to get left' is regarded today. Years ago, I know, it was slang. If a man miscalculates in some venture today a person of culture might say without reproach, I believe, that he got left. How long it will take this expression to be accepted in literature, or whether it ever will be so accepted, I am not prepared to say.

"Some of the expressions we hear today seem to have a quality about them that may result in their having a permanent place in the language. The expression 'it's up to you' is a vivid presentation of an ideal that we desire frequently to convey. 'To make good' is another phrase that expresses forcibly an idea that in ordinary speech requires at least a half-dozen words to present. I can't say I like it, neither can I say that it will not finally be accepted as good English idiom.

"'To win out' is another phrase of the same character. I do not regard it as justified. 'To win,' it seems to me, does the work, and yet the fact that 'to win out' expresses the ultimate success of an effort may cause it to live."—Rochester Democrat.

Accident With New Bicycle.

Willie Schenck, nine years old, of Harrison avenue, took a brand new bicycle out for atrial spin last night. Not being thoroughly acquainted with its mannerism, he allowed it to run away with him, and he fetched up against a curbstone. Dr. Dendon's examination after he had been carried home showed a broken arm the worst of his injuries, but he sustained innumerable cuts and bruises.

WILL MOVE STAND.

Mayor Smalley Doesn't Want Standees Kept from Bandstand.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, who with Councilman Van Arsdale, had the grandstand at the concert grounds erected, has ordered the stand moved back as far as the limits of the grounds allow. The change will be made by the time the next concert is held.

As the stand is now, there is no room for the people not on the seats to bet in the circle around the bandstand, and the Mayor insists that this be changed. He says the stand was not put up to mark a division between the people who attend the concerts, but merely to give those who desired it an opportunity to sit through the programme and to add a little something to the band fund. He says the concerts are popular in the full sense of the word and nobody should be made to feel that it less his concert than that of anybody else.

—S. Scheuer & Co., the West Front street grocers and butchers, have installed a four-horse power gas engine in the cellar of their building. It is being used to run the elevator in the building and sharpen the knives, cleavers, etc., used in their butcher business.

TIRES VULCANIZED

LINCOLN VILLAGE TO BE A BOROUGH ?

MASS MEETING OF CITIZENS EARLY NEXT MONTH.

An important step in the history of Lincoln will be taken between July 10 and 12, when a mass meeting will be held for the purpose of incorporating the place into a borough. This movement, although inaugurated by Mayor S. D. Drake, has the sanction of all the citizens and owners of factories in Lincoln. Mr. Drake declares that the incorporated borough will include realty and personal values of a half million dollars, comprising all the territory between the Dunellen line and Bound Brook and including East Bound Brook from the New Jersey Central to Green brook.

It is also proposed to set apart a large strip of land and as an inducement to locate factories in Lincoln, sites will be offered free. On July 4 the town will celebrate by turning on the additional fifty electric lights ordered by the town of Lincoln.

Paid Department for Lincoln.

Mayor S. D. Drake, of Lincoln, has announced a meeting to be held on Saturday night, July 8, at 8 o'clock, when steps will be taken to incorporate the Lincoln Hose Company and establish it on a basis of a paid department. This action is hastened as a result of the big fire in Lincoln last night, when the inefficiency of the volunteer department was shown.

PLAINFIELD LOSES, 1 TO 0

All-Cubans Make the Lone Run in the Fourth. Inning.

A PITCHER'S BATTLE.

Bill Beck and Senor Perez, the Opposing Slab Artists, Show a Great Article—Plainfield's Second Defeat.

Laden heavily with Spanish speed and some sockdology, the All-Cubans descended on our fair hosts Saturday afternoon and dumped them into the whitewash bucket, 1 to 0. This is a base return for all that we have done for Cuba Libre.

But it was a sterling defeat. Capt. Dave Driscoll's cohorts kept those visiting islanders on the hot jump. Twice they were compelled to shut scudding athletes off at the plate, and we handed them a hair-raising finish to send them away with increased respect for this section of the baseball world.

Sizzle and electrical effects marked the struggle. The Cubans turned out the fastest bunch of fielding seen hereabouts in many months. Every man on the nine displayed a whip that was all there and a little beyond. Among the starry youths in the All-Cuban uniform was one Senorette Bustamente, who has rapped out only eighteen hits off old Father Time. What the youthful Bustamente will be by the time he is a full grown man is something for the experts to sit up and wonder about. He was good enough to play in the Havana league when he was sixteen, and has been getting better right along. Saturday he showed up as the quickest thing at shortfield we have ever seen here, and snapped a whip that is a marvel for speed and air-line effect. It was a screaming one-hand stop, followed by a lightning throw, by this infant phenom that killed us dead in the ninth.

Bill Beck and one Senor Perez were the opposing flingers. Ever since last Saturday a brunette pitcher has had the sign on our heroes, and Perez buffaloed them completely. They squeezed out just three hits, singles by Cregan and O'Neill and a double by Tuck Turner, and the welt-when-welts-meant-runs thing was not for theirs. Three times they had a man on third, once with one out, but Mr. Perez with his twist and the infielders with their whips were all there and doing a successful business.

Bill pitched a right good game. Only in one fatal inning did they bunch on him, and he scattered the bumps so effectually that seven whacks, including a three-bagger, only netted that one solitary run. Bill had gilt edge support, barring two valueless errors. There were some fears for Bill's rep after the terrible time he had last Saturday, but he handled the business-like foreigners in his old style. If Bill's team mates had backed him up with a few belts we would not now be gnawing our lip in deep chagrin.

Those Cubans unloaded some new and startling effects in coaching. Nothing but Spanish was used for the rallying cries, and the liquid rush of hysterical consonants was something to gasp at. Senor Garcia has Mistah Monroe, of the Philadelphia Giants, beat a mile in verbal ball playing.

It was in the fourth that the one and only one was marked up. It came in just like a play. Almeyda, first up, banged into right for a peach three-timer, and Palonino followed with a speckless single into center. Jack O'Neill squelched Palonino's attempt at a steal with a great throw. Garcia sent one into Turner's mitt. Hildago rapped a sky-puncher into left and Pete Cregan electrified the assembled chivalry by letting it slip between his leather and his front curve. Pete redeemed himself by pulling down Marzau's contribution and ending the inning.

Things sizzled on until the ninth, when the red hot struggle ended in a pyrotechnic display that forced up a lot of respiration. Kiernan, first up, rapped to short, but the Hon. T. Turner banged the round thing for a beaut drive into center. Any other fielder would have let it go for a three-sacker, but Turner had a hard job making second. Love rapped a high fly back of second and four men went after it. Valdes had the honor of muffing it, and Turner went to third on the miss, while Love roosted on second. Things looked real comfy with men on the advance bases and only one dead. Connolly rapped to third and Turner started to squeeze in. The ball got there first, and Turner was squeezed good and proper. Love went to third on the play and Connolly stole second unmolested, and with Mr. Cregan still to argue against Senor Perez there was still hope. That hope would have blossomed but for the Bustamente youth. Pete lammed a screamer down the diamond toward second base, and DEMANDS RETURN OF $500 CHECK FROM COMMISSION.

Rather than be used as a tool by the National Baseball Commission, which permits both National and American League players to engage in contests against blacklisted men, Manager Daab has written to Garry Hermann, president of the National Commission, asking him to refund his $500 check deposited with the commission when he entered the agreement, and release him from the provisions of the agreement. He has told Mr. Hermann that owing to existing conditions he has a right to demand this, in view of the open violations of the agreement in the Metropolitan district and especially at Elizabethport a week ago yesterday, when several New York and Chicago American League players engaged in contest with the Elizabethport stars, which is composed of several blacklisted men.

When Mr. Daab subscribed to the terms of the agreement he was guaranteed full protection, and it was with this understanding that he took advantage of it. It now looks as though he was being used for a good thing, as there are constant violations of the agreement every week in the vicinity of New York. Even yesterday "Rube" Waddell was advertised to pitch for the Murray Hills against a team comprised of outlaws.

"Rube" Oldring, who has been playing second base for the locals, jumped last week and went with the Birmingham, Ala., team, which is under the National agreement. Mr. Daab has notified the commission of this act, and he is waiting to see what disposition is made of the matter. It is now plainly evident that the commission fails to control National agreement players, and Mr. Daab does not propose to allow his interests to suffer by reason of it.

Under these circumstances a series of games with Westfield seems probable in the near future, as well as the series with Somerville. It was hoped that a contest with Westfield might be arranged for July 4, but as this is impossible now, Manager Daab has arranged a game with the All-Nationals. Manager McGrath has promised to bring a first class team here and he will probably use a big league battery and an infield comprised of leaguers. This team played here on May 3, and gave a fine exhibition. They lost by a score of 6 to 4, and the locals only got five hits off Barberick. Deegan will undoubtedly pitch for Plainfield in this game.

NEW RURAL MAIL ROUTES

One for Scotch Plains and Another Extension of Route No. 3.

AN INSPECTOR HERE.

Government Official and Postmaster in Consultation—Find a Man Who Never Received Mail.

For the purpose of ascertaining the exact number of miles in Route No. 3, Rural Free Delivery, extending over the mountains and carried by Nelson Peterson, and to consider the proposition of extending this route four miles, Inspector Thomas H. Higgins, of Chester, Pa., visited Plainfield on Saturday, and the inspector and Postmaster E. H. Bird made a trip over the route. They went over the territory in a buggy to which was attached a machine calculated to determine the exact number of miles traveled.

According to the present arrangement, Mr. Peterson is obliged to retrace a portion of his route, though by the suggested extension this would be avoided and twenty-three additional houses would be served with mail. The extension would start from the end of the present route west of Gallia at Red Top, extend to Coontown and to Gallia, a distance of four miles. This would make the entire route a trifle over twenty miles and would also give Mr. Peterson an increase of salary. His present route is less than seventeen miles long, and Inspector Higgins was favorably impressed with the proposed extension, which he will undoubtedly recommend to the postal authorities.

Mr. Higgins and Mr. Bird met a citizen on the proposed extension route who declared that he never received any mail and that he never had visited a postoffice for mail. He said that he supposed the extension would be a benefit and he had no objections to its adoption, but personally it would make no difference to him.

According to a despatch from Washington, a rural route has been ordered established at Scotch Plains, to be known as Route No. 1. It will cover a population of 465, and there are ninety-three houses on the route. It takes in the territory in the vicinity of Berkeley Heights and between that place and Scotch Plains.

AUTOIST KILLED.

One Life Lost in Accident Near Elizabeth Yesterday.

An automobile owned and driven by J. E. Walshiel, Esq., a prominent lawyer from Wheehawken, and carrying Fred Bentz, his brother, and stepmother and Mrs. Walshiel, came to grief at the bend of the road near the Colonia Country Club, two miles out of Elizabeth, yesterday morning, while traveling at a thirty-an-hour clip. The auto was bound from Weehawken to Asbury Park, leaving the former place at 10:30 in the morning. The occupants of the auto were thrown out and Mr. Bentz went under the machine, fracturing five ribs. He died at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of Dr. H. Page Hough, in Rahway.

At the time of the accident an auto going in the opposite direction and being driven by a Mr. Armstrong, of New York, picked up the injured man and made the two miles to Dr. Hough's home in two minutes. Prompt medical aid was given, but to no avail.

It was Mr. Walshiel's inability to make the turn in the road that caused the accident and the machine went up an embankment, upsetting the party. The other occupants of the machine escaped serious injury.

Mr. Bentz lived on Bergenline avenue, Weehawken. He was thirty-five years old. The other members of the party were all residents of Weehawken.

ORPHAN ASYLUM COMING.

Newark Institution to Take Possession of Dr. Coles' Farm.

The Newark Orphan Asylum will take possession of its new country home at Mountainside, the gift of Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, tommorw. The place is not completed, but accommodations for a good many of the children at one time have been provided. No formal exercises will mark the opening tomorrow, but on the Fourth of July a flag raising and opening programme will he held.

When the asylum committee looked over the farm the house was found to be much too small for the needs of the institution, and Dr. Coles gave orders at once for the erection of two 36x52 additions on the house. Warm weather came before there was time to get out plans and specifications, and it was decided to use as much room as conditions permitted without delay on account of the incompleteness of the improvements.

The abandoned Union church building at Mountainside, which is situated directly opposite the home, has been fitted up as a dormitory and will be part of the institution. Dr. Coles bought the church building when the congregation moved into larger quarters several years ago.

P. S. C. TO MAKE CARS.

New Plant to Turn Out 150 Trolley Cars a Year.

That the Public Service Corporation proposes to build its own new trolley cars in Newark at the large shops, the concern is constructing on Ferry street, Newark, has been officially announced by Secretary Frederick Evans. It is intended to make the new plant a central station for the equipment of all the cars on the lines in Northern New Jersey which the trolley company controls, and its completion will mark the centralization in Newark of all the repair shops the corporation controls.

Planned with a careful attention to detail, the new plant will afford ample accommodation for the handling of large numbers of the cumbersome cars, and it is believed that it will be large enough to suffice as the company's repair station for many years to come. It is proposed to equip the shop with the most improved machinery and provide enough of it to prevent any recurrence of the contingencies which have arisen on some of the corporation's lines because of lack of facilities for repairing its cars.

General Superintendent Albert H. Stanley says the new plant would have a capacity for repairing 2,500 cars a year, and would be equipped to turn out from 150 to 200 new ones per annum in addition.

ST. GRABRIEL'S EXHIBIT

Annual Display of Pupils' Work a Worthy Effort.

LARGE ATTENDANCES.

In Response to Requests Sisters Will Receive the Public Until Tomorrow Noon—Painting a Feature.

Viewed by scores of interested parents and friends, all yesterday afternoon and this morning, the annual exhibition of work by children studying at St. Gabriel's Academy, has been pronounced one of the best and most complete the institution has yet conducted. It includes a display of paintings, artistic needlework, pen sketches and drawings, together with specimens of regular class work, that possess artistic merit worthy of advanced adults.

The different subjects have been attractively arranged and the sight of them is well worth a visit to the building. So many requests have been made to extend the exhibition that the Sisters in charge will continue it until tomorrow afternoon and extend an invitation to the public to attend.

The prettiest part of the display, perhaps, is the paintings, which comprise subjects in china, oil, tapestry, pastels and water colors. In this branch the pupils have shown especial proficiency and remarkable talent.

Among the most striking exhibits are marine studies with great depth of coloring by Emma Korff, winter scenes by May Berkhan, china painting and cushions by Mrs. Edward Kapp, winter scenes by Miss Anna Pedefious and various subjects, five in all, by Miss Mary Ribraud. Miss Rose Gesswein has contributed some handsome work in china, a patestry, "Spring," and a beautiful individual tea set that commands attention. The Sisters, to show what skill can be developed, have placed on view a specimen of their own work, "The Immaculate Conception," that has been greatly admired. An especially good study of a tiger is also shown as the work of Miss Margaret Willoughby.

In the fancy work department there is a great variety of specimens in pillows, picture frames, center pieces and sideboard covers that represent many months of patient effort. Among the pupils showing work are Nettie Blank, who has an especially pretty pillow; Marie Kenney, pillows, picture frame, glove case, veil and sideboard cover beautifully worked in daisies; Irene Duchesne, who has a satin damask cover embroidered and hemstitched; Theresa Schneider, a large ecru centre piece that required six months to complete; Jennie Dinneen, a cushion, center piece and sideboard cover; Anna Pedefious, some very pretty pieces of Mt. Mellick work in embroidery and Mexican *work; Lillian Pauly, rose em*broidered screen; Bernadette Duchesne, open lace work center piece, twenty-seven inches; Eva Joerges, Mt. Mellick work; Henrietta Pedefious, Madeline Noonan, Mary McCullough and Grace Rafferty, cushions and centre pieces. Miss Irene Duchesne stands out prominently in this study and though but fourteen years old has produced some remarkable pieces.

Miss Lillian Pauly is an adept in Mt. Mellick work, which is the old style embroidery used for many years in Ireland and now coming into vogue in America, but leads the class in hand drawing and pen sketches. She shows a large number of the latter and many other good ones are shown by Miss Anna Pedefious, Grace Rafferty, Irene and May Duchesne, Frances LaPorte, Jennie Dinneen, Marie Kenney, Nettie Blank and Theresa Schneider. Miss Marie Kenney, who is but a little girl, has made great progress in drawing and sketches animals with great exactness.

The pupils also show specimens pages of their regular class work and these, together with the more advanced results, reveal the care and patience that has been exercised in their instruction by the Sisters. They have been accorded high praise for it all but it only has the effect of spurring them on to greater effort.

Dobbins Still on Trial.

The case of the Manor Real Estate and Trust Company against Walter E. Dobbins, of Elizabeth, charged with embezzlement, which was begun in the Union County Court on Friday, is being continued today. The case will probably not go to the jury till late this afternoon.

His Maiden Arrest.

Robert McGinnis, 316 Lee place, filled himself full of exciting drink Saturday night and gave Patrolmon Theodore Martin, a new cop, a chance to make his first arrest. It was Robert's first appearance in court and Judge Runyon suspended sentence this morning.

ITALIAN MOTHER FINED.

De Witt C. Ivins Accuses Mrs. Dominick Nevarra of Child-Beating.

Mrs. Dominick Nevarra, of Hillside avenue, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning, charged with beating her three-year-old son cruelly. The complainant was De Witt C. Ivins, whose handsome home is near the Italian colony on Hillside avenue.

According to Mr. Ivins' testimony he saw Mrs. Nevarra beating her son with "a club." He came down to police headquarters and told Chief Kiely about it, and the Chief went to Hillside avenue and arrested Mrs. Nevarra.

The size and weight of the "club" was not described in court. It was applied, according to the testimony, where little boys are usually spanked. Mrs. Nevarra did not deny whipping the boy, but said she only whacked him as he deserved. The boy, a fat little chap, was in court. He did not look very much ill-used, and clung to his mother's skirts. The magistrate had a hard time preventing Nevarra pere, who was in court full of voluble protestations of his wife's virtues, from showing how sound and unmarked was the spot where the stick fell.

Judge Runyon fined Mrs. Nevarra $10 or twenty days in jail. The fat little boy cried bitterly when his subbing mother was taken to the detention room. Dominick ransomed his wife a little later.

HOME DEPARTMENT EXERCISES.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Preaches a Special Sermon.

The Home Department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday School attended the service in the church yesterday morning, and listened to a special sermon by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck. There were about sixty member who marched into the church in a body and occupied seats in the front of the edifice in the centre aisle, each one wearing her badge. On the organ front was the inscription, "1900—Welcome Home Department—1905," in a large block letter of orange, the color of the church. There was a beautiful display of flowers and potted plants arranged by a committee comprising Mrs. Charles E. Ball, Mrs. L. M. Dunavan, Mrs. Edward J. Cooley, Mrs. Henry VanName, Mrs. J. Beckman and Mrs. John Ross.

It was by request that Dr. Schenck spoke to the Home Department. He took his text from the fourth verse of the thirty-ninth chapter of Isaiah. "Sunday schools," he said, "were now about one hundred years old, and none were doing a better work than the present auxiliary, the Home Departments. They were very helpful aids and assistants to the church and school. He really believed they were born of God. He told of the great good they had done in the past and prayed God that they might continue and do even greater good in the days to come. He strongly advocated the necessity of Godly homes and the great need of the family altar."

Dr. Schenck said that the Home Department of a Sunday school such as the one he was addressing was simply a "sleeping giant" as regards its ability to do good when working in unison with the Holy Spirit. He heartily thanked the members for all they had accomplished, for their steady growth in numbers and for the sunshine taken into the homes by the visitors of the organization.

The present membership of this Home Department is 201, and the officers are Mrs. Charles E. Ball, superintendent, assisted by Mrs. L. M. Dunavan.

COCHRAN'S GOOD TENNIS.

May Win East Jersey Association Championship.

The championship tennis tournament of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association was continued on the courts of the Jersey Golf Club on Saturday, and H. J. Cochran, the lone representative from the Plainfield Country Club, put up a brilliant game and stands an excellent chance of bringing the championship to this city. Owing to darkness he was unable to finish his play on Saturday, he and his opponent each winning two sets in the finals. The tie will be decided on Thursday. The play leading up to the finals was as follows:

H. J. Cochran beat S. Dunham, Rahway, 7—5, 7—5; R. A. West, Bergen Point, beat G. Walker, Jersey City, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4; F. E. Ferris, Jersey City, beat H. McKay Glazebrook, Elizabeth, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3; A. L. West, Bergen Point, beat L. V. Gauthey, Bergen Point, by default; H. J. Cochran beat R. A. West, Bergen Point, 6—3, 6—4; F. E. Ferris beat A. L. West, 6—3, 6—1.

In the finals H. J. Cochran and F. E. Ferris played four sets, the former taking the first two and his opponent the last two, when darkness stopped the play. The competition was very close and exciting throughout and conditions are favorable for Mr. Cochran winning out on Thursday.

CAPT. HUBBARD IS DEAD

Director of Union County Board of Freeholders Died This Afternoon.

78 YEARS YESTERDAY

From Carpenter to Bank President—Longest Record as a Freeholder in New Jersey—His Career.

Capt. J. Frank Hubbard, one of the most respected and influential men in this city, died at his home in West Seventh street and Madison avenue, at 1:30 this afternoon. He was seventy-eight years old yesterday. Jaundice compelled him to take to his bed three weeks ago. About a year ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis and this with jaundice and other complications caused his end.

James Franklin Hubbard, son of James and Amy Carpenter Hubbard, sprang from the best of New England Puritan stock. He was born in Berlin, Rensselaer county, New York, June 25, 1827, the anniversary of his birthday being observed yesterday. His father was a carpenter and joiner. Soon after the birth of Mr. Hubbard, the family moved to Scott, Cortland county, New York, where he was taught the trade of his father, with that care and painstaking which laid the foundation of future fidelity and success. Two other children came to the Hubbard home—Joseph A., now living in West Fifth street, and Mrs. Mary A. Pratt, of Scott. The father died in 1855. The mother lived until 1886, reaching the ripe age of eighty-three years.

Mr. Hubbard was educated in the common and academic schools of central New York. At the age of twen*ty-two years he removed to Allegany* county, New York, and began business as a carpenter and builder. In 1849 he married Miss Elizabeth Grace Green, whose ancestors were among the oldest settlers of Rhode Island. Seeking a larger field of activity, Mr. Hubbard came to this city in 1854, and he remained here up to the time of his death, always being identified with the best interests of the city.

Born to be a patriot, Mr. Hubbard enlisted in the Thirtieth N. J. Infantry, and was elected captain of Co. H at the organization of the regiment. He commanded his company at the second battle of Fredericksburg and at Chancellorsville. He was mustered out at the close of his term of enlistment, and for a time thereafter was engaged in raising troops.

In 1865 Captain Hubbard went into the printing press business with Charles Potter, under the firm name of C. Potter, Jr., & Company. He continued in this relation until 1879. After that he was occupied in public business and places of trust. He was made a director of the City National Bank at its organization in 1875 and for many years was its president. He was also president of the Dime Savings Institution, treasure of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, and for thirty-seven years was a member of the Union County Board of Freeholedrs. He enjoyed the distinction of having served as director of the board for twenty years consecutively. In 1902 he appointed John Sparrow, of Rahway, and Jacob Brucklacher, of Elizabeth, to serve with himself as a commission to supervise the construction of the new Union County Court House in Elizabeth. During its entire construction he gave his personal attention to it, and it was his one great pleasure to live to see it completed.

Not only in secular affairs, but in religious matters, was he prominent. He was one of the leaders of the Seventh-day Baptist church, in this city, and the denomination. He was president of the Memorial Board and the Sabbath Tract Society and treasurer of the Seventh-day Baptist church. He was a man of sterling qualities and none has a better reputation in this city as well as throughout Union county. It can be truthfully said that he was true to every trust.

In 1862 the members of the Board

everybody yelled. It had speed enough to burn a furrow in the turf and it looked beautifully placed. Into the scheme of things comes Bustamente's speed and his trusty paw. The shooting globule was just on the edge of safety when the infant shortfielder nailed it on the frenzied run. At tha Pete was within one jump of refuge, but the immature wonder shot the ball like a streak for first and Peter's rap was as if it had been only a humble pop. From all over the bleachers came the sound as of hearts sliding from unnatural places in the thorax to the neighborhood of the boot heel.

The observant reader may have noticed references to a certain Turner and one Love. Turner is our old friend Tuck, of the Crescents. He came out to play center in place of Cosgrave, who was off on a business trip. Love, a Paterson athlete, with an established and budding reputation, covered second base in place of the unsettled and eccentric Mr. Oldring. Reuben skipped to the Black Belt last week to play with the Alabama Invincibles in the Boll Weevil League.

Tuck played a brilliant game, yanking seven flyers from the circumambient in addition to hitting that two-bagger. Love filled Rube's boots without any noticeable sloshing around, and looked more at ease than the light-haired Adonis.

New Market Swamped.

Heavy slugging by Clinton Avenue overwhelmed New Market Saturday afternoon, 12 to 0. The game was played on the Clinton Avenue's grounds. Van Arsdale, the Clinton Avenue's old pitcher, faced his one-time pals from the New Market firing line. They welted him twelve times, and New Market never had a show. Jim Scott was a puzzle for the villagers all the way through. The batteries: Clinton Avenue, Scott and Loughlin; New Market, VanArsdale and Nelson.

The single men of the Potter

Printing Press Works defeated the married men in a game of baseball on Hope Common Saturday morning by a score of 14 to 2. A feature of the contest was the slide from third base to home by Jim Ennis and the one-hand catch of J. Daub. Umpire Reagan gave general satisfaction and the teams have promised to let him officiate in the second game next Saturday morning at the same place.

Red Bank, 1; Montclair A. A., 0.

For the first time in their baseball history, the Monclair Athletic Association was shut out Saturday, the Red Bank club beating them 1 to 0.

Orange, 1; Summit, 0.

With two out and the score 0 to 0 in the ninth inning, Orange won one of the prettiest games that has been seen on the oval this season. It was Brown that did the trick. Summit had had her turn at bat. Weisbecker, for Orange, had struck out, and Schoner had flied to Lindeman, when Boutillier cracked out a single, following this with a steal to second.

Cranford, 11; Garwood, 1.

The Cranford Baseball Association nine defeated the Garwood A. C. Saturday afternoon by a score of 11 to 1. Garwood scored its first and only run in the seventh inning. With two men out ond the bases full, a lucky hit saved a shut-out for the visitors. Poole's three-base hit in the eighth inning, for Cranford, with all the bases full, scored three of the five runs made this inning.

Roselle A. C., 14; Otter A. C., 6.

The Roselle A. C. defeated the Otter A. C., of New York, at the First avenue grounds at Roselle Saturday afternoon by the score of 14 to 6.

Morristown-Chatham, 2; Madison, 0.

The wandering Phillipsburg team, now under the name of the Madison Athletic Associatian, played its first game on the Madison grounds Saturday, but was defeated by the Chatham-Morristown aggregation by the score of 2 to 0.

Plainfield, N. J., June 26, 1905.

Strange how frequently a girl has to fix her hair when once she has an engagement ring.

Scarcity of mad dog stories is due to the fact that there's enough war stuff to fill the first page.

No matter how culpable Alexander was himself, he has rendered the policyholders of the Equitable an invaluable service by exposing the rotten management of the company.

Once establish a reputation, by advertising and fair dealing, and you are assured of a very large audience that is always ready to listen to what you have to offer.—Printers' Ink.

In the absence of any explanation from Mr. Roosevelt, the country will have to wait until the next Presidential election to hear the reason for the remarkable attitude the head of the government toward both Morton and Loomis.

New Jersey Editorial Association has been busy at Cape May.—News item.

Good idea. The weekly newspaper editor - proprietor - reporter - correspondent man has a whole pile of thoughts on how to run a paper, and should be given a chance occasionally to tell them.

The Elizabeth Evening Times wants to go over the ground before it undertakes to editoralize again on the Republican situation in Union county if it hopes to be a little more accurate then when it says that the withdrawal of Judge Runyon as a senatorial candidate permits the party to breathe more easily. The refusal of Mr. Runyon to get into the race does not clear up the track at all for he has always been identified with the so-called "machine" here and if there is any opposition it will come from that source. It can be stated that the attitude of the local administration forces will depend entirely on who is nominated. On some excuse or other, there is opposition to a Plainfielder who has been mentioned for the nomination, and it is quite improbable that he would get the local administration's support. Should Charles J. Fisk decline to run, with Mr. Runyon being eliminated from the race, it is more than likely that there will be something exciting in county politics in the fall.

ZELAYA AT WEST POINT.

Son of Nicaragua's President Leaves Cedar Croft for Military Academy.

Alfonso Zelaya, son of President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, who has been a pupil at the Cedarcroft School, Park avenue, for eighteen months, has gone to West Point to enter the United States Military Academy by special appointment from Congress. Young Zelaya's admission to the academy is a bit of international courtesy, that all nations with military or naval schools exchange. Alfonso is eighteen years old. He is remarkably developed physcially and mentally, and during his stay here he made many friends among the young people. He is a wonderful piano player and will be remembered here for a number of informal musicales. He entered Cedarcroft to perfect himself in English and prepare for the West Point examination.

of Freeholders subscribed for and purchased a sword, sash and belt to be presented to Captain Hubbard on his departure for the scene of war. After the meeting of the board on October 29, of that year, all the members accompanied him to the railroad station. Job S. Williams had been delegated to present the sword to Captain Hubbard.

Captain Hubbard began political life as a Whig, passing to the Republican at its organization. To his party he always remained faithful. He was a member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the New York Commandery, Military Order Loyal Legion, although his health has prevented him from attending the stated meetings of the commandery for several years.

He has served Union county for many years, and no man was better known or has a more unblemished record. His practical business methods and his devotion to every trust confided to him saved the people many thousands of dollars. His name was the guaranty for efficiency, integrity and trustworthiness.

Captain Hubbard's first wife died in 1864. His present wife was Mrs. Isabell (Randolph) Titsworth, a member of one of the old honored families of Union county. There is one daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Van Sickel, wife of I. Newton Van Sickel, of Madison avenue.

ROAD BUILDING HALTS.

Possibly No More Highways Constructed Until 1907.

Unless the New Jersey Legislature, which convenes next January, votes the State Commissioner of Roads a uarge sum in the supplemental bill there will not be a highway of any kind built with State aid from now on until 1907.

No new contracts will be approved by State Road Commissioner Elijah C. Hutchinson, because there is no money to pay for roads. Although there is over 300 miles of road applied for at the present time, not one mile will be authorized until the next Legislature meets.

The State is at the point where good road building must stop for this year, at least, and probably for next year. There is no money available under the correct interpretation of the statute to build the roads. Commissioner Hutchinson is a believer in obeying the will of the Legislature, and he has found out that his department is without funds, legally, to continue the work.

Freeholders are howling around the office of the State Road Commissioner for his signature to contracts for new roads.

According to the account of his office, Commissioner Hutchinson says, when the present appropriation of $250,000 is available, December 1, the first day of the next fiscal year, every cent of it will have to be paid out immediately for roads built last year.

PEOPLE FLEE FROM LODZ

Thousands Hurridly Leave the Place in Dread of the Cossacks.

Terror is impelling every one who can to flee Cossack-ridden Lodz, Russian Poland, according to a dispatch to the New York World. Twelve thousand persons have already left, and every outgoing train is crowded.

But all who seek safety in flight do not escape. At Baluty Cossack wilfully attacked a Jewish family of five being driven in a cab to the railway station and not only shot and killed all five, but slew the cabman, too.

General fighting between soldiers and strikers has subsided, but isolated conflicts continue, particularly in the suburbs. At Pabjanice, near Lodz, workingmen attacked two policemen, killing one and wounding the other. The workingmen in all the factories will strike today.

Some leading citizens telegraphed Gen. Shustow, commanding the troops here, asking for protection against the brutality of the soldiers, especially the Cossacks. They told the General as one instance of cruel rapacity, that a band of Cossacks killed and robbed the servant of a millionaire neamed Rosenblatt, who was carrying $5,000 to the bank.

The General promised to punish the offenders, but demanded witnesses of the occurrence to testify against the Cossacks. During the rioting the mob destroyed thirty-five Government liquor stores. They stole all the cash and stamps on the premises, and added them to the Socialist party fund.

LIVE WIRE KILLS TWO.

Men Perish in Coil in the Sight of Mother and Fiancee of One.

Walter Ewing, a New York city telegraph operator, and Wesley Davidson, of Hopewell, both young men, were killed last evening in Hopewell by coming into contact with an electric light wire.

Ewing was on a visit to Hopewell to see his mother and Miss Matthews, his fiancee. He walked down the street last evening with Davidson. His attention was attracted to a broken telephone wire hanging over a live electric light wire. A dog sniffed at the wire and was shocked.

Ewing got two sticks and tried to poke the wire out of the way, although his sweetheart and mother, who were in the party, tried to persuade his not to. He slipped and the live wire coiled about his body. Davidson rushed to the aid of Ewing, and he too was caught in the coil. Both men were killed in the presence of the two women.

Telephone men arrived a few seconds after the accident, but were too late to assist the men. Both women are prostrated over the accident.

HUNG TO SILL FOR HER LIFE.

Pushed Out of Window, She Says—Husband Fights Police.

Cries of "police" and "murder" called Policemen McMurty and Fagin to the house at 2 Nesbit street, Newark, early yesterday morning, where they saw a woman hanging by her finger tips from the sill of the second-story window. While one stood ready to catch the woman in case she lost her hold, the other broke open the dorr, ran up and dragged the woman inside.

She was Mrs. William Sutcliffe. She declared that her husband tried to push her through the window, but she succeeded in catching the sill. Sutcliffe gave the police a severe fight before they got him to a cell.

Mrs. Mary E. Kershaw, of Clinton avenue, is visiting friends in Dover, Morris county.

—Tomorrow at 1 o'clock a chattel mortgage sale of household furniture will take place at 76 Somerset street. H. Hand, auctioneer.

18 HOUR FLYER RESTORED

Speed Not the Cause of Wreck of Twentieth Century Flyer.

The Twentieth Century Limited eighteen hour schedule will be re*sumed today. W. H. Newman, pres*ident of the road, in making the announcement bases the resumption on a three-fold investigation, indicating that the Mentor wreck was not due to the speed of the train. President Newman's statement is as follows:

"The rigid investgation of the wreck on the Lake Shore road, at Mentor, Ohio, which has been made by the officials of the Lake Shore Company, and by the State Railway Commissioner of Ohio, who, with the Chief Inspector of Railways for that State, made a personal investigation at the scene of the accident, having shown conclusively that the accident was not caused by the speed of the train, it is now decided unnecessary to longer continue the slower schedule of the Twentieth Century train, the time of which was lengthened pending a thorough investigation of the cause of the accident. Its schedule of eighteen hours between New York and Chicago will be resumed Monday, une 26."

TROUBLE AMONG FIREMEN.

Result of Barring of Non-Union Band at Springfield.

There is trouble brewing among the firemen of Summit, and it is said to be all due to the fact that an Italian band from New York was not allowed to take part in the parade at Springfield Friday, owing to the fact that the musicians are non-unionists. This band, it appears, had been hired by the hook and ladder company of Summit, and there was keen rivalry between this company and the two hose companies there as to which would make thee best appearance during the celebration.

The hook and ladder company maintains that a member of the Union Hose Company of Summit sent word to the Orange Musicians' Union that a non-union band was going to take part in the parade. The union immediately took steps to prevent the parading of the New York Italians. This they succeeded in doing and such short notice of the union's intention did the local hook and ladder company receive that it was unable to procure another band.

The feeling is bitter between the hook and ladder company and Union Hose Company. This is the second time that these companies have come together, for there was a good deal of ill-feeling over the fact that the hose company received a cup in a speed contest about a year ago.

Colored Men to See Roosevelt.

The desire of the colored people of Elizabeth and this city as well as adjoining cities and towns to see President Roovevelt seems likely to be gratified, as the Rev.' Dr. W. P. Lawrence, of the Union Baptist church, and the Rev. W. H. Taylor, of the Shiloh Baptist church, both of Elizabeth, have arranged for a united excursion to go to Asbury Park July 7, the day the President is expected there. Colored churches of Elizabeth, Plainfield, Bayonne, Rahway, Westfield, Cranford and Roselle will take part in the excursion. The excursion will go by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

—Gray hairs won't come ten years ahead of regular schedule if you solve your little worries in "the want ad. way."

NOTICE.

The residents of the City of Plainfield are requested to clear their yards and cellars of all inflammable materials before the Fourth of July.

Owners or occupants of factories, stores, etc., are particularly re*quested to give this matter their* particular attention, and thereby reduce the danger of fire.

SOCIETY GIRLS OPEN A LAUNDRY

TWO PROMINENT WASHINGTON MAIDS TAKE IN WASHING.

FRIENDS SHOCKED AT FIRST

Daughters of Retired Army Officer Prefer to Go Into Business to Giving Up Luxuries—Turn Out Fine Work.

Washington. — This city numbers among its social elect, according to general belief, more than one woman who has risen from obscurity to wealth and prominence, but in the last few months two of its prominent young women have reversed the usual order, and from society they have gone into business as laundresses.

Friends and relatives at first held up their hands in horror when it became known that the daughters of Capt. John Mullan, U. S. A., retired, were contemplating running a laundry.

Some of the young women's relatives have never quite forgiven the idea of a Mullan "taking in washing," as they express it. One, however, who visited the laundry, picked up a soiled blouse of exquisite workmanship and remarked: "This comes to you soiled and mussed, and you give it back clean and fresh and beautiful."

There was the key to the whole matter, the idea and its practical working out. The Misses Mullan, having been brought up in luxury, knew how to appreciate dainty linen and fine laces, how they should be handled and how they should be sent home from the laundry, sweet and fresh and inviting.

That knowledge, coupled with a practical mind, which realized the potential popularity of a place where society women who wear fine clothes and love dainty things could carry them for well executed renovation, caused the establishment of the laundry. It is already paying for itself, and in a year the young women expect to realize good profits on their investment.

"People must have clothes all the year round," said Miss Mullan, "and they want them carefully done up. Washington had no place where they could be so done up. We have supplied the demand.

"At first, of course, our friends responded to the circulars we sent out, simply to lend us a helping hand, but even friends will not help all the time, if one does not come up to their expectations. That our work is satisfactory is attested by the amount of work we have done."

From the front room of the laundry, filled with ironing boards, where maids are finishing their work, and where rows of dainty articles are ready to be taken away, to the drawing-room of the Mullen home, is rather a transition, and, when one enters the drawing-room, filled with a wealth of old world treasures, oriental rugs, paintings and bric-a-brac, arranged with the taste and refinement of the well born, one realizes what the step means to these two young women who all their lives have moved in the best society and had all the privileges of their class.

A FORMER QUEEN OF THE BALL-ROOM.

Miss Mullan and her sister, Miss May Mullan, are eminently practical, however, and look at the matter in the most philosophical manner.

Miss Mullan frankly says it was simply a want of money that prompted her to do it, and Miss May Mullan was amused at the suggestion that they did it because they wanted to, not because they had to.

"The idea," said Miss Mullan. "As it any woman worked because she wanted to."

"We might have hung out the red flag and had an auction, but I am not willing to part with the things we have grown used to. But I decided I must give up society. You can't be a success in business and society, for you are tired when the day's work is done, and you are not fit to go to a dinner, for you are not fresh and spontaneous, and if you are not bright and amusing you are not wanted in society.

"My sister and I were educated abroad. I have been around the world. We have both had our good times, so why should we be unhappy about giving them up? We have lived our lives, though I do not mean to say we are old women, but we have had a beautiful time, and while we have brains to work with, and are in the heyday of life, with friends to stand by us, why not do for ourselves, rather than wait till we are miserable old women, poor and out of the circle of friendly interest?

"Now we step from the social life, while we are still of it. When we are on our feet again, maybe, we will go back into it."

Miss Mullan has done various things to eke out an additional income. She has put up fruit, and has a large clientele of friends and acquaintances whom she supplies. She has taught bridge whist, and she served for years as social secretary to Mrs. Russell A. Alger and Representative Morrell, of Pennsylvania. But such work has its seasons, and, as Miss Mullan previously stated, clothes must be worn and laundered all the year round. Besides, Miss Mullan decided that a business of one's own was much more interesting and thriving, and thus the laundry was born and is thriving.

The Misses Mullan are not the only American girls who have opened a laundry. The countess of Essex, who was Miss Adele Grant, a society girl of New York, was a pioneer in the work, and runs a flourishing laundry in England.

MOURNERS HEAR LAUGH OF BOY THOUGHT DEAD

Extraordinary Case of Suspended Animation Reported from England —Prophesied His End.

London.—The final examination was made the other day of the body of Wallis Allspop, the South Normanton boy, who, after lying in a coffin for four days, raised doubts in the minds of three doctors as to whether he was dead or not.

Drs. Harcourt and Le Grand determined that there was now no doubt as to the boy's death, whatever might have been the case before.

The funeral was proceeded with, and the scene at the grave side was extremely pathetic. The grief of the parents, who adored their only child, was painful to witness.

One of the doctors says that he believed the case was one of suspended animation. It was possible that the boy had lain in the coffin in a cold room for four days with just a spark of life in him, but the signs after he saw the body were not sufficient for him to make a definite statement. He certainly could not sanction burial at that time. All doubts had since been set at rest because decomposition had set in.

Stories which have a weird significance since the extraordinary developments are being told. While the body lay in the coffin in the front room four persons in an adjoining room heard a laugh.

"That is Wallis' laugh," one remarked, and all agreed on the remarkable resemblance, but they did not think of going to look at the boy.

Another person says that while alone in the house she heard the boy laugh, but said nothing, being afraid of ridicule.

The boy himself was an extraordinary character. Last Christmas he told his parents that he would be in heaven next Christmas, asking that the Christmas tree should not be untrimmed. He had for a long time been saving coppers that were given to him, saying the money was to buy a cross for his grave.

During his illness he once observed: "Perhaps the Lord will raise me up like He did Jairus' daughter." When his uncle took him a bunch of daffodils, he said: "How nice they will do to put in my coffin."

GIRL MASQUERADES AS MAN

Becomes Engaged to Belle of North Carolina Town and Then Discloses Her Identity.

Mooresville, N. C.—Miss Lillian Alma Ferguson, who has been masquerading as a man and was known as Ralph Carlisle Hamilton, the town's popular photographer, a social leader, and a general favorite, unmasked herself when she became engaged to Miss Bertha Flowe of Hickory. Miss Flowe is 17 years old and is considered the prettiest girl in Hickory. Society people in Mooresville hailed with delight the announcement of the engagement, only to learn with consternation that Hamilton was a 19-year-old girl whose home was in Chatham county.

For five weeks Hamilton was the most popular "young man" in Mooresville, a favorite with men on account of "his" hearty, jovial manner, and attractive to the young ladies on account of "his" gallant, courteous behavior.

In the business circles Hamilton was also making much progress until he met Miss Flowe and fell in love. The courtship progressed rapidly, but neglected business grew worse and worse. "He" was unable to pay "his" board bill and other of "his" obligations. These finally led to the girl's confessing to the Rev. J. M. Wharry and to "his" fiancee, to whom she told her story. For many years she has had to make her own way in the world, and believed that the lot of man was the easier.

Handmade French Roses Trim the Modish Hat in the Back.

It takes at least seven large roses to modishly trim the back of the fashionably turned up hat, and as French handmade flowers are used it is no wonder that the milliners are asking such exorbitant prices for their artistic creations.

A pretty blue straw in the short backed sailor shape turned up in the back is trimmed with a wreath of deep red roses. Bunches of them rest becomingly on the hair in the back.

TOMMY ATKINS TOQUE.

Pale pink coral is very much worn. Brooches, necklaces and bracelets are displayed in varying tints of the pink.

Silk gloves at a dollar a pair come in all fashionable colors of the season.

Silk rubber coats are among the most useful and attractive of the long summer coats.

Pale purple lilacs trim a white chip hat in the short backed sailor shape.

The "polo" hat is to be found in all colors and usually has a great bunch of roses placed at the left side, a rosette shaded ribbon or several wings placed flat on the brim pointing downward toward the back. On a pretty girl of the right type these little "pill box" hats are very fetching.

The Tommy Atkins hat illustrated is of fancy tan straw. On the brim at one side is a full, short bow of brown velvet ribbon. Falling over the bow, and standing upright above it, is a bunch of cherries and foliage.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

A Charming Lace From Japan—Adjustable Cuffs For Elbow Sleeves.

There is a new lace which comes from Japan which is expensive as well as novel. This lace resembles honiton, except that in place of braid being used in its making bias bands of linen are employed. The effect is both pretty and artistic. This lace comes only in collar and cuff sets, accompanying dress patterns of Japanese linen of the finest quality embroidered in oriental designs.

A very effective new stock is of white linen with a center band of openwork embroidery bordered on each side, with frills of lace just above the narrow bands of linen.

The already well established mode of elbow sleeves, which necessitates the wearing of long gloves, though undoubtedly smart is found by many women to be inconvenient, as it makes these gowns impossible for street wear. To obviate this difficulty good dressmakers are sending home with their creations half sleeves of lace or some transparent fabric with the costume. These sleeves can be hooked in and out at pleasure. They fit tight to the arm and are both convenient and becoming.

Very smart separate shirts are made from percale and madras fabrics called "shirting." This shirting is only twenty-one inches wide and costs from 25 to 75 cents a yard. It comes with a white ground and corded inch wide stripes in light and dark blue, green, lavender and pink.

The gown illustrated is of yellow mull. The double skirt is trimmed with ruffles and insertions of oriental lace. The full waist has a dainty fichu, and the sleeves are in two puffs.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

But if she did not love her husband there was one being in whom her frivolous heart was really bound up—Nita—her "baby sister," as she called her, and when Terrise, the colonel, went the way of all flesh, preceded only a few months by the wife of his bosom, the few thousands in life insurance he had managed to maintain went to the two daughters. Not one penny was ever laid out in payment of the debts of either the father or husband. Nita was sent to an extravagant finishing school in Gotham, and along in May of the young girl's graduating year, blithe little Mrs. Garrison arrived, fresh from the far west, and after a few weeks of sight-seeing and shopping the sisters appeared at the Point, even half-mourning by this time discarded. Thirteen years difference was there in the ages of the Fairy Sisters, and not a soul save those who knew them in former days on the frontier would have suspected it. Mrs. Frank in evening dress didn't look over 20.

One lovely evening early in August, just about the time that Cadet Capt. Latrobe began to show well to the front in the run for the prize, the two sisters had gone to their room at the hotel to dress for the hop. It was their custom to disappear from public gaze about six o'clock, and when they came floating down the stairs in filmy, diaphanous clouds of white, the halls were well filled with impatient cavaliers in the natty cadet uniform, and the women waiting to see. Then the sisters would go into the dining-room and have some light refreshments, with a glass of iced tea—and no matter how torrid the heat or how flushed and dragged other women might look, they were inviting pictures of all that was ever fresh, cool and fragrant. The two fluffy blonde heads would be huddled close together a minute as they studied the bill of fare, and virtuous matrons at other tables, fanning vigorously, would sniff and say: "All for effect. They know that supper bill by heart. It never changes." All the same, at the bottom of this public display of sisterly devotion and harmony and in spite of occasional tiffs and differences, there was genuine affection on both sides, for as a child Nita had adored Margaret, and there could be no doubting the elder's love for the child. Some regimental observers said that every bit of heart that eldest Terrise girl had was wrapped up in the little one. Neither girl, even after Margaret's marriage, would listen to a word in disparagement of the other, but in the sanctity of the sisterly retreat on the third floor of the old hotel there occurred sometimes spirited verbal tilts that were quite distinctly audible to passers-by in the corridor, provided they cared to listen, which some of them did. On this especial August evening Mrs. Frank was in an admonitory frame of mind. They had known Mr. Latrobe barely three weeks, and yet as Mrs. Frank was sauntering around a turn in Flirtation Walk, leaning on the arm of the cadet adjutant, there in the pathway right ahead stood Nita, a lovely little picture, with downcast eyes, and "Pat" Latrobe bending over her with love and passion glowing in his handsome face, pleading eagerly, clinging fervently to both her tiny white-gloved hands. Mrs. Garrison saw it all in the flash of a second, the adjutant not at all, for with merry laughter she repeated some words he had just spoken as though they were about the wittiest, funniest things in the world, and looked frankly up into his eyes as though he were the best and brightest man she had met in years—so his eyes were riveted, and the tableau had time to dissolve. All the same that sight gave Mrs. Garrison rather more than a bad quarter of an hour. She was infinitely worried. Not because Pat Latrobe had fallen desperately in love with her charming little sister—that was his lookout—but what—oh, what might not happen if the charming little sister were to fall in love with that handsome soldier boy. At all hazards, even if she had to whisk her away tomorrow, that had to be stopped, and this very evening when they went to their room Margaret spoke.

"Nita, if it were only for Mr. Latrobe I should not care a snap of my finger, but it's you—you! I thought you had more sense. I thought you fully understood that you couldn't afford to lose yourself a moment, and yet if ever a girl looked like yielding you did this very afternoon. For my sake, Nita, don't let it go any further—don't fall in love—here—whatever you do."

The younger sister stood at the dressing-table at the moment, her face averted. The Mary Powell was just rounding the point, and the mellow, melodious notes of her bell were still echoing through the Highlands. Nita was gazing out upon the gorgeous effect of sunset light and shadow on the eastern cliffs and crags across the Hudson, a flush as vivid mantling her cheeks, her lips quivering. She was making valiant efforts to control herself before replying.

"I'm not in love with him," she finally said.

"Perhaps not—yet. Surely I hope not, but it looks awfully like it was coming—and Nita, you simply mustn't. You've got to marry money if I have to stand guard over you and see you do it—and you know you can this minute—if you'll only listen."

The younger girl wheeled sharply, her eyes flashing. "Peggy, you promised me I shouldn't hear that hateful thing again—at least not until we left here—and you've broken your word—twice. You—"

"It's because I must. I can't see you drifting—the way I did when, with your youth and—advantages, you can pick and choose. Col. Frost has mines and money all over the west, and he was your shadow at the seashore, and all broken up; he told me so when we came here. Paddy Latrobe is a beautiful boy without a penny—"

"His uncle—" began Nita, feebly.

"His uncle had a sister to support besides Paddy's mother. His pay as brigadier in the regular service is only $5,500. He can't have saved much of anything in the past, and he may last a dozen years yet—or more. Even if he does leave everything then to Latrobe, what'll you do meantime? Don't be a fool, Nita, because I was. I had to be. It was that or nothing, and father was getting tired. You heard how he talked."

The younger sister was still at the dressing-table diligently brushing her shining, curly tresses. She had regained her composure and took occasional furtive peeps at Mrs. Frank, now seated at the foot of the bed, busy with a buttonhook and the adjustment of a pair of very dainty boots of white kid, whose buttons gleamed like pearls. The mates to them, half a size smaller, peeped from the tray of Nita's new trunk.

There came a footstep and a rap at the door. "See what it is, Nita, there's a love—I don't want to hop."

It was a card—a new arrival at the hotel.

"Gentleman said he'd wait in the parlor, 'm," said the bellboy, and vanished. Nita glanced at the card and instantly trouble stood in her paling face. Silently Mrs. Garrison held out her hand, took the card, and one quick look. The buttonhook dropped from her relaxed fingers. The card read:

"Mr. Gouverneur Prime."

For a second or two the sisters gazed at each other in silence.

At last the elder spoke. "In heaven's name, what brings that absurd boy back here? I thought him safe in Europe."

MAUCH CHUNK FOR JULY 4th.

There is no grander scenery anywhere than you will find on the journey to Mauch Chunk via the New Jersey Central.

Jersey is attractive, especially in the northern section, and the rolling country offers a variety of attractions the like of which no other section can boast. Pennsylvania and its mountains are too widely known to need elaboration, but Mauch Chunk and vicinity is a garden spot, if ever there was one. The Switchback Railroad is novel, inasmuch as no motive power is needed for operation. The inclines are gradual and in the fourteen mile journey there are many interesting experiences and fascinating scenes are unfolded with startling rapidity.

For a day's outing there is no place more thoroughly enjoyable than Mauch Chunk, and when the small cost of a day's trip is considered there is little left to be said. The New Jersey Central will run one of its popular one day excursions to Mauch Chunk on the Fourth of July by special train, which will leave Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk before noon. The returning train does not leave the mountain resort until 5:30 p. m., hence there is ample time for journeying over the Switchback, visiting Flag Staff and Glen Onoko. 6-23-td

JAPS UNWELCOME

CALIFORNIA TAKING ALARM OVER THEIR INCREASE.

Thousands Coming to San Francisco from Hawaii — Press and Labor Unions Raise Protest—Said to Be Undesirable Population.

Twenty-five years ago the Pacific coast carried on violent opposition to the immigration of the Chinese; at present she is temperately opposing further Japanese addition to her population.

In 1880 there were but 86 Japanese persons in California; to-day there are 35,000. It is estimated that about 100,000 Japs are now resident in this country.

The sudden increase is lately noticeable in San Francisco, and is partly due to the large numbers of Japanese that have left Hawaii, where labor troubles have resulted in their departure for "the Coast," and the high wages to be had there. In the last five years 7,000 Japanese coolies have entered San Francisco from Hawaii, in a few months' residence in the latter place having picked up a little knowledge of the English language and customs.

Speaking of the wiles of the heathen Chinee, he isn't a circumstance compared to the smooth Jap. The latter quickly adapts himself to his new surroundings, but all the time he keeps to his old religion, his old notions of morality. He wears European dress, but he remains oriental to the core. He goes to Sunday school, but he goes largely to learn more of the language of the new land in which he is seeking fortune. The objections made by the Californian to the influx of this polite and apparently innocent people are rather formidable. "The California legislature last month adopted resolutions declaring against unrestricted immigration of Japanese, and called upon the national government for protection against the influx of the most undesirable class of the Mikado's subjects. The points brought out in these resolutions were that the Japanese laborers now crowding into the state by way of Hawaii or directly from Japan are undesirable immigrants because of their poverty and habits; that they cannot become citizens, and show no desire to assimilate with the American people; that the great majority of them are contract laborers, hired to come over for small wages, and that the contractors who import them are thus able to furnish men for fruit picking, clearing land, working on the railroad, etc., at prices far below those demanded even by the poorer classes of Italians, Greeks and Portuguese; that the Japanese establish no homes here, and that they go back to Japan with their earnings as the Chinese return to China."

The agitation has been confined mainly to the press and the labor unions, the latter having already felt the competition of these people that can live in the home land on but a few cents a day, and can save here on what is looked upon as a very small wage indeed.

The Japs are great gamblers, as undesirable citizens in this way, and perhaps more so, than the Chinese; successfully conceal their gaming places. Their immoral houses are as numberous as those of the Chinese. In fact, the calm faced Jap is experienced in many devious ways.

The Jap coolie is ambitious to become shop-keeper and manufacturer, and in a quiet, sure way he progresses in his ambition. In San Francisco the Japs are doing a considerable business in the manufacture of women's undergarments and shirt-waists, and in this business display the very worst of sweat-shop methods. In cellars in Chinatown the toilers, huddled as close as machine and worker can be crowded, slave away for long hours, and when worn out stretch on bunks on one side of the room while a fresh lot take their places. The cooking is carried on in the same room, and with this cheap herding the Jap is able to save on his small pay.

Many of the Japs that come over arrive under a system resembling that of the Italian padrone; their passage money is advanced them and work secured for a commission of the future wages—and be sure the commission is a large one. Some of the Japanese doubtless make surreptitious entrance from British Columbia and Mexico. It is thought this may account for the fact that not a few of those in this country, in spite of the medical examination required at ports of entry, are found to be afflicted with that dreaded disease of the eye, trachoma.

MRS. ROSE SCOTT HURT.

Fell from Trolley Car, but Avoided Serious Injury.

Mrs. Rose Scott, wife of James Scott, an employee of the Union Beef Co., living on West Second street, near Elmwood place, had a narrow escape from serious, if not fatal, injury last night while alighting from an eastbound car of the Dunellen-Newark line at the corner of Broad and West Jersey streets, Elizabeth.

Mrs. Scott and her husband, accompanied by several friends, were getting of the car, which had stopped at the corner, when, according to one of the party, the conductor rang the go ahead signal sharply. The starting lurch of the car threw Mrs. Scott flat on her back in the street, stunning her so that she had to be carried to a nearby store and revived. She was brought back to this city on the next car.

This morning she was detained at home from her regular employment, and fears are entertained by her family that her injuries are still more serious than at first supposed.

JOHN HAY IS STRICKEN

Doctors Hurry on Special Train to Save Him.

Secretary of State Hay is seriously ill at his summer home at Lake Sunapee, N. H., according to a dispatch from Boston to the New York Journal. The first news of the secretary's condition came to Boston just before midnight, when a hurry call by telephone was received for two of Boston's most eminent physicians—Dr. Charles L. Scudder, chief visiting surgeon at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and Dr. Fred T. Murphy, his assistant.

These doctors left for Sunapee on a special train consisting of an engine and one Pullman car over the southern division of the Boston and Maine Railroad.

A message from Newport, N. H., says that Dr. J. L. Cain, of that town, attended Mr. Hay, at 2 o'clock this morning.

Dr. Cain says it was feared at first that it might be necessary to resort to an operation to bring relief to the eminent patient.

The Secretary's present trouble is a recurrence of an old trouble and is the third attack in four years. The basis of the malady is the inability of Mr. Hay's system to cast off waste fluids. It was finally decided not to operate and Mr. Hay was treated with medicines which relieved him temporarily. Dr. Cain says the Secretary will have to remain in bed for a number of days, even if his case progresses most favorably.

Mr. Hay was stricken last evening.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT FIRST M. E.

Children's Chorus Augments Regular Vested Choir.

The last special musical service for the season was held at the First M. E. church last night under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choir director. In addition to the regular vested choir, there was a second children's choir of thirty-five mixed voices, which occupied a position in the rear of the gallery, and this feature was greatly enjoyed.

The service opened with an organ voluntary, after which there was the processional, the regular choir entering the church from the chapel, singing a hymn. The choir then sang an anthem, "Unfold Ye Portals," from the Redemption of Gounod.

There was a duet, "The Lord is My Light," by Miss Berthan Van Nuise Willis and J. Edmund Skiff, followed with the singing of "Jerusalem, the Golden," by the children's choir. Another anthem, "From Thy Love as a Father," was rendered by the choir, and after the offertory solo, "Salve Regina," by Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, made a short address appropriate to the service.

The other musical numbers included an anthem, "Lovely Appear," by the choir, a selection by a male quartette, "Abide With Me," William Barton, Bradley Hall, William Gilbert and Carlos Gallup. The service closed with the recessional, benediction and organ postlude

REVOLVER RESTRICTION.

Chief Kiely Will Rigorously Enforce Law Regulating Their Sale.

Chief Kiely has notified all dealers in firearms, the sporting goods stores as well as fireworks places, that he will rigidly enforce the law forbidding the sale of pistols or guns of any and all descriptions to boys under fifteen, and providing that all sales of such articles be registered in a book that must be open to inspectors at all times. The registry must give the name of the arms manufacturer, the number—if any—on the firearm, and the name of the purchaser, with his address. Failure to register such sales, or the entering of a false name or address knowingly is a misdemeanor.

Chief Kiely is endeavoring to restrict the sale of fireworks of all kinds to boys. If there is any way in which he can prevent the sale of crackers and the like to boys before July 3 the Chief will take action on those lines.

Funeral of William Thomson.

Funeral services over the remains of William Thomson were held from his late home on West Fifth street, yesterday morning, with a large gathering of friends and relatives in attendance. They were conducted by Rev. George Mooney, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church. John Daub, of the Monroe Avenue church, rendered a very effective solo. Interment was made at Somerville.

Lud Frazee Applies Red Paint.

Lud Frazee, the veterin painter who makes a specialty of applying red to towns and houses, wielded his brush a little too heavily in the borough, yesterday, and was stopped by the police. He gave bail to insure his appearance before Recorder Doud tonight.

Another contribution of $10 was received today for the free open-air band concert fund. It is from a leading citizen who asks that his name be withheld. The total amount sent to this office for the object in now an even $100. Who will be the next to help the cause?

TALKED ON CUBA.

Rev. Dr. Moseley at the First Baptist Church.

Rev. Dr. H. L. Moseley, known as the "Apostle to Cuba," spoke at the First Baptist church yesterday morning, in place of the regular sermon by the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss. Dr. Moseley spent seven years in Cuba and made a personal study of conditions in the island and of the natives. It was about these things that he spoke yesterday, and his remarks were full of interest to all. He referred to the steady progress of Christianity in the island and of the willingness of the natives to receive the Gospel from the teachers and missionaries.

Dr. Moseley is not seeking financial aid for the Cubans; in fact, he only speaks on this subject when requested to do so. It was through the efforts of Dr. Chambliss that he was induced to speak here yesterday.

Plainfield Unplaced.

C. B. Koons, in the half-mile run; Harry Scull, in the 100-yard dash, and Carl Steiner, in the running high jump, represented Plainfield in the inter-association meet at the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon. They were unplaced. Newark won the meet.

Trouble for Calloway.

After getting into a muss on West Front street and just barely escaping the city police, Saturday night, William Calloway skipped over to the borough and picked up a second fight. He was nabbed by Chief Marshal Weiss and was locked up on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. He will be arraigned tonight and as soon as disposed of by Recorder Doud, provided he does not go to jail, will be turned over to the police on this side of the brook.

John H. Tier, Sr., of Bank place, is very ill at his home with a complication of troubles.

Romantic Feature in the Conferring of a Degree as Prof. Lewis.

Prof. Edwin H. Lewis, of Lewis Institute, Chicago, son of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, received an honorary degree of Doctor of Literature from Milton College, Milton, Wis., last week. Prof. Lewis had already been made a Ph. D. by Chicago University.

Dr. Lewis said the degree conferred on his son. In 1846, fifty-nine years before, Dr. Lewis was janitor of and worked his way through, the academy from which Milton College grew.

Told of Mission Work in the South.

Miss mabel Conover, of this city, who has been a missionary at Dorlin Institute, North Carolina, for some time, has returned home for the summer vacation. Last night she spoke at the First Presbyterian church, telling of her work. She exhibited a miniature log cabin, giving the congregation an excellent idea of the manner in which the people in that part of the country live. Miss Conover said that the work was encouraging and much progress is being made in the conversion of natives.

MACHINISTS' ON WELFARE

Speakers Address Plainfield Lodge of the International Association.

NEW MEMBERS ASSURED

Gold Medal Minstrels Give a Performance—P. J. Conlon and Joseph Sonnabend Talk.

Through a blue haze of smoke the principles of unionism were forcefully expounded at the meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 167, International Association of Machinists, last night. The informal smoker arranged by the committee in charge was productive of much more than a concerted enjoyment of good cigars. Stirring addresses by men prominent in unionism livened the organization spirit, and a big increase in membership grew out of the gathering. After the meeting not less than twenty-five applications for membership were handed in.

Speeches were made by P. J. Conlon, first vice-president of the International Association, and Joseph Sonnabend, business agent of District 47, of Newark. Before the speeches, the several vocalists of the leadership of Manager Muir and W. N. Runyon, gave a concert of sonk. The singers were Judge Runyon, Manager Muir, Harry Blimm, John V. Todd and B. C. Firstbrook. The numbers were all solos. The amateur artists received an enthusiastic welcome.

The address of Vice-President Conlon was remarkable for its force and eloquence. He was not denunciatory, but his arraignment of the employers was powerful in the sheer strength of phrase and argument. He dwelt on the danger to the craft in the premium system, piece work, gang contracts and similar systems, in the constant efforts of the ironmasters to cut down the number of workmen without curtailing the output. He scored the employers for the growing tendency to regard shopmen in exactly the same light as they regard their machines. He spoke in this connection of the spread of the age limit in shops, citing the huge Midvale Steel plant, where no man over thirty can secure employment, and all over forty are discharged.

Mr. Conlon made a strong plea for the organization idea. Organization, he declared, was the only method by which laboring men can hope to win fair compensation and treatment. In presenting examples of the effectiveness of organization, he told a number of intensely interesting stories of united effort by workingmen in the West, in which he himself had figured.

"How long, O Lord, how long," said the speaker, closing his peroration, "will it be before we will emulate the organized employers, who say, 'Here is my product; the price is such and such; take it or leave it,' and go to the shop boss and say: 'I am a good all-round machinist, the price of my labor is $3.50 a day of eight hours; take me or leave me!'"

The volume of applause that followed Mr. Conlon's speech shook the hall.

While the windows were still rattling from the volley of applause the president urged the unorganized machinists to come into the lodge, and the committee passed a big sheaf of application blanks around. They were signed all over the hall and a batch that made the secretary gasp were turned in.

Walter Dobbins Acquitted.

The case of the Manor Real Estate and Trust Company against Walter E. Dobbins, of Mt. Holly, on a charge of embezzlement, was concluded in the Union County Court yesterday afternoon, when the jury returned a verdict of acquittal. The testimony of the defense showed that since his conversion of the voucher for $2,77', he had paid money to the company equivalent to the amount, and it seemed to be a question with the jury as to what this money was paid for.

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE CAPT. HUBBARD BY A PERSONAL FRIEND AND ADMIRER

(By Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, Editor, Sabbath Recorder.)

It is not possible to make a complete analysis of such a man as Captain Hubbard was. The sorrow and esteem which fill the hearts of those who knew him, are one measure of his worth. First of all, he was a Christian gentleman. He was genuinely honest in purpose, and transparently sincere. He inspired confidence. People trusted him, instinctively. He was level-headed, cool, judicial. He naturally shrank from great responsibilities, but having assumed them, his faithfulness knew no faltering until they were discharged. A man of large views, he was also a master as to details. Quiet, often silent, he was still observant, and, on demand, sharply critical. His habits of life were so simple and methodical that he accomplished an immense amount of work, and was able to carry a full load up to the last. Less demonstrative than many others, he was not wanting in those elements which secure and hold friends in permanent bonds. He was generous in sympathies and in material things, although it often happened that only those who were made happy knew of his deeds. His opinions, political and otherwise, were clear and positive, but his public services were of such value that those who did not always agree with him were often his warmest friends and strongest supporters. The extent and permanence of his public life, unshadowed by the thought of unfaithfulness or dishonesty, record him as one born to serve men faithfully and command them wisely, when occasion required. He never sought for honors nor clamored for positions, but both these sought for him. He filled out an efficient and serviceful life, here, and has gone forward in the brightness of Christian faith to that "Well done, good and faithful servant," which such lives merit from men, and from God.

COUNTY NEEDS $285,000

Budget Shows That $251,000 Will Have to be Raised.

THE ANNUAL BUDGET

There is $34,000 in Treasury—Total Assessment is $19,000 More Than Called for Last Year.

The sums desired by the county for the various expenditures of the new fiscal year have been made public.

All told, the sum of $285,000 is wanted for the year's expenses, as calculated. Thirty-four thousand dollars is in the county treasury, and $251,000 will have to be raised by taxation. This is $19,000 more than called for last year. Plainfield's share of the burden is still to be decided.

This is the way the $285,000 is to be divided among the various avenues of expenditure:

Courts	$42,000
Jail	8,500
Lunatics	35,000
Compensation and lawful expenses of Freeholders, committees and salaries of their officers	13,500
Coroners' fees	500
Elections	20,000
Stationery	2,000
Advertising	2,000
Incidental expenses	14,650
Children's guardian account.	1,000
National Guard	850
Contingent account, census.	8,000
Payment of principal of bonded debt	10,000
Interest on bonded debt	33,000
Interest on temporary loans	1,000
Sinking fund	8,000
Improvement of public buildings and grounds	18,000
Repair of culverts and bridges	38,000
Repairs to county roads	17,500
Hospitals	15,000

The biggest item of increase on the list is the $8,000 for census. There was nothing of that last year. The incidental expenses jump up $650, and the payment on the principal of the bonded debt increases from $5,000 to $10,000. The only reductions are in the coroners' fees and the interest on the bonded debt. The coroners' fees were budgeted at $650 last year, and there was $2,000 more on the interest item. The rest of the figures remain the same, including the salaries.

Parish Tennis Court.

Through the influence of one of the parishioners of St. Stephen's church, J. Fred MacDonald has kindly given to the rector the use of the tennis courts of the Netherwood Hotel. Under the direction of J. Fred Christiansen, the courts have been put in fine condition. A net is now owned by the church and it is hoped that it will afford much pleasure during the summer months. The courts may be used at any time, and for those who do not play tennis, the rector has been presented with a croquet set to be used as freely. Anyone interested in starting a tennis tournament will send his name to Hanford Miller, 31 Fairview avenue, North Plainfield.

St. Stephen's Parochial Visitor.

In the near future, at the earnest appeal of the rector of St. Stephen's church, the vestry has given its consent to the employment of a parochial visitor in that parish. The especial work of the Sister will be the St. Mary's Guild, to help plan for it and to teach sewing, plain and fancy. Besides this, it will be her work to visit and help in the homes of those families where there is illness.

ELEVEN GENERATIONS OF MEN OF THE CLOTH

DEATH OF A MEMBER OF A REMARKABLE FAMILY.

The Rev. Samuel Merrill Woodbridge, emeritus professor in the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, at New Brunswick, died at his home on Hamilton street Sunday night, after gradual failing of health during the last two months. He was the oldest surviving member of a remarkable family. There have been eleven generations of ministers in regular succession, beginning with the Rev. Dr. John Woodbridge, who was born in England in 1492, a follower of Wyckliffe.

Dr. Woodbridge was born at Greenfield, Mass., April 5, 1819, the son of the Rev. Sylvester Woodbridge, D. D., and Elizabeth Gould Woodbridge. He was graduated from the University of New York in 1838 and from the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, 1841.

He served successively in the pastorate of three Reformed (Dutch) churches, the church of South Brooklyn, from 1841 to 1850; the Second church of Coxsacksie, from 1850 to 1852, and the Second church of New Brunswick, from 1852 to 1857. In 1857 he became professor of Ecclesiastical History and Church Government in the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, and continued in activity in this professorship for forty-five years. In 1901 he was made emeritus professor. for a period, from 1857 to 1864, he was also professor of Metaphysics in Rutgers College. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Dayton Woodbridge, and by three daughters, Miss Carrie Woodbridge, Miss Anna D. Woodbridge and Mrs. Mary E. Ferwerda, wife of the Rev. Floris Ferwerda, of Millstone.

Y. M. C. A. Tennis Team.

Play in the Y. M. C. A. tennis tournament will begin on the Westervelt avenue courts next Saturday afternoon. Entries for the competition will close on Friday. A "round robin" will be played, to determine the best individual players. When the leaders among them have been discovered in that way, arrangements will be made for a team match with other associations.

A Double Souvenir.

Andrew McCardell, of the West End, received yesterday a souvenir Japanese postal card from Ernest R. Ackerman, that was delayed in transit by the wreck of the Lake Shore limited at Mentor, Ohio. The card was one-third destroyed and the address was just barely discernible, through flames discoloring the surface.

MOURN CAPT. HUBBARD

Funeral of Prominent Man Thursday Afternoon at the House.

FLAG AT HALF-MAST.

County Board, Bank Officials and Other Public and Private Bodies to Attend the Obsequies in a Body.

The various societies and organizations of which the late Captain James Franklin Hubbard was a member will meet today or tomorrow to take official action regarding his death and to make arrangements to attend the funeral services which will be held from the late home on West Seventh street, Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

E. M. Wood, County Collector, notified the members of the Board of Freeholders yesterday of the death of Captain Hubbard, and informing them of a special meeting of the board to be held at the Court House this afternoon at 2:30 to take action on the death of the former director.

Similar action will be taken by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R.; Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M.; the directors of the City National Bank, the Dime Savings Institution, the Plainfield Water Supply Company, and the New York Commandery, Military Order Loyal Legion, will send a representation to the services, and the various societies in the Seventh-day Baptist denomination will also take suitable action and attend the services.

This morning the City National Bank and Dime Savings Institution buildings were draped in black in respect to the memory of one who for a great many years was an active and prominent figure in the management of their affairs. The Sabbath Recorder building was also draped. The city flag is at half-mast.

Such members of Company H, Captain Hubbard's command, of the 30th N. . Infantry, as can be reached have decided to attend the service, although they will take no part.

Although the exact form of the service has not been definitely decided, Rev. George B. Shaw, of the Seventh-day Baptist church, and pastor of Captain Hubbard, will undoubtedly have charge, and will probably be assisted by other ministers, including Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, a former pastor, and President Gardner, of Salem College, W. Va., who is a nephew of Captain Hubbard.

The chief topic of discussion on the streets today was the Captain's death, and on every hand expressions of sympathy for the family and generous words of praise for the dead man were to be heard. County and city officials lamented over the fact that it would be hard to find a worthy successor to him on the Board of Freeholders, and people in general had much to say of his sterling private and public life.

An extensive account of the life of Capt. Hubbard was published in these columns yesterday. A friend has written the following story:

James Franklin, son of James and Amy Carpenter Hubbard, sprang from the best of New England Puritan stock. He was born in Berlin, Rensselaer county, New York, June 25, 1827. His father was a carpenter and joiner. Son after the birth of James, the family removed to Scott, Cortland county, New York, where he was taught the trade of his father, with that carefulness and painstaking which laid the foundation for future fidelity and success. Two other children came to the Hubbard home—Joseph A., who is also a noted servant of public interests, and Mrs. Mary A. Pratt, of Scott, N. Y.

James F. was educated in the common and academic schools of central New York. At the age of twenty-one, he removed to Allegany county, and opened business as carpenter and builder. In 1849 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Grace Green, whose ancestors were among the first settlers of Rhode Island. Seking a larger field of activity, Mr. Hubbard came to Plainfield, N. J., in 1854, where he has resided since. He carried on business as carpenter and builder until 1862. Born to be a patriot, Mr. Hubbard enlisted in the Thirtieth New Jersey Infantry, and was elected captain of Company H, at the organization of the regiment. He commanded his company at the second Battle of Fredericksburg, and at Chancellorsville. He was mustered out at the close of his term of enlistment, and for a time thereafter was engaged in raising troops.

In 1865 Captain Hubbard engaged in the printing-press business with the late Charles Potter, under the firm name of C. Potter, Jr., & Company. He continued in this relation until 1879. Since that time he has been fully occupied in public business, and positions of trust. He was made a director of the City National Bank of Plainfield, at its organiza-

ACKERMAN FAVORS FISK

Returning From Trip Abroad He Booms Former Mayor For Senator.

THANKS HIS FRIENDS

Ernest R. Ackerman, Whose Name Has Been Connected With Nomination, Has Spent Time and Money for Party's Success.

When Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street, returned with his wife this morning from a six months' trip abroad, a Daily Press representative questioned him about his boom for the state senatorial nomination. As a result of the interview it was learned that the genial president of the Lawrence Cement Company favors Charles J. Fisk for the honor.

"I can't tell anything as yet," said the pleasant Mr. Ackerman, "for as you know I just got back. It is very kind of my friends to suggest my name, but I am for Mr. Fisk. I heard of his candidacy while abroad and I think he is the ideal man." When informed that Mr. Fisk's physicians, Drs. E. W. and B. vanD. Hedges, would probably advise against his entering a political campaign, Mr. Ackerman replied that he intends to see the former mayor's doctors.

Should Mr. Fisk decline it is generally believed that Mr. Ackerman's friends will insist on his announcing his candidacy. He has always been a strict party man and has contributed much time and money in the Republican cause both in this city and in the county. Judge Runyon has stated that he is not in the running, and therefore Mr. Ackerman's may be the only name, presented by this city at the convention, which it is said will give the nomination to Plainfield.

DR. RHODES ON THE R. C.

Baptist Minister Praises the Work of the Catholic Church.

The Baptist ministers of New York and vicinity had their annual luncheon yesterday as guests of the West Thirty-third Street Baptist church, and among the speakers was Rev. Dr. C. L. Rhodes, secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union, who has on a number of occasions occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church, this city. He took the ministers to task for discussing trivial topics at their weekly meetings.

"You talk too much about Daniel and about Egypt," he said, "instead of bringing yourselves to discuss your present day problems and what is being done for the spread of God's kingdom today.

"For instance, Dr. A. Lincoln Moore here told me the other day that up in his parish, that of the Riverside Baptist church, at Ninety-second street and Amsterdam avenue, he knows of two apartment houses, one of which has seventy-two families and the other forty families living within its walls. In the first named but three families of the seventy-two are connected with any church, and in the last named none. Dr. Moore adds that he cannot get into that apartment house to reach those people. Why aren't you discussing it?

"I have been severely criticised for saying that I thank God that there has been a Roman Catholic church, and that it has had an American branch. But I reiterate it, rather than take it back. How in the world, I ask, could the great tide of immigration that has turned itself toward this country in the last half century and more have been retained within the fold of the Christian church without the great molding influence that the American branch of the Roman Catholic church has given it? I again thank God for the Roman Catholic church."

Cedarbrook Nine Won.

The Netherwood baseball team met the Cedarbrook nine on the Richmond street grounds yesterday morning. The latter won by the score of 10 to 8. Batteries—Cedarbrook, VanZandt and Clyde Doane; Netherwood, Howard Freeman and Joe VanDeventer. This is the second game of the series and the teams have each won a game. The next game will be played at Netherwood tomorrow morning.

C. B. Rogers, a member of Winfield Scott Post, has applied for an increase in pension. Lawyer Fred J. Huff has filed the papers at Washington. Mr. Rogers was a member of Capt. J. Frank Hubbard's command, Co. H, 30th regiment, and served all through the war. He has been getting $6 a month. He is over sixty.

Justice Hand's Court.

Simon & Cohen, through Lawyer Fred J. Huff, have brought suit on contract against Henry Feinberg. It will be heard before Justice Hand this afternoon.

RESCUED BY PHIL SMITH

Crack High School Pitcher Pulls Four From the Water.

IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD

Rowboat Overturns on Pond, and Two Men and Two Girls Nearly Drown—Shock Upsets One.

John Nelson, of South Second street, his daughter Anna, Anna Kinniery, who lives near the Nelsons, and a young man named Weldy, who lives in New Brunswick, went rowing on South Plainfield pond early last evening. Philip Smith, of South Plainfield, the crack high school pitcher; his sister Florence, and Helen Cubberley were skimming over the pond at the same time in the catboat "Vim." The rowboat overturned and screams for help put quick rescue work up to Capt. Smith.

All four of the rowboat party were struggling in the water. Neither of the girls could swim and Nelson clung desperately to Weldy, the only one of the four who could. The quartette lay to windward and Capt. Smith had a hard time reaching them.

He lifted the Kinniery girl into the catboat, and reached for Miss Nelson. She was nearly exhausted, but refused to be rescued until her father had been saved. Smith saw that Weldy was holding Nelson up, and pulled the girl in despite her struggles. She fainted almost as soon as she left the water. Trusting Weldy to keep Nelson's head up, Capt. Smith ran his boat inshore and took the girls to Mrs. Van Nest's home, near by. Then he put back for the men.

Weldy was nearly exhausted when the "Vim" came to the rescue. In a few minutes more he would have been played out and ready to give up. Smith took the men to Van Nest's.

The Nelson girl was still unconscious, and Dr. Van Horn was summoned. It took him an hour and a half to bring her to. She was in such bad shape from shock that the physician called up the ambulance and had her taken to the hospital. She hadn't recovered strength enough to leave the hospital until this afternoon.

Nelson, Weldy and the Kinniery girl suffered nothing but the wetting. They were fitted with dry clothes, and went home unassisted.

COAL TO ADVANCE.

Raise of Twnety-five Cents per Ton July 1.

Householders who contemplate filling bins with coal for next winter will be wise to place their order before July 1, as on that date the local dealers will advance the price twenty-five cents, making the retail price for all sixes except pea, $6.25. The price on pea coal, $5, will remain the same.

The increase in th local rate is due to the action of the wholesalers, who raise the price ten cents per ton per month during the summer months. The local dealers agreed to raise the price twice, twenty-five cents each time, instead of ten cents per month.

Firecrackers Start a Blaze.

Boys playing with firecrackers in the yard of Herman Parsch on upper Harrison avenue, set fire to the barn on the premises this morning. An alarm was turned in from box 156, but women and children in the neighborhood fought the flames with pails of water and had them out before the department arrived. The damage was trifling. The place is situated just at the base of the mountain and is one of the longest runs in the borough, but was made in good time by Lieutenant Campbell and the apparatus.

Marriage Ends Sweetheart's Suit.

A suit in the Supreme Court for $5,000 damages, brought by Miss Eleanor Honce, daughter of the late Cornelius Honce, of Spring Valley, against Frederick S. Perrine, of Cranbury, Middlesex county, for breach of promise, has been settled by marriage. The couple were married at the parsonage of the Baptist church at Matawan on Thursday night by Rev. Samuel Bower.

A PUBLIC BATHING POOL

Much-needed Utility to be Provided by Board of Trade.

THE SITE IS SELECTED.

Will be Located in Green Brook at the Foot of Compton Avenue—Good Behavior Demanded of Frequenters.

Through the efforts of the local Board of Trade, the Plainfield young men and boys who crave the delights of a swim, but who have been denied it because of the lack of a suitable place, are soon to have a "swimmin' hole" that they can call their own. It will be located in Greenbrook at the foot of Compton avenue, and will be fitted up with everything that is neccessary for "fetchin'," "high divin'" and all the kindred sports of the daily afternoon dip. Men are to be set to work within a few days digging out the spot selected, as it is to be deep and wide, and they hope to have it ready before July is far advanced.

The question of a public bathing place for boys has been talked of by the Board of Trade for several years and the matter has frequently been called to the attention of the Common Council, but without any action. One of the strongest advocates of a big pool in the brook is Street Commissioner Gavett, and he personally devoted a great deal of his time to looking over suitable places. At a recent meeting of the board, a live committee was appointed to confer with him in regard to plans, with the result that the swimming hole is to be a reality.

Harry W. Marshall, the chairman of the committee; Mayor Buckle, President Woolston, of the Board of Trade; Health Inspector Thurlow, and Mr. Gavett, went along the brook yesterday afternoon and after looking over the various sites, decided the one at Compton avenue to be the best. It is on property owned by Halsted C. Compton, and his consent was readily secured to have the place located there. The committee will report to the board at its meeting Friday night, but the scheme will go through no matter what action is taken. While the digging out process is going on a sort of dressing house will be erected, with hooks for clothes, so the bathers won't have to use "hickory limbs."

In giving this place to the boys, the committee declares it will be only an experiment for the first year, and that much depends on the bathers themselves as to whether it will be a permanent feature. Mr. Compton has a warm place in his heart for boys, though he has been pestered by them more than any other man in town, but he stipulated that if during the coming summer the frequenters ran wild about his place, broke down his fences and trampled his grass, he would not allow them to return next year. There are men in the Board of Trade today, who as boys not long since, robbed Mr. Compton's orchard or stole his melons, and yet they know the yenjoyed the swimming privilege as long as they behaved themselves. He will continue to be liberal with his property, but the young men must bear in mind that he has rights that must be respected. As an extra inducement to good behavior, an officer will be stationed at the pool, and those who get beyond bounds will be invited to stay away for good and all.

NEGRO HAND WENT.

Forty Dollars of Michael Gallagher's Money Disappeared at Same Time.

A week ago Michael Gallagher, of Dunellen, hired a tramp negro by the name of Herbert to work about his place. While the family were asleep early yesterday morning the new hand disappeared, and Mr. Gallagher misses $40 which was in the drawer of a desk.

Herbert's first name and home are unknown to Mr. Gallagher. He reported the theft to the police here this morning in the hope that they might spot the negro.

Cinquingrani's Troubles.

Another chapter has been added to the troubles of Julian Cinquingrani, of New Brunswick, who caused the arrest of Louis Skelly, of this city, on a charge of abducting his daughter Louise. Skelly has now caused the arrest of Cinquingrani, declaring that he compelled his daughter to falsely testify in court. The accused has furnished $400 bail for appearance before Judge Strong.

Farmer Orator in Demand.

An invitation has been accorded James E. Martine, the Plainfield farmer-orator, by the people of Pottersville, to speak at the celebration there on Independence Day. Owing to a previous engagement in Connecticut for that day Mr. Martine has been forced to send his regrets.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

From "inside information" it appears that the end of the trolley switch question is in sight. It may be stated almost with certainty that the company will build a loop on the Sanford place, over private right of way. Arrangements have been made with Mr. Sanford and the legal right to go ahead is expected to be granted by the Council at its next meeting. It is believed that action will be taken without acrimony or debate. The Council has about thrashed the question out and is ready for action. The P. S. C. feels so certain of its ground that surveyors have been ordered to work over the ground to be covered by the proposed loop tomorrow. Supt. Brown, of the P. S. C., is quoted as saying that the company wants the loop in running order by the Fourth.

Three special services will be held at the Methodist church this week, tomorrow, Thursday and Friday nights. Tomorrow night, Rev. H. N. Communion will be celebrated at the Methodist church next Sunday morning. Rev. E. E. Roberson, of Bound Brook, will speak to the Sunday-school in the afternoon.

James Johnston has finished the work of taking the census here for Uncle Sam. Mr. Johnston escaped the usual trials and troubles of other enumerators. Every one seemed to be perfectly willing to answer all the necessary questions; some insisted in telling even more than the government asked.

The first dance of the season at Scotch Plains' hotel pavilion on Saturday evening was well patronized and everybody seemed well pleased with the way in which the new landlord, W. S. Rapp, conducted the affair.

MAUCH CHUNK FOR JULY 4th.

There is no grander scenery anywhere than you will find on the journey to Mauch Chunk via the New Jersey Central.

Jersey is attractive, especially in the northern section, and the rolling country offers a variety of attractions the like of which no other section can boast. Pennsylvania and its mountains are too widely known to need elaboration, but Mauch Chunk and vicinity is a garden spot, if ever there was one. The Switchback Railroad is novel, inasmuch as no motive power is needed for operation. The inclines are gradual and in the fourteen mile journey there are many interesting experiences and fascinating scenes are unfolded with startling rapidity.

For a day's outing there is no place more thoroughly enjoyable than Mauch Chunk, and when the small cost of a day's trip is considered there is little left to be said. The New Jersey Central will run one of its popular one day excursions to Mauch Chunk on the Fourth of July by special train, which will leave Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk before noon. The returning train does not leave the mountain resort until 5:30 p. m., hence there is ample time for journeying over the Switchback, visiting Flag Staff and Glen Onoko. 6-23-td

Politics as Seen by the Times.

The declaration by William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, that he has no desire to be considered a candidate for Senatorial honors, causes to be lifted from the shoulders of the Republican leaders in this county, and particularly in Elizabeth, a great and burdensome weight. They cannot deny the fact that Mr. Runyon is tremendously popular in his home city, and it may be assumed that they have seriously feared the possibilities of his entering the race to be successor to Judge Cross. Had he entertained such hopes, there is no telling how serious, nor how disastrous the subsequently inevitable factional fight might have been. His withdrawal, and his announcement in favor of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield, permits the local G. O. P. leaders to breathe somewhat more freely. Of course, this is a great disappointment to those who were looking forward to a repetition of the cutting affrays which characterized the election of 1903. But then those who regarded the situation from that light were expecting entirely too much. They ought to have known better, or, rather, they should have realized that the local G. O. P. had more sense than to risk its chances through indulgence in such an expensive luxury as the recent interparty disagreement proved to be. The Republicans of this county may be counted upon to run matters quite smoothly for some time in the future. They are now led by men of more than average business shrewdness and political sagacity. These have quite completed, as the latest election proved, the task of patching up their broken down fences, and now present a pretty solid front to th eenemy. Their county organization is a powerful one, and its machinery is running to a nicety. It therefore behooves the opposition, if it hopes to make the rivalry interesting, to get busily at work strengthening its forces, and cease expecting to gain any material or permanet advantage through defections in the ranks of the party in power.—Elizabeth Evening Times.

AMUSEMENTS.

On Wednesday, July 5th, "Fantana," at the Lyric Theatre, will reach its second century in its long reign of full house performances. Souvenirs will be given on that occasion. Jefferson DeAngelis has scored an unparalleled hit and although other stars have been greeted by such small audiences that the managements have brought their shows to an unexpected terminus, the Shuberts have been compelled by public demand to keep "Fantana" on the boards. Popular prices prevail at Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Evenings at 8:15.

LITERARY.

The boys and girls are represented in the National's July frontispieces, the former with a laughable picture of a home-made "sailomobile," the latter with a charming photographic study of My Dear Rag Doll. New and attractive snapshot photographs of Senators, foreign ministers, British and American naval officers and society leaders, with fine portraits of Vice-President and Mrs. Fairbanks and Senators Lafollette and Alger, are among the illustrations of Affairs at Washington.

Collier's for July 1 compares the relative honor of the United States Senate and a State Governorship by saying: "Governor La Follette's willingness to go to Washington just after he had acquired control of Wisconsin, has caused surprise. At one time such a choice would have been unheard of. Formerly the Senate was often a step to the Governorship, never the converse, but the subsiding of State rights and the increase of central power have lessened the once proud post of Governor and given vastly greater importance to an office which used to be held mainly for the purpose of expressing in Congress the wishes of a State Legislture."

The Popular Science Monthly for July contains the following articles: "Recent Discoveries in Heredity and Their Bearing on Animal Breeding," by Professor W. E. Castle; "Present Monetary Problems," by Professor J. Lawrence Laughlin; "The Vegetable Fibers of the Philippine Islands," by H. Taylor Edwards; "The Climate of the Central American Plateau," by Gustave Michaud; "The Science Problems of the Twentieth Century," by Professor A. E. Dolbear; "Human and Other Forms of Consciousness," by Dr. Henry Rutgers Marshall; "The Preparation and Properties of Colloidal Mixtures," by Professor Arthur A. Noyes; "The University of Virginia."

TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Plainfield Country Club will, as usual, be largely represented.

Those who are unable to play on Monday will not be defaulted, but all who can do so are requested to arrange to play on that day. First and second prizes will be awarded. All matches will be the best two out of three sets, except in the final round, which will be the best three out of five sets.

Entries, accompanied by an entrance fee of $2 per team, or $1 for each player, must be received by Gardiner H. Miller, Roselle Casino, Roselle, before 8 o'clock Friday night, June 30, at which time and place the drawing will be made.

The privileges of the club will be extended to all members of clubs in the association during this tournament. A buffet luncheon will be served at the club house on July 4. Thomas M. Day, Jr., of the Plainfield Country Club, will act as referee, and the following tournament committee will be in charge: H. B. Atkins, R. N. Black, M. S. Charlock, D. W. Mulford, S. L. Smith, G. H. Miller, chairman; Roger N. Black, secretary.

LABOR FEDERATION SESSION.

Convention to Be Held at Trenton August 21.

The call of the Executive Committee of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor is out today for a convention to be held in the Assembly chamber at Trenton August 21 and 22. Governor Stokes has been asked to address the delegates, and it is probable that he will do so. The convention will consider various labor matters, and an effort will be made to work up sentiment for more stringent labor laws of all kinds to be enacted by the next Legislature.

Labor unions of all classes throughout the State, whether affiliated or not with the Federation, are invited to send delegates on the basis of representation as follows: From every union of fifty members or less, two delegates; from fifty to 100 members, three delegates; for each additional 100 members or fraction thereof, one additional delegate; one delegate from each Central Labor Union or Trades Assembly.

Mrs. Conner, of Pittsburg, Pa., is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, of West Seventh street.

Marty O'Loughlin Entered in Van Cortlandt Park Contest.

What promises to be the greatest professional golf tournament ever held in New York city is booked for July 13 and 14 at Van Cortlandt Park. Many crack golfers already have entered, among them being "Marty" O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club; Willie Anderson, Alex Smith, Bernard Nicholls, George Low, Etewart Gardiner, Jack Hobens, Fred Donne, Tom Gourley, Willie Norton, Tom Anderson, Alex Cunningham, Robert Peebles, Tom Chisholm, A. G. Griffith, George Pearson, David Patrick, John Inglish, James Corcoran, George Strath, Isaac I. Marks, J. W. Welsh, E. M. Fitzjohn, Walter Clark, Fred Pye, J. B. Mackie, J. G. Campbell, Tom Clark, Eugene Reilly, David Hunter and Frank Eastman. The tournament is to be given by the golfers of New York. Purses aggregating $500 are to be offered as prizes, which amount is to be raised by voluntary subscriptions among golfers. An executive committee, consisting of Charles Kirchner, William H. Beers, D. H. Thomas, W. R. Moon and J. F. O'Connell, has been appointed to take charge of the tournament, any member of which is authorized to receive entries and subscriptions.

The tournament will give an unprecedented opportunity to residents of New York and vicinity to see the finest golfers in this country play the game under the most favorable conditions. Thirty-six holes will be played each day by the contestants. In addition to the regular prizes, $25 will be given each day to the player who succeeds in breaking the record for the course, but this will be guided by the subscriptions. The professionals already have begun to practise over the links. David Hunter and Robert Peebles played a match, in which Hunter did 80 and Peebles 81.

Fishing and Shooting.

A new region, now accessible for the first time by rail, and known as the "Temagami" (pronounced Temmog-a-me) District, is being brought to the notice of the public as one of the finest fishing and hunting confines in Canada. Excellent sport is assured all who take advantage of a trip to this magnificent territory which is situated 300 miles north of the city of Toronto at an altitude of 1,000 feet above the sea. Black bass, speckled trout, wall-eyed pike and other species of fish are found here in abundance, and large game, such as moose, caribou and deer, abound in the forests. A handsome booklet, profusely illustrated, giving all information, including comprehensive maps, can be had free on application to F. P. Dwyer, E. P. A., Railway Exchange, 290 Broadway, New York. 6-27-tf

Checks for one cent each have been received by creditors of L. Sternberg & Co., whose affairs some time ago went into the hands of a receiver. E. S. Campbell, the receiver, has already made a payment of the first dividend upon the claims, and has now made payment of the final divided of one-tenth of 1 per cent. Creditors having claims of $10 received checks drawn to their order for one cent as their share of this last dividend.

TROOPS STORM WARSAW

Angry Mobs in the Streets—Strikers Kill Five Workingmen.

Warsaw, June 27—Disorderly crowds have thronged the streets since early yesterday morning. They erected barricades at Ogrodowa, Krochmalna, and Wronia Streets, on top of which they placed red flags. The police and soldiers stormed these barricades, and ten persons were wounded by bullets and bayonets.

Another affray took place at Zelazna Street, where Cossacks charged the crowd and wounded three persons. In the central market a crowd attacked a patrol with revolvers, to which the patrol replied with volleys, wounding three persons and killing a boy.

A heavy rain fell all day yesterday, and this is believed to have prevented worse collisions.

Five workmen who had refused to strike were stabbed to death by their comrades. Revolutionary proclamations have been posted on the walls, and 200 persons have been arrested.

The Social Democratic Party and the Jewish Bund announce that the fight against the Government must continue, but it is believed that with the present show of military force the situation will be controlled. Business is completely deadlocked.

The general strike which began yesterday was preceded Sunday night by attempts at red-flag demonstrations, but the Cossacks charged and dispersed the rioters with their whips. On Vononia street a sullen crowd made a stand and a patrol fired three shots.

The city has the appearance of a military encampment. Thirty-four battalions of infantyr are stationed in the city. Infantry and Cossacks are bivouacked in the streets and patrols are circulating everywhere.

A bomb was thrown Sunday night at a carriage occupied by the Chief of Police, M. Pavloff, of the town of Czenstochowa, Government of Piotrkow. The Chief of Police and seven other persons were seriously wounded.

SIGNS APPROPRIATION BILL.

Assistant State Controller Will Not Get His Salary Next Year.

Governor Stokes signed the general appropriation bill yesterday afternoon, after cutting out the item which increased the salary of the Assistant State Controller from $2,500 a year to $3,600, on the ground that the salaries of State officials should not be regulated in the appropriation bills. The elimination of the item named leaves the Assistant Controller without any appropriation for his salary after next November until the Legislature meets in 1906, when it will be provided for both as to arrears and for the ensuing year.

Another item which the Governor cut out of the bill does away with the competition among architects for the work of the State, because the bill which created the State Department of Charities and Correction provides that one of the members of the board shall be an architect, and the Governor believes that the State should not be burdened by the payment of an extra achitect for services which the one who has been appointed can perform.

Governor Stokes also signed Senator Wakelee's bill, No. 9, which broadens and corrects some deficiencies in the present corporation laws. The act which authorizes cities of the second class to provide music for the public parks in the months of July and August was also signed.

W. U. SUES POLE CHOPPERS.

Somerset and Hunterdon Men Defendants in an Action.

Peter Polhemus, Abraham V. D. Polhemus, A. O. D. Williamson and John Sink, of Hunterdon and Somerset counties, are derendants in a suit brought by the Western Union Telegraph Company, in the United States Counrt at Trenton for interfering with the company's wires and poles on the "Old York road," between Lambertville and Neshanic.

Judge Lanning issued an order restraining them from trespassing on the property, and a rule to show cause returnable July 10 why an injunction should not be issued. The defendants were cutting down poles of the company, which the Western Union claims are treated under an act of Congress authorizing telegraph companies to construct lines for postal, military and other purposes, through and over any portion of the public domain of the United States.

Umpire Not Victim of "Kicks."

Capt. Frederick W. Ford, of the Morristown Field Club baseball team, denies that Umpire J. E. Newman fainted during the game with the Montclair Athletic Club on Saturday as a result of kicks registered by the players. Newman is a professional umpire, Ford said, and gave entire satisfaction to both sides. The fainting spell was the result of illness of several days' duration, and the breakdown came on the diamond after more than an hour spent umpiring under a blazing sun. The baseball players, Ford declared, did not cause the fainting.

Miss Hackett, of Atlantic City, is spending a few days at the home of her uncle, Reuben Knox, of Rockview avenue.

Plainfield, N. J., June 27, 1905.

An appropriate tablet to the memory of Captain Hubbard could suitably me placed in the new Union County Court House. We make this suggestion to the Board of Freeholders.

Contributions for the free open-air band concert fund are coming in steadily. "R." sent his check for ten dollars yesterday, and Orville T. Waring made a cash subscription of five dollars. Today brought a check for $5 from "Cash." The total contributions received at this office now amount to $125. As the barber says, "Next!"

Captain James Franklin Hubbard has accomplished his life's work faithfully and well, and has gone to his reward. It can be said with sincerity that he will be missed as much, if not more, than any single man in Union county. As the guiding spirit of local financial institutions and an active figure in various business enterprises he made a record of which any mortal might justly be proud. But it was not these that gave him the reputation that will live. For thirty-seven years, an unparalleled period of service in that capacity, Captain Hubbard was the strong man of the Board of Freeholders. The monuments of his achievements are scattered about the county. Fine roads and substantial bridges are some of these. But his greatest work, and the ambition of the last twenty years of his life, stands on Broad street, Elizabeth. It is the Union County Court House, that handsome structure, to which the press of the State has pointed as a public building erected without any graft or jobbery. About a year ago, when the Captain was stricken with paralysis, he prayed that he might be able to leave his bed to complete that $600,000 building. His prayers were answered, and one of the fond hopes of his life was realized. Captain Hubbard was a man whose home life was perfect, he was a man whose business life was without a blemish, and he was a man whose political life was worthy of emulation. He was a Christian citizen, and his three score and eighteen years on earth were well spent.

HAMBURG BELLE

Won the Equality Stakes in a Gallop.

Hamburg Belle, the greatest race horse of all the sons and daughters of the mighty Hamburg, proved yesterday at the Sheepshead Bay track that she is a worthy rival of Beldame. She won the Equality Stakes easily from a field of fast handicap horses.

It was hardly more than an exercise gallop for Hamburg Belle. Although she conceded as much as fifteen pounds by the scale to Dolly Spanker and ten pounds to Dandelion, she found it an easy task to beat them in a romp. The withdrawal of Woodsaw, Oxford, Gamara and Sparkling Star cut the field down to six contestants. Throughout the speculation on the race Hamburg Belle was the favorite at even money.

The backers of favorites received a shock in the opening race, when two 30-to-1 shots, Sandmark and Watergrass, finished in the order named.

Only two choices won during the afternoon. They were Whimsical and Hamburg Belle.

On the Golf Links.

A borup of the professionals entered for the open competition to be held on July 13 and 14, at the Van Cortlandt Park course, were on the links yesterday for practise rounds, and among them were Marty O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club, and David Patrick, of Westfield. In the best ball match between two members of the New York Golf Club, Charles Marshall and William Wallace, against the professionals, Marty O'Loughlin and Robert Dow, the result was a halved match. Marshall and Wallace returned a card of 77 and Dow and O'Loughlin a card of [illegible]

CAMP STOKES READY.

"Little White House" to be Used for Last Time.

For three years the regimental camp at Sea Girt has been known as "Camp Franklin Murphy." This year it will be "Camp Edward C. Stokes," in honor of the present Governor, and a new flag has been prepared for the big staff on Robin lawn.

The "Little White House" is already in readiness for occupancy by the Governor. This will probably be the last year that the cottage will be used as the State Executive's headquarter's. Next year, it is expected, the Jersey building at the St. Louis Exposition will be rebuilt there and be available for this purpose.

The work of getting the immense parade and camp ground in readiness for the encampment has been going on for two weeks. William Cranmer, the superintendent, has had his men at work getting in the big crop of hay, which, as fast as it is harvtested, will be stored away in the barns on the State reservation.

The ground for the regimental camp was cleared first, and the laying out of the camp is nearly completed. The tent pegs, of which close to ten thousand are required, have been driven, the tent floors are being laid, and before the end of the week the white city will be in readiness for the First Regiment, of Newark, which will be there on July 8.

MORTAR IN BUILDING CRUMBLES

Suspension of Work on Sanitarium for Tuberculous Diseases.

All work on the State sanitarium for those afflicted with tuberculosis, which is being erected on Mt. Kipp, near Glen Gardner, was suspended on Saturday, owing to the discovery that defective material was being used. This is said to be especially true of the mortar, which, although used two weeks ago, has not hardened, and crumbles like dry clay when touched. The workingmen employed on the work cannot explain this apparent mystery, and word has been sent to the contractors in Philadelphia and the architect in New York. There is some suspicion that the water with which the mortar has been made contains too much magnesia, preventing the setting of the mixture.

Another brand of cement was tried yesterday, and should this prove satisfactory the hundreds of tons of the old mixture wil he hauled down the mountain and returned to the mill from whence it came.

Dr. Charles J. Kipp, of Broad street, who is a member of the board of managers of the New Jersey Sanitarium for Tuberculous diseases, said yesterday that he knew of no particulars of the defective mortar, save the fact telephoned by the architect yesterday forenoon. He declared that the proper experts would investigate and report as soon as possible.

William Wirth, a seaman on the battleship Maine, has been spending two weeks at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Schwartz, of Clinton avenue.

NEWARKER'S DARING RESCUE.

John J. Radel Saves a Young Woman From Drowning.

A young woman, a guest of a yachting party at Lake Hopatcong Saturday afternoon, had a narrow escape from drowning owing to the carelessness of a young man in the party, who pushed a small cart, on which the young woman was sitting, into the lake. She had gone down twice when John J. Radel, of Newark, jumped in and caught her as she was going down the third time.

They were helped out by the others in the party. The boat was just nearing shore at the landing and a large crowd witnessed the rescue and loudly cheered Mr. Radel for his prompt act.

Beyond the loss of a diamond ring and a straw hat Mr. Radel is none the worse for his plunge. The young woman would not give her name, but before leaving here the young woman, it is said, took Mr. Radel's addres and said she would have a reception at which he was to be guest of honor.

tion in 1875, and was president of it, at the time of his death. He had been a director in the Dime Saving Institution since 1884, and was also president of it, at the time of his death. The extent and value of Captain Hubbard's services in public life is shown, also, by the fact that at the time of his death, he was treasurer of the Plainfield Water Supply Company. He was president of the Board of Trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist Memorial Fund, a large trust fund held in the interest of religious and educational work. He was president of the Seventh-Day Baptist Publishing Association—the American Sabbath Tract Society—and treasurer of the Board of Trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of Plainfield. He was also a trustee of Alfred University. He was one of the governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, and a trustee of the Hillside Cemetery Association. Outside of the city of Plainfield, Captain Hubbard held equally important positions of trust and responsibility. For thirty-seven years he had been a member of the Board of Freeholders of Union County, and for twenty years, was the honored and esteemed Director of that Board. He was chairman of the commission which had in charge the building of the Union County Court House, lately finished. So excellent was his management of that enterprise that the building was completed at a cost of several thousand dollars less than the amount appropriated for it.

In every respect, and in all relations, Captain Hubbard's name was a synonym for honesty, ability, trustfulness, patriotism and Christian manhood. He was a man of few words, when compared with most men, but his words were wise and weighty. Few men have ever served the public so quietly and successfully, without interuption through political influences, or from any other causes. He was a man higher than party standards and broader than ordinary creeds. All who knew him believed in him, and sought his service because they felt that any interest committed to his care would be administered without taint of failure, so far as human power could do. In his public services, no one ever associated the thought of dishonesty or the possibility of "graft," or of unmanliness with Captain Hubbard. In his death, the business world and the important public interests which he served so long and so well, have lost one whose place can never be wholly filled by any one successor. His comrades in arms mourn a brother whose patriotism was as true as the steel of the sword he carried, and whose record was as spotless as the flag under which they fought. His death removes from social and religious circles one whom men loved to honor, and a Christian brother whose quiet service and devotion brought rich results to the community and the Church of Christ.

Captain Hubbard's first wife died in 1864. In 1866 Mr. Hubbard was married to Isabelle Randolph Titsworth, a member of one of the old and honored families of Union county, New Jersey. The home thus created has embodied those things which make for beauty and happiness, and from every side, there come to Mrs. Hubbard expressions and evidences of that sincere sorrow and high regard, which the death of such a man as her husband must call forth. Mrs. Eva J. VanSickel, wife of J. N. VanSickel, daughter of Captain Hubbard and his first wife, is the only surviving child. She has two daughters.

Captain Hubbard bagen political life as a Whig, and passed to the Republican party at its organization. He was a member of the Major Anderson Post, G. A. R., of Plainfield, and of the Loyal Legion Commandery, of New York. No one knew Captain Hubbard could speak or write any word of empty eulogy. His simple, unostentatious life was too rich in all things manly and real to permit the thought of fulsome praise. The history of what he was and what he did is highest eulogy, in the true sense of that word. The young men of these days will find few models more fitting than James Franklin Hubbard, after which to pattern lives, eminent in efficient service, permanent worth and trustfulness.

In addition to the organizations mentioned yesterday, Captain Hubbard was a member of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, a trustee of Alfred University and the Hillside Cemetery Association, a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., all of which felt the kindly influence of his many efforts in their behalf.

The directors of the City National Bank met this morning and adopted resolutions concerning the death of Captain Hubbard, and they were ordered published in the local newspapers. The directors of the Dime Savings Institution will meet tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock and take similar action.

W. J. Whelan, of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, notified the president, Frank Bergen, yesterday, of Captain Hubbard's death, and the directors will probably meet before Thursday and take suitable action regarding it.

The Value of a Prescription depends entirely upon the curative power of its ingredients. The action of good drugs may be impaired by improper compounding, while inferior drugs may defeat the intention of the physician.

Here prescriptions are compounded from the purest of drugs, by pharmacists of ample experience. Best results are thus assured; while the cost is reasonable to all. Free, prompt deliveries.

RENEWED ELECTION BOARD.

Members of the County Body Named to Succeed Themselves.

Chairman Elvin W. Crane, of the Essex County Democratic Committee, has recommended the appointment to the new County Board of Elections, which will take the place of th epresent board August 1 next, by virtue of an act passed by the last Legislature, of Enos Runyon and Edward Hartt, as the representatives of the Democratic party. This law applies to Union county and all others in the State. The recommendations were made to State Chairman William B. Gourley, who in turn will submit them to Governor Stokes, the latter being the appointing power, under the law.

The reason for the change in the law providing for the appointment of members of county boards of elections was the doubtful constitutionality of the old law, which provided that membership of such boards should be confined to the two principal parties, shutting out all other parties from representation. The recent act corrects this by making it possible for the other parties to be represented, if the Governor should see fit to name such representatives.

Club Programme.

The executive committee of the Grace P. E. church Men's Club met last night to receive the report of the committee on programme for next year. The report was adopted. A number of interesting lectures will mark the programme of the new club year. When the organization reconvenes in the fall meetings will be held in the new parish house.

Held Routince Meeting.

The borough Board of Education held its regular meeting, last night, and conducted routine business. Several matters in connection with the new school were disposed of and a large number of bills were disposed of.

Miss Winifred Bowen, of Clifton, Staten Island, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Jerome W. Leary, of the Hotel Iroquois.

Mrs. W. J. Taylor, of the city, is visiting Mrs. W .H. Dunham, of Bound Brook. This week she will leave for Block Island to spend the summer.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

Adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Tuesday, May 9, 1905, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed the following members present: Director Hubbard and Freeholders Adams, Cady, Chandler, Cladek, Connoly, Darby, King, Kline, Krouse, Marsh, Meisel, Murphy, Robison, Scudder, Wahl, Woodruff—17.

Absent—Freeholders Jensen, Swain, Westphal—3.

The minutes of the regular meeting in the month of April, and also of May 4, were, on motion, approved as read.

Freeholder Adams said he was informed that representatives of the newspapers throughout the county were present and desired to be heard, and on motion it was ordered that permission be granted them as requested.

The Board was then addressed by the different members of the press relative to an increase of compensation for publication of minutes from the amount now paid, viz., ($100) one hundred dollars per annum, and which amount, it was claimed, did not sufficiently recompense them for the work done, and asking that the amount be increased to at least one hundred and fifty dollars ($150) per annum.

The regular order of business was then taken up, and on motion of Freeholder King it was ordered that a recess of fifteen minutes be taken.

On second roll call all members were present except Freeholders Jensen, Swain and Westphal—3.

CHAPTER IX.

One of the most charming writers of our day and generation has declared that "the truest blessing a girl can have" is "the ingenuous devotion of a young boy's heart." Nine mothers in ten will probably take issue with the gifted author on that point, and though no longer a young girl in years, whatever she might be in looks, Margaret Garrison would gladly have sent the waiting gentlemen to the right about, for, though he was only 20, "Gov" Prime, as a junior at Columbia, had been ingenuously devoted to the little lady from the very first evening he saw her. A boy of frank, impulsive nature, was "Gov"—a boy still in spite of the budding mustache, the 20 summers and the barely passed "exam" that wound up the junior year and entitled him to sit with the seniors when the great university opened its doors in October. Studies he hated, but tennis, polo, cricket, riding and dancing were things he loved and excelled in. Much of his boyhood had been spent at one of those healthy, hearty English schools where all that would cultivate physical and mental manhood was assiduously practiced, and all that would militate against them was as rigorously "tabooed."

At the coming of his twentieth birthday that summer his father had handed him his check of $5,000—the paternal expression of satisfaction that his boy had never smoked pipe, cigar or cigarette—and the same week "Gov" had carried off the blue ribbon with the racquet, and the second prize with the single sculls. It was during the "exams," the first week in June, when dropping in for five o'clock tea of some girls whom he had known for years, he was presented to this witching little creature whose name he didn't even catch. "We met her way out at an army post in Wyoming when papa took us to California last year," was whispered to him, "and they entertained us so cordially, and of course we said if ever you come to New York you must be sure to let us know—and she did—but—" and there his informant paused, dubious. Other callers came in and it began to rain—a sudden, drenching shower, and the little stranger from the far west saw plainly enough that her hostesses, though presenting their friends after our cheery American fashion, were unable to show her further attention, and the newly presented—almost all women, said "so very pleased" but failed to look it, or otherwise to manifest their pleasure. She couldn't go in the rain. The butler had 'phoned for a cab. She wouldn't sit there alone and neglected. She deliberately signaled Mr. Prime. "The ladies are all busy," she said, with a charmingly appealing smile, "but I know you can tell me. I have to dress for dinner after I get home, and must be at One Hundred and Tenth street at 7:30. How long will it take a carriage to drive me there? Oh, is that your society pin? Why, are you still in college? Why, I thought—"

That cab was 25 minutes coming, and when it came Mr. Prime went with it and her, whom he had not left an instant from the moment of her question. Moreover, he discovered she was nervous about taking that carriage drive all alone away up to One Hundred and Tenth street, yet what other way could a girl go in evening dress? He left her at her door with a reluctantly given permission to return in an hour and escort her to the distant home of her friends and entertainers. He drove to the Waldorf and had a light dinner with a half pint of Hock, devoured her with his eyes as they drove rapidly northward, went to a Harlem theater while she dined and forgot him, and was at the carriage door when she came forth to be driven home. Seven hours or less "had done the business" so far as Gouverneur Prime was concerned.

It was the boy's first wild infatuation—as mad, unreasoning, absurd, yet intense as was ever that of Arthur Pendennis for the lovely Fotheringay. Margaret Garrison had never seen or known the like of it. She had fascinated others for a time, had kindled love, passion and temporary devotion, but this—this was worship, and it was something so sweet to her jaded senses, something so rich and spontaneous that she gave herself up for a day or two to the delight of studying it. Here was a glorious young athlete whose eyes followed her every move and gesture, who hung about her in utter captivation, whose voice trembled and whose eyes implored, yet whose strong, brown, shapely hand never dared so much as touch hers, except when she extended it in greeting. He was to accompany his father and sister to Europe in a week, so what harm was there? He would forget all about it. He knew now she was married. He was presented to Nita, but had hardly a word and never a look for her when Margaret was near. He was dumb and miserable all the day they drove in the park and later dined at Delmonico's with Col. Frost. He was sick, even when mounted on his favorite English thoroughbred and scampering about the bridle path for peeps at the drives, when she was at the park again with that gray-haired reprobate, that money shark, Cashion—a Wall street broker black-balled at every decent club in New York. Why should she go with him? He had been most kind, she said, in the advice and aid he had given her in the investment of her little fortune. She told the lie with downcast eyes and cheeks that burned, for most of that little fortune was already frittered away, and Cashton's reports seemed to require many personal visits that had set tongues wagging at the hotels, so much frequented of the army, where she had taken a room until Nita should have been graduated and they could go to the seashore. She had promised to be at home to her boy adorer that very evening and to go with him to Daly's, and he had secured the seats four days ahead. Poor "Gov" had trotted swiftly home from the park, striving to comfort himself over his bath and irreproachable evening clothes that there, with her by his side, the wild jealousy of the day would vanish. Sharply on time he had sent up his card and listened, incredulous, to the reply: "Mrs. Garrison has not yet returned." He would wait, he said, and did wait, biting his nails, treading the floor, fuming in doubt and despair until nearly ten, when a carriage dashed up to the ladies' entrance and that vile Cashton handed her out, escorted her in and vanished. She came hurrying to her boy lover with both little hands outstretched, with a face deeply flushed and words of pleading and distress rushing from her lips. "Indeed I could not help it, Gov," she cried. "I told him of my engagement and said we must not go so far, but away at the north end something happened, I don't know what, a wheel was bent, and the harness wrenched by too short a turn on a stone post at a corner. Something had to be repaired. They said it wouldn't take ten minutes, and he led me out and up to the piazza of that big hotel—you know, we saw it the day I drove with you—"

TO EXCLUDE LIQUOR DEALERS.

Elks to Consider Proposition at Buffalo.

Two matters of great interest to members of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks will come before the coming annual session of the Grand Lodge in Buffalo, which the local contingent is preparing to attend. One is a proposal to repeal the legislation at Cincinnati last year which materially changed the initiatory ritual. The other is a movement which proposes the exclusion from membership in the order of liquor dealers.

There appears to be a general sentiment in the East, New York excepted, to restore the ritual in question to its form prior to last year's revision. The new form is by no means satisfactory to many lodges.

The other matter is one that is being fostered through the West and which has its advocates all over the territory in which the Elks are organized. Its supporters, though, are particularly strong the other side of the Mississippi, and according to a well known local member of the order it would not be surprising if the proposed legislation were enacted. It would, however, have no retroactive effect.

S. S. WORKERS AT TORONTO.

Eleventh Session of International Body Now in Session.

Sixty-seven states, provinces and territories in North America, with Mexico, Cuba and Central America, are represented by 2,100 delegates and several thousand visitors in Toronto, where the eleventh triennial convention of the International Sunday School Association opened Sunday. The convention promises to be the most notable gathering of Sunday school forces ever held on the continent, as the International Association represents 153,000 Sunday schools and a constituency of 14,000,000, and its work is continentwide in its influence and wonderfully varied in its scope.

The following are the names of delegates from this vicinity:

Mrs. Alonzo Pettit, Elizabeth; Rev. Frank P. Wiles, Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Barnes, Perth Amboy; Miss Josephine L. Baldwin, Newark; Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, Newark; Miss Marion Thomas, Newark; Charles H. Madison, Newark; W. Cutler Ryerson, Newark; H. G. Shaw, Newark; E. F. Westcott, Newark; S. D. Turton, Newark; Adolf L. Engelke, Englewood; Rev. William R. Burrell, Livingston; Mrs. Emily C. Kinca, Orange; Rev. Jesse L. Hurlbut, D. D., South Orange; Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Disbrow, Bloomfield; Mr. and Mrs. George H. United Society Promulgating Plans for Building.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor has made public a plan for the recognition of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society, which occurs February 2, 1906. The plan is for the erection and endowment, by the Endeavorers of the world, of an international headquarters building in honor of the founder of the society, the Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., and to perpetuate its work for the young people of the churches of all denominations, and in all the world. The amounts suggested as suitable range from $500,000 to $1,000,000, and even the latter sum could easily be raised by a small gift from each Endeavorer.

There are now nearly four millions of Christian Endeavorers in the world; another 4,000,000 have been members of the society, and have been graduated into the wider work of the church. There are more than 66,000 Endeavor societies in sixty-nine countries.

Keeler is the only .300 man in the New York American team.

Duff, the Manhattan College catcher, has been released by Indianapolis.

Love, who played second on Saturday, hails from Paterson, where he has been playing a steady, consistent game in the field and at the bat. He was highly recommended to Manager Daab.

Another open violation of the National agreement at Elizabethport on Sunday. Scanlan, of the Brooklyn Nationals, pitched for the Amsterdams against the Elizabethport Stars on Sunday.

The Brightons, who play on Crescent Oval Saturday, are in reality the Ridgewoods. They recently played an eighteen inning game with one of the strong Metropolitan teams, winning by a close score.

When the All-Cubans come back for a return game in July they will certainly draw a big crowd. Their playing on Saturday aroused the fans to the height of enthusiasm. Their work was a marvelous exhibition of the game.

The All-Cubans have played twenty-seven games this season and lost two. The oldest member of the team is thirty years and the youngest is Bustamente, who is eighteen years old. The team will play another game here in July.

Walter Cosgrave, who is employed by the Westinghouse Electric Company, was obliged to go to Pittsburg on Friday night, and was unable to return in time for Saturday's contest. "Tuck" Turner, of the old Crescents, filled his place acceptably.

It is said that the reason Linderman failed to show up at Summit for a recent game was that the management had previously refused to pay the players when there was no game on account of rain and Linderman was "docked" on one of these occasions.

"Tuck" Turner, who played on the local team Saturday, was released last week by the New Bedford, Mass., club because he refused to accept a deduction from his salary owing to being laid off on account of an injury to his knee. That he is as popular as ever with the fans was shown here on Saturday.

Manager Daab has scheduled two games with the New Jersey Central team, one for July and the other for August. The railroad organization promises to come "loaded" for game, and Manager Connolly declares that his boys will win both contests. As many of the officials of the road live here unusual interest will be attached to the games. The team will be accompanied by a brass band and a big crowd of "rooters."

GOLF.

The Cranford Golf Club team won from the South Oronge Golf Club by a half point in the game played at Cranford on Saturday in the East Jersey League tournament. Cranford scored 12, and South Orange 11½. The games will be resumed in September. An informal dance will be held at the Cranford Golf Club tomorrow night and Thursday afternoon the women will give a luncheon, followed by bridge whist and bid euchre.

SETTLING WRECK CLAIMS.

New Jersey and Pennsylvania Traction Co. Has Adjusted Thirty.

Agents of the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Traction Company are engaged in settling claims of persons injured in the trolley collision on its Princeton line June 10. About 30 claims have been adjusted, all for small amounts, ranging from $7 to $100.

Persons most seriously injured have not yet been settled with, and as the company has expressed its willingness to adjust all reasonable claims it is not likely there will be many suits for damages.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE SIGNER, WAS BORN IN ROSELLE IN FEB. 1726

When the city of Elizabeth shall have been forgotten, the name of a man who was born, lived and died here will be remembered and cherished, and yet there is nothing to mark the site of his home, nothing in our midst to remind the wayfarer of the useful life of Abraham Clark, who became an immortal by signing his name to the Declaration of Independence.

Abraham Clark's great-grandfather came to this town in 1678, fourteen years after it was first settled, and purchased a tract of land in what is now the borough of Roselle, where he engaged in farming. He built a house on the road (now Chestnut street) near where the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crosses, and in this Abraham Clark, the "signer," was born February 15, 1726.

Those who drive over the pretty road, leading from Roselle to the old Wheatsheaf Inn on Rahway avenue, little dream of the historic association attached to a spot of ground on the east side of the roadway, a few hundred feet south of where the old public schoolhouse stood a few years ago. A sunken space in the ground still gives unmistakable evidence as to where Clark's house stood, and a few aged apple trees show the lines of an orchard which the patriot must have planted.

Abraham Clark was, perhaps, the most popular man of the times in which he lived. Although a candidate for various public offices of trust his election was never opposed. He held high and responsible places for more than twenty-one years, and died while serving as a member of Congress under the new constitution.

Abraham Clark was more than forty years of age when he was elected high sheriff of Essex county, and after this he was clerk of the Colonial Assembly. In 1774 he was a member of the committee of safety, and later on secretary. He was chosen to the Provincial Congress in 1775, and by it elected to the Continental Congress which assembled at Philadelphia in June, 1776.

The Declaration, although adopted on the Fourth of July, was not signed by the members of Congress until the second day of August, nearly one month after pledging their fortunes, sacred honor and lives.

Mr. Clark, four days after affixing his signature to the document, wrote as follows to his fellow townsman, Colonel Elias Dayton, then in the field with his (Third) regiment:

"As to my title, I know not yet whether it will be honorable or dishonorable; the issue of the war must settle it. Perhaps our Congress will be exalted on a high gallows. We were truly brought to the case of the three lepers. If we continued in the state we were in, it was evident we must perish; if we declared independence, we might be saved—we could but perish. I assure you, sir, I see—I feel the danger we are in. I am far from exulting in our imaginary happiness; nothing short of the almighty power of God can save us. t is not in our numbers, our union, our valor, I dare trust. I think an interposing Providence hath been evident in all the events that necessarily led us to what we are—I mean independent states; but for what purpose, whether to make us a great empire, or to make our union more complete, the crime only can determine."

Abraham Clark, a deeply religious man, in signing his name on the parchment, not only acted on Christian principles, but with a keen sense of his responsibility to his Maker and Saviour.

It is pleasant to know that Abraham Clark lived long enough after liberty and independence had been received to see some of the good fruits of his brave and unselfish act. Abraham Clark was incorruptible, a firm patriot, and a sterling friend of the people. He died suddenly from sun stroke at his home near the Wheatsheaf Hotel, September 15, 1794, in the sixty-ninth year of his age. The people of this town and surrounding country attended his funeral and followed his mortality to the Presbyterian church burying ground in Rahway. A weather-beaten stone there is marked with the following inscription:

"In memory of Abraham Clark, Esq., who died September 15, 1794, in the 69th year of his age. Firm and decided as a patriot, zealous and faithful as a friend to the public, he loved his country, and adhered to her cause in the darkest hours of her struggles against opporession."

Abraham Clark was the father of ten children. His wife survived him nearly ten years, dying June 2, 1804.

The Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution owe it to themselves and coming generations to mark this spot, so that he who runs may read. As citizens of Elizabeth, we should all be proud of the birthright and glorious record of Abraham Clark, who pledged his life and fortune to aid in achieving our liberty and independence.—J. Madison Drake, in Elizabeth Leader.

FREEHOLDERS TO ATTEND.

And Court Will Adjourn in Memory of Capt. Hubbard.

At the special meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders at Elizabeth this afternoon a committee was appointed to draft resolutions on the death of the late director, James Franklin Hubbard, and arrangements were made for attending the funeral service. It was announced that at a meeting of the board on Thursday, July 6, a successor to Captain Hubbard as director, will be chosen. This, it is believed, will be Benjamin King, of Rahway, representing Clark township, as he invariably acted in the absence of Captain Hubbard.

It is the business of the local Common Council to fill the vacancy existing in the board. This can be done at the convenience of the members or allowed to go over until the next election.

Judge Vail stated this morning at Elizabeth that he might adjourn court on Thursday out of respect to the memory of Captain Hubbard, giving those whose duties call them to the court an opportunity to attend the funeral.

Oldest Woman in New Jersey.

The census men have found the oldest woman in New Jersey to be a negress, Mary Thompson, living at No. 12 Holsman street, Paterson. Mrs. Thompson owns up to being 103 years old. She was born in Morristown. Notwithstanding her age, she works every day, taking in washing and ironing, and all her faculties are as well preserved as those of a woman half her age. She had seven children, four of whom are living. Mrs. Thompson believes she has many years before her and has no thought of giving up work.

Why the Gong Sounded.

The five blows of the city fire gong this morning were sent in by Chief Doane to summon the borough fire engine which is doing duty in Plainfiled. The city steamer is undergoing repairs, and the borough machine was borrowed with the stipulation that it should be sent back when an alarm was sounded. The call from box 156 made this necessary and the steamer was quickly on the scene. The other engine will be finished and tested tonight.

Close of Academy Exhibit.

St. Gabriel's Academy exhibit of pupils' work was viewed by another large throng of visitors yesterday, and the various specimens of painting, needlework and embroidery were accorded high praise. The exhibit closed at noon today, the total attendance having greatly exceeded those of previous years.

HOD CARRIERS MAY DISBAND.

Local Union's Members Likely to Join International Body.

The Hod Carriers' Union met last night in T. A. B. Hall and discussed matters relative to disbanding the local union and the members uniting with the International Laborers' Union, thus making it possible for them to secure a traveling card and obtain work in other towns.

Some of the members were opposed to giving up the local organization, because it pays $50 death and sick benefits as well, while the International Union only pays death benefits. On the other hand, it was argued that the local union was of no special benefit to the members, that it is not strong enough to demand and secure concessions such as the recent request for an increase of wages, and it was thought best to unite with a union that is recognized. After a free and full discussion of the question, it was decided to postpone action until the July meeting.

Arcanum Members to Protest.

To voice their protest against the increase in rates recently announced by the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum, the indignant members of that organization in Jersey City, Hoboken, Bayonne and other sections of Hudson county, will hold a mass-meeting in Columbia Hall, Jersey City, tonight. The members of the Supreme and Grand Councils have been invited to attend and explain their action.

A $10 Session of Court.

Lud Frazee, the veteran painter, paid $5 into the borough treasury last night, Recorder Doud assessing him that amount for the disturbance he made Sunday. William Calloway, who was arrested for fighting, was fined a like amount and was then taken in charge by the city police to answer a charge they held against him.

Bishop's Body Transferred.

The body of the late Bishop O'Farrell, of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, was yesterday transferred from St. Mary's cemetery, Trenton, to a crypt in St. Michael's Orphan Asylum, at Hopewell.

C. E. Sociable.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Baptist church will hold a sociable Friday night to mark the last meeting until fall. After Friday the Endeavorers will merge their meetings with the prayer service on Wednesday.

Gowns and Coats.

Paris.—It was evident earlier in the season that coat and skirt costumes of white and colored linen were to be more than ever popular this summer, but no one had any idea that, whether plain or embroidered, these suits would be considered smart enough for almost any occasion—morning or afternoon.

A shirt wait gown is now rarely seen without a coat to match, and with every duck skirt there should be on hand a coat of the same material. For driving or automobiling—short runs, that is, not the extended tours—a linen coat is always slipped on over the waist to serve the double purpose of keeping off the dust and as a protection against wind and sunburn. Instead of adding warmth, in reality one can keep far cooler if a linen coat is worn over a fine ovenwork waist; and it is a relief not to have one's neck and arms so badly burned that to wear a decollete gown is well nigh impossible. Then again a suit throughout is of necessity smarter than a separate waist and skirt, so that if there is a jacket to correspond a fine shirt waist is really permitted.

For morning, linen suits are decidedly simple, the plain three-quarter length jacket with plaited walking skirt being the style most in vogue. This jacket may be strapped with bands of the linen, and the skirt, if laid in inverted plaids, may also be strapped with linen bands like those employed upon the coat. Colored linen collars and cuffs make an effective trimming to the jacket, but they should be detachable, or else the coat should be quite finished without them, for all light shades are bound to fade, and unless this collar can be taken off the suit will look shabby in an unnecessarily short while. Blue is perhaps the most lasting color, and in all its shades is particularly popular at present.

White linen suits are from an economical standpoint far the best, for white is ever the most serviceable summer shade. Light colored linens are, however, extremely pretty, and with collars and cuffs of white pique or lace are very fashionable. Deep raspberry linen is effective, and lilac is always fascinating, while apple green, pale blue and pink, all are attractive. For traveling dark colors are best, and blues, mixed grays and even plain dark grays are excellent. Striped, checked and mixed linen of crash is a good serviceable material, for while in the dark shades it will stay clean a long while, still when soiled it can be laundered easily and well.

Short jackets are worn, but more for traveling and in the afternoon than for every day morning usage. The full plaited bolero is no longer as much in evidence as the simpler Eton coat, made, however, with elbow sleeves. A pretty lilac Eton was absolutely plain save for a border all around and at the end of the sleeves, of Irish entre deux finished with a stitched linen band. There were no plaits or ruffles of any kind on this coat, and perhaps because of this it was particularly attractive.—New York Telegram.

Raymond Stevens, of Grandview avenue, has returned from the University of Pennsylvania for the summer vacation. Mr. Stevens has finished his junior year and passed seventeen examinations.

REV. DR. WHITNEY ON JAPAN'S FUTURE

President-Emeritus of Hackettstown Institute Predicts a Bright Era.

EMPIRE'S AWAKENING

Venerable Divine Believes That Shentoism Will be Abandoned for Christianity—Japan and Art.

Speaking from his personal knowledge of the country and the capabilities of the people, Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney delivered a warm appreciation of the Japanese people and predicted a glowing future for the Japanese nation at the last meeting of the season held by the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, of the First Methodist church, in Vincent chapel yesterday afternoon. Dr. Whitney's address was the feature of the session. He has never been in Japan himself, but has always been interested in the country and its development, and much knowledge of Japan and her people that was very nearly at first hand has come to him from his brothers and the latter's family, who have been engaged in educational work in the Island Empire for years.

Dr. Whitney's eldest brother went to Japan at the Mikado's personal invitation to found a college and his son has been interpreter of the American legation for a long period. Prof. Whitney's two daughters was placed in charge of the education of the Japanese peeresses by the Empress herself, and her majesty has frequently visited the schools. From these members of his family, all trained observers and in positions peculiarly adapted to watch the development of the country, Dr. Whitney has received a good deal of intimate knowledge of Japan.

The awakening of the empire, Dr. Whitney declared, has been unparalleled in the history of all nations. It is destined to take rank with the leading nations of the world.

In his reference to the war with Russia, Dr. Whitney said Japan went into it to assert her independence. She will certainly win it, he said, and thus lead the Orient. Being under a constitution and granting freedom of thought and action to all classes, the Japanese people will really become the great influence for the uplifting of the stagnated millions of China, for the latter looks to Japan more than to any other nation for her keynote.

Dr. Whitney believes in the future of Japan as a Christian nation. Shintoism, he said, had been abandoned as the State religion and every creed had been put upon a free and equal basis, the untrammelled freedom of the Americans in this direction being the model followed. Therefore, Dr. Whitney holds, Christianity has a magnificent chance to sound the dominant note in the religious thought of Japan. Many prominent Japanese, even men high in official life, are even now professing Christians.

Japan, declared the speaker, led the world in art, and was ready for every modern improvement. She has a wonderful genius for art and for adaptation to every phase of the most highly developed phase of modernity.

The leaders of thought among the Japanese, said Dr. Whitney, universally declare their elevation of woman to be one of the chief causes of their advancing civilization. They noted that in America more respect is shown to woman than in any other nation; and this ideal of womanhood is entirely owing to the teachings of Christianity. Hence the more ready acceptance of the Christian religion. To a large extent the women of Japan are adopting the American dress. In court circles on court occasions they still wear the Japanese costume, at which time the men still precede the women in court processions; but when the women are attired in American costume, the women are always permitted to walk in advance of the men.

Here again is another striking evidence that this newly awakened people are determined to hold the most advanced positions among the nations: Some of the prominent members of parliament, some of the most distinguished officers of the army and navy are professed Christians. Many of their leading men have been educated in the Christian colleges of England and America. The wife of the renowned General Oyama, though a Japanese, is a graduate of out Wellesley College.

The Foreign Missionary Societies of America and England take note of all these signs and causes of progress, and are inspired to spread the teachings of Christ in the Empire of the Rising Sun.

FREEHOLDERS ORDER COURT HOUSE DRAPED AND WILL ATTEND CAPT. HUBBARD'S FUNERAL

A special meeting of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders was called yesterday afternoon for the purpose of making plans and drawing up resolutions relative to the death of the late Director J. Frank Hubbard, who passed away at his home in this city Monday afternoon.

The meeting was called at 2:30, with Benjamin King, of Clark township, in the chair. The resolutions, all of which were presented by Freeholder Krause, were as follows:

Resolved, That this Board as a committee of the whole, attend the funeral services of our late Director, J. Frank Hubbard, on Thursday next.

Resolved, That the Public Grounds and Building Committee be authorized and requested to have the front of the Court House draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the Director pro tem to draft suitable resolutions with respect to the death of our late Director, J. Frank Hubbard, and to report the same at the next regular meeting of this Board.

Resolved, That the Director pro tem and the clerk of this Board be authorized to make all proper arrangements for the Board's attendance at the funeral, in relation to carriages, etc.

The Board will meet tomorrow afternoon at the office of Former Sheriff W. T. Kirk in this city. They will be uniformly dressed in black and gloves, and will proceed to the house, where the funeral services are to be held at 3 o'clock.

Those appointed to act upon the committee to draft resolutions were Freeholders Westphal, Woodruff, Swain, Robinson and Connolly.

PAOLI GOES TO JAIL FOR THREE MONTHS

NORTH AVE. CONFECTIONERY STORE A SPEAK-EASY.

Today was sentence day in the Union County Court, and several Plainfield cases were disposed of by Judge Vail. Lawrence Paoli, of North avenue, indicted on a charge of keeping a "speak easy," was sentenced to three months in the county jail. The court remarked that Mr. Paoli had been arraigned before on similar charges and yet he persisted in violating the law.

George Neal, indicted on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, was represented by Francis J. Blatz, Esq., who made a plea for a light sentence. He was fined $50 and costs, amounting in all to about $100. The fine was paid.

In the cases of Lena Friedman and Abraham Friedman, charged with keeping a "speak easy," Francis J. Blatz, Esq., secured a suspension of sentence in the case of the woman and a nolle prosse in the case of Abraham Friedman.

James Springs, colored, indicted on a charge of forgery, was sent to the Rahway Reformatory. He was represented by W. G. DeMeza, Esq.

Frank Ross, also charged with keeping a "speak easy," was let off with a suspension of sentence. He was represented by J. P. Owens, Esq.

Judge Vail announced that sentence in the remaining cases would be postponed until Wednesday, July 12.

Half-Done Burglary.

The authorities have discovered that the former residence of ex-Senator William J. Keys, now unoccupied, in East Somerville, was recently visited by burglars, who had packed some valuable bric-a-brac, moose antlers, gas chandeliers, etc., and then, supposedly, been frightened away. There is no clew to the robbers, but it is believed they belonged to the same gang that has been operating in this section for the past two months.

A Day on the Mountains.

The annual outing of the Society of Friends was held yesterday, the members spending the day on the mountains near the King's Daughters' Baby Camp. The children of the First-day school went by stage and they were in charge of Miss Margaret Vail, superintendent, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Vail, Mrs. A. J. Gavett and Mrs. Ogden ,teachers. The party had lunch on the mountains.

J. H. FRENCH PROPERTY BOUGHT FOR $22,000

DR. P. J. ZEGLIO PAYS $934 PER FOOT FOR IT.

The French property on West Front street has been purchased by Dr. P. J. Zeglio. Albert Lederer, the real estate broker, who negotiated the deal, declines to give the price, but it is currently reported that the premises brought $22,000.

Mrs. Amelia French, of Brooklyn, widow of J. H. French, were the owners of the property, on which stands a three story brick building. It contains the drug store of R. J. Shaw and the clothing store of M. Leichtentritt.

The property is thirty-two feet front and 175 feet deep. It was not generally believed to be on the market, and the sale was somewhat of a surprise in realty circles. It is reported that no changes will be made, the purchase being purely an investment.

CITY CAN GIVE $2,000 FOR BAND CONCERTS

ASSEMBLYMAN COYNE'S BILL IS SIGNED BY THE GOVERNOR.

Governor Stokes signed yesterday at Trenton the Musicians' bill, known as Assembly bill No. 368, introduced at the last session of the Legislature by Assemblyman Edward Coyne. It provides that cities of the second class may appropriate $2,000 for music in parks in the months of July and August. Plainfield comes within its limits but it is hardly likely that the Common Council will take any action this season, at least.

Musicians' Local, No. 151, of Elizabeth, is in a large measure responsible for the placing of the new law on the statute books. At the convention of the State Federation of Labor in Trenton last August the Elizabeth musicians introduced a resolution which put into the hands of the legislative committee of the State Federation a bill which provided for appropriations of the sort the governor has just approved. The legislative committee put the measure in the hands of Assemblyman Coyne, and it was passed by both houses of the Legislature.

The Musicians' Bill is the last of three labor measures passed at the last session to be signed by the governor. The Bakers' Bill, regulating the hours of labor in bake shops tions, was signed shortly after the Legislature adjourned. The Master and Servants' Bill, introduced on behalf of the carpenters, became a law with the governor's signature several weeks ago. Only three labor bills were passed by both houses, and they have now all received the signature of the governor.

In the interest of the musicians' bill a delegation went from this county last winter, consisting of twenty-two members, headed by Neil A. McCarthy, who was kept busy in last fall's campaign showing the labor men that Stokes" record demanded their approval. Mr. McCarthy was a member of the State Federation of Labor and the Union County Trades Council and was kept hustling meeting the allegations of Pennsylvania men who had been sent here to work against Stokes.

Stokes, before he became governor, was the father of the "shin pay off their employes in cash instead of storeorders, as had been the custom in many places. He also advocated the present factory law, the ten-hour law for street railway men, the fifty-five hour a week law, and many other measures in the interests of organized labor.

PRAISE FOR LEGISLATURE

Governor Stokes Says No Vicious Bills Were Allowed to Pass.

MUNICIPAL TAXATION

All Legislation Has Leaned in the Direction of the Tax Spender, Says His Excellency.

Governor Stokes having disposed of nearly all the bills in his hands yesterday issued a statement reviewing the work of the last Legislature. It said, among other things:

"The work of the last legislative session has much to commend it to public favor. No vicious legislation has been enacted. No interests of the people have been injured. On the contrary, many good measures for the public welfare have been enacted into laws."

It spoke of the settlement of the Delaware boundary dispute, the new stone road law, the increased appropriations for the agricultural interests, the act providing State aid for the extermination of the mosquito, the act for the establishment of forest preserves and that limiting municipal taxation.

"Municipal taxation is one of the most important questions of the day. The taxpayer has been too long neglected in this State. All legislation has leaned in the direction of the tax spender. This year the taxpayer has at last been recognized. A movement has been made toward the modification of exorbitant rates, so high in some cases that they amount to confiscation of property. This year's legislation upon this subject will cause a closer scrutiny of municipal expenditure and will be productive of wiser business management in municipal administration. The act in quesiton inaugurates no radical departure from the present system of taxation in any municipality in the State. It merely provides a different method of determining the rate of taxation by vesting more power in the hands of the people. It provides that in municipalities of less than 50,000 population, the Common Council, Board of Aldermen or governing body thereof, may fix the tax rate up to about $1.68 on the hundred, omitting fractions; that in municipalities of more than 50,000, the Common Council, Board of Aldermen or governing body thereof, may fix the tax rate up to about $1,88 on the hundred, omitting fractions, and that tax rates in excess of these amounts shall be fixed by a vote of the people themselves. In other words, it gives the people, who should have a right to vote on questions that affect their property, more power in determining the tax rate.

"If, however, in any taxing district it is thought wise by the governing body that this rate should be exceeded, such governing body shall submit the question of such increase of tax rate to the people themselves, giving them good reasons therefor and allowing the people to decide. I think it would be wise for the next session of the Legislature to amend the referendum principle of the law so that the vote of the people upon the question of excessive rates should be made upon the day fixed by law for holding the primary election. The machinery for such purpose would then be in operation and as the assessments would then have been made and the proportions decided upon, the time for fixing the rate by a vote of the people, if necessary, would be most opportune. No fairer proposition could be offered to the people than vesting in them the right to a voice in determining how great a tax burden they will suffer. It will compel public officials to render a most careful accounting to the people for the expenditures of public moneys; it will reduce taxation and thus enhance the value of all real estate in New Jersey and attract individuals and home builders to our borders. This measure was recommended by all the commissioners appointed by Governor Murphy to consider the question of equal taxation, and has been argued at length and with great patriculurity of detail, time and again, by one of those commissioners in public and official reports.

"The creation of the State Board of Equalization, governing all classes of property, with power to equalize valuations as between different taxing districts each contributing to the county taxes, and as between counties each contributing to State school taxes, is a most important measure and promises most beneficial results. There is no more important board in the State, and it will, I believe, within the course of time, settle the vexed problem of taxes in a satisfactory and equitable manner, and the question of taxation will never be settled until it is settled right and in accordance with the constitutional provisions on the subject.

KING'S DAUGHTERS TO OPEN CAMP FOR POOR BABIES ON THURSDAY, JULY 6

While the King's Daughters' baby camp on the mountains was opened this week and there are now several children being cared for there, the formal opening will take place probably on Thursday, July 6, after all the children have been taken to the camp. Those in charge find that there is a great demand for accommodations at the camp this year and it will depend largely on the generosity of the people of Plainfield as to how many children are cared for.

There is now a mother and her four children who are very anxious to go to the camp, another mother with three children, and still another mother with two children. In each case the children are in poor health and need immediate attention.

Arrangements have been made for telephone connections at the camp, the contract having been signed. The expense for the 'phone this year will be $217.50, owing to the distance from the city and the fact that a direct line will have to be run. This is a heavy expense for the King's Daughters, and it is hoped that they may be assisted in maintaining this greatly needed convenience.

Yesterday Mrs. Charles A. Reed, president of the Union, received a check for $75.57, profits from an entertainment and sale given by Mary Rushmore, Mary Dickenson, Gwendolyn Gough, Frances Perkins, Elizabeth Hawthorn, Marion Rocap and Jean Saunders, Alice Rowland and Alvaretta Holland. The affair was given at the home of Mrs. C. Wesley Holland, on West Seventh street. The Union appreciates this gift very much and hopes that it will be an incentive for others to contribute to this work.

Contributions for the baby camp will be received at Daily Press office.

MESSENGER BOY HELD UP

Two Men Robbed Postal Lad on a Lonely Road This Afternoon.

While returning from Glenside Park, where he had been delivering a message, at 1 o'clock this afternoon Thomas Kilbride, of West Fourth street, a Postal Telegraph messenger boy, was held up by two men and robbed of $1.50. He was pedalling his bicycle at a swift pace down the mountain road back of Scotch Plains, when the men suddenly sprang from a clump of bushes and seized the handlebars. Kilbride was thrown headlong and before he could recover his senses one of his assailants sat on him while the other rifled his pockets. The money was in loose change and had been collected by him in message fees. After taking it from him they threatened him with death if he told anyone, and then fled.

The boy made his way to this city as soon as possible and informed Manager Coleman of the fact. The latter apprised the police and they have commenced an investigation. Kilbride describes the highwaymen as Germans, one about fifty years old and the other twenty-five, the former wearing a beard. Both were roughly dressed and wore overalls.

WILL CASE SETTLED.

John Gaddis Compromises with His Nephew—Document Probated.

A settlement of the litigation recently begun over the will of Frances E. Coon, under which her brother, John Gaddis, of North Plainfield, gets all the property, has been effected, and the document is now on probate in the Somerset County Orphan's Court.

Joel C. Gaddis, a nephew, of Warrenville, had filed a caveat against probating the will and intended to attack it on the grounds of undue influence and mental incapacity. By the terms of the will the testatrix left all her property to her brother, who was also named as executor, and it is understood the settlement of the matter proved mutually satisfactory to the beneficiary and caveator.

Royal Arcanum's Annual Outing.

The members of Royal Council, Royal Arcanum, of Woodbridge, accompanied by their wives and sweethearts, came to Plainfield last night in a special trolley and enjoyed a banquet at the Hotel Kensington. They reached here about 9:30 and left two hours later. It was the annual outing of the Council and it was decided to be one of the best ever held.

Fire Engine Tested.

The city fire engine, which has been undergoing repairs, was given a thorough test on the Elm street bridge last night. It was conducted by Chief Doane and Chairman Bullock, of the first committee, both of whom were satisfied with the result. It was put in commission today and the borough steamer, which has been doing temporary duty, was returned.

B. J. McNevins Married.

B. J. McNevins, of this city, was married to Miss Belinda McQuinley, of Greenville, yesterday afternoon, at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. McNevins will live on East Fourth street. The groom is a section foreman on the Central Railroad.

ROMPH ARRESTED ON COMPLAINT BY GULICK

COUNTER CHARGE OF ASSAULT BEFORE ANOTHER JUSTICE—HELD IN BAIL.

Charles Romph, of Lincoln, who preferred the complaint on which Abram Gulick, also of Lincoln, was held in $200 bail for the Grand Jury of Middlesex County last week for the alleged breaking of three ribs in Romph's side, was arrested yesterday on a counter-charge of assault by Gulick. The allegations do not recite any such injuries as Romph is alleged to have suffered.

Constable Robert Pierce, of Dunellen, made the arrest on a warrant issued by Justice Clark T. Rogers. The Romph complaint was made in Justice vonMinden's court. Romph appeared before the court right after his arrest and gave bail in $200 for his appearance before the Grand Judy. Both men are apparently determined to fight the dispute through without compromise.

In Dr. Snodgrass's Honor.

Capt. and Mrs. S. B. Greasen and the Parsonage Aid Society yesterday afternoon took a party out sailing in Capt. Greacen's yacht Cherub in honor of Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of Simpson M. E. church. The trip was up the sound to Bayonne, to and around the Statute of Liberty, out through the Narrows and home around Staten Island. Those in the party were Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, Miss Lillian Snodgrass, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Parisen, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lanning, Mr. and Mrs. G. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. H. Applegate, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Runyon, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Farrington, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Garretson and Mr. and Mrs. E. V. R. Sofield.—Perth Amboy Chronicle.

Somerville's Strong Lineup.

That Somerville expects to defeat Plainfield in its proposed series of baseball contests, is known by the intimation of the makeup of the Somerset county aggregation. It was stated today on authority that George Wiltse and Jack Warner will be the battery, with Louis Wiltse, now of York, Pa., as an extra pitcher. The infield will be comprised of such players as McGann at first, Batch either short stop or second base, Lewis either at short or third base. The outfield will be composed of leaguers, also. The work of getting the team together has been left entirely in the hands of George Wiltse and he has promised to organize a team that will defeat Plainfield.

Day at Boynton Beach.

A party of Plainfielders and North Plainfielders left early this morning for Boynton Beach, where they will spend the day. The trip was made by trolley. Those in the party are Mrs. James R. Blair and family, Mrs. Adam C. Blair and son, George H. Kenyon and family, Mrs. Thomas Doud, Mrs. H. C. McVoy and family, Mrs. F. O. Webster and family, Miss Nellie McCarthy, Charley Martin, Pierson Bailey and Miss Carrie Demler, making twenty-one in all.

Surprised Their Foreman.

Arthur Martin, of West Front street, foreman at the Pedrick & Ayer shop, was tendered a pleasant surprise party by twenty of the men in his immediate department, last night. Several hours were passed very pleasantly, after which supper was served. The affair was arranged by John Kriney and Frank Crozier.

Trip to Midland Beach.

Arrangements were made by the Young Ladies' Missionary Circle, of the First M. E. church, last night, for a trip to Midland Beach on July 22. Each member is to bring a young woman friend.

CHINA IS BITTER, SAYS MR. ACKERMAN

Plainfielder Returned From 35,000 Mile Trip Tells of Exclusion Act's Effect.

LAUGH AT MINISTERS.

Chinamen Well Posted on Equitable Tangle and Point it Out as Sample of American Virtue.

After an absence of six months, during which time they have travelled over 35,000 miles by land and water, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman returned to their home in West Eighth street, yesterday, and both declared that in all their travels there was no place they loved more than Plainfield, and they were glad to be home once more. Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman enjoyed the best of health throughout the entire trip and were greatly benefitted by the change. They sailed from New York in January and from that time they thoroughly enjoyed the delights of travel. There was no effort to complete the trip within a prescribed time and they went from place to place at their own convenience. They arrived in New York yesterday, returning by way of the Canadian Pacific Railroad from Vancouver, which place they reached by the steamer Empress of China.

When a representative of The Daily Press called on Mr. Ackerman at his home, last night, he was very enthusiastic about his trip and was brimful of interesting incidents concerning it. At first he was reticent about talking for publication, adding that the people had heard so much from him that they might become weary.

There was one feature of the trip which impressed Mr. Ackerman more than anything else, and that was the rapidly growing enmity on the part of China for the United States as a result of what is known as the "Chinese Exclusion Act." While he was in China meetings were being held in all of the important places and action being taken to boycott this country. Mr. Ackerman describes the situation as one that should cause this country deep concern. The Chinese are sorely grieved over the manner in which some of their leading citizens have been treated in the United States and they are bitter in their denunciation over it.

Referring to the Equitable Life Assurance Company troubles, Mr. Ackerman said that the people in China are fully posted and they laugh at American missionaries who are striving to carry the Gospel to that country. They say: "That is the way you do things in the United States and then send missionaries here to preach the Gospel and teach us American ideas." As to the contract labor phase of the act the Chinese take no stock in it. They say that they have no such labor to send to the United States, but they think that they might at least be given the same advantage as Japan to take advantage of America's institutions of learning.

Mr. Ackerman thinks this country is making a grave mistake in being so stringent in its actions toward China while on the other hand it is trying to seek markets in that country for its goods.

He said that of all the religious institutions, the Emporer of China shows the greatest favor to the Y. M. C. A. and only recently contributed $5,000 to the association to carry on its work, believing that it is a good one which will be of great benefit to the men of China.

This was Mr. Ackerman's second trip abroad, the first one being taken ten years ago, and while he visited many places twice, this trip was of unusual interest, because of the stirring scenes and incidents in Japan, where he spent much time. He also visited India, spending two weeks there, and two weeks in Java, where he describes the foliage and vegetation as exceeding that of Hawaii or California. Mr. Ackerman took a large number of beautiful photographs en route and he has had them made into lantern slides.

Probably, the most interesting part of the journey was in Japan, where Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman visited about the time of Admiral Togo's signal victories over the Russians. Their steamer was but a short distance anead and behind some of these great naval battles, yet they heard none of the actual firing, and in fact, Mr. Ackerman says that the newspaper correspondents did not see or hear them, obtaining their news right in Japan.

Mr. Ackerman says that the Japs are the most enthusiastic people he had ever seen, especially during the past few months while the war has been marked by so many victories over the Russians. He brought home

ROOSEVELT AT HARVARD

President Back to His Alma Mater For Eighteen Hours.

For eighteen hours yesterday, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, tried to forget the cares of state and appeared at the twenty-fifth reunion of his Harvard classamtes, at Cambridge as just "Teddy Roosevelt, '80." He has twenty hours more of college jubilee before him at the Harvard commencement exercises before he departs for Oyster Bay.

Although he gave up most of the day to the reunion, he was not permitted to forget entirely affairs at Washington. Secretary of War Taft arrived from New Haven yesterday afternoon, and it was said would endeavor to hold a conference on state matters.

Arriving at the Back Bay station from Washington at 7 o'clock this morning, the President was greeted by Bishop William Lawrence, president of the Harvard Alumni Association. He was driven at once to the Bishop's Cambridge estate for breakfast, received callers until half past eleven o'clock, went for a carriage drive, called on his mother-in-law, Mrs. George C. Lee, in Brookline, and arrived at the Oakley Club for luncheon with the class of '80 at half past one p. m.

After an afternoon of college reminiscences and jubilee he dined at the Hotel Somerset with his class at 7 o'clock. Here he delivered a speech which only his fellow classmen were permitted to hear.

At the President's own request, he received no public demonstrations, as he is visiting Cambridge simply as a college man.

MAUCH CHUNK FOR JULY 4th.

There is no grander scenery anywhere than you will find on the journey to Mauch Chunk via the New Jersey Central.

Jersey is attractive, especially in the northern section, and the rolling country offers a variety of attractions the like of which no other section can boast. Pennsylvania and its mountains are too widely known to need elaboration, but Mauch Chunk and vicinity is a garden spot, if ever there was one. The Switchback Railroad is novel, inasmuch as no motive power is needed for operation. The inclines are gradual and in the fourteen mile journey there are many interesting experiences and fascinating scenes are unfolded with startling rapidity.

For a day's outing there is no place more thoroughly enjoyable than Mauch Chunk, and when the small cost of a day's trip is considered there is little left to be said. The New Jersey Central will run one of its popular one day excursions to Mauch Chunk on the Feurth of July by special train, which will leave Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk before noon. The returning train does not leave the mountain resort until 5:30 p. m., hence there is ample time for journeying over the Switchback, visiting Flag Staff and Glen Onoko. 6-23-td

STORY OF GREATEST BATTLES.

Francis McCullagh's Tale of Mukden to be Printed Next Sunday.

The battle of Mukden, fought in Manchuria in March of this year. was one of the greatest conflicts in the history of the world. There were engaged in it over 700,000 men and the Russian army fled like a crazy mob helpless before the pursuing and victorious Japanese. The Russians lost 200,000 men.

The only history yet published of this great combat has just been written. It is told by Francis McCullagh, a correspondent, who went into the battle with the Russian forces, and was captured during the fight by the Japanese.

Mr. McCullagh was an eye-witness of the battle from both sides, and, knowing the story, knows how to tell it. He has written it all graphically, as only an eye-witness can. He has not gone into the labored work of the military expert, but tells his story for the man who wants to read it in good, clear English, letting the horrible facts themselves stand out to adorn it and point its great moral.

Mr. McCullagh's history has been secured for publication in Pennsylvania by the Philadelphia North American. It will be published in two instalments, and the first instalment of eight pages will appear as a special supplement added to the Sunday issue of the paper for July 2. It will be completed on July 9.

The newspaper reader who is watching the course of peace negotiations initiated by President Roosevelt will be able, after reading Mr. McCullagh's story, to see the necessity for a cessation of hostilities in the East—for the stopping of the dumb slaughter of drunken Russians driven by incompetent officers.

Of revelations there are scores in Mr. McCullagh's history. He saw what the papers have never printed, and has put into concrete form all of the scattered bits of stories that were published. Without doubt, Mr. McCullagh's account of this battle is the one to which the future will look as the one true historical account of this struggle of giant armies.

Fishing and Shooting.

A new region, now accessible for the first time by rail, and known as the "Temagami" (pronounced Temmog-a-me) District, is being brought to the notice of the public as one of the finest fishing and hunting confines in Canada. Excellent sport is assured all who take advantage of a trip to this magnificent territory which is situated 300 miles north of the city of Toronto at an altitude of 1,000 feet above the sea. Black bass, speckled trout, wall-eyed pike and other species of fish are found here in abundance, and large game, such as moose, caribou and deer, abound in the forests. A handsome booklet, profusely illustrated, giving all information, including comprehensive maps, can be had free on application to F. P. Dwyer, E. P. MORTON AFTER GRAFTERS

Equitable's Head and Mayer to Talk of Legal Proceedings.

Paul Morton, chairman of the board of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, has sent a formal communication to Attorney General Mayer asking for a conference on the subject of a joint movement by the Equitable Society and the State Government in the matter of instituting legal proceedings against the directors and officers who abused their trust and made illegal profits out of their connection with the society.

Attorney General Mayer, it is understood, has written to Chairman Morton that he will be in this city tomorrow or Friday and will be pleased to confer with him along the lines suggested. Chairman Morton's special counsel, Austen G. Fox and Wallace Macfarlane, will probably attend the conference.

The remains of the directorate of the Equitable Life Assurance Society will hold a meeting today, the first that has been held since the avalanche of resignations began and since the Equitable Society passed into the control of Thomas F. Ryan. Important action affecting the society in many ways will be taken at today's meeting, which has been called for 12 o'clock noon.

The three trustees of the Ryan stock, Grover Cleveland, George Westinghouse and Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, held an all day meeting at the Buckingham Hotel yesterday in an effort to devise a plan by which the men they select to fill the vacancies in the board will be legally qualified to hold the position. No conclusion was reached, but the trustees will hold another meeting at 10 a. m. today and will endeavor to agree upon a line of policy in time to communicate their conclusions to the directors.

There are now twenty-one known vacancies in the Equitable's board, and it is the purpose of the trustees to fill them as speedily as possible.

New Idea for a Wedding.

At a large church wedding, held in a Pennsylvania town last week, a novel idea was introduced which will doubtless be followed by many brides all over the country.

Preceding the bride up the aisle were two little pages, each bearing in his hands a very handsome white satin pillow, the size of an ordinary sofa cushion, and with the initials stamped in gold on the top.

The boys deposited these pillows at the altar where the happy couple would pledge their vows, and then stood aside while the ceremony was performed. After the bridal procession started for the door the pages again stepped forward and bore the pillows out.

This aroused the curiosity of the guests, and upon inquiry it was found that the cushions contained the love letters which had passed between the couple during their courtship. The bridegroom's pillow contained the missives sent by the bride and the bride's from the bridegroom. That the correspondence had been voluminous was shown by the fact that nothing else was used to fill the cushions.

Here is a chance for Plainfield brides to adopt a new idea, and also a way of having old missives put in some safe receptacle and not turn up when house cleaning comes around.

For S. S. Childs.

Some of our esteemed contemporaries are shooting off long strings of nonsense and simply showing how much they don't know by attempting to explain the political situation in Somerset and offering the proverbially ill-flavored unasked for advice as to who should be chosen to represent the county in the next State Senate. Men to the manner born need lose no sleep by worrying nor waste time in writing on a subject about which no question can possibly arise. Senator Samuel S. Childs has during his single term so faithfully, ably and creditably represented his constituents and endeavored to protect the interests of his whole county and State that if he desires or will accept another term common courtesy and party usage fairly entitle him to renomination and his triumphant re-election consequently follows as a matter of course. When Essex and Middlesex professed politicians feel inclined to reach out to advise old Somerset stagers and foretell events here they only provoke laughter, and for their own credit should reconsider and keep quiet before people all find out what fools some mortals be.—Bound Brook State-Centre.

Fred Lounsburg, Jr., of Plainfield avenue, has gone to Boston on a business trip.

E. E. Runyon and family are stopping at the Felmly farm, Lebanon, Hunterdon county.

Cyrus Kinsman, of Sherman avenue, who graduated from Cornell Univeristy this week in the mechanical engineering department, has returned home, accompanied by his sister, Miss Annis Kinsman, who spent commencement week at Cornell. Mr. Kinsman will engage in business with his father, F. E. Kinsman.

TAXATION FOR SCHOOLS

Report to be Submitted to National Educational Convention.

Asbury Park, June 28—The committee which was appointed by the National Educational Association to investigate the subject of taxation as it relates to public education has prepared its report, and will present it to the convention of the association, which will be held here July 3-7.

The committee has been at work investigating the subject for almost three years, and has prepared a comprehensive and systematic report. This deals with the apportionment of money for the maintenance and operation of city school systems for specific purposes expressed in the per cents. of the total expenditures and gives tables showing school expenditures classified by groups of cities based on population; expenditures for instruction and supervision, 1902-3; relation of school expenditures to municipal expenditures, and school expenditures classified by geographical divisions.

There is also in the report a resume of the methods of school taxation in New York city by William H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools in that city, and a discussion of the problem of taxation for school purposes by Nathan C. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction, Harrisburg, Pa.

Included in the report further is a contribution by Nathan C. Schaeffer, State superintendent of public instruction for Pennsylvania, on the taxation for State purposes in his State, together with a table showing the sources of its revenue and the tax legislation of the State. The method of taxation for school purposes in Indiana, with tables showing the relation of the cost of schools to municipal expenditures and the relation of the cost of each municipal department to each dollar for schools, is contributed by John W. Carr, superintendent of schools, Anderson, Ind.

In summing up its report, the committee asserts the belief that the authoritative power for levying taxes for the support of schools should rest in the immediate directory of the schools, whether such boards are elected by the people or are appointed by mayors or courts. They urge, however, the importance of definite statutory limits upon the amount of school tax levied, and that two distinct funds be created, one for current expenses and the other for permanent building improvements; further, that the power of contracting debts for the school department be vested only in the people.

If the number of pupils to a teacher in any school system falls below the number of pupils on the average who can be efficiently and effectively taught, the result will be to increase the teachers who participate in the distribution of the wage fund, and thus inevitably decrease the amount of the wage fund each teacher will receive. It is believed, too, that this unnecessary increase in the unmber of teachers, while operating to reduce teachers' salaries, also operates by a well-known law in the direction of decreasing the efficiency of the teaching body in such a system.

The so-called special teachers or supervisors of studies, like music, drawing, calisthenics, manual training, sewing, domestic science, kindergarten, etc., are justifiable solely because the teachers in charge of the regular classes in the elementary schools have not yet been able to acquire the technical knowledge necessary to teach those branches of study which have come into the schools comparatively recently. Therefore these special or supervisors, who are assistants to the superintendent in charge of this special work, should expend their energies in teaching the teaches and not in teaching the pupils. No school system is rich enough to employ enough of these special teachers to teach all the pupils. Attention to this principle will often save the schools much unnecessary expense.

Too many principals in a school system, caused by too many small school buildings or faulty department organization, is a prolific cause of non-economic management, it is pointed out. Schools having fewer teachers than eight do not need the services of a principal, who devotes his time to supervision, and the number of teachers whom a competent principal can help by supervision is nearer forty than twenty. The committee is not prepared to express an opinion upon the question of how many assistant superintendents can be well and efficiently utilized in a school system, because the answer to this question depends upon the personal equation, as well as upon the size of the school system.

A Song for Good Americans.

"Dear Old Yankee Land," a patriotic song and chorus, written especially for the New York Sunday World, will be one of the features of the issue of July 2, coming in separate sheet music form. It is by Paul West and John W. Bratton, the famous writers of popular songs, and is said to be one of their best efforts.

—John H. Tier, Sr., was reported today as being a trifle better.

Plainfield, N. J., June 28, 1905.

The second of the series of Timely Topics Discussed by Plainfielders is published today. It is on the all important subject of good roads and thanks are due Robert A. Meeker, State supervisor of roads, for the interesting contribution.

The tendency with plenty of space at one's disposal is to build up a long argument, one part leading into the next. The result is an admirable case of special pleading, but not good advertising. The ad that conveys most information most agreeably is the one that can be read backwards, forwards, or from the middle. —Ex.

Recognizing his valuable services as a councilman and his unusual interest in promoting the interests of the borough, the friends of James K. Arnold have brought him to the fore as a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination in North Plainfield. They have made no mistake. It is said that Mr. Arnold will not oppose their wishes. He is a conservative official, and it can be said that with him as the chief executive officer, the borough would take no backward step.

It only remains for his physician to say "aye" and the nomination of Charles Joel Fisk, as the successor of such honored men as Benjamin Vail, Foster M. Voorhees and Joseph Cross in the State Senate, is unanimous. Any man in New Jersey would be proud to be placed in the class with these men who have sat in the upper House of the Legislature as the representative of Union county. Messrs. Ackerman and Runyon, who have been mentioned for the nomination, have both announced that they favor Mr. Fisk for the high position. From all parts of the county come kindly expressions of his boom. Despite his own protestations, Mr. Fisk is more than likely to be the nominee, provided his physician says "aye, aye."

In all the many laudable enterprises that it has discussed or brought to a realization, the local Board of Trade has accomplished nothing that will cause more genuine enjoyment than the swimming pool it is to have located in the West End. It may not be looked upon by the adults as anything of great importance but to the small boy whose father doesn't own a house with a bath tub and who has had to brave police interference in order to duck himself in Green brook, it marks a new epoch in Plainfield. Possessing only a few shallow streams, the city is extremely unfortunate in its bathing facilities and the action of the board in trying to overcome the drawback is commendable. When the pool on the Compton place is ready, we'll venture that it will be crowded daily with apreciative young men and the members of the board will be amply repaid for their trouble once they hear their gladsome shouts as they disport themselves to their heart's content.

Asks $50,000 Damages.

A suit for $50,000 was started yesterday in the Union County Court by Christian H. von Rhein, an Elizabethport produce dealer, against the Public Service Corporation for injuries which he sustained March 1, 1905, on Frelinghuysen avenue, in that city, by a Newark-Elizabeth trolley car running down a rig which he was driving from the Newark market. The wagon, loaded with vegetables, was demolished, the team of horses attached to it were severely injured and von Rhein was thrown into the road and so badly hurt, it is claimed, that he will never recover from his injuries, which are principally to his head. He was for several weeks in the Elizabeth General Hospital, from whence he twice escaped while partly deranged, once by jumping out of a second-story window. He is still under treatment at the institution.

George Hooley, of Sycamore avenue, the borough, is spending his vacation at Waretown, Ocean county.

MR. ACKERMAN ON CHINA

with him several valued souvenirs, including copies of bulletins issued by the Japanese which were circulated generally throughout the larger cities. These bulletins are indicative of American enterprise, many being printed in English and being the latest news obtainable by telephone and telegraph. Others are printed in Japanese. Liberal use is made of the large headlines in black type, while the story is well condensed and not inclined to too much exaggeration, but rather conservative.

The bulletins in Mr. Ackerman's possession were printed in Yokohoma during May by the Japan Gazette and The Daily Mail.

"The taxation of second class railroad property at local rates, an act of the past session of the Legislature, will add over two hundred thousand dollars to the income of Jersey City alone. It should appreciably reduce the tax rate in that city. Unless increased revenues reduce the tax rate in our various municipalities, the taxpayers receive no benefit therefrom."

"The necessity of some modification of our judiciary system, by which relief will be afforded to the Supreme Court and the Court of Errors and Appeals from the overcrowded condition of their appellate calendars, is generally admitted. As our courts are now constituted, the Justices of the Supreme Court are required to perform a three-fold function to hold the Circuit Courts in the various counties, the sessions of which occur tri-annually; to sit in a branch at Trenton three terms each year as a Supreme Court, exercising appellate jurisdiction and original jurisdiction in mandamus, certiorari and quo warranto cases, and to sit as Judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals three terms annually. In consequence of the great increase of litigation in these courts, insufficient time is afforded both for the hearing cases and for their consideration and decision. One of the wise and timely acts of the Legislature was the passage of a bill providing for the appointment of a commission to report to the Governor and Legislature some method of improving the judicial system and the system of procedure of this State. The necessary changes can be made only by amendment to the Constitution, and it is hoped that the commission that has been appointed will be able to devise such a system of rearrangement as will be satisfactory to the bench, the bar and the people of the State."

Elks' Excursion Tomorrow.

A large delegation from the local lodge will accompany the Elizabeth Elks on their annual excursion to Coney Island tomorrow. Dreamland is to be the real destination and the excursionists are to have the full run of the great amusement place.

TIMELY TOPICS DISCUSSED BY PLAINFIELDERS

—WRITTEN BY REQUEST FOR THE DAILY PRESS—

NO. 2—Good Roads and Their Value—By Robert A. Meeker, State Supervisor of Roads.

Plainfield is a good road center, holding a record second to none, either in the number or quality of the roads. The first stretch of macadam was commenced in 1869 and the work has been extended from that time until the present, so that now the city has a greater proportion of fine smooth streets than any other municipality in the State. In fact, Plainfield's good roads are proverbial throughout New Jersey and the reputation has naturally contributed to her growth and prosperity. The hard, smooth thoroughfares, clean and well kept, have appealed so strongly to casual visitors that many of them have become permanent residents through no other reason.

The cosmopolitan character of Plainfield's population is a proof of this. Sometime ago, the writer had occasion to look up the nativity of a number of our residents and found to his surprise that we have within our borders, the natives of twenty-four states of the Union as well as those from nearly all of the leading foreign countries.

Speed and comfort are the prime requisites of modern life and it is because our city furnishes the means to attain these that she has grown and prospered so wonderfully. It was truthfully said years ago that Plainfield was the wheelman's paradise. With the extension of the good roads' system it can now be said with equal force to be the automobilist's paradise. Unlike other cities of the State, it has no cobble or granite block pavements, hence all of the improved streets are easy to ride over.

Plainfield is connected with all her neighbors by means of macadamized roads, and one may drive out every day for a week without traveling the same route a second time. One may go north to Springfield, Millburn, the Oranges, Montclair and all the cities, towns and villages along the Watchung mountains, east to Woodbridge, Perth Amboy and other points on Staten Island Sound, sounth to New Brunswick, thence to the sea shore or to Princeton and Trenton, west to Somerville, and from this old tow to Far Hills, Bernardsville, Peapack and all the other historic Revolutionary battle fields and camps of Washington and the British during the time the headquarters of the Continental army was at Morristown.

In short, the number of beautiful, pleasant, picturesque drives that may be taken in any direction over good roads is very great, but, in the words of the great showman, they must be seen to be appreciated. That our people do appreciate our good roads is shown by the number of carriages, automobiles and bicycles that are constantly seen passing to and fro.

One of the prettiest afternoon automobile runs of fifty-one miles, is through Scotch Plains, Springfield, Summit, Madison, Morristown, Bernardsville, Far Hills, Bedminster, Pluckamin, Somerville, Bound Brook and Dunellen. The scenery along the route is as varied as can be found anywhere in the State; hills, fields, mountains, towns, cities and streams are seen in wide profusion, while many handsome residences adorn the hilltops along the way. If the water has greater attraction, a splendid route is out Park avenue to Oak Tree, to Iselin, Woodbridge and Boynton Beach and return by way of Rahway, Westfield and Fanwood. Again, if a spin through the country is desired, a new route touching Dunellen, New Market, New Durham, Metuchen, Avon Park and South Plainfield, will gratify the lover of the simple life. Thus, whatever one's tastes may be, they can be gratified easily, quickly and comfortably by Plainfield's splendid chain of highways.

OBITUARY.

Alfred Paul Gardiner.

Alfred Paul Gardiner, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Gardiner, of Grove street and Park place, died Monday at his parents' summer home in Allenhurst. Mr. Gardiner and his family left Plainfield for the shore last week.

Mrs. Helen A. W. Talmadge.

Mrs. Helen Atwood White Talmadge, wife of Henry Talmadge and daughter of the late Lucy Dunbar and Heman Lincoln White, died at her home on Madison avenue, New York, Monday. She was the stepmother to Henry P. Talmadge, of Netherwood, and sister of Mrs. Talmadge. The funeral was held from her late home this afternoon.

Anthony Farley.

Anthony Farley, who for fifty-seven years had resided in the house on Terrill road near North avenue, died there yesterday after an illness from general debility, due to old age. He was in his eighty-sixth year and had lived in this section nearly all his life, coming here from Hunterdon county. He leaves a widow, one daughter, Miss Anna Farley, who resides at home, and four sons, James, Isaac and David Farley, of Fanwood, and William Farley, of Washington, N. J. He was a member of the First M. E. church and was a regular attendant before his strength failed. He was a carpenter by occupation. The funeral will be held from his late home Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Centreville P. O. Robbed.

Word was received at Somerville yesterday that the post office at Centreville, Hunterdon county, was robbed Sunday night. The safe was dynamited and $25 worth of stamps taken.

ABANDONED STOLEN BIKE.

One of the Five Wheels Taken Last Week Found by Cop.

One of the five bicycles stolen in various parts of the city last week has been recovered. The machine belonging to Mulford Darling, which disappeared Saturday night, was found by Officer Messler Monday night leaning against the curb at the trolley station on Watchung avenue.

Messler spotted the wheel as one answering the description of Darling's bike and picked it up. Messler tried to learn who left it at the curb but was unable to gain any clue to his identity.

Horse Thieves Active.

After a year's peace, the farmers and residents of villages in this vicinity are worried again over horse thieves. A horse was taken from George Huff's barn in Dunellen last week, one was stolen in Whithouse a few days later and last night one was taken in Metuchen. The local police have joined the general watch for the gang.

Plaintiff Won.

Judgment in full was awarded the plaintiff in the contract case of H. Mokoway against James Robley, in Justice Smalley's court yesterday afternoon. F. J. Huff appeared for the plaintiff.

Week's Adjournment.

A week's adjournment was taken yesterday in the contract case of Simon & Cohen against Harry Feinberg, in Justice Hand's court.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION.

Depew is Missing.

We have carefully looked through a new book on "Our Native Birds," and much to our amazement do not find a single word about Chauncey M. Depew.—Paterson News.

$100,000 From Saloons.

Few cities in this State have 250 licensed places from which a sum close to $100,000 can be gathered annually. The appropriation for the police department last year was $75,000, which is considerably more than covered by the liquor license fund alone. There is another $45,000 or more from mercantile license before the property tax is reached.—Atlantic City Union.

Spirit of Independence.

No sane politician will deny that the spirit of independent political action within the two great parties is spreading and that the era of dictation—machine dictation, if you please—is waning. Our idea of a real political leader—one who commands the respect of the people at large—is one who will recognize this growing spirit and will so adapt himself to it, that he and his party may become of greater use to county and State.—Salem Standard and South Jerseyman.

No Moral Difference.

There is no moral difference between the average Republican and the average Democrat. Each possesses man's share of honesty, general intelligence and good judgment. But when a great number of either neglect to apply these to the consideration of the availability of candidates, the boss comes to the front, draws what power, authority and influence he can from the people, and wields them to the advancement of his own ends, and of those, not usually a patriotic class, whose interests he represents.—Elizabeth Times.

The Field is Open.

Senator Dryden was elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Sewell, and his term will end March 4, 1907. It is the general understanding that Senator Dryden will accept a re-election if tendered by his party, and, therefore, his candidacy enters into all the State Senatorial elections this year and in 1906, as the Senators to be elected will vote for United States Senator in 1907. If any other Republican chooses to enter the popular lists against Senator Dryden there is nothing to prevent. The field is open to all comers.—Newark Advertiser.

Editor's Sense of Justice.

It has always seemed to us that the farmers, in fact, all citizens who use the toll roads, were exceeding long suffering in that, without protest, they have for years continued to pay their share of taxation for free county roads all around them, yet when they used the roads were obliged to pay a fee. Without putting on magnifying glasses our readers can see that this is double taxation and there is no warrant for that under any law that Americans ever made. And the sense of justice that we all have, in varying degree, revolts against it, too.—Gloucester County Democrat.

Edward Caspar Stokes.

Governor Edward Caspar Stokes is fast acquiring the reputation of being the best and safest executive this State has had for many years, and in view of the high qualities of statesmanship displayed by him, his friends believe he has a long and bright career before him. Governor Stokes' admirers, greater in number than ever before, were bitterly disappointed in 1892 when, by a single vote, and that of the Senator from Union county, he lost the Republican caucus nomination for United States Senator, a position he would have adorned, and in which he would have been of great use to the common people of the State and country, if not to the powerful corporations which control and may yet ruin this commonwealth. While it is to be regretted that Mr. Stokes suffered defeat, through the machinations of corporations, who were profligate in the use of money to accomplish their ends, it is now felt that these conditions cannot prevail in 1907, when the Legislature will again be called upon to elect a United States Senator. The people of New Jersey are now opening wide their eyes at the inroads unscrupulous corporations are making against their rights, privileges and liberties, and by 1907 they will be in a position to demand the election to the Senate of a man who will dare do his duty to the people, rather than one who controls or is the servant of cliques and trusts.—Elizabeth Leader.

AMUSEMENTS.

By special arrangement with Kellar, who is a discoverer of talent as well as a magician, Paul Valadon, the French necromancer, will make his first appearance in vaudeville at Keith's this week, presenting a series of physical and psychical problems, including his latest mystery called "The Drum that Can't Be Beaten." Other new recruits to vaudeville are Ned Nye, late star of "The Belle of New York," and his Whirlwind Girls; Susie Fisher, the female baritone, late of Klaw & Erlanger's forces, and White & Simmons, the favorite minstrel comedians. Standard vaudeville acts are contributed by Lew Bloom and Jane Cooper in "A Picture from Life."

Nagging Wives and Mothers—Women Who Are Failures as Women

"Of course we can't help the hot weather, but perhaps we can help the hot weather nuisances," remarked the bachelor.

"Such as, for instance?" asked the schoolteacher.

"Well, stiff clothes and the nagging woman."

"Well, I want to avoid the nagging woman both winter and summer. What is it some doctor wrote about her recently? I think he said she was the menace of the twentieth century home."

"She certainly is one of the propagators of divorce. Did you ever meet John Smith's wife? Nice fellow, Smith, just as good natured as a pussy cat blinking in the sunshine, yet, you know, even pussy may be stirred up if her fur is continually rubbed the wrong way. Well, there's nothing but fights in the Smith household. I used to wonder why until I went there to dinner one night. In the first place, they had the Smith youngsters at the table. Now, I don't mind children around myself, but I can't bear to see the dinner table made a schoolroom to teach the kids table manners. Nothing those poor little things did was right. You would have thought Mrs. Smith had too much to do to watch everything, but that's where you make a big mistake. She kept her eye on Tommy, Susie and little Mary and had time to pick at her husband a bit too. Conversation ran something like this. The parenthetical remarks are from John Smith's feeble attempts:

"'John, why don't you sharpen the knife before you carve the roast? The first thing you know you'll spatter the whole thing over my nice new tablecloth— Tommy if you don't stop wriggling I certainly will send you from the table!'

("'I heard a funny thing the other day, old man! You know Remsen, don't you—that fellow we used to know in Harvard—)

"'There, I told you so, John! A piece of gravy spattered clean over here. I do wish you'—

("'Yes, my dear! Yes! Well, Remsen he'—)

"'Mary! Mary Smith! How can you eat with your fingers? You weren't?

NAGGING THE CHILD.

Well, I saw you! How often has mother told you never to take a chicken bone in your fingers at the table!'

("'Well, Remsen he'—)

"'Good gracious, the maid has forgotten the gravy! Will you ring, John? And do let me give you some butter, Mr. Bachelor. You don't eat it with your dinner? Oh, but I know you do! John, ring again, please, and for goodness' sake, Susie, stop making such a noise when you chew! What will Mr. Bachelor think of your manners!'

"And so forth and so on until the meal became a perfect misery."

"I am more sorry for those children than for you, though," remarked the schoolteacher. "Think how it must ruin their dispositions to be brought up by such a woman!"

And the Poor Husband.

"Well, give a little of your sympathy to the husband! Think how lovely it must be to come home after a hard day's work and have to listen to a list of complaints and fault findings. Can you blame such a man for going to his club?"

It is true that woman's sphere is somewhat limited on this earth and that there are many things she can't be, but she ought to quarrel with the fates rather than with the husband she married. She married him to give him the comforts of a home in return for working for her. In nine cases out of ten the woman who bewails the waste of her talents hasn't enough energy to keep the home clean. The windows are unwashed, the carpet hasn't been swept for ages, and clean towels and pillowcases occur on holidays or when the spirit moves her. One feels inclined to question whether such a woman would be a success in any walk of life since she is such a failure as a woman. MAUD ROBINSON.

("He was a blackguard to take you there!" burst in Prime, the blood boiling in his veins.) "Then we waited and waited and he went to hurry them, and then he came back and said they had found more serious damages—that it would take an hour, and meantime dinner had been ordered and was served. He had telephoned to you and the butler had answered all right."

"He's a double-dyed liar!" raved "Gov," furiously.

"And so what could I do, 'Gov?' The dinner was delicious, but I couldn't eat a mouthful. (This time it wasn't Cashton who lied.) I was worrying about you, and—and—about myself, too, 'Gov.' It had set my heart on going with you. It was to be almost our last evening. Oh, if you only didn't have to sail Saturday, and could be here next week, you dear boy, you should have no cause for complaint. Won't you try to forgive me?"

And, actually, tears stood in her eyes, as again she held out both hands. They were the only people in the parlor, and in an instant, with quick, sudden, irresistible action, he had clasped and drawn her to his breast, and though she hid her face and struggled, passionate kisses were printed on her disheveled hair. It was the first time he had dared.

And then he did not sail Saturday. Prime, Sr., was held by most important business. They gave up the Saturday Cunarder and took the midweek White Star, and those four additional days riveted poor "Gov's" chains and left her well-nigh breathless with excitement. The strain had been intense. It was all she could do to make the boy try to behave in a rational way in the presence of others. When alone with her he raved. A fearful load was lifted from her spare little shoulders when the Teutonic sailed. Even Nita had worried and had seen her sister's worry. Then no sooner did "Gov" reach Europe than he began writing impassioned letters by every steamer, but that wasn't so bad. She had several masculine correspondents, some of whom wrote as often as Frank, but none of whom, to do her justice, got letters as often as he did, which, however, was saying little, for she hated writing. "Gov" was to have stayed abroad three months, piloting the pater and sister about the scenes so familiar to him, but they saw how nervous and unhappy he was. They knew he was writing constantly to some one. Mildred had long since divined that there was a girl at the bottom of it all, and longed and strove to find out who she was. Through the last of June and all through July he resolutely stood to his promise and did his best to be loving and brotherly to a loving and devoted sister and dutiful to a most indulgent father. But he grew white and worn and haggard, he who had been such a picture of rugged health, and, in her utter innocence and ignorance as to the being on whom her brother had lavished the wealth of his love, Mildred began to ask herself should she not urge her father to let "Gov" return to America. At last one sweet July evening, late in the month, the brother and sister were wandering along the lovely shore of Lucerne. He had been unusually fitful, restless and moody all day. No letter had reached him in over a fortnight, and he was miserably unhappy. They stopped at a grassy bank that ran down to the rippling water's edge, and she seated herself on a stone ledge, while in reckless abandonment he threw himself at full length on the dewy grass. Instantly the last doubt vanished. Bending over him, her soft hand caressing his hair, she whispered: "'Gov,' dear boy, is it so very hard? Would you like to go to her at once?"

"Would you like to go to her at once?"

And the boy buried his face in her lap, twined his arms about her slender waist, and almost groaned aloud as he answered: "For pity's sake help me if you can, Mildred, I'm almost mad."

Early in August the swiftest steamer of the line was splitting the Atlantic surge and driving hard for home, with "Gov" cursing her for a canal boat. The day after he reached New York he had traced and followed the White Sisters to West Point, and Margaret Garrison stared in mingled delight, triumph and dismay at the card in her hand; delight that she could show these exclusive Pointers that the heir to one of the oldest and best names in Gotham's Four Hundred was a slave to her beck and call, dismayed to think of the scene that might occur through his jealousy when he saw the devoted attentions she received from so many men—officers, civilians and cadets. Old Cashton came up now as regularly as Saturday night came around, and there were others. Margaret Garrison was more talked about than any woman in Orange county, yet who could report anything of her beyond that she was a universal favorite, and danced, walked, possibly flirted with a dozen different cavaliers every day of her life. There were some few people among her accusers, demure and most proper—even prudish—women, of whom, were the truth to be told, so little could not be said.

"Gov" Prime took the only kind of room to be had in the house, so full was it—a little seven by ten box on the office floor. He would have slept in the coalbin rather than leave her. He saw her go off to the hop looking radiant, glancing back over her shoulder and smiling sweetly at him. He rushed to his trunk, dragged out his evening clothes and stood at the wall looking on until the last note of the last dance—he, a noted German leader in the younger set and the best dancer of his years in Gotham. Not so much as a single spin had he, and he longed to show those tight-waisted, button-bestrewed fellows in gray and white how little they really knew about dancing, well as many of them appeared on the floor. His reward was tenderness the hop broke up. She came gliding to him with such witchery in her upraised face. "Now, sir, it is your turn. I couldn't give you a dance, for my card was made out days ago, but Mr. Latrobe was glad enough to get rid of taking me home. He is daft about Nita, and of course she can't let him take her to more than one hop a week. Mr. Stanton is her escort to-night."

Then she placed her little hand on his arm, and drew herself to his side, and when he would have followed the others, going straight across the broad plain to the lights at the hotel, turned him to the left. "I'm going to take you all the way round, sir," she said, joyously. "Then we can be by ourselves at least ten minutes longer."

LITERARY.

As a race, we have been working, in the domains of law and government, for centuries, not to abolish high office, but to regulate it by proper checks and balances so that it may work for the good of the many; and, in the domain of economics, it is equally out task not to attack large fortunes in themselves, but intelligently and without hysterics to set about the creation of checks and balances by which gerat power in the form of wealth may be so controlled that it will do no injury to the many—J. Laurence Laughlin, in the July Atlantic.

Public Library Suggestions for Summer Reading.

The indespensable qualifications for a summer book for the average reader are that it shall be light as to matter and light as to weight, for one must not weight a trunk too heavily with boks, nor can a quarto be comfortably read in a hammock. There is a third qualification for those who during the year are too busy to read much and who do not want to feel that their summer reading is merely to pass the time: that the book shall be worth reading.

I now offer the following, all of which fulfil the above conditions, to teachers especially, as suggestions as to what books to read in the summer. To the more systematic reader, the Library will be glad to give information as to the best books in a given line.

Evelyn's Diary and correspondence. "Covers the period, 1641-1705 and forms a good complement to Pepy's. The author was a devoted Tory."

Critical and historical essays of Thomas Babington Macaulay. Of these, I would suggest the following: Mme. d'Arblay, Earl of Chatham, Warren Hastings, Lord Clive, Addison.

Poe's Tales. The Library has all these in a neat little edition. Some of the most famous are, "The fall of the House of Usher," "Hopfrog," and "The murders in the Rue Morgue," the last being one of the best detective stories of literature.

Sir Roger de Coverly papers by Addison. "He is humane. Man is the one interesting thing to him; he is never weary of tracking out human character into its shyest recesses, of studying human conduct, of watching the play of human thought and feeling, of contrasting man's infinite capacities of greatness with his infinite capacity for littleness." John R. Green.

Island fisherman by Pierre Loti. A very charming little story, both the French original and the English translation of which are in the Library.

The simple life by Charles Wagner. The little book by the famous Protestant pastor, which has been so widely read. Other of his books are "Youth," "The better way," etc.; the former of which the Library also owns in French for those who prefer to read it in the original.

Bab ballads, much sound and little sense, by W. S. Gilbert. Illustrated by the author. Of the Ballads, the author says, "I do not know that I have anything very definite to say about them, except that they are not as a rule founded on fact," which is as delightful as anything in the Ballads themselves.

"In the dozy hours." This is by that charming essayist, Agnes Repplier; one would find any other of her books equally interesting, but this contains the essay: "On behalf of parents," which is sure to interest teachers especially.

Abbe Daniel by Andre Theuriet. A charming little idyl of French country life, pure in tone and of admirable literary quality.

"The life of Samuel Johnson." Its size has heretofore deterred many from reading this much recommended book. The Library now has it in six dainty little volumes, which are light and easy to hold, and the type is good.

"Some fruits of solitude." Of this book by Willian Penn, so popular in the eighteenth century, Robert Louis Stevenson says, "Even the copy was dear to me....carried in my pocket all about San Francisco streets, read in street cars and ferry boats, when I was sick unto death, and found in all times and places a sweet and peaceful companion.....For while, just now, we are so busy and intelligent, there is not the man living—nor recently dead—that could put with so lovely a spirit so much honest, kind wisdom in words."

Essays of Douglas Jerrold, new edition by his grandson. A charming edition, with Brock's illustrations, of the essays of the author of the popular "Mrs. Claudie' Curtain Lectures." He himself says of his essays, "It will be our chief object to make every essay, however brief and however light and familiar in its treatment, breathe with a purpose." "That this conviction," says the editor, "was at the back of the greater part of Douglas Jerrold's writings no student of his works can fail to recognize."

"Diary of Samuel Pepys." The Braybrooke edition in one handy little volume, with clean, good type, the thinness of the paper which yet does not show through, makes possible its compression in one volume. "A miracle among human books," says Stevenson. "He was not unconscious of his errors, far from it; he was often startled into shame, often reformed, often made and broke vows of change. But whether he did ill or well, he was still his own unequalled self; still that entrancing ego of whom alone he cared to write."

Tabb, John. Poems and Child life. "Whatever his matter, Father Tabb's workmanship is always extremely finished; his stanzas are cut and polished like cameos or gems." Athenaeum, September, 1903.

If you are leaving town for a few weeks in the summer, be sure and ask about the Library's special summer arrangement for teachers.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Louis Wiltse pitched for York against Johnstown on Monday, and although he was touched for ten hits, he won his game by a score of 10 to 3.

Stauffenberger, of the New Boston, Pa., team, probably holds the strike out record for this season. He fanned twenty-one batsmen on the Manahoy team.

Attorney Spangler, of the York (Pa.) Club, announces that he will fight any action on the part of the Baltimore Club to restrain Wiltse and Hayden from playing with York. He claims that Baltimore stole Weigand and Jones from York and cannot come into court with clean hands.

An enviable record stands to the credit of Phil Smith, the Plainfield High School crack pitcher. During the past high school season he easily upheld his reputation of the season before, displaying excellent form in the box as well as numbering among the top-notchers in batting. Among the schools he faced were Brooklyn Boys' high school, Erasmus Hall high school, Cranford high school, Rutgers Prep. School, Newark high school, Pingry School, Leal's School, and Morris high school, all representative schools of this vicinity. Erasmus Hall high school by defeating Brooklyn Boys' high school in a series of games, won the championship of Brooklyn, but the Erasmus boys, too, fell victims to the fast work of the locals, a great part of which was due to the masterly box work of Smith.

But it was not until the game with Morris high school, of New York, that Smith showed his greatest mastership in the box. The New Yorkers came here with the reputation of being sluggers, but they found the hits off Smith few and far between. At the end of the game the scorer's tabulated record was for Morris high school, A. B., 27; runs, 0; hits,1; a record in itself. This record has never been equalled in the history of the Plainfield high school.

Smith's remarkable pitching in this and other games has been so broadcast that it has reached the notice of Philip Daab, manager of the Plainfield Athletic Club team. It is thought in this vicinity by those on the inside that Daab is thinking seriously of giving Smith a trial on the local team. There are many in the city who think that if he is given a chance on a team where he would receive such excellent support as the locals would give, Smith would not fail to make good. Anyway should Smith be given a chance, Mr. Daab would comply with an earnest request of many rooters. Since the high school season has closed, Smith has been pitching for Dunellen on Saturdays, and there also, he has established a record to be proud of.

TENNIS.

There were sixteen entries in the preliminary round of the boys' tennis tournament which began yesterday morning on the courts at the Plainfield Country Club, for a cup to be presented by Henry L. Hall. The play is for boys under fifteen years of age. The result of the preliminary round was as follows:

T. M. Day, 3d, won from J. O. Murray, 6-1, 6-0; J. O. Fleming won from Ogden Rogers, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2; Kenneth Runyon defaulted to Kenneth S. Brown; Norman Averill won from George Burke by default; Otis Averill defeated Roger Mellick, 6-4, 6-2; W. W. Wilson won from Reginald Gough, 6-0, 6-1; Murray Rushmore defaulted to John C. Martin, and Lyman C. Hibbard won from R. H. Depew, Jr., 6-4, 6-5.

The first round was played in the afternoon and resulted as follows:

J. O. Fleming beat T. M. Day, 3d, 6-4, 6-2; Norman Averill beat K. S. Brown, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3; Otis Averill beat W. W. Wilson, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0; John C. Martin beat Lyman C. Hibbard, 6-1, 6-0.

This morning the semi-final play resulted as follows:

James O. Fleming beat Norman Averill, 6—2, 8—6, and John C. Martin beat Otis Averill, 6—1, 6—2. The final play this afternoon will be between J. O. Fleming and John C. Martin, and should be an exciting one, as both are in the best of condition and are evenly matched.

VAIL-VOORHEES-CROSS KIND SCARCE IN UNION

NEWARK NEWS' COMMENT ON THE SENATORIAL SITUATION.

The Newark Evening News said editorially yesterday:

The political situation in Union county is about as involved as it has been in a number of years. There is no longer, it is true, an open fight between the Kean-Fowler Republican factions, but there is a residuary legacy of belligerent caution lest one or the other shall get a little too many of the places on the compromise ticket next fall. The greatest difficulty is to find a candidate for Senator who will size up to the Magie-Vail-Voorhees-Cross standard, and at the same time be acceptable to both factions. Union county hasn't many such men; neither has any other county. It has been generally agreed, in the interests of harmony, that Plainfield is entitled to the Senatorial nomination, but that Plainfield must name a man agreeable to the rest of the county, and not a prominent factionist. Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk has been selected by common consent, but Mr. Fisk will not accept the nomination. This is practically conclusive. His health and his friends will not permit him to again enter active politics. City Judge Runyon and Ernest R. Ackerman are next in order, but each of these men is opposed to the other. The Plainfield bosses, McCardell and MacMurray, are also opposed to Ackerman, and if there is a divided delegation and a struggle in the convention, as there was three years ago over the sheriff, the rest of the county may remember the bolt and the bolters. On the Democratic side, former Judge Gilhooly is urged to take the nomination, but hesitates. He is not anxious to go into politics again, though he thinks the chances good. There is also a mixup in the Republican ranks over the shrievalty nomination, and it is pretty difficult to see light in the Union county situation. The leaders themselves admit that they are in the dark.

Forestry Commission.

The State Forestry Commission, recently named by Governor Stokes, met yesterday for organization. A tract of land, preferably in South Jersey, is to be secured at once for the beginning of operations. The commission drew lots for their terms as follows: E. B. Voorhees, of New Brunswick, for one year term; T. B. Price, of Tuckerton, for two years' term; Prof. John C. Smock, of Trenton, for three years' term. The Governor, who is a member ex-officio of this commission, will name a new commissioner each year hereafter. The commissioner yesterday named William H. Chew as secretary of the body.

Bayonne Woman Loses $5,000.

New York, June 28.—Miss Celia Hogan, of 65 West Sixteenth street, Bayonne, is almost distracted over the loss of the savings of a lifetime —$5,000—in New York. She believes that the money was stolen from her while she was on a Third avenue elevated train on her way to the Bronx last Friday. It was not until yesterday that her loss was reported to the Bayonne police, although the New York police have been working on the case since a few hours after the money was lost.

Allen to Play with Westfield.

Allen, of Scotch Plains, who formerly caught for the Safe Works' team and Scotch Plains, and who has been playing with Raritan this season, has signed to play the rest of the season for Westfield, taking the place of Cotter, who succeeded Farmer. He will catch his first game on Saturday.

"Anthropologically Speaking."

Black bass fishing is at its height in this section. Saturday night a one hundred and forty pounder was seen in the brook above the bridge, and it will not spoil the story to say that this particular fish wore a derby hat which was fished out the next morning.—Dunellen Call.

SURVIVORS OF CO. H TO ATTEND FUNERAL

J. F. Hubbard's Comrades to Pay Their Last Respects to Dead Captain.

COUNTY HONORS HIM

Court and Officials of City and County, as Well as Bank Directors, Will Be Present at Obsequies.

Day, of Camden, is now the only surviving captain of the regiment, and he is expected to attend the obsequies. The members of Company H who will be in line are:

Compton, Rahway, John Fromm, John Henrick, both of Elizabeth; Jacob Manning, of this city; James Rea, Elizabethport; Charles B. Rogers, Nelson Runyon, Theodore J. Runyon, all of this city; George W. Townley, James A. Hawley, both of Newark; James L. Mundy, of this city; George Richards, of Springfield. David Weaver and Peter V. Weaver, both of this city, belonged to the regiment but not the company which Mr. Hubbard commanded.

Charles B. Rogers spent all day yesterday finding the surviving members of the company. They all expressed their desire to pay their last respects to the Captain who lead them at Chancellorsville and Fredericksburg.

PRESIDENT'S VISIT.

Prefers to be Met in Asbury Park Instead of Jersey City, July 7.

After consulting with Governor Stokes and Adjutant-General Breintnall yesterday, Principal James M. Green, of the New Jersey State Normal School, who was appointed by President William H. Maxwell, of the National Educational Association to take charge of the arrangements for receiving President Roosevelt at the meeting of the N. E. A. at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove July 7, announced the plans, so fas as completed, which have been approved by Secretary Willam Loeb, Jr., for the President.

The President and his party, consisting of Private Secretary William Loeb, Jr., Surgeon Charles F. Stokes, U. S. N., and others, will leave Oyster Bay, Long Island, at about 10 o'clock July 7 and go by special train to Long Island City, then by special Pensylvania Railroad tug from Long Island City to Jersey City, and then by special train on the Pennsylvania Railroad from Jersey City to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, reaching the latter places at 2 p. m.

ELOPING BRIDE IN ASYLUM.

Prosperous Father Unaware of Her Condition.

When Robert Eastburn, a druggist of New Brunswick, received a subpoena yesterday instructing him to appear to testify in proceedings brought to determine the responsibility for his daughter's support at the State Insane Asylum, it was the first intimation he had that his daughter was insane or had been committed to the institution.

The young woman, Mrs. Vica Eastburn Carr, was committed as an indigent patient two weeks ago at the instance of her husband. She was the heroine, two years ago, of an elopement romance. Her husband, John Carr, was employed as soda water clerk by her father.

She had just been graduated from a seminary and on her 20th birthday she and the good-looking young clerk ran away and were married and forgiven. The girl's father said he was able and willing to pay for his daughter's maintenance as a private patient.

Miss May E. Howlett, of Elmwood place, will go to Brooklyn tomorrow to attend the wedding of her cousin, Harold Cox.

Miss Nora McNevins, of White Haven, Pa., has returned home after visiting her brother, B. J. McNevins, of East Fourth street.

HAHR CHARGE DISMISSED.

Twice Woman Compainant Fails to Appear—Dunavan Discharged.

Something like six weeks ago Mrs. Caroline Hahr had Lewis Dunavan arrested on a charge of assaulting her. A week later the case was called in Justice Mosher's court, but Mrs. Hahr didn't appear. Her lawyer, S. S. Swackhamer, said she was too sick to come out and secured an adjournment for a month.

Yesterday the case was called again. This time neither Mrs. Hahr nor the lawyer appeared. Justice Mosher said he was tired of waiting for the plaintiff and dismissed the charge on the motion of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., lawyer for Dunavan.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the City National Bank was held on Tuesday, June 27, 1905, to take action respecting the death of J. Frank Hubbard, its President, and the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from among us, our friend and associate, J. Frank Hubbard, for many years a director, and for four years past our President. It is but right and fitting, that we at this time record the expression of our high regard of his faithful service and ability in discharging the duties of his office, and to give to his family these words of sympathy and esteem.

Therefore be it resolved, That in the contemplation of his noble character, integrity and unfailing devotion to the interests of life to which he was called, we are brought to a sad realization of our loss. As a friend, director, and President, his life and association was one that endeared itself to us, and as a worthy citizen of the community, his years were those of honor and praise.

Resolved, That we offer to his bereaved family, our heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of deep affliction, and the assurance that his memory will be treasured in our thoughts.

Resolved, That an engrossed copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased, recorded in full upon the minutes, and published in each of the city papers.

ASKS $50,000 DAMAGES.

Elizabethport Man Hurt in Trolley Accident Brings Suit.

Elizabeth, June 28.—A suit for $50,000 was started yesterday in the Union County Court by Christian H. von Rhein, an Elizabethport produce dealer, against the Public Service Corporation for injuries which he sustained March 1, 1905, on Frelinghuysen avenue by a Newark-Elizabeth trolley car, running down a rig which he was driving from the Newark market.

The wagon, loaded with vegetables, was demolished, the team of horses attached to it were severely injured and von Rhein was thrown into the road and so badly hurt, it is claimed, that he will never recover from his injuries, which are principally to his head. He was for several weeks in the Elizabeth General Hospital, from whence he twice escaped while partly deranged, once by jumping out of a second story window. He is still under treatment at the institution.

TRUELL INN'S ADDITION

Architect's Plans For Four Story Structure on Eighth Street.

42 MORE ROOMS.

Mrs. J. R. Truell Will Award Contract for a Big Addition to Her Park Avenue Hostelry.

Architect E. V. French has completed plans for the proposed addition and improvements to be made at Truell Inn, Park avenue, of which Mrs. J. R. Truell is proprietress. Mrs. Truell has decided to build a four story addition on West Eighth street, and the two buildings will be connected by spacious oallways. She does not propose to make any special improvements in Truell Inn, other than to convert the present large dining room into a private one for special parties or families.

The new addition will be of cement or solid concrete and will contain forty-two rooms, including a new dining room and new kitchen. On the first floor there will be the large dining room and three bedrooms, while there will be thirteen bed-rooms on each of the second, third and fourth floors, with all the modern improvements.

The exact arrangement has not been definitely decided but there will probably oe separate bath-rooms for every two or three rooms and in some cases individual suits will have a separate bath. The entire structure will be equipped throughout with every known improvement and convenience. The kitchen will be located in the basement and will be modern in every respect.

At present Mrs. Truell is securing estimates for the work and she hopes to be able to award the several contracts within a short time. Since taking hold of Truell Court several years ago, Mrs. Truell has had remarkable success and she was obliged to seek additional quarters to accommodate her patrons. She did this by taking what is now known as Truell Inn and the accommodations being limited there, she has decided to build the proposed addition.

TITLED WOMAN GETS DIVORCE.

Lady Grey-Egerton Legally Separated—Formerly Miss Mae Cuyler.

Lady Grey-Egerton, of London, England, has secured a divorce through the London courts from her husband, Sir Philip Grey-Egerton, on the ground of desertion. She was formerly Miss Mae Cuyler, daughter of the late Major J. Wayne Cuyler, U. S. A., being born and reared in Morristown.

She married Sir Philip in 1893, and her American friends who visited her from time to time believed her most happily wedded until about a year ago, when Sir Philip went to India, and Lady Grey-Egerton practically withdrew from society, devoting herself to her family. As Sir Philip continued to absent himself, the American girl determined not to have her position misunderstood and brought a suit in the divorce court for a "restitution of her conjugal rights."

A decree was issued directing Sir Philip to return and live with his wife or else show in a suit brought by him that he was justified in abandoning her. He took no notice of the mandate of the court, and Lady Grey-Egerton then instituted a suit for absolute divorce on the ground of desertion.

NEGROES ARE BARRED.

Bath-house Proprietor Refuses Bathing Suit to Colored Man.

The refusal on the part of a downtown bath-house propritor at Atlantic City to let a suit to a wealthy New York negro has stirred up considerable excitement among the negroes there. A threat has been made that since the bath-house keepers on the lower boardwalk practically have agreed not to give bathing suits to negroes the entire beach will be used by the race for bathing purposes. Heretofore the negroes have been supplied with suits by a negro bath-house keep in Texas avenue. This year the place is closed, and as there is no other negro bathing house here the negro must provide himself with his own suit and walk to the beach from his home or boarding-place.

SCOTCH PLAINS GIRL FOR JAMES LE R. POPE

MISS MAY M. MARSH BRIDE OF BOROUGHITE.

Miss May Morton Marsh, daughter of Mrs. John Marsh, Jr., and James LeRoy Pope, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Pope, of Manning avenue, North Plainfield, were married last night at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride in Scotch Plains. It was a quiet event, being witnessed only by the immediate families and near relatives.

While the Lohengrin wedding march was being played by Miss Florence Nicholl, a classmate of the bride at school, the bridal party proceeded from the library to the parlor, where Rev. Clarence C. Woodruff, of Roselle, a former pastor of the M. E. church, performed the ceremony.

The Misses Esther Meyers and Ruth Johnston were the ribbon bearers. They were dressed in white. The other attendants were Miss Josephine Myer Marsh, sister of the bride, as maid of honor; Miss Dorretta Louise Cook, of Scotch Plains, and Miss May Mulford, of this city, as bridesmaids. Herbert Foster Mooney was the best man. The ceremony was performed beneath a large canopy of flowers and greens. The bride was given away by her cousin, William Ferris Hurston, Jr., of Derby, Conn. The ushers were William Evans Anderson, of Plainfield, and Charles Elliot Hurston, of Brooklyn.

The bride was gowned in white crepe dechine, trimmed with old point lace, her bridal veil being caught up with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pink flowered organdie, trimmed with lace.

The decorations were an attractive arrangement of white and green in the parlor, while in the dining room pink was the prevailing color. After the ceremony a reception was held.

The bride received a large collection of gifts, useful and costly, including cut glass, silverware, bric-a-brac and furniture.

The groom is an employe in the office of the Potter Printing Press Works, and both he and his wife are well known in a large circle of friends. The bride is an active worker in the M. E. church, Scotch Plains, and a favorite in the younger social set. After a wedding trip, which will include Washington, the couple will reside at Scotch Plains for the present, making their home with the bride's mother on Park avenue.

FIGHTING OVER A NAME

Original Rogers Concern Want Another Injunction Against Plainfielder.

ANOTHER BILL FILED

Vice Chancellor Stevens Reserves Decision—William H. Rogers is the Defendant.

Not satisfied with the concessions made by the members of the Plainfield Silver Plate Company, successor to the William H. Rogers Corporation, which was recently dissolved, the International Silver Company is now seeking through the courts to restrain William H. Rogers from using his name in his business of manufacturing silver plated ware.

On the allegation that Mr. Rogers still continues to manufacture and sell silver plated ware bearing his name in defiance to the decree of the court granted in the suit for injunction brought by the International Silver Company, counsel representing the latter company filed yesterday in the Court of Chancery in Newark a supplemental bill of complaint praying for an injunction restraining the defendant from using his name in any manner whatsoever in connection with the silver plating business.

Craig A. Marsh, counsel for William H. Rogers, bitterly opposed the application before Vice Chancellor Stevens, asserting that the complainant was fully protected under the terms of the decree granted in the former suit, which was affirmed by the Court of Errors. Vice Chancellor Stevens reserved decision.

For the purpose of conforming to the demands of the International Silver Company, the concern known as the William H. Rogers Corporation and the Plainfield Silver Plating Company were recently dissolved and do not now exist, and the labels and dies of the concern were all changed at considerable expense and trouble, so that there would be no infringement of the rights and patents claimed by the International Silver Company.

William H. Rogers is now engaged in the business alone on Madison avenue, and the International Silver Company wants to prevent him from using his name in his business, maintaining that this is an infringement on the original name of Rogers, used for many years by the company. Mr. Rogers will contest the case to the court of last resort, claiming that he cannot be denied the right to use his own name in his business. His counsel claims that he conformed to the provisions of the law when the corporation was dissolved and the labels and dies were changed.

CHIDSEY COMPANY ASSIGNS.

Big Free Delivery Company to Be Reorganized as Soon as Possible.

Chidsey's New York Free Delivery, whose business extends to this city, made an assignment yesterday afternoon before Theodore C. English at Elizabeth. It has not been given out to whom the assignment was made and the details are lacking because the transaction has not yet been consummated. It is probable that F. L. and A. Heidritter, of Elizabeth, will be named.

The reasons ascribed for the assignment is the hard winter and the consequent loss of horses and damage to vehicles and other causes not under the control of the management.

The company was obliged to discharge over one hundred employes last night and an inventory is being made today. Mr. Chidsey stated that the business will be closed for several days, perhaps a week, until a stock company is formed which can take hold of the business and continue it. These negotiations are now going on and Mr. Chidsey said that he was sure the business would not be closed for a longer period. It was also stated authoritatively that several men of capital have already agreed to take over the business under a stock arrangement and carry it through. The company is now forming, but none of the names of those interested will be given out until the deal is closed.

J. E. FLEMING WON.

Boys' Tennis Tourney on Country Club Courts.

Under the direction of Tom Day, the annual tennis tournament for boys under sixteen, at the Plainfield Country Club, was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. Seldom has such interesting and clean cut tennis been played by young fellows.

The finals were played yesterday afternoon before a good sized enthusiastic crowd. The contestants in this round were Jack Martin and James Fleming, each having won his place to the finals easily. Both boys started off at a rapid clip, and the strokes each one displayed were remarkable. However, the first set of the match, which was to be the best three out of five, went to Fleming, who kept Martin on the run in all parts of the court. The score here was 6—2. In the next set Martin braced up, every game in the set going to deuce, and the final score of the set was 9—7 in Fleming's favor. The spectators were brought to their feet several times during the play of this set at the marvelous and often seemingly impossible returns of well placed shots. The next set, too, was a corker, and went to Martin, 8—6, principally because Fleming was weakening under the strain of too much work. This made the set two to one in Fleming's favor, only necessitating his winning one more. After a little rest, the next set was begun, and Fleming played in his early form, winning by a score of 6—4.

As the winner of the tournament, Fleming will receive a cup offered by a club member, while Martin will receive some new tennis balls.

During the tournament Victor Tillotson, Norman Averill and William Wilson acted as linesmen.

GROOM ALREADY WEDDED

Dramatic Cancellation of Miss Ethel May Fenner's Nuptials.

ON THE WEDDING DAY.

Everything in Readiness for the Marriage When Bride's Brother Learns That James Francis Miller is Married Man.

Miss Ethel May Fenner, of Pluckamin, was to have been married yesterday afternoon to James Francis Miller, of New York. Yesterday morning arrangements for the wedding were in full swing at the Fenner home, when a letter arrived from James Francis Miller asking that the marriage be postponed. Soon after that John Fenner, Jr., brother of the bride-to-be, learned from the mother of the bridegroom-to-be that James Francis Miller was a married man.

Miss Fenner is well known in Dunellen and this city. John Fenner, Jr., was in business in Dunellen for several years, and is at present conducting a grocery store on Somerset street.

James Francis Miller met Miss Fenner about three years ago. He is a drummer and represented himself as a single man. About a year ago they became engaged and he gave her a handsome engagement ring. He conducted himself as a model fiancee, and none of the bride's friends or family suspected that there was anything wrong about him. He was a regular weekly visitor to the Pluckamin home.

Yesterday was fixed as the marriage day at his own suggestion, and preparations for a large wedding were made. Many invitations were sent out, numbers of them to Dunellen and this city.

There was amazement in the Fenner family when the bridegroom's letter of postponement was received. When James Francis Miller himself failed to put in an appearance, John Fenner, Jr., went to New York to look him up. He was unable to find James Francis Miller, but did locate his mother.

She was amazed to hear of the Pluckamin wedding arrangements.

"Why, my son is a married man," she said. "I have never heard the slightest hint of this Pluckamin affair."

Before going back to Plucamin, Mr. Fenner looked up some more about James Francis Miller, and discovered, it is said, that he has three children.

When Mr. Fenner got back to Pluckamin all the wedding arrangements were cancelled. The telegraph and telephone were used to reach as many of those invited as possible, but many guests inaccessible in either way arrived at the house as the wedding hour approached.

No action against James Francis Miller is likely to be taken by the Fenners. They are thankful to have discovered what they did in time to prevent a marriage.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The metal hood over the engine of a big gasoline auto in which a party of four men went through the borough yesterday afternoon, was flung off by the bump that shook the machine as it went over the thank-ye-marm left on North avenue by the gas pipe layers. The machine took the rise at full speed and the hood, which had evidently been left unfastened, shot a couple of feet in the air and tumbled into the road. It was bent by the fall and the chauffeur had considerable trouble in putting it back in place.

Stacy B. Opdyke, Jr., has had his big St. Bernard dog clipped. The dog was the talk of the borough when it appeared yesterday afternoon, bare of every bit of fur except a tuft on the end of its tail. The girls blushed when they looked at it.

George has the best wishes of the local fans when he dons the new uniform.

MAUCH CHUNK FOR JULY 4th.

There is no grander scenery anywhere than you will find on the journey to Mauch Chunk via the New Jersey Central.

Jersey is attractive, especially in the northern section, and the rolling country offers a variety of attractions the like of which no other section can boast. Pennsylvania and its mountains are too widely known to need elaboration, but Mauch Chunk and vicinity is a garden spot, if ever there was one. The Switchback Railroad is novel, inasmuch as no motive power is needed for operation. The inclines are gradual and in the fourteen mile journey there are many interesting experiences and fascinating scenes are unfolded with startling rapidity.

For a day's outing there is no place more thoroughly enjoyable than Mauch Chunk, and when the small cost of a day's trip is considered there is little left to be said. The New Jersey Central will run one of its popular one day excursions to Mauch Chunk on the Fourth of July by special train, which will leave Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk before noon. The returning train does not leave the mountain resort until 5:30 p. m., hence there is ample time for journeying over the Switchback, visiting Flag Staff and Glen Onoko. 6-23-td

JOURNALISTIC OPINION.

"Graft" and Druggists.

The New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association, after waiting for the State Board of Health to take long-delayed action, is about to devote itself to eliminating "graft" among druggists. "Graft" among the professional compounders of remedial agencies, consists in "substitution," in giving false weights and in using inferior drugs. Let it be said at once that the vast majority of men following the business of pharmacy are honest. But there are some in this walk of life who would stop at no deception, so long as there is "money in it." Upon these people the Pharmaceutical Association has declared war, which should be prosecuted until the last one of the wrongdoers is driven from the State. The Camden Post-Telegram properly throws a portion of the responsibility upon the shoulders of the druggists, when it says that if reputable pharmacists would agree not to handle any compounded articles which they know to be adulterated or not put up to the standard, and "pass the word along" whenever they find a palpable attempt to defraud or deceive the public, they could do effective work in breaking up the adulterated drug business.

The Association and the druggists working hand in hand could perform a conspicuous public service, and for that reason their efforts are worthy of the highest commendation.—Trenton True American.

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong, and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On July 2, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours, and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment. 6-22-td

Fishing and Shooting.

A new region, now accessible for the first time by rail, and known as the "Temagami" (pronounced Temmog-a-me) District, is being brought to the notice of the public as one of the finest fishing and hunting confines in Canada. Excellent sport is assured all who take advantage of a trip to this magnificent territory which is situated 300 miles north of the city of Toronto at an altitude of 1,000 feet above the sea. Black bass, speckled trout, wall-eyed pike and other species of fish are found here in abundance, and large game, such as moose, caribou and deer, abound in the forests. A handsome booklet, profusely illustrated, giving all information, including comprehensive maps, can be had free on application to F. P. Dwyer, E. P. DILL DISCUSSES GRAFT

Corporation Lawyer Talks on Timely Subject at Oberlin Commencement.

FORMS OF GRAFTING.

Fault Lays With the People—Character Needed in This Age—Craze for Unearned Money.

James B. Dill, New Jersey's greatest corporation lawyer, made the commencement day address at Oberlin College, Oberlin, O., yesterday, his topic being "Back to the Beginning." Miss Anna Brodnax, valedictorian at the Plainfield High School commencement exercises last year, is a student at Oberlin.

Mr. Dill in his address dwelt largely on graft. Incidentally he said:

Graft is the advanced stage of the craze for unearned money. Primarily it is not so much the desire to get something for nothing, or, rather it is not only the desire to get something for nothing, but it is an attempt to get something in consideration of the grafter's parting with something that really does not belong to him. It is a wrong greater than that of the counterfeiter, who merely makes and passes counterfeit coin. The grafter is a man who robs the counterfeiter, who made the coin, and then passes the spurious coin to the public as genuine. The essential element of graft is a breach of trust. Graft is well nigh universal. We meet it in its various forms everywhere. Its most common form, however, is in the illicit use of power or authority. The legislator who is influenced by the argument which appeals to his pocket rather than to his sense of civic obligation, practices a form of graft which is dangerous to the community. The public is awakened now to the danger of this man. We know him; we understand him. Some day, and none too soon, we shall refuse to vote for him, and then he will pass away.

"Conversely, is it not true that the candidate for public office and the public official are ofttimes made the object of attack by grafters? The demands on men in public life to bear expenses—"campaign," so-called, and otherwise—to make contributions to every possible and often impossible object, come close to the line of 'graft.' Many a man in public life, otherwise honest, has been made dishonest, has been forced into graft, and by grafters, because of his inability to say 'No;' because of his lack of moral courage to refuse requests for money, legitimate perhaps, but beyond his means.

"Another graft is that of the officer in a financial institution who is influenced in the use of the funds of the institution by any consideration other than the good of the institution. Such a man is dangerous to the community—as dangerous as the political grafter—but we do not always recognize him. His position is so high and his form of graft is so insidious that its existence ofttimes is not suspected until the explosion resulting from his grafting has injured the community and made the man and his practices notorious; but too late. The director of a corporation who directs its affairs from the viewpoint of his own pocket rather than from the standpoint of the stockholers' interest, although he may not be indicted by a Grand Jury, is none the less a social highwayman.

"And this crime is common. It is an every-day occurrence. It is an ordinary form of graft. There is ground for the assertion that because the men who do these things are too high up, because they have vast capital and great influence back of them, their acts are designated 'operations' rather than 'crimes;' and as such are applauded, not punished. The dummy director of a great company who dummyizes himself for pay, whether by the year or by the job, who uses his position to control the use and disposition of other people's money for personal gain is in no position to criticise the clerk who falsifies his accounts, or the employe who embezzles. Yet we hear of instances of men who have stolen millions having sent to jail employes who had taken only hundreds or thousands of dollars.

"Now whose fault is this? It is ours. It is the fault of public opinion, and public opinion is our opinion, yours and mine—yours of me, mine of you, ours of all the rest. We must learn to recognize graft and the grafters, however respectable their disguise—and to punish them, not alone by imprisonment and fine, but with all the might of the terrible scorn of society. We have to recognize that the seeds of socialism, revolution and anarchy are sown by the man of our own class and kind who pretends to be what he is not, and they are cultivated by the grafting bank officer, insurance officer, man in power in financial organizations, in short, by every grafter who in his dealings with the public departs openly or secretly from old fashioned Ten-Commandment honesty.

"I say again that the fault is not with the corporate form, the aggregation, the association, but with the individual. I repeat that the reformer who only attacks corporations inveighs against form rather than substance. He is missing, perhaps he is avoiding, the issue.

"It is easier for the preacher to discuss sin in the abstract than from the pulpit to indicate the members of his congregation who are sinners. So it is easier to condemn theories, associations, platforms and organizations than point the finger at the offending men or men and specify the wrong. But that is too easy, and it is too innocuous. Our national evils are personal evils and reform must begin with educated men and women.

"We need, we must have, character. Many men of education, of power, financial and political, seem to develop a two-faced conscience, one for business use and another for the individual life. This is fraud. I say that a man who attempts to do business upon one basis of morals and live as an individual upon another basis is a fraud.

"The man who would not cheat in a $1.50 transaction, but would cheat in a million-dollar deal, is living on a false basis. If any man attempts to pluck his heart out of his living body, hoping to replace it without meanwhile becoming a corpse, he makes a physical mistake. The man who attempts to take his conscience out of his body as he enters his banking house, or his business house, or who, when he attends directors' meetings, or a syndicate conference, attempts to leave his conscience on the doorstep, like a half burned cigar, while he attends to business, will find nothing but a cold remnant when he returns—a dead conscience.

"The practise of doing, or acquiescing in the doing, by men in syndicates or as members of a corporate aggregation of acts which the individual would not do in his private life, upon the theory that syndicate and corporate morality is one thing, and individual morality is another, results in the total suppression of individual honesty and morality. In short, the man who inserts the plank in his tehory of daily living or in his theological belief that his corporate acts will be judged by one standard and his individual acts by another, here or hereafter, makes a mistake."

METHODISTS' CONVENTION

Expected That 20,000 Delegates Will Attend the Epworth League Meeting.

Among Methodists a wide interest is shown in the approaching seventh international convention of the Epworth League to be held in Denver, July 6 to 9. New Jersey will furnish a number of the speakers, including Rev. Dr. Charles L. Mead, pastor of the Centenary church, Newark; Rev. W. B. Fleming, of Maplewood; Rev. Charles S. Kemble, of Elizabeth; Rev. Dr. John Hanley, of Long Branch, and Rev. Dr. J. W. Marshall, of Ocean Grove. Two former Jerseymen, who will take a conspicuous part, are Bishop Henry Spellmeyer, to whose former pastorate in Newark Dr. Mead succeeded, and Rev. Dr. Stephen J. Herben, editor of The Epworth Herald, who recently removed from Maplewood to Chicago. Bishop Joseph F. Berry, who presided at the April session of the Newark Conference, is the league's president.

Mr. Kremble heads the excursion committee of the second general conference district, Epworth League, and serving with him are Dr. Mead and Mr. Fleming. Other members are Rev. George Aadms, of Bay Ridge, Brooklyn; Rev. J. A. Hensey, of Binghamton, N. Y., until recently of the Newark Conference, and W. O. Gantz, of New York. They have charge of the arrangements for the transportation of the Epworthians from this section to Denver, and have negotiated with the Lehigh Valley Railroad to run a special train, and two if necessary. The train will leave Newark at 9:57 o'clock, Monday morning, July 3. The only stopoff of any length will be made at Chicago, where a tally-ho ride will be taken around the city. The delegates are scheduled to arrive in Denver early Wednesday night, July 5. The Temple Emanuel has been assigned to the New Jersey contingent for use as a State headquarters, and the visitors from Newark will be welcomed to Denver by former Jersey people living in that city.

Apparanetly no efforts have been spared by the Denver Epworthians in providing for their entertainment of the great throng. They and the different State committees have secured from many of the railroads special rates, and the officials will so arrange the running of trains that the delegates will not have to travel on Sunday. For several months the Denver committee has been holding meetings, and recently announced that, although it was expected there will be 20,000 delegates, accommodations can be furnished for twice the number, is necessary. Besides the "city fathers" and the commercial organizations of Denver, the State officials have assisted the committee in every way the could. At a recent meeting of the Colorado Legislature a resolution was passed by which that body declared to officially welcome the delegates.

Churches of all denominations in the city have been put at the disposal of the leaguers, but the meetings proper will be held in Coliseum Hall, the Central Presbyterian and the Trinity Methodist churches. Dr. Herben and other members of the general committee have recently been to Denver to inspect the places of meeting to se ehow the local plans were progr ssing. He and his associates are having a large silk banner made, to be awarded to the State having the largest delegation. Colorado, Wyoming and Nevada will not be counted in the contest.

William J. Bryan has accepted an invitation to make an address, and there are a number of bishops on the programme also. Most of the sessions will be presided over by a bishop. Others who are scheduled to be there aside from Bishops Spellmeyer and Perry, are Bishops Isaac W. Joyce, Eearl Cranston and Henry W. Warren. The address of welcome on behalf of the city and the State will be made by Governor J. F. McDonald.

A convention badge of artistic design has been prepared. The metal part is made of copper, gold and silver mined in Colorado. The Italian band, "Banda Rosso," has been engaged to give two concerts every day inthe city park during the convention, and a chorus of 300 voices will render the oratorio "Elijah" Wednesday night, July 5, and the following Monday night. The general convention headquarters will be in the East Denver High School, and Dr. G. M. Edwards, chairman of the committee on medical relief, will have a central hospital station arranged. This will be equipped with drugs and appliances, and twenty-five skilled physicians and trained nurses will be in attendance. There will also be ambulances on hand. Side trips have been arranged for those who do not care to attend all the conferences. Some of these excursions will be to Cripple Creek, the Continental Divide, over "the Loop," Piks' Peak, the Switzerland Trail, Glenwood Springs and other points in the Rocky mountains.

The total membership of the Epworth League in this country is about 1,750,000.

Mrs. J. A. Love and son, of East Seventh street, are spending two weeks with relatives at Succasunna.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Runyon, of Madison avenue, will spend the summer at Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Plainfield, N. J., June 29, 1905.

Corporation Lawyer Dill addresses unsophisticated graduates on "Graft." Wise choice in speakers.

Dill talks on graft—New item. How it must make the "barons" chuckle—but Dill is out for a judgship.

"To Hell and Back" was the sermon topic of a Philadelphia preacher. Umph, most Philadelphians are content to remain away from Paterson.

Yes, fond reader, it was Edward Atkinson who declared that the cost of women's dress for a year should not exceed $65. No, he does not live in the tropics.

"The aim, if reached or not, makes great the life. Try to be Shakespeare—leave the rest to fate." In advertising that store, try to be Wanamaker—the rest is secure.

William L. Douglass, who sits in the gubernatorial chair in Massachusetts principally because he knew how to reach the people, and that is through advertising, has given some sagely advice to the boys of the Old Colony. He addressed them through public print, and, as an exchange remarks, his words will be of benefit to all boys throughout the country. Governor Douglass says:

You'll find that old ogre, called trouble, bobbing up in your pathway every now and then, and you'll never get to be on speaking terms with success.

Fortune, you know, favors the brave. Well, in the battle of life the really brave man is the one with courage enough to "stick to his last" in the face of early rebukes and temporary reverses. He's the fellow who will eventually be able to laugh at trouble and to get chummy with success.

What would you think of a shoemaker who, after making part of a shoe on one last, became dissatisfied and started another shoe on a different last, keeping up this method until he had finally spent all his money for stock and had nothing but a lot of half-finished shoes to show for it? Foolish way to do it, isn't it? But it's no more foolish than for a young man to tackle a new line of business every little while until he grows too old to learn any business thoroughly.

Now I want to give you another thing to think about while you're growing up and preparing to win fame and fortune in the commercial world. It is this: Don't try to do what you like—do what you can. That's a good companion piece for "stick to your last." Don't let the attraction of something you don't know lure you away from the thing you do know. Once upon a time a young man whose father made pickles, and who had learned the pickle business from A to Z, decided that he'd like to go into the business of making molasses candy. He didn't know anything about it, but he liked molasses candy and thought it would be great fun to make it and sell it. So he proceeded to try his hand at the business. The result was disastrous. His candy wasn't good candy, because he didn't know how to make it properly, and, therefore, nobody wanted to buy. Finally he went back to the pickle business, and made a fortune, because he certainly did know how to make good pickles and everybody bought them.

From many quarters comes the cry that the average school board in its effort to promote the standard of the public school is really neglecting "The Three R's." And this claim has some basis in fact. Often it is pitiable to read an article written by a high school graduate; pitiable because the composition shows that the writer has not been schooled in the bare rudiments of spelling and sentence-construction. The graduate has been too much wrapt up in his Latin and Greek. The Three R's were hurriedly passed in the mad rush to prepare him for the college examination. In New York and other large cities a strong fight is being made against the fads in the curriculum, the World and Globe particularly devoting much attention to the discussion. On Monday, the Evening World said:

"In the present discussions of the curriculum of the public schools the future welfare of the pupils should be considered first. Almost all of the boys and many of the girls who attend the public schools must earn their own living, beginning at an early age. If they have not the necessary fundamental groundwork they are handicapped. One great reason why employers prefer, especially in clerical positions, young men and women from the country or from other cities is their superiority in writing legibly, spelling correctly and in ordinary arithmetic. They may not know much of anything about a number of subjects taught in the New York public schools, but they are more valuable, because the few, simple things they have been taught they really know. The spelling and handwriting of the average graduate of the New York public schools is a reflection upon the school system."

D.A.R. TO CELEBRATE 4TH

Continental Chapter of This City Receives Official Notice.

Mrs. Donald McLean, president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has sent to each chapter of the society, including Continental Chapter, of this city, a card announcing that the Daughters will hold, on Fourth of July, a patriotic meeting in Memorial Continental Hall, at Washington. The Declaration of Independence will be read and addresses will be made.

"It seems pre-eminently fitting," says Mrs. McLean in the notice to the regents, "now that the walls of our Memorial Continental Hall are reared, that within them should resound on the Fourth of July the words that made us a nation, and that tributes should be paid in this day to that day which assured liberty to the land."

The Sons of the American Revolution, as well as the Sons of the Revolution, will co-operate with the Daughters of the American Revolution in celebrating the day. W. Hamilton Bayly, president of the District S. A. R., has sent out notices to all its members, quoting from Mrs. McLean's card to the regents, and requesting them to meet on the morning of the Fourth and to proceed to the Memorial Hall in a body. Francis Preston Blair Sands, the president of the District Society of Sons of the Revolution, has sent out similar notices to the members of that society.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, State vice-regent of the District, is the chairman of a committee of arrangemetns comprising all the chapter regents and Mrs. Herman Stump, of Belair, Md.

Mrs. McLean will deliver an address, and she will invite other speakers for the occasion. Mrs. McLean will, of course, preside.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Arthur Boynon, formerly of East Seventh street, Plainfield, and now of New York, sail for Europe on the Prinzess Alice today, for the summer.

BRYAN DEFENDS BOWEN

Leader Characterizes Roosevelt's Action and Morton Letter as Grave Blunders

President Roosevelt was taken to task yesterday by William J. Bryan at Des Moines, Iowa, for what the latter characterizes as the two colossal blunders of the present administration, and both committed within a week's time, namely, the letter exonerating Paul Morton and the action in the Bowen-Loomis affair.

"There is no public question in which I am more interested at this time,' said Mr. Bryan, "than the regulation of the railroads. I believe that the President has greatly embarrassed himself in his own efforts to improve the railroad situation by his attitude respecting Mr. Morton.

"The first step in the prosecution of an offender such as the Santa Fe is believed to have been is to give the officials of the company an opportunity to disprove connection with the giving of the rebates. The exemption of Mr. Morton from prosecution, because he may not have been as much implicated as others connected with the road, raises the question: When are we ever to make a beginning? If we insist on making a start with the worst offender, the court must determine the degree of a man's responsibility for the crime. Making an exception of Mr. Morton on personal grounds will inevitably embarrass the President in his further efforts."

The "glaring injustice" of deposing from office Herbert W. Bowen as former Minister to Venezuela, Mr. Bryan said, was apparent in view of the fact that the man who had committed the wrong went unpunished while Bowen was deposed on the charge that he had given to the press information concerning the acts of Loomis while the latter was Minister to Venezuela.

"The President's decision in this controversy," declared Mr. Bryan, "is a matter for keen regret. The worst that can be said against Mr. Bowen is that he was indescreet if he gave out the information as charged, while Loomis, in purchasing an interest in claims against the country to which he was accredited committed a grave offense."

Deed Gives Widow As Boundary.

A deed, executed seventy-six years ago, transferring three and three-fourths acres of land in what is now the city of Elizabeth from Joseph Wilbur to David Jaeggers, was placed on recor dat Newark yesterday. The transfer of title was made for the consideration of $67.50, and the property is described as "beginning at a ditch by the crossway near the house where David Bond now lives,' and "being bounded on the east by Obadiah Meeker, north on the crosways, south by the widow of John Pierson and west by the ditch near the upland.'

20 COUNCILS REVOLT

Hudson County Arcanumites Hold a Mass Meeting.

Twenty out of the thirty Royal Arcanum councils in Hudson county, at a mass meeting at Columbia Hall, Ocean and Cator avenues, Jersey City, Wednesday night, which meeting was attended by six hundred members of the order, unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, It is the sense of this meeting of the members of twenty councils of the Royal Arcanum of Hudson county, representing seven thousand members, in mass meeting assembled at Columbia Hall, in Jersey City, Tuesday, une 27, 1905, that having carefully considered the question of the change of rates and being advised that the Supreme Courts of various states have decided that no change in rates can be made, and believing that all funds can be provided by calling assessments to any amounts; be it therefore

"Resolved, First—That we demand an unconditional repeal of rates and conditions made and enacted May 8, 1905;

"Second—We demand the immediate use of drastic measures to stop deficits in certain jurisdictions;

"Third—A return to conditions enacted in May, 1898, and a call for all assessments required while certain jurisdictions are being closed."

The meeting was called for the purpose of taking some action regarding the increase in rates imposed by the Supreme Council. There was not a man present who spoke in favor of the new rates. On the contrary, they were denounced by every speaker on and off the platform.

The resolutions, however, were not passed without discussion. One Arcanumite wanted the reference to the Supreme Court stricken out, because he said it would be like flying a red flag in the face of a bull. Past Regent Gallagher, West Shore Council, stated the clause referring to the decision of Supreme Courts was purposely inserted to give the members of the Supreme Council to understand they could not violate the contract made with a member when joining the Royal Arcanum by raising the rates specified in such a contract, although the contract specifies that the Supreme Council in the Royal Arcanum constitution retains the right to raise the rates. The amendment, however, was withdrawn, as was an amedment to eliminate from the resolution the words "Hudson County." Copies of the resolution will be printed and sent broadcast throughout the State, and each Council will be asked to adopt the same, or resolutions along the same lines and forward them to the Supreme Council.

That the Supreme Courts in several of the states had rendered such decision as above mentioned caused a wave of surprise to sweep over the assemblage, and several Arcanumites declared that it encouraged them to enter the fight with renewed vigor. But few Arcanumites knew of such a decision until their attention was called to it by Past Regent Gallagher, who also declared that unless the Royal Arcanum got rid of ten jurisdictions which are paying nothing into the Royal Arcanum fund, but are drawing vast sums out annually, the order would have to go out of existence.

There was no mincing of words on the part of the speakers. The Supreme Council's action in raising the rates was denounced, and one speaker even went so far as to say their resignations should be demanded.

CAMP NORTHFIELD.

Begins Its Eleventh Season Today.

Camp Northfield, the well-known college man's resort of New England, opened today with over one hundred men safely encamped among the pines on Notch Mountain. It is expected that this number will increase to two hundred before the middle of July and by the time the camp closes, September first, it is probable that there will have been over five hundred men registered. The camp was started ten years ago by D. L. Moody as a Y. M. C. A. institution but since that time has broadened out so that now any young man who is out for a good clean vacation is welcomed. Last year new tennis courts and better boating facilities were put in and a camp club house was erected in honor of Henry Seifert, a former student manager of the camp who was killed on the General Slocum. The camp life begins with a rush as the athletic organizations already have their games and tournaments under way. An inter-collegiate field day and track meet will take place July fourth and after that follows a series of baseball games between the different college delegations who are in Northfield during this period. The campers are in close touch with the educational and religious conferences which are held at Northfield throughout the summer, and are permitted to attend the platform meetings, of the gatherings.

Lonsdale, Margaret.—Sister Dora. "Record of a life devoted to the sick poor. Sister Dora was a member of the Good Samaratan."

Franklin, Benjamin. — Autobiography. "A simple account of Franklin's life, delightful to read and one of the best examples of American literature. Franklin brought the story of his fiftieth year and the remainder is told chiefly through his letters."

Seawell, N. E.—Paul Jones. "Story of biography of the ranking officer of the continental mariners, full of his adventures in British waters during the revolution. Based on good authorities and in the fictitious parts consistent with his recorded life and deeds."

Brooks, E. S.—True story of Abraham Lincoln. "Entertaining and simple narrative for younger children. Many illustrations of varying merit."

Seawell, N. E.—Midshipman Paulding. "Story of the son of the John Paulding, famous for his capture of Major Andre; vivacious and true to fact."

Bourne, H. R. F.—Sir Philip Sidney. "Attractive and instructive, facts well grouped and told in the simplest language. Trustworthy as history, picturesque and dramatic as a story."

Brooks, E. S.—True story of George for children, with emphasis on Washington. "Entertainingly told the details interesting to them. Fully illustrated."

The above list was taken from the Bibliographical Bulletin of the New York State Library.

AMUSEMENTS.

For nearly six years the excellent stock companies maintained by Mr. F. F. Proctor at his three New York theatres and handsome playhouse in Albany have been steadily increasing their clientele. In summer or winter alike, the productions have been scrupulously given, and the high standard of the acting has never varied. The present summer, however, promises to witness better results than heretofore. Not only are the plays selected of a better artistic grade, but the personnel of the stock company has been strengthened. With actors so well known as Katherine Grey, Helen Tracy, J. H. Gillmour, Wallace Erskine, Frank Gillmore, James E. Wilson, Beatrice Morgan, James Durkin, Grayce Scott, Grace Reals, Agnes Scott, Frank McIntyre, Robert Rogers and Louise Mackintosh in the Proctor forces, it is little wonder that the various productions are made with perfect skill. Better than all, the Proctor theatres are kept wonderfully cool during these warm days and nights.

His Granddaughter Dead.

F. M. Whitney, of the borough, has received word of the death of his granddaughter, Agnes Whitely, daughter of James Whitely, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cooke, of Connecticut, are visiting Mrs. Cooke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David N. Force, of West Front street.

July 2: "The Making of a Christian. His Destiny".—I John ii, 15-17; iii, 1-3.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

It is clear to one who will stop to think that however long this world may go on, with all its seeking and getting, its strife and longings, the individual, whoever he may be, is not to abide long at the very best. A little while since and we were not here. A little while more and we shall not be here. We have some care for what will be after us, what the condition of our loved ones and the fate of our cherished schemes, but we have little influence to decide what shall be their destiny after we are gone. We may will much, but our wills may not be executed so carefully after we are gone as they have been while we were here and had oversight in person.

After all, the thing we are most interested in is our own destiny, and this is the very thing over which we have most influence and which others can least hinder us in deciding.

This world is to pass. We certainly are not to pass this way again. What can we get out of it of value? is the important consideration. We are to form ourselves, and personality will abide when things are no more in the way they now are.

We are sons of God by redemption through Jesus Christ. It is not yet made clear what we shall be. There is in prospect for us a world far beyond this present one in its possibilities if we rightly use the opportunities given us here.

The forms of bodily life are to be essentially changed. The powers of existence are to be enlarged in scope. The conception of the reality is probably beyond the powers of imagination we now have. Nor is it important that we know with exactness the nature of that bodily condition that awaits us beyond this earth, for our knowledge would not assist us an iota in procuring it and possibly might hinder the attainment.

The essential matter for us is the maturing and perfecting of our character in the likeness of Jesus. No one can from the very nature of things attain to that resurrection in the likeness of Christ who has not His spirit, transforming his nature into the Christ image here.

If the thoughts and desires of a person are fixed on the obtaining of the goods of this world without special reference to the righteousness of God, wealth, honors, social recognition and all the pleasures of sense may be procured, but the character will become shaped into the form of worldliness. This is so far different from the spirit of Jesus as to be recognized at once if one gives any thought to the Master's teachings.

The promises of Christ are definite, and the most unlettered can understand them. He sets an ideal before us and promises help in its realization. He has Himself attained its fullness. Whoever is attracted by the Christ life and desires to be like Him will purify himself from all the evil things of the world because Christ is pure.

Look yourself over and see if you have been clinging to some of the evil things of the world or if some of its vilenesses are sticking to you. If there is any of that with you, purify yourself from these things if you wish the inheritance that may be yours.

Destiny eternal is in the balance. It will pay to let the worthless go and secure the priceless treasure. Make no mistake here, for there are some mistakes that cannot be rectified after they are once committed. This is one of them.

How Unworthy!

How unworthily of my immortality do I bear myself and how like a serf of time when my impatience cannot wait a year for a result, a month for a reward or a week for a promised blessing! Thou dost not blame my ardent desires, dear Father. But with Thee there is no fretfulness. Thou dost live in the successful eternity. Draw me there with Thee, O Thou Prince of Peace and Patience! By daily proofs of Thy loving kindness, by the unfolding of Thy wise designs, by matchless surprises of joy, shame me from my distrust. Remind me that tomorrow holds Thee, even as today, and holds, therefore, all of today's beauty and strength and joy. Teach me that Thy postponement of happiness always enlarges it if I will be enlarged by the delay. Convince Thine impatient child that a thousand years of waiting for a blessing do not impair the blessing, because Thou art not impaired. Grant me the faith that exults to be tested and the peace that is not in bondage to any event.—Amos R. Wells.

Little Kindnesses.

The humble current of little kindnesses which, though but a creeping streamlet, yet incessantly flows, although it glides in silent secrecy within the domestic walls and along the walks of private life and makes neither appearance nor noise in the world, pours in the end a more copious tribute into the store of human comfort and felicity than any sudden and transient flood of detached bounty, however ample, that may rush into it with a mighty sound.—Fawcett.

Sentence Sermons.

If you find yourself beginning to love any pleasure better than your prayers, any book better than the Bible, any house better than the house of God, any table better than the Lord's table, any person better than Christ or any indulgence better than the hope of heaven, take alarm.—Thomas Guthrie.

The noblest question in the world is, "What good may I do in it?"—Benjamin Franklin.

"Few men are happy as their neighbors think them or as miserable as they believe themselves to be."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 2.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The making of a Christian; his destiny.—I John ii, 15-17; iii, 1-3. (Consecration meeting.)

Scripture and science agree upon the great fact that the material universe had a beginning. There was a time when the world did not exist. It is temporal, not eternal. Having had a beginning it will have an end. The world and the inhabitants thereof have a destiny before them, and we are to consider the destiny of the Christian. In the making of a Christian the final result is of great importance. Whether little or much care should be put upon his making depends upon his destiny. What is it all to amount to? Is his life to end in death except so far as he shall influence the lives of those who come after him, or has he a future life of endless ages before him? An Angelo would be a foolish man to expend great time and energy upon a statue of ice, but if working in marble that can stand the tests of the centuries even such a genius might well give to the task the best of everything that is in him. Hence if a Christian's destiny is eternal rather than temporal we may well "agonize to enter in at the straight gate." This being true it is of tremendous importance that God has revealed the fact that the Christian's destiny is an eternal one. "The world passeth away and the lust thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever."

Christians bear three relations to time. They are to the present, to what is called the intermediate state (between death and the resurrection), and the future after the resurrection. In the present we are the children of God. "Now are we the sons of God." Here in this present life we enjoy all the rights and privileges of God's children. What we shall be in the intermediate state has not been revealed, "and it doth not yet appear what we shall be." There has been much speculation regarding the soul's condition between death and the resurrection, but nothing definite has been revealed. After the resurrection we shall be with Christ and like Christ. "But we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." Seeing Christ shall make us like Christ, and being like Him we shall spend eternity with Him.

The Christian's destiny being an eternal rather than a temporal one too much time and thought cannot be expended in his making. As Christians we should consecrate all our powers to the service of God in Christ and live for eternity rather than time. This world should be estimated at its proper value. It is temporal; it will pass away; its charms even fail to hold us before we are called into the great future, as one who lives for it alone finds sooner or later that it is vanity. Why then should we sacrifice eternity for time? Let us, therefore, not "love the world" in an unworthy sense, but let us, having the hope of being with Christ and like Him, live as such should live, for "every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself even as He is pure."

Christian Endeavor at Portland Fair

We learn from President Rockwood of the Oregon Christian Endeavor Union that Christian Endeavor is to be well represented in connection with the Lewis and Clark exposition, which is to be opened at Portland June 1 and close Oct. 15. A good committee has been appointed to have charge of the work, and they have obtained headquarters in the downtown section of the city. Here will be a bureau for renting rooms in the homes of Christian families for the accommodation of the best class of exposition visitors. The hotel accommodations in Portland will not be adequate to the demands made upon them. One dollar registration fee will be charged for the use of the bureau. During the exposition it is planned to have Endeavorers at the railroad station to welcome visiting Endeavorers and give whatever assistance they can. Further, it is the intention to hold in Portland during September a Christian Endeavor institute, after the fashion of the pioneer institute at Philadelphia.

The manager of the bureau is W. T. Stewart, and the chairman of the committee in charge of all this work is Rev. A. W. Wilson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, 386 Sixth street, Portland, Ore. A letter sent to his address on any of these matters will bring a prompt response.

For Junior Workers.

Divide the Junior society into two divisions. Call one "C," the other "E." Give each a captain. Let them try for three months to see which side can bring in the best report on the following points:

1. Attendance at the Sunday school.
2. Learning the Golden Texts.
3. Attendance at the morning church services.
4. Learning the preacher's texts.
5. Reporting what they think was the best thing the pastor said in his sermon.

Let each point count 20 per cent. The side that can show the highest average per cent will receive seats of honor in the church at the end of the time, the pastor stating the reason and preaching a sermon that morning to the church on the need of a full co-operation, on the responsibility of the older people for the Juniors and the value a good strong Junior is to the church, or the sermon may be based on Deut. vi, 7, or Matt. xviii, 1-6.—Kate H. Haas in Christian Endeavor World.

BATHING SUITS.

Pretty Effects In These Useful Garments—Summer Fabrics.

Bathing suits are now in evidence everywhere, and some of them are really pretty, and, what is more, they are modest and even elegant in many cases. They are made with a divided skirt which is attached to the waist, and over this is worn the skirt proper, fastened with buttons under the belt and with many big safety pins, for the water is rough and jerks at a skirt to a dangerous degree unless it is fastened so firmly that it simply cannot be pulled off. Some of the skirts are trimmed around the bottom, but most of them have the garnitures on the waist. Deep sailor collars are lavishly braided in contrasting colors and are often of different material from the rest of the suit. A few have long bishop sleeves, but safety would counsel that the arms be left bare. Some of the deep collars are in shawl shape, though the square sailor seems to be preferred.

Flannel is no longer used for bathing suits. Mohair, silk warp henrietta and silk and lightweight serge are more elegant. Black or dark blue and sometimes white are the preferred colors, but I have seen some brilliant red suits with white collars and braid and also with black braid. Every one may suit herself. Sandals of canvas and stockings are needed to complete the costume. Some ladies like to wear little waterproof caps, but the majority prefer to let the hair get the benefit of the tonic sea water.

The New Waists.

The newest thing to mention just now is the ugly, but after all effective, way in which waists are made. They are called directoire waists, though why it is impossible to say. These waists are shirred crosswise, both in the back and front, with three lines of the shirring in the middle of the back all the way down. In front it generally reaches only to the bust line, where there is some kind of vest front and lapels or even deep revers. In the illustration will be seen one of these shirred waists, the shirring being draped in front from the shoulders to the bust line, where it closes under a ruffle made by the shirring. A wide, flat collar is laid out over the shoulders, and the sleeves are certainly leg o' mutton, a shape that was not worn during the directory. Others of these shirred waists have the dress skirt and shirred portion of the waist all in one and the shirrs drawn in to fit the figure. This effect ends at the bust line, allowing the rest to be a shirt waist or anything. But the suspenders are then necessary. They are of every style, and one has wide latitude of choice.

There are hundreds of styles of more simple and more becoming waists than those, and most of them are models of taste and neatness. There is fine batiste in white and in coarse lines and no end of thin stuffs, some hand embroidered, others trimmed with lace or braids or made plain save for the dainty fine tucks. Folds and plaits are most often seen, some reaching from the shoulders and some coming but to the bust line or even not so far. Most of them have the bishop sleeve, simple or modified. One pretty waist of black taffeta has the folds from the shoulder to the bottom laid in surplice style, with a vest of braid and lace which extends up to form the collar. High collars prevail.

Cotton Fabrics.

The dainty summer cotton fabrics for pretty and fetching frocks are beyond any that I have ever seen for artistic designs. The flowered goods are beautiful and fine. Flounces are the only really suitable trimmings for these, and to gain that fluffy lightness which belongs rightfully to summer attire there is lace of the lightest kind. Sometimes this is sewed on flat, and again it is gathered full, so that it forms a ruffle on the flounce. Many ways have been devised to add to the lightness of these cotton dresses, and one of the prettiest that I saw had three ruffles, one of which was of lace.

Fans for this season are scarcely worth speaking of, they are so tiny, but they make up in fineness what they lack in size. Lace over silk mull is the prettiest.

Black lace laid over white for fine summer gowns is very fashionable and preferred to white lace, which has about had its day. A white silk skirt with a lisse overdress supporting black chantilly motifs or set designs makes an ideally beautiful gown.

OLIVE HARPER.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

And so began the second period of Gouverneur Prime's thralldom. A young civilian at the Point has few opportunities at any time, but when the lady of his love is a belle in the corps, he would much better take a long ocean voyage than be where he could hear and see, and live in daily torment. One comfort came to him when he could not be with Mrs. Garrison (who naively explained that "Gov" was such a dear boy and they were such stanch friends, real comrades, you know). He had early made the acquaintance of Pat Latrobe, and there was a bond of sympathy between them which was none the less strong because, on Prime's side, it could neither be admitted nor alluded to—that they were desperately in love with the sisters, and it was not long before it began to dawn on Prime that pretty Nita was playing a double game—that even while assuring her guardian sister that she had only a mild interest in Latrobe, she was really losing or had lost her heart to him, and in every way in her power was striving to conceal the fact from Margaret, and yet meet her lover at hours when she thought it possible to do so without discovery. As the friendship strengthened between himself and Latrobe they began using him as Cupid's postman, and many little notes and some big ones found their way to and from the Fourth division of cadet barracks. Mrs. Frank was only moderately kind to her civilian adorer then, granting him only one dance at each hop, and going much with other men, but that dance was worth seeing. Prime's was the only black "claw-hammer" in the room, and therefore conspicuous, and cadets—who know a good thing when they see it—and many a pretty girl partner would draw aside to watch the perfection of their step and the exquisite ease with which they seemed to float through space, circling and reversing and winding among the other dancers, he ever alert, watchful, quick as a cat and lithe and strong as a panther—she all yielding, lissome, airy grace. That dance was "Gov" Prime's reward, and almost only reward, for hours of impatient waiting. Other women, charming and pretty and better women, would gladly have been his partners. Some two or three whom he met at the hotel even intimated as much. But not until Lady Garrison told him he must—to protect her from scandal—did he ask another to dance. At last came the end of the summer's encampment, the return of the corps to barracks and studies, one blissful week in which he was enabled to spend several uninterrupted hours each day at her side, and then a cataclysm. A letter intended only for Nita's hands fell into those of her sister. It was bulky. It was from Latrobe. She hesitated only a moment, then, with determination in her eyes, opened and read—all. Two days after Nita was whisked away to New York, and within another week, leaving two most disconsolate swains on the Hudson, the sisters, one of them bathed in tears, went spinning away to the west, where Frank Garrison was on duty at department headquarters. Prime was permitted to write once a fortnight (he sent a volume), and Latrobe forbidden, but already the poor boy owned a thick packet of precious missives, all breathing fond love and promising utter constancy though she had to wait for him for years. For a month Nita would hardly speak to her sister, but in October there were lovely drives, picnics and gayeties of all kinds. There were attractive young officers and assiduous old ones, and among these latter was Frost, with his handsome gray mustache and distinguished bearing, and that air of conscious success and possession which some men know so well how to assume even when their chances are slimmer than my lady's hand. The sisterly breach was healed before that beautiful month was over. Frost dined at the Garrisons' four times a week and drove Miss Nita behind his handsome bays every day or two. In November he asked a question. In December there was an announcement that called forth a score of congratulations around headquarters, and in January the wedding cards went all over the union—some to West Point, but to Latrobe, who had been looking ill and anxious for six weeks, said his classmates, and falling off fearfully in his studies, said his professors, only a brief note inclosing his letters and begging for hers. At reveille next morning there was no captain to receive the report of roll call from the first sergeant of company B. "Where's Latrobe?" sleepily asked the officer of the day of the cadet first lieutenant. "I dn' know," was the answer, and to the amaze of Latrobe's roommate, who had gone to bed and to sleep right after taps the night before, they found evidence that "Pat" had left the post. He had not even made down his bedding. His cadet uniforms were all there, but a suit of civilian clothes, usually in a snug package up the chimney, that had been used several times "running it" to the hotel after taps in August, was now, like its owner, missing. After three days' waiting and fruitless search, the superintendent wired Latrobe's uncle and best friend, old Gen. Drayton, and that was the last seen or heard of "Pat." In the spring and ahead of time his class was graduated without him, for the war with Spain was on. In the spring an irate and long-tried father was upbraiding another only son for persistent failures at college. "'Gov' Prime will get the sack, not the sheepskin," prophesied his fellows. And then somehow, somewhere the father heard it was a married woman with whom his boy was so deeply in love, and there were bitter, bitter words on both sides—so bitter that when at last he flung himself out of his father's study "Gov" Prime went straight to Mildred's room, silently kissed her and walked out of the house. This was in April. The next heard of him he had enlisted for the war and was gone to San Francisco with his regiment with the prospect of service in the Philippines ahead of him, but that was full four months after his disappearance. Thither, late in July, the father followed, bringing Mildred with him and—the reader knows the rest.

CHAPTER X.

One of Col. Frost's consuming ambitions was to be the head of his department, with the rank of brigadier general, but he had strong rivals and knew it. Wealth he had in abundance. It was rank and power that he craved. Four men—all with better war records and more experience—stood between him and that coveted star, and two of the four were popular and beloved men. Frost was cold, selfish, intensely self-willed, indomitably persevering, and though "close-fisted," to the scale of a Scotch landlord as a rule, he would loose his purse strings and pay well for services he considered essential. When Frost had a consuming desire he let no money consideration stand in the way, and for Nita Terriss he stood ready to spend a small fortune. Everybody knew Mrs. Frank Garrison could never dress and adorn herself as she did on poor Frank Garrison's pay, and when she appeared with a dazzling necklace and a superb new gown at the garrison ball not long after Frost and his shrinking bride left for their honeymoon, people looked at her and then at each other. Nita Terriss was sold to "Jack" Frost, was the verdict, and her shrewd elder sister was the dealer. Mrs. Frank knew what people were thinking and saying just as well as though they had said it to her, yet smiled sweetness and bliss on every side. Frankly she looked up into the faces of her sisters in arms: "I know you like my necklace. Isn't it lovely? Col. Frost's wedding present, you know. He said I shouldn't give Nita away without some recompense, and this is it."

COLBY OPENS FIGHT.

Attacts Dryden and Assails Legislature.

Everett Colby, of Essex county, candidate for the Republican nomination as Senator of the county, speaking at a crowded anti-machine meeting in the Newark Opera House Tuesday evening said: "Every man knows that the individual and the corporation are not equal before the law, for while the individual does not disobey the law, the corporation sets it at defiance."

Colby is making a summer campaign on a limited platform and endeavoring as well to wrest the control of State politics from corporations. The speaker laid down four cardinal principles for giving the people absolute control of affairs in New Jersey which corporations have wrested from them.

These principles are: Limiting to twenty-five years all franchises; annually assessing these franchises for the benefit of municipalities and lowering tax rates; assessing all railraod real estate assessed on the same basis as individual property; electing United States Senators by the vote of the people.

Mr. Colby cited the fact that Essex county had given away in perpetuity $20,000,000 in franchises.

In the home of United States Senator John F. Dryden, president of the Prudential Insurance Company, Colby charged that "frequently money was the essential qualification for the United States Senate."

He further charged that Legislatures were annually sold by the county bosses to corporations, and contended that the time was about ripe to overthrow this blighting power.

James Smith, of Elmwood place, is visiting relatives at Kingston, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore and family and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Sandford and family, left yesterday for Wolfsboro, N. H., where they will spend the summer.

GAMES SCHEDULED FOR TODAY.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Philadelphia at New York.
St. Louis at Chicago.
Washington at Boston.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New York at Brooklyn.
Boston at Philadelphia.

Considerable adverse comment has been heard recently regarding the too personal remarks made at the baseball games on the part of some of the colored patrons. Their personal remarks about the local players have been such as to call forth severe criticism.

By the decision of the National Baseball Commission, McQuillan, known as "Mack," who has been pitching for the Jersey City Eastern League Club, has been returned to the Patesron Hudson River League Club. The New York Americans are now after this pitcher.

The Netherwood team defeated the Cedar Brook's on the Netherwood grounds yesterday in the third of a series of five games, by a score of 8 to 7. The Cedar Brook's held the lead until the seventh inning, when their opponents won out by heavy stick work. The fourth game will be played tomorrow. Yesterday's batteries were: Netherwood—Howard Freeman, Mose Reubenstein and Joe VanDeventer; Cedar Brook—Foster, W. Doane and Clyde Doane.

GOLF.

R. A. Abbott, who has just returned from Yale, is once more a frequent visitor at the Plainfield Country Club, where he is following the game.

It is stated that F. O. Reinhart will not devote a great deal of time to golf, this season, as he intends to spend most of the summer in the Adirondacks.

On Saturday morning the finals between Will Glenny and Meeme Rogers will be played in the final round of the golf tournament at the Plainfield Country Club.

A number of members turned out yesterday on the golf links at the Plainfield Country Club. Glenny, of Leal's School, made the creditable score of 75 in eighteen holes.

It is encouraging to note that the women members of the Plainfield Country Club are taking more interest in golf than usual and that as a rule they are making good scores.

Details are gradually being perfected for the professional golf tournament to be played July 13 and 14 over the public links at VanCortlandt Park. It has been decided that the tournament shall consist of seventy-two holes, medal play, thirty-six holes to be played each day. A meeting of the committee in charge of this event has been called for tonight at the golf clubhouse at VanCortlandt Par. Charles Kirchner, of this city, is chairman of the committee and the foremost promoter of the tournament. He is a member of the Westfield Golf Club.

Among those who will compete in this tournament is Marty O'Loughlin, the professional from the Plainfield Country Club. His playing this year has improved greatly and he is expected to make a good showing. Prizes amounting in all to $500 in cash are to be awarded winners.

The commitee is arranging to have Mayor McClellan, of New York, start the tournament by driving the first badd. This promises to be the largest professional golf event ever held in this country and several thousand people are expected to witness the play.

TENNIS.

Tennis players are greatly interested over the play-off for the tie for the championship of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis League in singles which will be decided this afternoon on the courts of the Jersey City Golf Club. Plainfielders are especially interested for H. J. Cochran, of Hillside avenue, will compete with E. J. Ferris, of Jersey City, in the final round.

The preliminary rounds played on Saturday resulted in the most spirited matches ever witnessed on the Jersey City courts, H. J. Cochran and E. J. Ferris fighting it out in the final round most stubbornly, the play being interrupted by darkness, each having won two sets. Mr. Cochran hade a strong beginning and his fast work in the first two sets forced his opponent to yield the honors. It is expected that there will be a large gallery present this afternoon to witness the play-off, and Mr. Cochran's friends are confident that he will win the championship.

HARVARD VS. YALE.

Great Boat Race on the Thames This Afternoon.

This is the day of days at New London. "American Henley" day, when the Crimson and Blue brawn make their yearly struggle for rowing supremacy. The town is in gala garb.

The prospect of a smaller crowd than usual stared the Yale and Harvard crews in the face today when the oarsmen awoke.

Mr. Cleveland Fishing.

Commodore E. C. Benedict's steam yacht the Oneida left the N. Y. Y. C. station, East Twenty-third street, New York, yesterday afternoon for a short trip to Buzzard's Bay. Among the Commodore's guests on board is Grover Cleveland. Although the former President has leased Gray Gables to a friend for the summer, his rods are still there, and he has availed himself of this opportunity of going on a little fishing excursion, in which he will be joined by Commodore Benedict and the one or two other friends on the Oneida.

STATE PRESS TRIBUTES TO CAPT. J. F. HUBBARD

The Elizabeth Journal pays this tribute to the late Capt. Hubbard:

"The death of James Franklin Hubbard is a loss to Union county that will be sincerely felt. He had resided in Plainfield since 1854, and in that period of more than half a century, his life had marked him as a citizen of the best type, worthy of the esteem and the honor which his fellow citizen delighted in according him. He was a modest man, never seeking self-preferment, but his influence was in the strength of his character. He was a gentleman in every sense of the word. He was gentle in his ways and courteous in his speech. He was a leader because men recognized that he was a true man, whose integrity fitted him for the confidence they imposed. Mr. Hubbard was distinguished for his faithfulness and zeal for the public good. In every department of life he was a power for good. He was known for quickness of perception and soundness of judgment, and his advice was eagerly sought. As a friend none could be warmer or more helpful; as a citizen none could be more useful or more loyal; as a public official none could be more faithful to every trust confided to him. Mr. Hubbard will be missed; profoundly missed. His loyalty to Union county was intense, and his devotion to its interests unceasing. For more than thirty-six years he was a member of the County Board of Chosen Freeholders, and for more than half that time he was the director of the board. He was a Republican, and a Whig before the organization of the Republican party. His adherence to his political convictions was as steadfast and true as that which characterized his life in all other matters, but the men in the other parties were ever ready to attest their esteem, and whenever he was re-elected as director of the board it was by a unanimous vote. His sagacity, that made for him success in business, was manifested in his public life, and his practical business methods and his soundness of judgment saved for the people many thousands of dollars. Union county's stability and progress is largely due to Mr. Hubbard's influence upon its management for so many years of its existence. The new Court House can be regarded as a monument to the memory of Mr. Hubbard. To him particularly belongs much of the credit that Union county is so favored; and the directing of this great public work, planned and complete with such honor to the county, was the crowning achievement of Mr. Hubbard's public career. Mr. Hubbard loved his country, and when the Civil War broke out he offered his service in defence of the Union, and won distinction on the field of conflict, returning as a captain in the Thirtieth New Jersey Regiment."

The Elizabeth Evening Times makes this comment on Capt. Hubbard's death:

"The death of J. Franklin Hubbard, for many years a member and for almost a generation director of the Board of Freeholders, is a great loss to Union county. Mr. Hubbard was one of the few remaining of the officeholders of the old school, a man of the strictest probity, whose sterling qualities, as a citizen and as a public official, had endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. His was a notable, a truly creditable and, well may we say, a brilliant career. For today, when honesty in public life is so rare, it is not required of an officeholder that, in order to make a great record, his field of activity be a very broad one, but rather, that within a limited sphere he serve to the best of his ability and judgment, and faithfully do his duty to his constituency, however small that may be. These are the great men of today, the men whose memories will be cherished, the men whose example will be pointed to for emulation by the youth of this country. Mr. Hubbard, as director of the county board, had personified economy and business methods in the transaction of public affairs. He had often to contend with a contrary tendency among the members of the various bodies of which he was chairman. He realized, as he himself often expressed it, that his position was by no means an easy one, and he exerted, even in his old age, every endeavor to keep the members of the board away from the temptations with which they were continually beset. There had been opposition to Mr. Hubbard's close scrutiny, but no member dared voice it openly, for they appreciated full well that their director was in the right, and that the people of Union county were of his views in the matter. From a public standpoint, therefore, Mr. Hubbard's death produces a great void in Union county, one which it will be difficult, if not impossible, to fill. Moreover, he was personally a lovable, kindly character, whose virtues were as many as they were admirable. Union county mourns the dath of a citizen such as was Mr. Hubbard, and its residents cannot but hope that, in the future, many of its public men may seek to lead the life he has led, and do such good as he has done."

Mrs. J. S. King, of Passaic, is visiting relatives in this city.

Jeppe Sorenson, Jr., of East Third street, is very ill at his home with rheumatism.

NAME NINE DIRECTORS

Ryan Trustees Selected New Men For the Equitable.

Nine men chosen by the policyholders of the Equitable Life Assurance Society and nominated by Thomas F. Ryan's three trustees were elected unanimously as dericors of the society at a meeting of the board yesterday. It was the first step toward the promised mutualization of the society.

The Ryan stock will not be used to qualify these directors. They were elected to the board as policy-holders under the State Insurance law of 1892, which makes a policy-holder eligible as a director of a life-insurance company. It was held by the trustees and the directors that the general law of 1892 took precedence over that clause in the Equitable's charter which provides that a director must be the actual proprietor of at least five shares of stock.

Elihu Root and Paul D. Cravath are said to have advised the Ryan stock trustees that it would be legal to elect policy-holders to the board.

Minority stockholders in the Equitable are expected to attack the legality of the election of the directors chosen yesterday and carry the matter into the highest courts of the State. Franklin B. Lord is one of those expected to bring suit. In event of an adverse decision, it is the intention of the Ryan stock trustees to go to the Legislature and ask that the society's charter be amended on lines which will place it in harmony with the Insurance law of 1902. Shares of the Ryan stock were not placed in the names of the new men elected to the board in order to protest them from the charge of being dummy directors.

The nine men elected directors yesterday were:

E. B. Thomas, President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

Frederick G. Bourne, President of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, and Commodore of the New York Yacht Club.

E. W. Bloomingdale, of Bloomingdate Brothers, and a member of the Crimmins Policy-holders' Committee.

J. G. Schmdilapp, President of the Union Savings Band and Trust Company, of Cincinnati.

E. W. Robertson, President of the National Loan and Exchange Bank fo Columbia, S. C.

William Whitman, a paper manufacturer, of Boston, Mass.

Joseph Bryan, director of the Virginia Trust Company, of Richmond, Va.

Ferdinand W. Roebling, of Trenton, N. J., Secretary of the John A. Roebling Sons Company.

John J. Albright, of Buffalo, N. Y.

All of thes men were communicated with in advance an agreed to accept the directorships.

NEGRO PUT OUT OF PARK.

Sues for Damages Under Law Forbidding Discrimination.

Andrew Keyes, colored, of Newark, brought suit yesterday at Newark against Herman H. A. Schmidt, manager of Olympic Park, for $500 damages, charging that on Sunday, June 18, he was forced to leave the park because of his color. Keyes says he went to the park with some friends and asked for a ticket, but was told that negroes were not admitted. When he asked a white man to buy a ticket, and when he had obtained one he entered. An employe asked him to leave the park, as negroes were not wanted. He refused to obey and was ejected. The suit is brought under the law of 1884.

Plucky Capture of Runaway.

At the risk of severe bodily injury, H. C. Smith, the delivery man, stoped a runaway on Watchung avenue this afternoon. A horse belonging to A. H. Fertig, of New Brunswick, bolted on East Fourth street and was heading directly for the windows of offices on Watchung avenue when Smith caught the animal by the head. He was dragged for fifty feet but finally stopped the runaway by guiding it into a pole. The captor escaped with torn clothing and a few bruises.

PLOT TO KILL VLADIMIR

Czar's Guard's Planned to Assassinate Grand Duke.

Berlin, June 29—The Morgen Post says that a conspiracy among officers of the Russian guard regiments was discovered at St. Petersburg to kill Grand Duke Vladimir, who is held to be largely responsible for the Czar's policy of reaction.

Vladimir was to be invited to a supper when he was to be assassinated.

Many high officers in the Russian army who are connected with the most aristocratic families of the empire, have been implicated in the plot and arrested.

The conspiracy was revealed by one of the officers in the plot who turned traitor.

DILL TO BE JUDGE.

Governor Stokes Will Appoint Him to the Court of Appeals.

It was reported in Newark yesterday that Governor Stokes will appoint James B. Dill as lay judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals, regardless of the objections made by lawyers and others. There has been some talk to the effect that the candidates for the State Senate from Essex County next fall will be pledged to vote against Mr. Dill's confirmation, but such an effort, even if made, is not likely to succeed.

The Governor is apparently satisfied that Mr. Dill will quickly justify his appointment, and that his large experience in great business enterprises will be extremely valuable to the court. This, too, is the opinion of those who know Mr. Dill. Among his neighbors in East Orange Mr. Dill is very popular.

Stirs Divorce Lawyers.

Making a ruling that will save his court much trouble, Vice Chancellor Stevenson, in Jersey City, ordered yesterday that counsel in divorce cases heard by masters in chancery must put their whole cases before the master just as though they were before the court. In undefended divorce suits the lawyers have made a practise of putting in as little testimony as they thought would win the case. When the vice chancellors or the chancellor have ruled that the evidence was insufficient further evidence has usually been produced. This has resulted in extra work for the court.

Jackson, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church. Miss Minnie Mitchell was bridesmaid and Augustus Grobes, brother of the groom, was the best man. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends. After a wedding trip the couple will reside at Cape May. The groom is the son of Rev. Mr. Grobes.

Will Not Hear President.

Plans are rapidly being completed for the National Educational Association convention which will be held at Asbury Park next month. Owing to the fact that there will be so many delegates at the convention, it has been decided not to open the Ocean Grove Auditorium to the public when President Roosevelt appears there on July 7. Accommodations have been secured there and in Ocean Grove for 28,000 delegates.

That Argentina is moving ahead with proverbial leaps and bounds is proved by the fact that her foreign commerce, the best thermometer of a country's prosperity, increased $90,000,000 in 1904 over the total for 1903, which was $360,000,000. Estimating her population, as before stated, at 5,000,000 she has in the present total of $451,463,000 the remarkable average of nealy $90 per head, or a far greater average than the United States or any of the principal European countries. If this lusty young giant of South America keeps progressing at this rate, it will be difficult to estimate her trade and wealth when she has a population of 25,000,000. Unfortunately for the United States, our trade exchange with Argentina ranks fourth among foreign countries, or after Great Britain, Germany, and France.—From "Argentina: The Wonderland of South America," by John Barrett, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for July.

MEN PROMINENT IN CITY AND COUNTY GATHERED AT CAPT. HUBBARD'S BIER

Political, Religious, Business, Military and Charitable Bodies Represented.

DR. LEWIS'S EULOGY.

Deeply Impressive Services Over Body of Venerable Director of Freeholders at His Late Home.

Not only the leading residents of his home town, but every official of prominence in Union county met with bowed heads and sorrow-laden hearts at the late home of Captain James Franklin Hubbard, on West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon, when the funeral service was conducted over his body. It was a group of representative men from all walks in life, but gathered for one common purpose—to pay tribute to one who had earned and deserved it. The attendance included twenty members of the Board of Freeholders, with which he had been connected thirty-seven years, the same number of former freeholders, the survivors of Company H, Thirieth New Jersey Volunteers, of which he had been in command; and representatives from the City National Bank, Dime Savings Institution, Plainfield Water Supply Company, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R.; New York Commandery, Military Order Loyal Legion; Muhlenberg Hospital and the Seventh-day Baptist church.

The house was filled to overflowing when the service was opened by the singing of "Rock of Ages" by E. E. Runyon and Charles L. Lewis, after which Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, read Scripture.

No more touching tribute has ever been accorded a departed Plainfielder than the one paid Captain Hubbard by Dr. A. H. Lewis, former pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, who followed. In boyhood they were constant companions, and in after years bosom friends; their path in life was traversed together and they had grown to love each other. With a voice that faltered from emotion Dr. Lewis spoke of his helper and advisor in words that he and his hearers knew to be true, no false acclaim and no meaningless laudation.

"I have been blest in my knowledge of him," said the reverend doctor, "as many here have been blest who knew him, and if all who have been so blest could do so, they would crowd this place to honor him. I need not tell his history; whatever has gone to make society or political history better and brighter in all this part of the country for the past fifty years is made up by the tribute our hearts bring to his memory today.

"First of all, he was a man of conscience. His life proves that the highest type of manliness, unless the standard of action be measured by the Divine, had been attained. He was a quiet man with very little to say, and this element of quiet was shown in every turn of his life and character. He was a consistent and an efficient man, one who saw the end from the beginning. Whether it was in the rearing of some great building or the settling of some important question or the promotion of a large enterprise, he was far beyond the ordinary man of detail.

"Untiring in his appreciation and carefulness of everything given him to do, I here urge that these elements grow only out of the soil that conscience makes.

"He was a man worthy of trust, and here I would coin a word—he was a trustworthful man. Those who knew him know he was worthful—your experience proves this. It was a blessing to stand in touch with him. I am saying this in the hope that it may bring the mantle of trustworthfulness over our own shoulders. And I am saying it for you, young men, to show no man gets position who clamors for it—no man gets honors who hunts for them. He was a man who would almost rebuke me if he could hear me now saying, 'I have done nothing that would deserve commendation.'

"Last of all, and largest of all, he was a quiet Christian man. It was during the last years of my pastorate here that he would drop into my study day after day for a close personal talk. His parents and mine were bosom companions and a strange coincidence is that the man who baptized Captain Hubbard and myself was the grandfather of our

CAN HAVE HIS WIFE WHEN SHE'S DIVORCED

BUT ALEXANIA HAD A GUN LOADED FOR SUMMONS.

Robert Alexania, an Armenian, of this city, employed as an engraver at New York, and Frank Simmons, of Carteret, met in Justice Sedam's office at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon to unravel a misunderstood case. Simmons had complained to Presecutor Berdine previously that Alexania had threatened to kill him just because he had gone walking with a woman who boarded at the same house as he did and that as a result the foreman of the shop where he is employed in Carteret had discharged him as he did not want any murders committed on the company's property.

Alexania said that Simmons had stolen his wife while he was in New York and stopped at the same boarding house with her and that he had traced the fellow to Carteret and told him that there had been no divorce as yet and that if Simmons did not leave her alone he would kill Simmons. He said yesterday that he did not object to his wife deserting him, but he did not want Simmons to have her until there was a divorce.

The case was settled by Simmons promising to behave himself and Alexania promising not to carry out his threat to kill Simmons.

MISS GEARY WEDS.

Former Borough Girl Weds a Newarker.

Miss Mabel M. Garey, a former well known resident of the borough, was married at Newark Monday evening to Walter J. Leathetrow, of that city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. J. Johnston, pastor of the Franklin Street M. E. church, who was formerly pastor of Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield.

The bride is the daughter of the late Jacob C. Garey, who resided at 39 Craig place, and who was chief clerk to the general manager and vice-president of the New Jersey Central. When her parents removed to Hackettstown she attended the Centenary Collegiate Institute and was a member of the Peithasophian Society.

The groom is a son of William Leatherow, of Akron, Ohio, and is superintendent of the Rubber Balloon Company of America, with offices and factory at Columbia and Elm streets, Newark.

A most interesting feature of the wedding was the cutting of a twenty-year-old wedding cake by the bride. This cake was made for the bride's mother when she and Mr. Geary were married twenty years ago by Rev. Dr. George C. Whitney, of this city.

Pistol Prizes for Cops.

Chairman Tyler, of the police committee, is much interested in the efforts of Chief Kiely to improve the marksmanship of the force. To encourage the men in target practice, Mr. Tyler has announced that he will offer prizes for the best scores made during the practice season. The men have been shooting for several weeks already on the Plainfield Gun Club grounds.

The colored churches of the city united with the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church last night in observing the seventh anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. Dr. E. E. Jackson. The church was filled to overflowing with people and a lengthy programme held the close attention of all. Rev. Dr. H. C. Ashley, pastor of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, was master of ceremonies.

Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, who was exptected to make an address, Rev. Scott Wallace, of the Calvary Baptist church, gave a short talk congratulating Dr. Jackson and his people upon the completion of the seven years' pastorate.

Charles VanHorn, of Bethel chapel, read an essay on the subject of "Dr. Jackson a Lover of Young People," after which Mrs. J. C. Anderson sang a solo and Rev. Mrs. Elizabeth Carter gave a short address on the subject of "Why We are Here Tonight," and in the absence of Rev. Dr. W. A. Credit, of Philadelphia, his place was taken by Rev. C. H. Parish, of Philadelphia, editor of the Baptist Trumphet," who brought greetings from the Philadelphia Baptists.

At this time Dr. Jackson responded to the words of congratulation, thanking one and all for their kind expression of good will. He briefly reviewed his pastorate of seven years counting it a pleasure to have been privileged to labor in this one field so long and see so many conversions. He asked the earnest support of his people for the future.

In conclusion, Dr. Ashley made a few remarks and after a song by the choir, Rev. A. Wilson, assistant pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, pronounced the benediction.

All then adjourned to the Sunday-school room where refreshments were served. Those in charge were Mrs. S. M. Fields, Mrs. M. Cobbs, Miss M. Randolph, Mrs. Lulu Dempsey, chairman.

CROSSED HOUSE TOPS TO AVOID RICE SHOWER

PERILOUS INCIDENT OF SAMUEL MANNING'S WEDDING.

When Samuel L. Manning, of South Plainfield, and Miss Grace Elizabeth Bird, of 65 Delevan avenue, Newark, were married at the bride's home on Wednesday night, they made up their minds that they would dodge the rice and old shoes. So when they went up stairs to dress for departure they went on to the attic and out on the roof, where Manning had previously stored a few planks.

These he laid across the ten feet of space intervening between the roof's edge and the roof of the nearest house, and across the temporary bridge he piloted his bride. The planks were then hauled over and the process repated. This brought the couple two houses away from where the wedding party was waiting with bags of rice.

Mr. and Mrs. Manning had no easy task in reaching the second house, for the planks had to be run from the roof of the house first reached to a third story window of the second. Persons who looked the ground over yesterday say it was a somewhat perilous undertaking. At all events, the bride and bridegroom got away unnoticed, and the wedding party waited for two solid hours before it found out that the birds had flown.—New York Sun.

TRADING STAMP BILL SIGNED BY GOVERNOR

REDEEMABLE VALUE MUST BE STAMPED ON FACE AFTER SEPT. 1.

Governor Stokes yesterday signed the Layden trading stamp bill requiring all such stamps to have legibly stamped on their face a redeemable cash value, which sum must be paid for their redemption if demanded.

After providing that all trading stamps, coupons, or other similar devices must have a redeemable value stamped on their face, the act requires that any person who shall issue or sell such stamps or coupons to any person engaged in any trade or business shall upon presentation redeem them either in merchandise or cash, at the option of the holder, provided the stamps be presented for redemption in quantities calling for not less than five cents in each lot.

It is further provided that any merchant who shall distribute or deliver trading stamps or coupons shall, upon the refusal of the person or persons who originally issued them to redeem them, be liable, when presented in quantities of not less than five cents for their face value, and shall redeem them either in merchandise or cash, at the option of the holder. The act says any person, firm or corporation who shall violate any of its provisions shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

The law takes effect September 1. It does not apply to tickets, coupons or other vouchers placed by merchants or manufacturers in or upon packages of goods sold by them, if the tickets, coupons or vouchers are to be redeemed by them.

HIS HAY WAS BURNED.

While in the Ground, and Now Wm. Mernagh Wants Damages.

William Mernagh, of South Sterling, a milkman who has a number of customers here, has retained Codington & Swackhamer to bring a novel suit against a Summit man. The proposed defendant is the father of some boys who, while hunting over one of Mernagh's fields, set fire to the grass by dropping a lighted match.

Basing his claim on an appraisal made by Edward C. Sage and John Wendell, Mernagh will ask the court to allow him $250 for damage done to his hay crop. His case is said to be a good one, the boys, it is alleged, having acknowledged starting the fire at the time, and the father having made a tender of money in settlement of the damage done. His offer was not satisfactory, hence the suit.

Big Production Booked.

Klaw & Erlanger's big holiday extravaganza, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," was booked by Manager Gelatt for the Plainfield Theatre yesterday. It will appear at the new playhouse on Monday, September 11 with all its wealth of choruses, ballets, comedians and stage trickery. The date for the appearance of "Buster Brown" was changed yesterday to September 6.

The lots were knocked down to the complainant for $11,277.02.

S. D. Drake said today: "The Lincoln property was sold yesterday and bought in by Trenton Trust & Safe Deposit Company. This is my work as by this action it removes the mortgage that has been on the property, and every lot that was ever sold and deeded by any company is now free from every claim."

RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IN IMMIGRATION NOT RIGHT, SAYS U. S. CONSUL GRIFFIN

Room Enough in This Country For All Emigrants Who Would Make Good Citizens

REFERS TO CHINESE.

Rev. Dr. Griffen Speaks to Men's Association Entertainingly of Subject Agitating the Country at Present.

Faith in this country's ability to assimilate all the immigrants who may flock to these shores, including the Chinese, was expressed by Rev. Walter T. Griffin, United States Consul at Limoges, France, in an address on emigration before the Men's Association of Trinity Reformed church last night. Consul Griffin has studied the emigrant and his surroundings with especial attention to his object in leaving his country under special commissions from the government, and is peculiarly qualified to speak on the subject of his talk to the association. The speaker did not paint a flattering picture of the emigrants, but held that the country was large enough and the communities expansive enough to take in all kinds without fear of being overwhelmed.

In substance, Mr. Griffin said:

"This is one of the most important subjects that can come before us as a people. It is usually approached in a peculiar manner. You can't mention it to some people without awakening hysterics.

"Let us tonight look at the subject as one outside of politics; let us look at it as citizens with the welfare of our country at heart.

"Between 1820 and 1904 21,000,000 immigrants have come here. These figures usually evoke a wail—the laboring man, the farmer, the professional man, all see themselves crowded out. This is one view; perhaps it is a narrow one. When you look at the figures with the fact that they stretch over eighty-five years, they do not seem so large after all.

"Why do they come here, anyway? Leaving the home, life-long surroundings, and familiar faces, to enter a new and unfamiliar environment is hard. We used to say and believe that the emigrants sought the freedom of this land. I believe that ninety-nine out of one hundred, yes, 999 out of 1,000, immigrants think nothing and care less for what we call freedom. The immigration of those in search of liberty is spasmodic and irregular; a very small proportion of the immigrants think of freedom. They come, first and almost last, to better their financial condition. The greater proportion come here to gather a certain sum of money and return home.

"Immigration is like the sea, rising and falling yearly. Conditions here always affect the tide. They hear on the other side of projected public works, of boom times, just as soon as we do ourselves, and the rush of immigration keeps pace with the rise of the commercial barometer. War or some social upheaval also affect the tide Americawards.

"Where have the millions come from in eighty years? From the United Kingdom has come 7,149,300; Scandinavia, 1,670,000; Italy, 1,778,773; Germany, 5,146,518. Germany sent one-quarter of the total, and the United Kingdom, in which Ireland is figured, furnished one-third of the whole. In 1840 Ireland had 8,000,000 inhabitants, today she has only about 4,000,000.

"The emigrants from Italy are an important class, and should have more attention than any other. Italy is honeycombed with secret societies, organized and maintained for no good purpose, and among the emigrants from there are some who have been helped out of the country by the government—sent away for their country's good. The Italian immigration should be watched. The northern Italians are a good kind, but of the southerners the least said the better. The Italians, as a whole, are the most illiterate of the emigrants. Fifty-four per cent. can't read or write. The northerners furnish only thirteen per cent. of illiteracy.

"Now, is there danger of our being overwhelmed? It is true that 1,000,000 a year are coming here, but the statistics are really encouraging. We are in no danger of being swallowed up; there is plenty of room for them all.

"We have uncultivated land, we have mines of every kind untouched—we have space enough for every

EIGHT WOMEN ARRESTED FOR STEALING LUMBER

CONTRCATOR KANE REJECTS PROFFER OF TWENTY-FIVE CENT SETTLEMENT.

Aleck Kane, the contracting housebreaker, recently bought and tore down the barn on John Chandler's property, Cottage place, and piled the lumber on the ground. A few days later Mr. Kane noticed that his lumber pile was growing smaller. He sleuthed around to discover who had got his boards, and this morning eight Italian women appeared before Justice Mosher, confronted by Mr. Kane in the role of the stern accuser.

The prisoners were Marie Rose, Julia Gamma, Agnes Paretti, Orsa Paretti, Cogent Casari, Mecene Caesar, Herselia Resisci and Josephine Metina. They brought a total of ten children and two dogs to court. Kane produced Anna Robinson, Ida Robinson, Belinda Roscoe, Ruff Robinson, colored, and Dennis Carney, ex-mayor of Cottage place, as witnesses against the women.

"There isn't room for all of you in the county jail," said the court; "isn't there some way of settling this thing?"

Counselor S. S. Swackhamer, lawyer for the octette, consulted his clients.

"They say they are willing to give a quarter apiece," he reported.

Mr. Kane sniffed. He said $25 was his figure. The case was adjourned for two weeks, the women being released on their own recognizance.

J. R. DUNHAM RETURNS.

Iowa Man Attends Funeral of Captain Hubbard.

Among the attendants at the funeral of Captain J. Frank Hubbard yesterday was an old Plainfielder who came from Binghamton, N. Y., for the purpose. He is J. R. Dunham, a native of this city, whose home is now in Clinton, Iowa. Mr. Dunham is now a traveling map compiler and chief draughtsman for the Northwest Map and Atlas Company, of Philadelphia and Des Moines, Iowa. During the past fifteen years he has compiled in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and New York, and also superintended the draughting of the entire State of Ohio. He is thoroughly imbued with the progressive nature of the West and claims that in the next ten years that part of the country beyond the Mississippi will have a growth and development unequaled in the history of America. In referring to the new county Court house, in the building of which Captain Hubbard was so directly connected, Mr. Dunham said he had worked in one hundred and fifteen different ones, but that the finest of all is at Minneapolis. It covers and entire block and cost one million dollars. He has not yet seen the Union county structure, but declared he would inspect it carefully before returning home.

DIED FROM INJURY.

Little Girl Struck by Stone Thrown at Brother Dies.

Katie Jakel, five years old, who was struck in the head by a stone, alleged to have been thrown by Harry Illingworth, fourteen years old, died at her home in Raritan yesterday, as the result of her injury. The little girl, it is said, is an innocent victim of a boys' quarrel between her brother, twelve years old John Jakel, and young Illingworth. The Jakel boy was riding on the tail end of a delivery wagon, several days ago, when, it is asserted, young Illingworth climbed up beside him and attempted to throw him off.

In the struggle which followed Illingworth, it is said, attempted to choke Jakel, who wriggled out of his grasp and jumped from the wagon. He picked up a stone from the road and threw it at Illingworth, striking him on the leg. Illingworth rolled over in the wagon nursing his leg and Jakel sprinted for home.

An hour later, the story goes, Illingworth and his ten-year-old brother passed the Jakel residence and saw young Jakel and his little sister in the dooryard. Illingworth, it is claimed, told Jakel if he dared to come outside he would smash his face. Jakel replied in kind and sprinted for the door of his home as Illingworth reached down on the sidewalk for a stone.

Illingworth, it is stated, threw the stone with great force at the boy as he was passing through the door, and it struck little Katie, who was seated on the doorstep, full in the forehead and fractured her skull. With a scream she fell to the ground insensible. The doctors worked over her for several days, but she never recovered consciousness.

Young Illingworth, who is the son of George Illingworth, a former superintendent of the Somerville Woolen Mills, was arrested on a charge preferred by Prosecutor Reger, of assault with attempt to kill, and was released under $3,000 bail. He will now be held on a charge of murder.

MAUCH CHUNK FOR JULY 4th.

There is no grander scenery anywhere than you will find on the journey to Mauch Chunk via the New Jersey Central.

Jersey is attractive, especially in the northern section, and the rolling country offers a variety of attractions the like of which no other section can boast. Pennsylvania and its mountains are too widely known to need elaboration, but Mauch Chunk and vicinity is a garden spot, if ever there was one. The Switchback Railroad is novel, inasmuch as no motive power is needed for operation. The inclines are gradual and in the fourteen mile journey there are many interesting experiences and fascinating scenes are unfolded with startling rapidity.

For a day's outing there is no place more thoroughly enjoyable than Mauch Chunk, and when the small cost of a day's trip is considered there is little left to be said. The New Jersey Central will run one of its popular one day excursions to Mauch Chunk on the Fourth of July by special train, which will leave Plainfield at 9:20 a. m., arriving at Mauch Chunk before noon. The returning train does not leave the mountain resort until 5:30 p. m., hence there is ample time for journeying over the Switchback, visiting Flag Staff and Glen Onoko. 6-23-td

LAKE EXCURSION.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hoptacong, and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hoptacong is the gem of places. On July 2, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. The run is made in three hours, and the entire day can be spent in delightful enjoyment. 6-22-td

WHEN MONEY IS TAINTED

Not Money But the Love of It is the Root of All Evil.

The Christian Intelligencer contributes the following article on "tainted money:"

The expression "tainted contributions," which is becoming familiar to our ears in connection with "Standard Oil" benefactions, supposes either a moral quality to reside in the contributions themselves, or a moral quality to be communicated from the giver to the gift. Either supposition is not in accordance with the facts. Money is impersonal. It cannot carry or impart any moral quality. It is simply a representative value, and morally negative and colorless. It cannot receive any taint from the hand that bestows it. A cathedral will rise as fast from the gold of a pirate, as from the gold of a saint. And in fact, many a church and convent have owed their existence to robber barons and penitent courtesans, as the last flickering effort of vicious and misspent lives to propritiate the Almighty and escape future retribution.

So far from possessing any inherent vileness, money, in its varied uses, is not only convenient, but desirable and honorable, and may be a potent factor for good. "Money is a defense" (Eccles. 7:12). "Money answereth all things" (Eccles. 10:19). We read of "Atonement money" and "Redemption money" in the ancient Hebrew ceremonial ordinances of religion.

It is not money, but "the love of money" that is denounced as "the root of all evil."

The making of money and the spending of money are two distinct operations, in no wise connected or dependent on each other. Money made honestly by a righteous father may be spent recklessly, in vile self-indulgence, by a profligate son. On the other hand, money made by fraud or trick or over reaching or oppression, may be diverted into channels of righteousness, and made to serve the interests of the Kingdom of God. The origin of a treasure-fund is one thing; its appropriation is another. The former cannot always be traced or determined; the latter is open to enquiry and investigation.

But it is, after all, "to the law and to the testimony" that we must look in ultimate appeal. What says the word of God? "He that by usury and unjust gain increaseth his substance, he shall gather it from him that will pity the poor" (Prov. 28:8).

In other words, unjust gains are often destined, in the divine economy, to carry out works of beneficence and charity. It would seem that this one passage is broad enough to cover the Rockefeller incident.

But let us look to the teaching and example of Christ.

"And He looked up and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury. And He saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites. And He said, all these have cast in unto the offerings of God."

And God's treasury accepted the offerings of all; of the men who "devoured widows' houses," as well as of the widow whose house had been devoured. And Christ looked on, and made no protest. The gifts were acceptable, even tho' the donor were not worthy.

But there is a more striking instance on record, where Christ allowed his feet to be annointed with "the precious ointment in the alabaster box." The woman was a sinner," and He knew it. The ointment was bought with the wages of sin, and He knew it. The holy Pharisee who entertained Him expected his guest to shrink with horror from this touch of pollution. The ointment was not tainted in Christ's eyes. The goodness of this one act was recognized and rewarded by the forgiveness of her sins. Shall we accept the suggestion and the lesson?

There is one more thought that will present itself to every candid mind. Why should John D. Rockfeller be singled out as a scapegoat for public scorn and denunciation? He is not the only "Oily Gammon" in the United States. There are quite a number of others who follow a Golden Rule of their own, that is not precisely the Golden Rule of the New Testament. Why is this man who is "not only phenomenal in making money, but also phenomenal in giving it away," to be accounted a sinner above his fellows? His munificence does not alter the character of his business methods, but it not be used as a club for smiting him down. Whether it be conscience-money, or native generosity, or a real desire to help on a good work, the splendid gifts of Rockfeller to his own church and to the cause of foreign missions, can work only good, under divine control, and should be received with gratitude.

"There is some soul of goodness in things evil,
Would men observingly distil it out."
—Henry V., 4:1.

And even "Standard Oil" profits can be made to float upward in fragrant incense from the arembics of the Baptist church and the Mission Board. In the old slavery days, the contributions of slaveholders were not only accepted, but frankly solicited by this same American Board, though most of them were anti-slavery men, and many were violent abolitionists. It was impossible then, as now, to apply moral tests and character investigations to money offerings. Nor was it necessary, any more than at the treasury of the temple at Jerusalem, which Christ Himself overlooked.

In every case that is hampered with a doubt, we may safely trust the superintendence of the Almighty to direct our gifts into right channels. For "surely the wrath of man shall be made to praise God, and the remainder of wrath will He restrain" (Ps. 76:10).

The Daily Press has purposely refrained from referring to the matter of selecting a successor to Captain Hubbard on the Board of Freeholders until the body of the grand old man should be laid away. It is gratifying to know that the officials, politicians and public generally have pursued the same course. Captain Hubbard is gone, and while it can be said that whenever one man drops out there are always others to fill his position, it will be difficult indeed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the honest old Captain. Many good men, any one of whom would be an honor to the city as its representative on the board, have been mentioned for the place. Among these are Ralph I. Tolles, at present a member of the Common Council and formerly its president; Samuel P. T. Wilbur, a member of the sewer commission and formerly a councilman; Cornelius Van Herwerden, who has always taken great interest in the city's affairs; J. F. MacDonald, F. A. Pope, and John W. Murray, Jr., a member of the County Board of Elections and first assistant chief of the fire department. It is impossible to forecast what selection the Common Council, which is empowered by law to fill the vacancy, will make. It would make no mistake in selecting any one of the five mentioned. In all probability, the city fathers will choose the man at their regular July meeting Monday night. Until that time, at least, it will be impossible to tell who the fortunate man will be.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Butler, of Madison avenue, were among the spectators at the race yesterday.

RESTRICTED IMMIGRATION

pair of working hands in the world. Why should any be shut out?

"I am not criticising existing laws, but I cannot see in my humble way why we should say to any one country, 'You shall stay out.' I cannot see why a man should be barred because of his color; because his eyes may be slant or his hair be worn in a certain way. I would not see a difference made between man and man. But I would see barriers put up against those who have committed crime, barriers against those who seek to escape doing their duty, to pollute, to desecrate our land and law.

"But I would have a welcome go out to every man, woman and child who comes here with a clean moral bill of health. I appeal to you to welcome these strangers, and to help them become upright, model citizens."

The address was followed by sustained applause, and a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker.

The meeting was the last of the season. The address was preceded by singing by a quartette composed of J. C. Martin, E. D. Cutting, F. J. Pope and E. E. Runyon. Refreshments were served. The committee in charge comprised W. F. Oliver, chairman; F. E. Smith, P. A. Vroom, C. E. Ball and John Hoffman.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Epworth League, of the First M. E. church, will hold a social tonight at the home of the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, 610 Central avenue.

The Young People's Society, of the First Baptist church, will hold its last social for the season in the lecture room of the church tonight.

The United Society Christian Endeavor will hold its convention July 3, 4 and 5 at Baltimore, and it is expected that the Plainfield societies will be represented.

There will be an executive committee meeting of the W. C. T. U. in the rooms on Madison avenue, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and at 4 o'clock the regular meeting of the Union will be held.

Recently, when electric lights were installed in Marconnier chapel, it was suggested that the next desirable improvement would be the placing of wire screens in the windows and doors to keep out the mosquitoes and bugs at night. The suggestion has been followed and the improvement will be made in time for the Sunday services. The chapel will also be redecorated inside, painted and varnished, which will present a bright and attractive appearance.

Mixed Doubles Postponed.

Owing to the number of players who will enter the doubles tournament of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association, the club tournament for mixed doubles scheduled for July 4 at the Plainfield Country Club, has been postponed until Saturday, July 8.

COMMON COUNCIL TO NAME CAPT. HUBBARD'S SUCCESSOR.

Common Council will choose the successor to the late Captain James Kranklin Hubbard on the Union County Board of Freeholders at its regular July meeting Monday night, in all probability. There has been some talk, however, of leaving the place vacant until the next regular election in the fall out of respect to the man who occupied the position for thirty-seven years.

There is no dearth of material in making a selection. John W. Murray, Jr., of the Third ward, has been prominently mentioned for the berth and so has Samuel P. T. Wilbur, of the First ward. Wilbur's friends are out in dead earnest. Ralph I. Tolles, of the First ward, is another likely man. In addition to these Cornelius VanHerwerden and J. F. MacDonald and F. A. Pope have been named in connection with the office.

It is quite impossible to tell at this time what choice the Common Council will make, no caucus having been held. There is every reason to believe that factional politics will not be allowed to enter into the matter and that the city fathers will pick a man who will be a credit to the municipality regardless of petty differences in local politics.

COUNTY CLUB'S FOURTH.

Golf, Tennis and a Dance, the Attractions.

The Plainfield Country Club has arranged an unusually attractive programme of events for Fourth of July and it is predicted that the day will be a banner one in the history of the club. Aside from the events in golf and tennis, there will be many features to interest the members and friends at the clubhouse. The house will be decorated with the National colors and during the afternoon there will be a fine programme of music for dancing by Wetton's orchestra, Harry Wetton, director.

There will be golf play all day for the Independence Day cup. The schedule in golf is as follows:

9 o'clock in the morning, Club championship, qualifying round; all-day, Golf Committee cup; 1 p. m., Club championship, first round match play; Consolatian cup, first round match play; third eight cup, first round match play; 3 p. m., Women's clock golf, prize presented by Townsend Rushmore.

There will be tennis morning and afternoon, senior mixed doubles, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning.

This programme of music will be rendered from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon:

March—"High Society," Porter Steele; Morceux—"In Roseland," Engenes; selection—"It Happened in Nordland," Herbert; waltz—"Tout Paris," Waldteuful; Old Melodies of 1863, Calvin; Pas des E'charpes, Chaminade; promenade — "Yankee Land," Hoffman; "Melodies from Woodland," Luders; intermezzo—"Al Fresco," Herbert; Excerpts from Fantana, Hubbel; Morris Dance, from Henry VIII, German; finale—"Yankee Grit," Holzman.

New Market Programme.

The programme of the Fourth of July celebration to be held by the New Market Juniors, at Vail's Grove, New Market, has been arranged in outline. The schedule of events includes an address by Col. Darwin C. Pavey, of Boston; boat race, tub race, swimming race, catching the duck, shoe race, wheelbarrow race, three-legged race, hobble-hoof race, egg race, barrel race, coat and vest race, tug of war, two baseball games between the New Markets and the North End A. C., of Newark, and a big display of fireworks in the evening.

Mrs. Mary McGovern Dead.

Mrs. Mary McGovern, aged sixty-nine years, died at her home on East Third street last night. She was born in this city and was the daughter of the late Patrick McGoldrick. The funeral will be held from St. Mary's church tomorrow morning, and interment will be made in St. Mary's Cemetery.

THIRTEENTH GAME.

Brightons, of New York, to Play Daabsters Tomorrow.

A strong aggregation will oppose the Plainfield team on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon, and lovers of good baseball are assured of a fine exhibition, especially in view of the fact that Kelly will pitch for the visitors. He, it will be remembered, pitched for the All-Americans on the Oval on Decoration Day morning, Plainfield down to three hits. The score in that game was 2 to 1 in favor for Plainfield, it requiring ten innings to decide the contest. The other positions on the team are filled with strong players of known ability and the locals will have no walkover.

Manager Daab assures the fans that the contest will be a good one and that his team will have to play their best to win. Walter Cosgrave will be back in his regular position in centre field, and as the locals have been putting up a fast article of ball they are sure to give a good account of themselves.

Last Saturday's contest is still fresh in the minds of fandom and there are many persons who regret that they did not see the exhibition.

This will be the lineup for the Plainfield team: Kiernan, ss; Cosgrave, cf; Love, 2b; Connolly, rf; Cregan, lf; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neill, c; Beck or Deegan, p.

The lineup for the visitors will be as follows: Hendricks, 3b; Fitzhenry, 2b; Holland, cf; Higgins, 1b; Burke, rf; Hohman, c; Wallace, ss; Young, lf; Kelly, Halligan or Murphy, p.

FIGHTING THE MOSQUITO

What New Jersey Has Done to Exterminate the Pesky Creature.

To New Jersey belongs the distinction of having conducted a campaign absolutely unique in conception, purpose and partial fulfillment. The State is trying to square itself with the world. As the proverbial home of the mosquito it has been the target for all sorts of disparaging witticisms.

The mosquito pest has been an all-powerful factor in holding back, to a great extent, many of the natural industries of the land between the Delaware and Hudson rivers. It has been a menace to the health of the inhabitants, an absolute preventative for really solid comfort in the open air and a serious setback to the value and price of real estate.

It is little wonder that when the prooblem assumed proportions so monstrous the State Legislature found action necessary. During the session of 1902 a law was passed providing for an investigation of the pest, and John B. Smith, Sc. D., was entrusted with the herculean task of leading an army of experts against the pesky foe.

People and press were doubtful, indeed, that the thousands of dollars worth which this propaganda would necessarily cost would ever bring results. But Dr. Smith and his assistants fought on, despite the lack of moral support given by the public, and today there is no doubt that an apparent inroad has been made on the troublesome host, although it is no less obvious that a great work still remains.

The systematic campaign conducted by the officials involved a division of the entire State into practicable sections. Over each of these sections one of Dr. Smith's assistants was assigned to collect specimens and take minute notes on such physical conditions which directly or indirectly affected the existence of propagation of mosquitoes. As a result of this investigation a mass of pertinent information was brought to the expert's laboratory in New Brunswick and the greater task of finding the method of relief was undertaken.

Dr. Smith makes no pretense at extermination. He says: "I do not believe actual extermination is possible in the case of an insect that develops so rapidly and in such a great variety of places. There will always be careless people and there will often be unusual seasons that will give mosquitoes a chance to maintain themselves, but it is quite within our power to deprive them of their larger breeding areas and to reduce them to a point where they will cease to be obnoxious. Improvement of the salt marsh conditions will prevent the migrations and will enable local communities to benefit by their enterprise in improving conditions. Were it not for the marsh mosquitoes Montclair and South Orange would not even now need mosquito netting."

With the careful survey of the State once under way, it became apparent to the authorities that the seat of action must be the marsh lands. The most important of these were the Newark meadows, where gangs of laborers were set to work draining and filling in the dead pools and bogs which constitute the breeding places for the swarms of mosquitoes. The marsh breeding species will probably prove to be the most expensive when it comes to the expenditure of great sums in fighting the insect. Dr. Smith declares, however, that even though it cost the State treasury a million dollars, the benefits to be derived in the increased value of the property, to say nothing of the increased comfort of the people, would repay the expenditure one hundred fold. It is related that one conservative man who contributed $50 to a fund for cleaning out a large breeding area, said that this outlay had increased the value of his property holdings by $10,000.

One of the results of the systematic research made throughout the State is that the experts who had the work in hand have a knowledge of practically every species of mosquito in the State. Dr. Smith believes, further, that he has determined by practical work and experiment that control of the pest is possible at a reasonable cost, and that there remains only the actual carrying out of the recommendations made.

Among those who have assisted the State entomologist are J. Turner Brakeley, of Bordentown; Edgar L. Dickinson, of Newark; Herman H. Brehme, of Newark; John A. Grossbeck, William P. Seal, of Belair; Charles W. Wagner, of Elizabeth; John Mellor, of New York, and Henry L. Viereck, of Philadelphia. Graduates and undergraduates of Rutgers College are deeply interested in Dr. Smith's work, and have given him great assistance in his laboratory.

Drunken Policemen.

There is nothing in a reprimand to carry much weight with a policeman who gets drunk while on duty. If he knew that he would lose his job for such an offense, he would be more careful. There is no justification for a drunken policeman on duty, but Paterson will have them as long as the practical management of the department rests in the Board of Aldermen.—Paterson Guardian.

[Copyright, 1899, by F. Tennyson Neely.]

But that could have been only a part of it, said the garrison. An honorarium in solid cash, it was believed, was far the greater portion of the consideration which the elder sister accepted for having successfully borne Nita away from the dangers and fascinations of the Point—having guarded her, drooping and languid, against the advance of good looking soldier lads at headquarters, and finally having, by dint of hours of argument, persuasion and skill, delivered her into the arms of the elderly but well preserved groom. All he demanded to know was that she was fancy free—that there was no previous attachment, and on this point Mrs. Frank had solemnly averred there was none. The child had had a foolish fancy for a cadet beau, but it amounted to absolutely nothing. There had been no vows, no pledge, no promise of any kind, and she was actually free as air. So Frost was satisfied.

They made an odd looking pair. Frost was bony built but sturdy, and Nita seemed like a fairy, indeed as unsubstantial as a wisp of vapor, as she came down the aisle on his arm. They were so far to the south on this honeymoon trip as almost to feel the shock and concussion when the Maine was blown to a mass of wreckage. They were in Washington when the congress demanded full satisfaction of Spain, and Col. Frost was told his leave was cut short—that he must return to his station at once. Going first to the Arlington and hurriedly entering the room, he almost stumbled over the body of his wife, lying close to the door in a swoon from which it took some time and the efforts of the house physician and the maids to restore her. Questioned later as to the cause she wept hysterically and wrung her hands. She didn't know. She had gone to the door to answer a knock, and got dizzy and remembered nothing more. What became of the knocker? She didn't know. Frost inquired at the office. A bellboy was found who said he had taken up a card in an envelope given him by a young feller who "seemed kind o' sick. Mrs. Frost took it and flopped," and a chambermaid ran in to her, and then hurried for the doctor. "What became of the letter or note or card?" asked Frost, with suspicion of jealousy in his heart. Two women, mistress and maid, and the bellboy swore they didn't know, but the maid did know. With the quick intuition of her sex and class she had seen that there was or had been a young lover, and sympathy for Nita and a dislike for Frost, who gave no tips, prompted her to hide it until she could slip it safely into Nita's hand, Nita who read, shuddered, tore it into minute scraps, and wept more, face downward, on the bed. They had reached their winter station before the cable flashed the stirring tidings of Dewey's great victory in Manila bay, and within half a week came telegraphic orders for Col. Frost to proceed at once to San Francisco, there to await instructions. The first expedition was organizing when he arrived, his pallid little wife by his side, and there were his instructions to proceed to Manila as chief of his department—an independent position, and yet it was a horrid blow. But there was no recourse. Nita begged that she might stay with her sister. She could not bear the idea of going. Frost knew that no women could accompany the expedition, and, shipping his chest and desks by the transport, he had secured passage for himself and wife to Hong-Kong on one of the splendid steamers of the English line from Vancouver, and so informed her. It dashed Nita's last hope. They were occupying fine rooms at the Palace hotel. The city was thronged with officers and rapidly arriving troops. Other army women, eager to accompany their husbands, were railing at the fate that separated them, and Nita had been forced to conceal the joy with which she heard their lamentations. But she had yet to learn how exacting Frost could be. It had never occurred to her that he could obtain permission to go except by transport. It had not seemed possible that he would take her with him. "You should have known," said he, "that even if I had had to go by transport, you would have gone by the Empress of India. It is only 60 hours from Manila to Hong-Kong, and I could have joined you soon after your arrival. As it is I shall see you safely established there—I have letters to certain prominent English people—then shall go over to join the fleet when it arrives in Manila bay."

That night she wrote long and desperately to Margaret. "He swore he would follow me wherever we went until I granted him the interview. You know how he dogged me in Washington, followed me to Denver, and any moment he may address me here. F. will not let me return to you. He insists on my going to Hong-Kong, where he can occasionally join me. But Rollin holds those letters over me like a whip, and declares that he will give them into Frost's hands unless I see him whenever he presents himself. You made me swear to Frost I never cared a straw for my darling that was. O God, how I loved him! and if these letters ever reach the man to whom you have sold me, he would treat me as he would a dog, even if he doesn't kill me. Meg—Meg—you must help me, for I live in terror."

And that she lived in terror was true, some women were quick to see. Never would she go anywhere, even along the corridor, alone. If the colonel could not come to luncheon she was served in their rooms. If she had to go calling or shopping it was in a carriage and always with some army woman whom she could persuade to go with her.

One day, just before their intended departure, she drove out paying parting calls. It was quite late when the carriage drew up at the Market street entrance, the nearest to their elevator. The door boy sprang across the sidewalk to open the carriage, and as she stepped wearily out a tall young man, erect and slender, dressed in a dark traveling suit, fairly confronted her, raised his derby and said: "You can give me ten minutes now, Mrs. Frost. Be good enough to take my arm."

LITERARY.

The Greeks never had the idea that a work of art could be created by rule. They were realists to an eminent degree, and believed only what their experience taught them. (By the way, our schools exist solely upon the experiences they have not gone through—the experiences of others.) For them, an edifice had to please the eye and satisfy their instinctive and imperious desire to be logical, and logic demands that the forms shall be appropriate to the functions; that, just as legs are intended for walking, so supports ought to have something to support. —Jean Schoepfer, in the Architectural Record Magazine.

The Forum for July-September opens with an article on "American Politics" by Henry Litchfield West, in which the question of municipal ownership, as well as other important topics of the day, are broadly discussed. "Foreign Affairs," and especially the diplomatic features of the war in the Far East, are comprehensively treated by A. Maurice Low. In his article on "Finance" Mr. Alexander D. Noyes reviews the principal developments in that department during the past three months. A broad survey of the great architectural activity in the United States is afforded by Prof. A. D. F. Hamlin's paper on "Archtecture." Important features of recent educational activity are discussed by Oscian H. Lang, in the paper entitled "The Educational Outlook," while "Applied Science," in all its latest developments, is ably treated by H. H. Suplee. An interesting paper by Herbert W. Horwill on "Recent Fiction," which concludes this series of "Reviews," is followed by three special articles entitled "Women in Turkey," by Mary Mills Patrick; "The British Invasion of Tibet," by Mohammad Barakatullah; and "The Rupture Between Norway and Sweden," by Julius Moritzen.

Judicious Advertising.

Little corner grocery stores remain little because they do not advertise. In fact all little stores are in the same class. They are dwarfed because their owners do not attract trade. If a storekeeper made a point of advertising new goods, specialties or low prices, and used any kind of judgment in his ads, he would increase his business. Some men have tried this and have prospered, and what one man has done any other man can do better. It is not the standing ad of hackneyed form that draws trade. That serves the same purpose as a sign board. An ad that says something and not too much is the winner. A year or two ago a few banks began to advertise. It was a novelty then, but those which put out attractive ads drew business, created it, in fact, for they built up business that did not exist before they began to advertise. Lately a few progressive churches have taken to regular advertising, and they find that it pays. A church in Cleveland appointde a press agent, and he not only prepared attractive ads, but reading matter, notices of meetings and services. The result was a notable increase in attendance. Now a church in Buffalo has followed this example, and the Elmira Y. M. C. A. There is no reason why churches should not advertise any more than any other organization. The only requisite for such advertising is dignity and clearness. The sensational ad would injure the cause just as it would damage a bank, but judicious advertising is good for any enterprise.—Jersey City Journal.

Car-Cleaning with the Air-Broom.

Hardly a room in the larger American hotels is now cleaned by means of the time honored broom and feather duster. The dust and dirt are removed by means of air with infinitely less physical exertion and with far greater rapidity. From every room pipes pass, through which the dust is sucked down into the cellar without allowing the slightest particle to escape to the atmosphere. So rapid has been the development of this sanitary system of house cleaning that even dwellings and small office buildings, although not provided with the elaborate piping system of the air hotels referred to, are cleaned by air. It is no uncommon sight in New York to see a wagon carrying a powerful vacuum pump stading in front of a residence, with lines of hose extending through the doorway into the interior. The amount of dust drawn out through the hose is enough to alarm every housewife and to confirm her dark suspicion of the hopeless inefficiency of servants. Cleaning houses in this fashion is now a thriving business. The latest application of the vacuum cleaning method is to be found in the car barns of one of the leading raiways. After a long journey a passenger coach is anything but a haven of sweetness and purity. Moreover, it must be cleaned with the utmost despatch. The "air broom" effectively and rapidly sucks out dust from cushions, seats, hangings, carpets and mattresses, without the commotion of the old method.—Booklovers' Magazine.

Sea Coast Industry.

An industry, which is under process of development along the New Jersey coast, is that of gathering sea grass, which may be woven around oak splints, and used in the making of inexpensive "bungalow" furniture. —Trenton True American.

CAPT. HUBBARD'S FUNERAL

pastor now. We were talking one day about the reading of Scripture. The day before he had been listening to a man reading a portion of the Scripture in a manner that did not please him. He said: 'I do not like to hear a man read my chapter in that way.' I asked him about this chapter, and he said, 'When our regiment was on reserve at Chancellorsville, expecting at any moment to be called into action, I sought a secluded spot, drew out my testament and read the fourteenth chapter of John, beginning 'Let not your heart be troubled." I read that chapter, put my testament back in my haversack, and from that hour I have felt the peace that came over me and blest me, and I cannot bear to have any one read that chapter carelessly.'

"To you, his comrades in arms, I tell this story as a revelation of the inner life of your officer and my brother. I do not wonder that yesterday, at Harvard, President Roosevelt said, 'I am for peace, but peace with righteousness.' In 1861 we were forced to purchase peace with the sword, and we owe an everlasting debt of gratitude to the men who purchased that peace. Captain Hubbard, with courage as true as his sword, represented the true soldier. As a son, husband, business man, patriot and worker in the church of Christ, he was so much above the average man that he seems unlike most of us. I come here as a friend, glad to come here as a brother and acknowledge that I am the better because I knew him.

"This testimony is not so much to him as a man as the manhood he presented. You could no more associate the thought of graft with the name of Captain Hubbard than you could with the name of your mother. Only a day or two slips by since we have bid good bye, only a day or two passes when we shall follow into that larger life—a sweeter peace that is to come upon us.

"Brothers, friends, bereaved ones, our little circle has been broken again. To the Divine love we commend you. Our Father will guide the feet that are still left to tread the paths of life, but it will not be long before we shall all gather in the ineffable peace found alone in the presence of Him who loved us and hath redeemed us."

As Dr. Lewis concluded, Charles L. Lewis sang with great depth of feeling, "Crossing the Bar," and prayer was offered by President B. C. Davis, of Alfred University, of which Mr. Hubbard was one of the Board of Trustees. The service closed with the singing of "Lead Kindly Light," by Mr. Lewis and Mr. Runyon.

When the opportunity was given the mourners to view the features of the captain it required a long time for the line to pass by. The casket was draped with the Stars and Stripes and the floral tributes were so numerous as to occupy half the room. There were immense set pieces from all the organizations and societies with which he had been connected and from individuals.

The interment was made at Hillside, the greater part of the attendants proceeding to the graveside. Scripture was read by Rev. Mr. Shaw and the committal and prayer was made by Dr. Lewis.

The casket was borne by I. N. VanSickle, A. L. Titsworth, D. E. Titsworth, G. E. Stillman, W. H. Rogers, C. H. Dunham, Frank J. Hubbard and William C. Hubbard.

The gathering at the house included Judge B .A. Vail, who adjourned the court of Common Pleas at 1 o'clock that the attaches might attend, County Collector E. M. Wood, Surrogate George T. Parrot, County Physician F. W. Westcott, County Registrar F. H. Smith, Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, former Sheriff Robert Houston, County Engineer Jacob Bauer, S. Rusling Ryno, clerk to the Board of Freeholders; Charles E. Reid, secretary to the Republican County Committee; former county clerks, William Howard and John L. Crowell; County Attorney W. R. Coddington, Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rahway; Hamilton F. Kean, Frank Bergen, Street Commissioner Thompson, former Mayor P. J. Ryan, C. H. K. Halsey, Postmaster P. H. Charlock and Editor Joseph Louden, of Elizabeth. Among the local officials who attended were Mayor James F. Buckle, City Clerk James T. MacMurray, Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett, Chief T. O. Doane, Chief P. S. Kiely and members of the Common Council, also former Mayor Dr. O. L. Jenkins. Muhlenberg Hospital was represented by Ernest R. Ackerman and William S. Cock.

The survivors of Company H who were present were Nelson Runyon, Charles H. Randolph, James L. Mundy, Charles B. Roger and Randolph Thorn, of this city; Harry Champlin, of Newark, and John Fromm, of Elizabeth. In addition there were twenty members of the 30th. N. J. regiment.

Throngs of shoppers amazed at the splendid values

THE FAIR

130 West Front Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Trade lethargy shattered by our Ruthless Price Cutting.

The GIGANTIC CLEARANCE SALE

and Fourth of July Bargains will put in shade any and All Previous Sales.

To Celebrate the Great and Glorious Fourth Properly Required Considerable Cash. It always did, but not now.

By doing your shopping with THE FAIR you save a sufficient sum for your Fourth of July Celebration.

The Gigantic Clearance Sale started in merrily, and at once proved its popularity. The shopping public, both in this city and in territory round-about for many miles, knows that when we announce a sale it means that prices have been cut absolutely to the lowest limit.

That all thought of cost and profit have been banished. This same public knows, too, that we maintain the highest possible standard in our line. We carry at all times the best goods that are manufactured, and the goods offered at this sale are positively goods belonging to our regular stock. They are not inferior goods, bought in to delude the public.

We are greatly overstocked and hence have made unprecedented sacrifices in order to clear out our immense summer stock. At prices quoted the demand will, we believe, at once equal the supply and the goods will be moved. It is a piece of rare good fortune for the public to be able to select from so large, exclusive and distinctive a stock as ours at such prices.

Saturday July 1st, and Monday, July 3rd, the despotic king of high prices will be dethroned by the peaceful revolution of THE FAIR Gigantic Clearance Sale.
